Facing Eviction

FACE EVICTION—Mrs. Inez Nicherson, 252 East Santa Barbara ave., with her daughter Carlotta, 5, and Rhonnie 4, as they appeared in municipal court facing an eviction suit. Carlotta and Rhonnie are two of a group of eight that comprise Mrs. Nicherson's family.

'Okie' Woman Confused in Court Testimony

In a hearing bearing all the earmarks of a typical Scottsboro frame-up, Jesse Raphael, 28 year old cab driver and an honorably discharged World War II veteran, was held last Tuesday on a charge of attempted rape by the Justice of the Peace in Gardena, a suburb of Los Angeles.

Raphael has been a resident of Los Angeles for several years, both before and after his army service, and now lives with his wife in South Los Angeles.

Ruth Tatum, a white woman formerly of Oklahoma, was the complaining witness. She testified on direct examination that the defendant picked her up in his cab as a regular fare at 6th and San Pedro sts., at 2 a.m. last Thursday. She directed him to drive her to her home at 134th and Budlong sts., commonly known as "Okie Flats." At about Slauson and Figueroa Raphael, she said, asked her for a date. This frightened her, she testified, but she made no attempt to get out of his cab until within two blocks of her home.

At that point, she asserted, the defendant stopped the cab, after announcing his purpose and intentions. She ran, she said and he pursued her, overtook her and

Jails Cyclist as Drunk 'Driver'

Here's a new one for the books. A 21-year-old youth, identified simply as Maclarin of 205 East 54th street, was in jail today charged with being drunk while riding a bicycle.

Maclarin, a messenger boy for a delivery company, was found lying in a drunken stupor at Third and Alameda streets early last Friday evening his bicycle near by. Two motorists had swung their cars in position to block off traffic from the spot where he lay, thus saving him from possible injury by passing cars.

Police reported that Maclarin drank a pint of gin before he passed out.

Bank Official Backs W'side Covenant Drive

Powerful financial and political figures today stood revealed among the promoters of a sweeping plan to drive all Negroes and non-Causasians from the Southern Wilshire area.

Actively directing the drive as secretary of the Southwestern Wilshire Protective Association is real estate man Charles R. Shattuck, a brother of Edward S. Shattuck, vice chairman of the Republican State Central Committee. President of the racist outfit is W. W. Powell, vice president of the Title Insurance & Trust Co., advertised as the "largest and oldest trust com-

Laymen Object To Negroes In Church Schools

ST. LOUIS—How much influence do the large number of Catholic interracial committees in this country exercise on members of their own church? Will that Church back these committees and its own professions of the brotherhood of man?

At least one of these questions, possibly both, was on its way to an answer this week as 700 white Catholics threatened to appeal to the apostolic delegate at Washington a ruling by Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter that they drop plans for legal action against the admission of Negro children to white parochial schools or face excommunication.

John P. Barrett, chairman of the Catholic racists, said the group voted to drop an injunction suit against the archbishop's ruling that Negroes be admitted to the parochial schols, but had no intention of giving up the fight to enforce retention

Negro Students Attacked on Bus, Told Not Wanted

At press time last night The EAGLE learned of another race riot flare-up at Fremont High school staged after the fashion of the last one.

Carlotta Glass, a student at Fremont, reported that she and five other colored girl students, were attacked Tuesday on the school bus by a white girl who said she was from Texas, and would not tolerate the presence of Negroes at Fremont. She told the Negro girls to go to Jordan or Jefferson.

They were told that on Wednesday there would be a riot.

Mrs. Douglas is one of the few members of congress who has a voting record of 100 per cent for all progressive measures. Her subject will be: "The Shame of the 80th Congress."

Voters in 56th, 63rd A.D.'s Must Register Today

Today (Thursday) is the last day that voters in the 63rd and 56th assembly districts can register to vote in the special elections in those districts, slated for Nov. 4.

The EAGLE urges all voters in the two districts to register and go to the polls on Nov. 4 and vote for progressive candidates and policies.

On The Sidewalk

By C.A.B.

NOW, it has come to pass in the year of our Lord, 1947, that any man who dares to speak the truth shall ever afterwards be called a Communist, and relegated to the rank of a leper.

It seems that even Democratic Governor J. Strom Thurmond, of South Carolina, because he justly blasted profiteering by the National Association of Real Estate Boards, is accused of getting his orders from the international offices of the Communist Party.

According to The Daily Peoples' World, Governor Thurmonds' words of criticism were sharp and piercing. "I have been outraged by the housing situation in South Carolina", he said. "I feel it my duty as governor of this state to express my feelings openly and clearly."

The governor then charged that many real estate owners 'are getting rich out of human misery and unhappiness' and are now seeking abolition of all rent controls.

While no mention of race or color was made by Governor Thurmond in his castigation of these real estate exploiters, we know that, as he stated, the average annual income in South Carolina being only $710, the Negro worker, outside the ranks of Union labor, would fall far short of this.

SAID the South Carolina Governor further: "As for saying that rent ceilings are un-American, I tell you that is a ridiculous statement. The United States of America compelled men to risk and lose their lives on foreign soil during the war. Was that vicious and un-American?"

This question coming from a section of the nation from which we thought no good could come, arouses a somewhat emotional but serious thinking on our part. We hear about many strange things happening in our midst. The Freedom Train that is coming across the country. The un-American Activities Committee that is swooping down upon Hollywood this week.

LAST Wednesday the restrictive covenant spread that has engaged our attention now for a considerable time flared up in a mass meeting at the Diana Ballroom, 4067 West Pico street.

This mass action was staged by the Southwestern Wilshire District Protective Association. The task this organization has set itself to do, is to keep the district bounded by Wilshire to Pico, Western to Crenshaw, white. From all indications Charles B. Shattuck, realtor, is the leader of this all-white un-American organization. He, at any rate, is its executive-secretary.

I wonder if Mr. Shattuck and his city-wide real estate associates are as interested in keeping the district white as they are in colecting the $3000 already garnered from those people who feed on racial hate administered by these profiteering real estate owners who sell hate at a high price.

At the Diana Ballroom meeting Mr. Shattuck was the principal speaker. He declared to the 400 persons present, that the aim of the organization to which they had paid $25 each in membership fees was to defend their homes against the invasion of non-Caucasion residents. Among the cases of non-Caucasians already in the district are: Ripley vs. Hudson; Kim, a korean and a former captain in the United States Army, who has had an injunction issued against him to prevent him buying a home.

Shattuck urged his listeners on Wednesday night to fight these non-Caucasian residents, as a civic duty. "I could sell out", said he, with a fine show of patriotic martyrdom, "and buy a home somewhere else. That would be easy to do. But I wouldn't be doing my duty as a patriotic citizen if I did that."

THREE Negro families on South St. Andrews Place have been ordered to leave their homes. Those cases are now pending in court. In the municipal court last July, the decision was in favor of the Wilshire Association. It

Locked Out Roomer Wins $150 Damages In Solomonic Verdict

A new version of "Who Killed Cock Robin", was the headache presented to Municipal Judge Joseph Marchetti this week in a legal crossword puzzle participated in by two landlords, a broker and four attorneys, including Attys. Crispus A. Wright, Loren Miller and Walter L. Gordon Jr.

The court was asked to decide who changed the lock on the front door of the 14-room house at 1019 East 25th st., thereby denying Charles D. Wherry access to his rented room in the house. Another and no less intriguing question which confronted the court was, how had Wherry subsequently managed to get into the house without breaking the new lock?

Wherry, represented by Atty. Gordon Jr., had sued for damages, contending that he had been greatly inconvenienced by being denied access to his room, the housing situation being what it is.

Out of a maze of conflicting testimony and legal maneuvers, Carlotta Glass, a student at

HPA Meets Friday

The Home Protective Association will meet Friday at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Laws, 1245 E. 92nd St. The president, Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass, will preside.

The HPA was organized to fight restrictive covenants, especially the case of the Laws family, ordered out of their home because they are Negroes. This case has been taken through the municipal courts, the county courts, and it is now awaiting a decision from the California State Supreme court. If this decision should be unfavorable, the HPA has decided to go to the United States supreme court.

All persons involved in restrictive covenant cases are invited to attend Friday's meeting at the Law's home.

L.A. Food Prices Rise 10 Percent In Two Weeks

Food prices here continued to soar this week, giving impetus to a growing buyers' strike in this area.

In general, prices soared an estimated 10 percent over the record highs of two weeks ago.

Only butter, which on Sept. 9 was selling at $1 a pound and up, showed a slight downward trend.

Fruits and vegetables, which for many weeks had resisted the inflationary frenzy characteristic of other commodities, yesterday had joined the upward rush. Lettuce prices, for instance, had doubled from a month ago. Even the lowly potato had got in line.

Reflecting the gravity of the run-away prices situation, President Truman yesterday met with his cabinet in an emergency meeting.

Stripped of political propaganda, the main question discussed at the cabinet meeting was whether to let Western Europe turn to Eastern Europe for sorely needed foods or ask the American people to tighten their belts to permit continued large-scale shipments of U.S. food to Western Europe.

State Department officials advocate the second alternative. They reason that whoever furnishes Western Europe with food and other supplies will be able, in large measure, to dictate the political set-up in France, Italy and other Western European countries.

The cabinet meeting took up the request of 16 Western European countries that this country furnish them with 16 billion dollars during the next four years for purchases in the U.S.

15-Day Boycott

Meantime, American consumers, pessimistic of government action to bring prices down, took the initiative in several areas. A group of Chicago socialites launched a chain letter campaign to enlist all of the nation's 39,000,000 families in a 15-day boycott of high-priced butter, eggs and meat. The boycott was slated to start Oct. 15.

The letters asked that each recipient make five copies and send to friends, especially persons in other cities.

Organized labor, particularly CIO unions, was also continuing its campaign against high prices.

Hears Frame-Up Of Vet Blasted

SAN DIEGO—The protest meeting here last Friday on the case of Raymond Brashear, 22-year-old war veteran, charged with assault by a white plainclothes policeman, aroused a determination to carry through to the end among those present.

The meeting was held in the auditorium of the San Diego Memorial High school. And while the spacious auditorium was not filled, a large crowd attended and made up in enthusiasm and determination what it lacked in numbers.

The Brashear case has been called the Woodward case of the West Coast. Young Brashear was shot in the chest by Police Officer Harry Hale of the vice squad on March 8, five hours after he had returned home on terminal leave and while he was attending a "welcome home" party in his mother's home.

Hale testified at the preliminary hearing that Brashear had a kitchen knife in his hand when he and another officer entered the house to subdue a fight, and that he fired in self defense.

Brashear, however, was not in the squabble between a man named Dabney and several others who were trying to prevent Dabney from following his wife. He was simply standing by the kitchen door, looking on. Mrs. Brashear, the young veteran's mother, had used the knife last, she claims, and insists that if they had wanted to, they could have found her fingerprints on it.

Brashear, however, was arrested for assault. He is now out on $1500 bail.

Among the speakers at the meeting last Friday night were Karen Morley, noted Broadway and Hollywood actress, who read a poem of Langston Huges, appropriate to the occasion. Don Wheeldin, commander United Negro and Allied Veterans of America, who told of the splendid character of young Brashear, and urged all to put their shoulder to the wheel in getting the preposterous charge dismissed.

Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass, editor and publisher of The California EAGLE, spoke of the strides the progressive forces have made in the fight against police brutality. "But it is grievous to note," she admitted, "how many stand aside and are psychologized by the propaganda of the people who have denied the rights to Negroes in similar cases, from the case of the Scottsboro Boys down to the present time."

Civil rights groups, churches, unions, the NAACP, the NNC, the Progressive Citizens of America and other liberty-loving groups have joined in the fight to set young Brashear free.

Film Exposing Ku Klux Klan

The Virginia State Board of Censors has banned the showing of Screen Guild Productions' picture "The Burning Cross", according to word received here Sunday by John J. Jones, president of Screen Guild. Joel Fluellen, noted Negro actor, is starred in this daring expose of the Ku Klux Klan.

The Virginia board's message rejecting the picture reads, "This picture is inhuman and is of such character that its exhibition may incite to crime and for these reasons the entire motion picture is rejected."

Executives of Sreen Guild and Somerset Pictures, producers of the film, met Monday to confer on steps to appeal the censor board's decision before the Virginia court of appeals.

"The Burning Cross" has been whole-heartedly acclaimed by newspaper critics wherever it has been shown," Jones said. "In San Francisco, where it opened a pre-release engagement, every motion picture editor praised it for courageously bringing to the screen the insidious tactics of the Ku Klux Klan and daring to show the inner workings of this un-American hooded organization in a picture that while it preaches tolerance also is excellent entertainment," he said.

"Plans to open the picture in Atlanta, Ga., the home of the Ku Klux Klan, are now under consideration," Jones said. "Whether or not we win through in Virginia we will not deviate from our intention of putting "The Burning Cross" on the screens of the Southern states. We feel sure that a vast majority of the people in the South want to see this picture and do not believe in the intolerant precepts of the Ku Klux Klan.

Carlton Moss to Instruct Negro History Class

"The Negro in World Affairs" is the subject for instruction in a class taught by Carleton Moss, radio and screen wirter and producer, at the Peoples Education Center, 1717 North Vine street, during the fall term, which begins October 6.

In this course Moss will explore the current status of the Negro people socially, economically, and politically. He will trace the history of the Negro people since the time when they were first brought to this country as chattel slaves, and with that historical background will indicate their condition in the Agragian South and the Industrial North.

He will take up such problems as: can discrimination be legislated out of existence? What is the effect on white workers of job-discrimination against Negroes? The role of the trade union movement, the future of the Negro people and the impact of patterns of discrimination on America's position abroad.

Other courses are offered in writing, painting, dance, theatre, social science, political economy, etc.

Truman to Lead Salute to Chest

President Harry S. Truman will lead the nation in a salute to more than 1000 Community Chests about to have their 1947 campaigns, Friday evening, Sept. 26. He will be joined by H. J. Heinz, II, now a guest of the Los Angeles metropolitan area Chest, and by six radio and motion picture stars.

Major network stations will carry the program on behalf of Red Feather health, welfare, youth and veterans agencies from 6:30 to 7 p.m., Pacific time. The President will be introduced by Margaret O'Brien. Other stars scheduled to be heard are Jack Benny, Edgar Bergen, Bob Hope, Dorothy Lamour and James Stewart, the latter speaking from Chicago.

Burris Out on Bail; Contests Police Charge

Phillip Burris, operator of a city wide janitor service, has been arrested and jailed by detectives from the 77th street station, on a charge of grand theft arising out of the alleged possession by one of his employes of a large amount of merchandise allegedly taken from a South Los Angeles foundry.

Burris who lives at 1115 E. 21st street denies the charges and immediately retained Attorney Curtis C. Taylor who secured his release on a writ of habeas corpus pending further proceedings.

Anti-Negro Cartoon Draws Angry Protest

NEW YORK — The New York Herald-Tribune, Republican newspaper, this week was deluged with angry protests concerning a political cartoon entitled "Topsy Just Didn't Grow Up", which was featured in the Sept. 18 issue of the paper. The carton was condemned as an insulting caricature of the Negro people.

Leading the protest action was the NAACP. In a letter to Mrs. Helen Rogers Reid, president of the Hearld Tribune, Madison S. Jones Jr., NAACP administrative assistant, wrote in part:

"The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People feels that this cartoon was most insulting. The gross caricatures of Negroes portrayed in this picture were indicative of the most exaggerated stereotypes and its publication by the Tribune shocked and astounded us.

"We are asking that an apology be made to all readers of your paper and that steps be taken to insure against any recurrence of such offensive material. We have had many calls from persons who have identified themselves not only as Negroes but as whites, who felt that the cartoon was an insult to intelligent Americans."

Lina Romay, now a top film singing-actress, has come far in her career—in her early days sang on a Detroit radio sustaining program for $5 per week.

Howard Trustee Gets Southern Catholic Award

CHARLOTTE, N. C.—Dr. Guy B. Johnson, a member of the board of trustees of Howard university, yesterday was given the annual award of the Catholic Committee of the South for 1947, at the committee's convention here, September 23 to 25.

Dr. Johnson is a research professor of social science at the University of North Carolina and an expert in race relations and Negro Culture for the Southern Regional Council.

The award is given each year to a man or woman whose work has contributed most greatly to the advancement of the South. Previous recipients include David E. Lilienthal, now head of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, and Dr. George Washington Carver, famous scientist.

Dr. Johnson was chosen for the honor this year "to acknowledge through him the excellent work of the Southern Regional Council and to give recognition to a good example of sound and sane Southern leadership."

Officials of the Catholic Committee of the South said that through various publications and administrative position, Dr. Johnson "has manifested an informed sympathetic and humble leadership which deserves recognition, especially in these days when our region is beset with so much shallow, confusing demagory."

The award was presented at a general public session in the Hotel Charlotte by Most Rev. Joseph F. Rummel, D. D., archbishop of New Orleans and episcopal chairman of the Catholic Committee of the South.

was mentioned several times as a subject for much rejoicing.

With sanctimonious hypocracy Shattuck spoke of keeping the letter of the Constitution, even while its very spirit is being violated.

"According to the Constitution", he said, "we are all equal before the law. "Non-Caucasians can buy anywhere, the same as whites can. But it is also Constitutional", according to his opinion, "for any group to band together and agree that no member of any other group should live there. Koreans may unite in this way. Chinese. Negroes. And so may pure Caucasians. Negroes may buy property in this district. But they can be prohibited from living here."

REV. W. Clarence Wright, pastor of the Wilshire Presbyterian Church, is evidently one of the pillars in this movement. He was mentioned several times as a large contributor both in money and services.

It is said that when it was announced that of the $3000 collected, $2280 had gone for attorney's fees, a murmur that sounded like a protest sizzled through the audience.

Los Angeles has been treated to many conventions this year, the latest that of the State American Legion confab is on now. I haven't heard that any of these organizations actually rolled up their sleeves and gave restrictive covenants and the other evils of democracy a knockout blow.

WHAT are un-American activities? Are they something going on in Russia for the advancement of the Russian people, that the Russian Government doesn't care to tell us about? Are they the right of this government to compel men to risk and lose their lives fighting to preserve a governmental way of life that exposes them to the lynch mob? That refuses them the right to live in the homes they buy with their hard-earned cash? That rejects their applications for jobs because their skin is dark? That winks at police brutality when the police feel like beating up a colored man or woman?

While the Freedom Train is looking us over, and the Washington un-American Committee pays us a visit, we humbly ask them to look into these matters and tell us which are the evils eating at the heart of our government and threatening its security.

Hundreds Get Free X-Rays in Oakland Special Health Survey

OAKLAND—Hundreds of residents in the area west of Grove St. already have taken advantage of the free chest X-ray service being offered them through October 1, it was disclosed yesterday. This service has been made available by the Alameda County Tuberculosis and Health Association in collaboration with the Oakland Health Department and the East Bay Health Association. The Tuberculosis Association is supported entirely by funds from the annual sale of Tuberculosis Christmas Seals.

Under the auspices of the Tuberculosis Association similar surveys on a smaller scale are conducted in towns and cities of Alameda county throughout the year. Aside from such surveys at the present time, the Association has awarded scholarships at the county lung clinic to three local physicians who are studying chest diseases with Dr. Louis Ruschin and has given $50 a month for the monthly publication of the Arroyan at Arroyo Del Valle.

The organization has also allocated funds for a public health nurse in the Alameda County Health Department. Over a period of years the Tuberculosis Association has paid for a health educator, 3 public health nurses and clinicians on the staff of the Oakland Health Department.

About 54,332 miniature X-rays have been taken by the Association in the first 6 months of this calendar year. Many of these were taken in the southern end of the county.

Joel Pryce, former home office field inspector, fills the vacancy on the superintendency staff in Los Angeles made vacant by Nolan Payton's promotion. Pryce is a World War II veteran. He entered the company's employ as an agent in April, 1946. This is his second promotion.

Charles Thomas, agent in Los Angeles since October, 1946, was made a home office field inspector. His promotion to the field management staff within a year after joining the firm is the result of his unusually high record of production and debit management. He is undergoing a month of training entering the duties of his new position.

Faces Eviction On Wedding Ann.

Eviction day and his first wedding anniversary will confront former Councilman John R. Roden next Sunday.

Roden, who is now a candidate for the state legislature in the 56th district, has been given notice by his landlord to vacate his apartment at 1558 N. Hoover st.

"Even a politician has to live some place," declared Roden, who spearheaded many fights for adequate housing and rent controls during his term as a member of the Los Angeles city council.

Approximately 1500 postal cards bearing an appeal for leads on places available for renting have been mailed to Roden's friends by supporters in his present assembly campaign.

His wife, Nadine, whom he married in a colorful ceremony, attended by many notables last year when he was a councilman, was optimistic about the whole thing.

"Maybe someone will find us a place to rent as an anniversary present," she said.

Returning veterans and increasing numbers of high school graduates this year have given East Los Angeles Junior College a 20% increase in enrollment over last year, Dr. Rosco C. Ingalls, director, announced today.

This continued rapid growth has filed the Junior College to near capacity, and some Saturday casses have been added to accommodate present students. Further expansion is predicted for the second semester when the Junior College moves to its new campus at Atlantic and Brooklyn.

Twelve hundred new and old students enrolled for the fall session of instruction at ELAJC last week, revealed Logan Hart, dean of admission and records.

Of the total amount 50% of the enrollees are returning veterans. One hundred twenty-five student nurses from the County General Hospital are also included in the college student body.

Notice

Effectiveness of Southern California newspapers were credited today with helping the Los Angeles Regional War Assets Administration sell more than $293,184,000 worth of war surplus since July, 1945 with a recovery of 32½ per cent for the government.

Los Angeles county's population, still on the increase, will total 3,849,390 on October 1, the Regional Planning Commission estimated yesterday.

'Separate but Equal' Education A Fraud, Howard Survey Shows

WASHINGTON—A survey of the segreated school systems in 17 states and the District of Columbia reveals that very little progress has been made in providing educational opportunities for Negro children equal to those enjoyed by white children in the same school systems. The study was recently completed by the Bureau of Educational Research, Howard university.

Separate schools have been declared by the courts to be legal only when educational opportunity is afforded each racial group. The Howard university survey shows that in no separate school system does the Negro receive educational opportunity equal to that of white students in the same community.

The study covers the dual school systems of Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Missouri, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

Only in two fields had noticeable progress toward equality of educational opportunity been made; length of school term and increase in teachers salaries in the common schools. Fifteen years ago the length of school term for white pupils was 30 days longer than the Negro school term. In 1945, the white term was only ten days longer than the Negro term.

White elementary school teachers received an average salary of $958 in 1930 and $1307 in 1945. Negro teachers were paid $510 in 1930 and $939 in 1945. The difference in white and Negro teachers' salaries has been reduced from 85 per cent to 40 per cent in the last 15 years.

In general, this was made possible by court actions instituted in many states requiring that equal salaries be paid white and Negro teachers with the same training and doing similar work.

$224 FOR WHITE $52 FOR NEGRO CHILD

The study revealed, however, that very little progress has been made in the equalization of facilities for transporting pupils to school, or in the provision of buildings and equipment in the common schools. Fifteen years ago the value of school property per white pupils enrolled was $166 and for each Negro, only $32; in 1945 the amount invested in white school property was $224 for each white pupil in school and only $52 for each Negro pupil.

At the present rate of progress, it would take 60 years before the buildings and equipment in Negro common schools would become substantially equal to those provided for white pupils in 1945, to say nothing of the future.

In the matter of transportation to school, which is an important item because of the rural character of many Negro schools, not only are proportionately three and a half times as many white pupils transported as Negroes, but twice as much per pupil is spent for transporting a white pupil as for a Negro pupil. One state (Texas), for example, spent as much merely to haul white pupils to school in 1945 as was spent on the Negro common schools for everything — teachers, salaries, transportation, teaching materials, etc.

NEGROES DENIED HIGHER EDUCATION

The survey revealed that the provision of [illegible] and professional education opportunities for Negroes by the several states is relatively little, if any, better than 15 years ago. Some increased but still inadequate provisions have been made for collegiate education and a little graduate work of limited quality has been started.

Three times as many undergraduate curricula are offered in the average state college or university for white students are offered in the corresponding Negro higher institution.

Graduate work is offered in eight Negro state colleges in seven states, which give work leading the master's degree only. No Negro higher institution, public or private, offers work leading to the doctor's degree.

Graduate work leading to the master's degree is offered by at least one state-supported institution for white students in each of the 17 states, and the Ph.D. degree is offered in 12 states.

Professional education in state institutions was available for white students as follows: dentistry, 4 states; law, 16; medicine, 15; pharmacy, 14; social work, 9; and library science, 11 states. For Negroes no state-supported institution in any state provides any opportunity for medicine, dentistry, or pharmacy; only 4 institutions offer law; and 1 library science.

The most striking example of the relative opportunities provided for white and Negro students in state-supported higher and professional institutions is revealed by the fact that, in 1944, an amount equal to $2.43 for each person in the white population in these states was expended for white higher institutions as contrasted with 56 cents for each Negro. In 1930, the corresponding amounts were $1.39 for whites and 33 cents for Negroes. Thus, the difference in favor of white institutions has INCREASED by 13 percent instead of being decreased.

In an editorial comment on the survey, the current (Summer, 1947 Yearbook) number of the Journal of Negro Education, published by Howard university, declares:

". . . no critical observer can honestly say that Negroes are obtaining equal educational opportunity in the separate school anywhere. Moreover, the elimination of disparities in financial outlay for Negro and white common schools has been so slow that, even if equality of expenditures assured equality of educational opportunity, it would take 25 years or more for the Negro schools to reach the point where the white schools are now, and a hundred years to attain parity.

"These facts suggest that either there can be no such thing as "separate but equal" educational opportunity; or that, even if it were possible, it is not the intention of the several states in which separate schools are legally required to provide such opportunity for Negroes.

"It is clear that segregation in education based upon race must be abolished. The question is when and where to start. It is the considered opinion of a growing number of intelligent people, North and South, white and Negro, that we could and should begin now in the graduate and professional fields, gradually working down to the lower levels. (And this appears to be a sensible sort of gradualism.) For there are numerous indications that such a step is not only possible now in more than half of the states which require separate schools, but is absolutely necessary if Negroes are to obtain anything like equal opportunity on these levels."

Brass Hats in Drive For War with Russia Sen. Taylor Charges

The military has taken over the State Department and are sponsoring a concerted drive to bring matters to the breaking point with Russia, Senator Glen H. Taylor of Idaho yesterday told a luncheon meeting of the Los Angeles chapter of the National Lawyers Guild.

He assailed Secretary of State Marshall's handling of foreign affairs, condemned the unification of the military under a single Cabinet officer, denounced the house Un-American Committee and questioned the integrity of the "press that won't print the truth."

This country, he said, has lost every friend it had in the world by attaching strings to any help it offered a nation in need.

"The big fellows are getting more powerful," he warned, "and already a pattern of fascism has been laid out for them by Hitler and Mussolini. What I fear is that some day it will be armed forces against the great body of the people."

Film Industry Challenges Racist Ban on 'Curley'

NEW YORK—Immediate court action will be instituted by the film industry to challenge the racist ban by the Memphis, Tenn., censorship board of the Hal Roach picture "Curley," a comedy featuring Negro and white children, it was announced jointly yesterday by Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association, Gradwell L. Sears, president of United Artists Corporation, and Hal Roach, the producer.

Lloyd T. Binford, chairman of the Memphis board, in turning down the film for exhibition raised no objections on moral grounds but wrote the United Artists exchange in St Louis.

"I am sorry to have to inform you that it (the Memphis board of censors) was unable to approve your "Curley" picture with the little Negroes as the South does not permit Negroes in white schools nor recognize social equality between the races even in children.

"Curley," which has been described by Johnston as "A wholesome comedy of delightful American children," was produced by Hal Roach and distributed by United Artists. It follows the pattern of the old "Our Gang" comedies, which Roach originated many years ago.

Declaring that the motion picture industry is prepared to fight all the way through the courts "this dangerous threat to freedom of speech and expression," Johnston said:

"The Memphis board's action is outrageous. It is un-American. Surely the board does not speak the mind of the millions of fair-minded citizens of the South who believe in freedom of speech. We count on their support.

"Here is conclusive evidence that political censorship of any medium of expression—the press, the radio or the motion picture —cannot be tolerated if we expect American democracy to last.

"The Memphis ruling will be seized upon by the enemies of America everywhere as evidence that our democracy is rotting. The board has drawn the issue of the screen's right to freedom of speech. We intended to meet it head-on in the most forceful fashion we can devise. Political censorship has no place in America."

Hal Roach issued the following statement: "Censor Binford is trying to turn the clock back. I started making "Our Gang" comedies many years ago and they played all over the country including the South. No serious objection was voiced to the showing of a colored youngster as a member of the group.

"Young children of various races play together without friction until their elders inoculate them with the venom of race predjudice. The aged Mr. Binford is still fighting the Civil War, apparently forgetting that white and Negro service men in American uniforms fought and died together in two world wars to defend and protect the basic rights Binford would destroy.

"This picture is as clean as a whistle. Every scene in it is played for comedy. Even Binford can find nothing wrong with it save the fact that white and Negro children both appear on the screen. Because this arouses his prejudices he now seeks to ban the picture. I do not believe the courts will sustain him."

Gradwell L. Sears, president of United Artists Corp., added: "If today Binford can ban a motion picture showing white and colored kids playing together, then tomorrow some other Binford may ban the use by newspapers of photographs showing the Brooklyn Dodgers or a group of permanently disabled soldiers or sailors of different races in a veterans hospital. We are not going to take this lying down. I have instructed our lawyers to test the constitutionality of Binford's political censorship. I am pleased that the Motion Picture Association through its president, Eric Johnston, is in this fight with us."

Wallace, Robeson To Share Platforms At 3 Eastern Meetings

NEW YORK — The Progressive Citizens of America announced yestreday that Paul Robeson, PCA vice-chairman, will appear with Henry A. Wallace at "progressive counterattack" meetings in three eastern cities during October.

The former Vice-President is on a speaking tour of ten cities on the eastern seaboard, under the sponsorship of PCA and various independent citizens' organizations. Robeson will appear with him in Springfield, Mass., on Thursday, Oct. 24, in New Haven, Conn., on Wednesday, Oct. 8, and in Baltimore, Md., on Wednesday, Oct. 15.

The two shared the platform at the opening of Wallace's eastern tour in Madison Square Garden, New York, at a mass meeting sponsored by PCA. Wallace's talks throughout his tour will advance his ideas on world peace and an effective United Nations, as well as stressing the need for strengthened progressive political action at home.

Robeson will speak on civil liberties and defense of the rights of racial and national minorities.

Housing Political, Says Rep. Douglas, Citing L. A. Slums

SANTA BARBARA — Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas intends to pin the blame for the acute housing shortage where it belongs, she told the regional conference of the National Housing Association this week.

"When certain parts of my (14th) congressional district in Los Angeles are full of slums that would put Port Said to shame, that, in my view, is a political matter," she said.

"When rents are raised beyond the ability of the average man and woman to pay, I think that is a political matter. And when newly-married veterans of World War II are forced to start their family under the handicap of a hopeless debt because they have to pay $3000 for a huddle of No. 3 white pine with naked wiring running through the knotholes, that, in my humble opinion, is a political matter, too.

"I conceive these things to be the legimate concern of elected representatives at all levels of government," she told the conference.

Taking note of Senator Taft's visit to this area, she charged that Taft was planning to exploit in 1948 the Taft-Wagner-Ellender housing bill which he helped to sidetrack in the last session of congress.

"Next year is an election year," she said. "Senator Taft hopes to be a presidential candidate. Consequently, next year the flower of publicity will become the ripe fruit of a housing bill carrying Senator Taft's name. The bill will be brought out and passed."

Meantime, she continued, in the 14th district, "we have people living in floorless and almost roofless old stables; in rat-infested, abandoned warehouses; in doorless and windowless buildings that have been condemned and partly demolished; and only recently the Los Angeles City Housing Authority managed to find a place for one of our veterans who was living with his wife and two little children in a broken down rose arbor which he had plugged with folded newspapers."

L.A. Scouts in Roundup of Lost 'Strays', 'Mavericks'

The Los Angeles Area Council Boy Scout Round-Up is now on. Ranch foremen (scoutmasters, cubmasters and senior leaders) are mustering their Top Hands to make a complete survey of their pastures and determine the eras of search for lost Strays and Mavericks (lost Scouts and new Recruits).

Each ranch foreman is calling his patrol leader, den mother, and unit leaders in each case to confer and determine ways and means of rounding up any lost Scouts and develop a prospect list in order to secure new Scouts and Cubs into the Units.

The Top Hands will each be assigned the responsibility of handling the Scouts (cowhands) under their leadership in developing strategy toward bringing in all new members and have them present at their Ranch Roll Call night October 5.

Some of the Top Hands are going to schools and churches in their neighborhoods in order to obtain names of the new boys who have just become of Cub or Scout age, so that they might be able to develop a prospect list and round up these Mavericks for the ranches. Many of the ranch foremen and Top Hands have garbed themselves in Western outfits with chaps, spurs, high-heeled boots and ten-gallon hats. They have truly adopted the Western cowboy color and style for a successful Round-Up.

Mayor Proclaims Civic Unity Week October 5 to 11

In an effort to foster understanding and cooperation between all people and all groups within the city, Mayor Fletcher Bowron yesterday announced that he will set aside the week of October 5-11 as "Civic Unity Week" in Los Angeles.

Under the leadership of Mayor Bowron, who will act as honorary chairman for this unusual civic observance, public schools, colleges, churches, synagogues, labor unions, employer groups, clubs and many organizations—representing a cross section of the city—will conduct special programs dedicated to focusing attention on the things that Los Angeles citizens have in common rather than differences that may exist because of religion, race or nationality.

The Los Angeles Council for Civic Unity, headed by Dr. Maurice J. Karpf, will coordinate all activities during the week, which opens with a Civic Unity Sunday observance in the churches and appropriately closes with Civic Unity Sabbath in the city's synagogues.

Mchurchclosesv

Irene T. Heineman, assistant state superintendent of education, will head the women's committee for "Civic Unity Week," Dr. Karpf announced.

Ebony Turns on the Light

"The Story of Negro Insurance Companies' Rise to Success," an Ebony magazine story states:

Fifty-two Negro insurance companies now employ 15,000 and have assets of $100,000,000.

These figures fulfill the advice of the late editor of The California EAGLE, Joseph B. Bass. His advice was never, that Negroes should segregate themselves in business, but in order to gain the respect of the other fellow, he said, "The Negro should do something and be something."

And this is what Negro insurance has done. And now according to Ebony the insurance companies that issued special policies to Negroes, are beginning to worry a bit about that business that is slipping away from them.

No, we don't mean segregation, but leadership.

It has been said, that if you build a better mouse trap the world will beat a path to your door.

In the building of stalwart, secure insurance, the Negro businessmen heading these companies open the doors of insurance protection to all people. None of the Negro insurance companies carry a clause: For Negroes Only. Nor do they tell whites who apply, "You are too great a risk for us to undertake."

This is the prospective that Negroes should follow in business—not Jim Crow businesses, just businesses but on a high level, that will answer the needs of the people in a given community. This is Being Something, Doing Something, and Having Something.

What Negroes have accomplished in the insurance business, can also be done in other fields.

Lynching, America's No. 1 Crime

There is need for more than a general endorsement of the action against lynching, America's Number One Crime. Merely condemning it in words and doing nothing more will "extend the period of immunity to lynchers of Negro-Americans," in the opinion of the Civil Rights Congress.

The Justice Department has acted only half-heartedly. In federal, state, and local courts there have been nothing but whitewashings. Glaring examples of these are the outcome of the attacks on Negroes in Columbia, Tenn.; the quadruple lynching in Monroe, Ga., the massacre of the seven prisoners in Brunswick, Ga., and the lynching in Greenville, S.C.

Joseph Cadden, executive director of the Civil Rights Congress, has urged the vigorous investigation of all lynchings by the Justice Department. More than mere promises. He also urges the backing of the Case-Wagner federal anti-lynch bill. "Passage of this bill," he stated, "will be an important step toward the elimination of the foul American crime of lynching."

Now is the time, too, for all good people to look into the records of those who are seeking our votes for their election or re-election to office.

While Senator Taft is scouring the country for votes for his presidential campaign (although confidentially he has not yet fully decided whether or not he will run) we feel that as he makes his campaign the particular question which ought to concern the Negro people is: How do you stand on the question of lynching, Senator Taft? On racial discrimination, on segregation, on restrictive covenants, on all the other issues which make the Negro people second rate citizens, instead of placing them where they belong—where merit alone has classed them?

This question also applies to all minority groups—to those who are persecuted because of their religion as well as their race; to the Jews, the Mexicans, the foreign-born. It applies, too, today, to those who are friendly toward the persecuted, who often take their economic lives in their hands to dare to say what they believe.

These are questions weighted with danger to all minority groups, to all progressive thinkers. We need to know how our seekers for office stand on these issues.

We already know the position of Rankin. He has stated definitely he will follow absolutely in the footsteps of Bilbo.

"May that be soon," said Walter Winchell, in commenting on Rankin's expressed determination last Sunday evening. We echo the wishful thinking of Mr. Winchell, not only for the Negro-baiting and witch-hunting Rankin, but also for all the members of his un-American Committee and all others who are obstructing justice and the establishment of liberty and peace for all.

A Giant Oak Has Fallen

Former Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, of New York City, died in his sleep last Saturday morning. The end came very peacefully for the fighting little crusader for the people's rights. He had been ill for some time of an incurable pancreas condition, and underwent an operation last June from which he did not fully recover. He had been in a state of coma since Tuesday, September 16, when he collapsed at his home. Funeral services were held last Monday in the Episcopal Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

"In his death the people of the City, the State, and the Nation have lost a great patriotic citizen," said Mayor William O'Dwyer, his successor as the mayor of the world's largest city.

The people of the city, state, and nation have lost a friend, too. The Little Flower, as he was so often called—because his name means "Little Flower" and because he answered the description of "little" perfectly by being only five feet three—was nevertheless a giant oak when it came to fighting wrong.

He was a product of Manhattan's lower East Side. His colorful career, besides that of mayor of New York, included that of a frontier boy in Arizona, a consular attache, flier in World War I, President of the New York Board of Aldermen, member of Congress, and Director General of UNRRA.

He was the friend of all the oppressed, the underdogs of society. He liked to talk to the foreign-born in their native tongue. He could speak Italian, French, German, Yiddish, or Yugoslav. When World War II broke out, the Giant Oak of a Little Flower broadcast to Italy telling the people in blunt Italian language to get rid of Mussolini.

He was also a particular friend of the Negro people. In 1939 when the Order of Negro Elks met in annual convention in New York City, Fiorello La Guardia, who was then mayor of New York, came before this large body of Negroes and advised them to join the ranks of the people who believed in real freedom.

"Too long," said La Guardia, "you have served the master politicians in both the Democratic and the Republican parties."

The Little Flower had diligently searched both parties hoping to find in one or the other a remedy for the national dilemma which even at that time, like a sleeping sickness, was creeping upon the nation.

He was not a member of any one political party. The progressive voters of all parties in New York united to elect and re-elect him their mayor. His advice to the Negro people should be followed today, as his example should be followed by the candidates for political office. The Giant Oak has fallen. The fiery, fighting Little Flower has gone. But he has left an example and some excellent advice which all patriotic American voters and candidates may profit by.

Thought Control

If you fight for lower rents, higher wages, better working conditions; if you are against silicosis in the mines or fraudulent advertising; if you favor health insurance and production of the rights of the foreign born; if you favor consumer cooperatives and fair employment practices; if you are for equal opportunity in education; if you are against Jim Crowism and the poll tax; if you are for foreign cultural exchange; if you stand for one world or any of the doctrines tributary to it—then you are suspected of participation in a colossal international Communist front.—Norman Corwin.

One could spend hours merely listing the atrocities against freedom of expression, in the attempt to control thought, which have been committed in this country in the past year. According to the standards of those who would control American thought, any opponent of the politics, ethics, and practices of the right wing of the Republican party, the Southern Democrats, or the advocates of Anglo-Saxon white supremacy, is either a Communist, a fellow traveler, or unconsciously under Moscow's hypnotic influence.—Norman Corwin.

Last March the Truman Doctrine was announced. After six months we can assess its results: shooting wars in Greece and Indonesia, and a continuous atmosphere of world economic crisis and a new world-war hysteria. At home, the Administration's policies have resulted in domestic hysteria and witch-hunts, whipped up through investigating committees and loyalty orders calculated to intimidate those who would return to a one-world concept. — Arts, Sciencesand Professions Council, PCA.

THINGS I SEE

By Marian Inglewood

Terrorism in Palestine can never match the terroristic methods used by the British government in forcing some 4500 Jews to return to Germany, that hated country they were trying to escape forever. It was in Germany under the regime of Hitler they had seen their families, their loved ones killed—shoved into gas chambers, their bodies often used in the manufacture of soap.

It was the British government, given a mandate over Palestine after World War I, that had promised to do all in its power to make that country the homeland for all Jews forever. It was that same British government that later broke its promise to the Jewish people, and made an agreement with the Arab chiefs — not the Arabian people — for the price of a few barrels of oil to stop the immigration of Jews into the Holy Land. The Anglo-Arabian Oil Co. is surely directly responsible for the present troubles in Palestine.

The Jews in the concentration camps in Germany, however, have refused to accept this agreement made concerning their disposition. All during the weary years of the war and the Hitler persecution, those who escaped death kept alive within them the hope of some day returning to Jerusalem.

When they could not go legally, they tried to go illegally. Many of them managed to get through the blockade, and to enter Palestine. Others didn't. The Exodus 1947, hopefully named so by the Jews who prayed it might be a symbol of the exodus of their forefathers from Egypt, was one of the ships that didn't.

The Exodus 1947 was originally an American vessel, named President Warfield. The refugees it was attempting to land in Palestine were taken aboard at a French port.

"We had brought the ship from America", writes a member of the crew, "and one bright and sunny morning we loaded a precious cargo of 4500 human beings in a French port and turned our bow in the direction of Eretz Yisrael. These people were refugees from the flaming hell of Hitler's Europe. On their arms were the tattooed numbers of concentration camps. On their faces were the imprints of years of fear and suffering. In their hearts were the spirit of people who after long years of absence are going home."

"On the morning of July 18, the vessel was rammed and attacked on the high seas by a flotilla of five destroyers and a cruiser of the British navy. It was an action brutal enough to do credit to the Nazis. . . . In 3½ dreadful hours I saw a 15-year-old boy die from bullet wounds. He and his brother were the last survivors of their family in Europe. I stood by the side of a friend, as he fought a losing battle against the effects of a fractured skull. He had been smashed by a steel-headed club wielded by a British sailor while attempting to escape from a gas-filled bridge.

"There were countless numbers of other equally frightful incidents. Forty-five were seriously injured, and 100 more were hospitalized. One thought haunted me. Here by some twist of history might have been a Peter or a Paul or a — Jesus."

Those who survived this carnage were put on board three ships down in the holds of the vessels, locked in wire cages like wild beasts. These were the refugees who were unloaded at Hamburg on September 9. Some of them left their prison ships peacefully, dejected, hopeless, to go back to concentration camps again. Others fought. But of course they could not win with bare hands against the armed might of the British government.

Stinging streams of water from high pressure hoses were turned on them, and when this failed to bring them up on deck, 175 British soldiers and military police went on board, fought their way into the hold and subdued the recalcitrant ones with clubs and truncheons. They were brought out then with blood streaming down their faces and necks, feet first, and fung into a waiting train.

The hope of a home in their Promised Land, theirs by a peculiar heritage direct from God according to their belief, was blasted. A Peter, a Paul, perhaps a Jesus was in that group of refugees, struck by clubs and hose, driven like cattle back to the concentration camps from which they came.

"Much as one may sympathize with the British in their present troubles say an editorial in The Daily News, "it is difficult to find any extenuating circumstances in their latest action."

"Great Britain stands judged for her sin by all too few," says the member of the crew on the Exodus 1947. "The hour has come for Christians of our nation to protest in such manner that, with the power of a surging sea, that protest will sweep the abomination of such international crimes from the face of the earth. We claim the Christian ethic. In God's name let's practice it."

A new shipment of STORIES FROM THE WORKINGMAN'S BOOK by Marian Inglewood has just arrived. These stories are taken from the Bible, the Workingman's Book, and interpreted from the point of view of the worker. The books are for sale at the office of The California EAGLE, 4071 South Central avenue. Proceeds from their sale are used to fight restrictive covenant cases, especially that of the Laws family, ordered out of their home on East 92nd street because they are Negroes.

A Travelog

By VAUGHN G. PROCTOR

Much before I was rested, I awakened in the gray dawn. For a few moments nothing registered. I felt completely detached. I felt no responsibility, no urgent need—only a physical acceptance of my existence. Without moving, I gazed at the ceiling, walls and curtains. The night before came back swiftly. I moved slightly and felt the stiffness in my joints. Riding in trucks is a rough business.

Raising myself on my elbows, I tried to see beyond the curtains and through the window. An even gray light was all I could see outside. Must be cloudy, I thought. I considered the possibility of rain. Easing myself out of the covers, I crawled to the foot of the bed. I moved in my shorts and bare feet across the cool linoleum. I reached out and brushed aside the curtain. What I saw sent a great wave of despair over me. Snow!! Without thinking anything in particular except a wordless helplessness, I returned to bed and crawled deep into the covers. Somewhat later Vaughn stirred and awakened. That was the signal for Chris, who lifted up her head and smiled. When I saw them facing the new day so brightly my courage revived and I leaped from bed.

"We must dress warmly," I said, "there's snow."

"Snow!" they echoed and bounded to the window.

"Lookit, Christie, snow! You never saw snow before," said Vaughn, "but I did."

I had Vaughn put on three shirts besides his sweater and two pairs of underpants. Fortunately he had long tweed pants to cover his legs. Christie, chubby as she is, had to balloon herself out with two shirts, extra underpants, dress and overalls. Both of them wore long stockings beneath their socks.

In this way we prepared for cold Weather. The winter clothes we left with friends in Los Angeles were useless now. We did not have enough money to stay in one place until the clothes could be mailed to us. This was what I had feared.

Vaughn and Christie faced the new situation as they had faced others in the days just past—excitedly.

Breakfast, as we had agreed the night before, was included in the price of the room. The proprietor and his wife were on hand early with a good meal of pancakes, bacon and fruit juice. Later, to supplement our diet, we all took some cod-liver oil.

At last, amid the good wishes of the family, we left the building. Glancing over my shoulder, I saw the tall, thin tubercular proprietor watching us, a worried frown on his face.

We shoved off down the main street of Benson, which was still asleep. The ground along the road was covered by a loose, gray snow. The sky was sullen, but the air was mild and there was only a faint breath of wind.

We went as directed out of town and through the underpass before we paused to wait for a ride. Ahead of us were several more hitch-hikers. They looked miserable with their unkempt beards and clothes too thin for sleeping out all night, as I am sure they did. I also doubt they ate as well as we did that morning. The sight of them produced an involuntary tightening of my stomach muscles. I had been in their position a few years earlier and I knew the heartache of life on the open road.

We had barely time to get our feet wet when a coupe skidded sharply to a stop. The driver was clothed in a grimy army uniform. He had a few day's growth of beard and his eyes were bloodshot. Tired as he must have been, he smiled as we climbed in beside him.

"Been drivin' all night," he said. "Brother's asleep in the back." I glanced out of the corner of my eye and saw the huddled form of a man covered with an army blanket. I didn't like the situation, but I wasn't in a position to be particular. As a matter of fact, I was elated when I learned we could go all the way to Las Cruces, New Mexico.

Soon after we joined them, however, I realized the trip might be more than I had expected. The snow and ice that clogged the road caused the rear of the car to whip dangerously.

We were going much too fast for safety. Cars coming slowly from the opposite direction weaved and slithered in the deep skidded across the center line the ruts of slush. Each time we skidded across the center line the driver firmly and expertly brought us back to our own side of the narrow highway.

"We're all right," he said, "as long as we have one wheel on the open concrete." I was not so sure.

We stopped in the little town of Lordsburg for lunch. When we came out of the restaurant, the driver suggested to his brother the need for a bottle of liquor.

"Hell, yes," said the brother, "or we'll never make it." I helped Vaughn and Christie into the car again with some misgivings.

When we were under way the driver told us he had received bad news.

"The next 50 miles is gonna be worse," he said.

Every few minutes the driver and his brother had a nip from the bottle they bought in Lordsburg. This seemed to warm them because they carried on a lively conversation. When I could, I smiled. Although they were wits of a good, wholesome sort, the condition of the road we were traveling permitted only the thinnest of smiles. I envied them their carefree banter.

Two hundred yards ahead a car left the road and turned over on its side.

"If we could do anything, we'd stop," said the driver "but since we can't, we'll go on."

When we had passed, I looked through the rear window and saw people running toward the wrecked car.

Time and time again the driver was moved to speed ahead of slower cars. Each crossing of the deep ridges of snow thrown up by the tires was a moment of great anxiety to me. We passed another overturned car and several more upright in the ditch.

"Got it all figured out," said the driver, "if I can avoid those posts and hit the drifts, we'll be o.k., may tip over but we won't be hurt."

There were times when the driver crouched over the wheel with the ferocity of a condemned man.

"Take it easy," his brother in the rear would warn.

"Yeah, might as well," I said, trying to be nonchalant about it all. The driver never said anything when we cautioned him. He was too busy.

Vaughn and Christie were restless. They wanted to draw pic-

W. J. Wheaton Says

Food and the excessive cost of living are the prime objectives and concern of American housewives; the objective, of course, to find some method of halting the spiral ascent and prohibitive cost of food. It is recognized that the starving people in the devastated parts of Europe must be fed, but that alone is not sufficient cause for the exorbitant price we are compelled to pay for the necessities of life. The housewives have been trying out several methods; they have the conviction that there is a combined effort on the part of some Americans who value the dollar more than their duty to the nation are creating a false scarcity, so the housewives have resorted to a buying boycott. In some sections of the country they are picketing the stores and with good results, thus forcing stores to reduce the price on staple goods. It shows in the markdown of many articles that were making excessive profits, and in many cases tripling on the first cost.

Political leaders are worried. Trey realize something must be done before the campaign of "48" gets under way, or many of the aspirants for the presidential toga will be left at the post when that event gets underway.

The "draft Eisenhower" slogan is growing louder and louder. Some of the aspirants are already talking about the trend to military men in key positions of the government. The "Man on Horseback" seems to be in the ascendency.

The campaign for the Mayor's seat under the dome of San Francisco's City Hall is well under way. Judge Robinson, who has had his chapeau in the ring for months, has the city well plastered, but Franck R. Havenner, a late comer, is a strong stretch runner and is giving the judge considerable anxiety. Many of the astute and professional politicians believe that Havenner will overtake the judge in the stretch and prove the winner. He is strong in the labor camp, has the endorsement of the unions and has quite a following among the business men, especially the little fellow. Havenner, a member of congress from the fourth congressional district, has served the city of San Francisco, was elected as a supervisor and served on that Board for a number of years. As a member of the State Railroad Commission, now the Utilities Commission, Havenner served the State of California 'til he was elected to congress. He has full knowledge of the needs of the city and is especially equipped to untangle the transportation maze in which the city is enmeshed.

The race for the different judgeships and positions on the Board of Supervisors is, also, being given close consideration by the voters. We understand that Rev. J. D. Haynes, pastor of the 3rd Baptist church, is an aspirant for supervisorial honors; he stands a splendid chance for election. San Francisco as a whole is not race-conscious. Those who place too much stress on that phase of the contest are to be deplored. If Haynes is to be elected let it be on his merits and his ability to fill the position to which he aspires. And he has that ability. That much for San Francisco politics.

Word from the devastated districts of the recent hurricane report that the greater damage was done in districts occupied by low income people. Those who can afford least to be made homeless. The burden of feeding the world and the care of the unfortunates at home is quite a burden for Uncle Samuel, but he will bear it some way.

The death of former Mayor of New York "The Little Flower" LaGuardia, is mourned by many. He was an American character. We note the passing of Joseph Cazaubun, pioneer citizen of San Francisco, after a prolonged illness. He followed the sea, and served many companies in the position of steward for years. He was the father of Mrs. Mary Wheaton, the wife of W. J.; Mrs. Josephine Courtney, and Miss Julia Renault, four grand and two great-grandchildren. In his active days as a seaman he was admired greatly by his associates, which was manifested by the attendance at his funeral service and the floral presentations offered. His was a dependable friendship, was heard from the many who had his companionship on many voyages. His was a life of quietness devoted to his family, and many were the unostentatious favors granted his fellow voyagers. Men of Joseph Cazaubun's calibre are few. He will be missed by many.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Mrs. Bass:

Words are inadequate to let you know how much we appreciate you and The California EAGLE. All your editorials are great, but I believe Hattie McDaniels and Jack Tenny is the greatest. You voice my sentiments and the sentiments of all thinking people. May you live to carry on. And God bless you.

Love,
Yours sincerely,

A letter from West Africa asks that the California EAGLE be sent to that distant port. It comes from A. V. C. Nanevie, Christ Apostolic Church, Keta, G.C.W.A.

"I wish you to send me your EAGLE newspaper," writes Nanevie. "We like to hear from you every week. We are your good friends in Christ, A. V. C. Nanevie and friends."

Back to Books

By DORIS M. WEARYE

Vacation over, carefree leisure gone
As back to books we go.
Deep morning sleep becomes a dream
It seems we never know.
Picnics and games, lighthearted gayety
Are all replaced somehow
With textbooks filled with all
That shape our destiny and make us grow.
So let us fill each study-hour spent
With gross attentiveness
As back to books we go.

THE LIVING SOUTH

By Harold Preece

Copyright, 1947, by New South Features

BAD SMELL OUT OF MISSISSIPPI

Now, brothers, what kind of smell is that blowing on these early fall winds across America and coming out of Mississippi?

It might be dead catfish caught in the shallow water when the blasting heat of last month dried up the bayous. And it might not be dead catfish but a dead man with a white skin or a black skin cast up in judgment on the waters of the bayou—with a Klan cross scarred on his naked, bruised back.

It might be Bilbo rotting in his grave with the worms chewing out his eyeballs. But Bilbo had no time to rest and rot in his grave because the Devil took him away from the undertaker and carried hib off to a bigger hell than he ever made in Mississippi.

The fall winds blow across Mississippi and blow across America. And they are evil winds when they cross Mississippi at Jackson on the north and Natchez on the south.

They smell like dead men rotting in the bayous. They smell like a dead world and a dead, evil old South waiting to be buried with no resurrection when the dead people who are white and the dead people who are black rise up from the bayous to bring the dead world—the dead South—to judgment.

But this is the worst smell that ever came out of Mississippi. And I catch a whiff of it far away from Mississippi, far, far away from the new living South digging the grave for the evil dead South. And when I put a clothespin on my nose to shut out that smell coming out of Mississippi, I put no blinder on my eyes.

WHITE DIGS WITH BLACK

For I see with my eyes the dead people rising up from the bayous to help the living people fill and dig that grave. I see Old Man Newt Knight, the white man who took Jones county, Mississippi, out of the Confederacy and back into the Union, digging side by side with Blanche K. Bruce, the Negro, who took Jeff Davis' seat in the United States Senate during that murdered age of Southern democracy which was Reconstruction.

I see them digging, and I know that the grave they dig this time will be so tight that never again shall the old South rise up from it to slay the New South and to throw white men and black men into the bayous.

But my nose turns up at that smell coming with the fall winds from Natchez on the South to Jackson on the north. And I think because you have to stand a lot of bad smells in Dixie to get the digging done, that I've found out this worst of all smells.

And, brothers, its the smell of Old John Rankin running for the United State senate to hold down the seat which Blanche K. Bruce and the men with white skins and black skins once took away from Old Jeff Davis and the slavers. The slavers. The seat smelled like tar and rotting carcasses when the Devil evicted Bilbo from it and carried him of to a steam-heated apartment in Hell. But it'll take ten dozen janitors and a legion of poor underworked scrubwomen, bigger than the Devil's legions in Hell to make that seat smell no worse than the skunks works if John Rankins wins it at the special election come November 4.

Now they tell me that Old John has made our national capitol in Washington smell like skunk works and concentration camps ever since he started up his "Unamerican Committee" and started sending people to jail for declaring that he was as "unamerican" as a copperhead in Mississippi or a Copperhead Northern Confederate in the United States senate.

He's made washington smell like death and skunks and copperheads and good folks rotting in the bayou while he's been a congressman. He'll make it smell like Hitler and concentration camps and the babies murdered at Lublin by the Nazi "white supremacy" mob if he's promoted to be a senator.

Dig, brothers. Dig like Hell to send John Rankin down to a hot seat in Hell with Bilbo instead of to that seat in the senate once held honorably by Blanche K. Bruce.

You can't get rid of that smell coming out of Mississippi by burning Airwick You can't get rid of the evil, musty smell of the dead South unless you replace it with the sweet, clean smell of our South that shall live.

Dig, brothers. Dig up a candidate like Blanche K. Bruce and put him in the seat befouled by Bilbo.

And the digging shall be worth the burying and the living.

A LAYMAN'S VIEW

By Leon W. Steward

Leon Steward

Just a few weeks ago we were commenting on the record of a departed senator of some note. This time we write of one whom we love no more and at times we have admired less. If there is a man in the senate whose name to my mind has grown to symbolize reaction and the policy of conniving with the race's enemies from the south in the interest of Big Business of the north, that man is Robert Taft of Ohio.

To show just how contemptible he can be, he comes to California and deliberately accuses the President of killing the OPA which he (Taft) promised to kill, fought to kill and succeeded in killing with a singleness of purpose with which he has murdered just about every other policy and bill designed to aid the little fellow, the black man and the veteran, for several sessions past.

It was not long ago that Mr. Taft and the National Association of Manufacturers were telling the American people that when the OPA controls were off "free enterprise" could be relied upon to bring food and other prices down. Let the law of supply and demand, they said, take care of prices. And, over the pleadings of the President, they led congress in turning the people (whom they suspected as having just a little more money than the Tafts, Mellons and NMA think it safe for them to possess) over to the profit wolves. And now the same man comes to California, which is too far from Washington, he presumes, to know the facts or where memories are too short regarding such things — he comes out here and blates "The Truman Administration" released the controls too soon.

We did not keep a record of the many things he said while in California. The first few statements gave us an indication that he was not going to say anything in his much talking that was worthy of being taken in seriousness. Why, he started out saying that he was going to defend or interpret the accomplishments of the 80th congress in which he was a star performer. Anyone knows that what the Republicans desire most is that the people forget that record before 1948.

During the 80th congress the Republicans promised much that was commendable such as a worthy tax reduction bill, anti-lynch bill, F.E.P.C. bill, a bill to increase veterans' school subsidy, on-the-job training pay, plus automobiles for blind and amputee veterans, the housing bill which Taft got his name onto somehow, and only got around to keeping their promise to kill the OPA and turn the people over to an inflation spiral.

Somebody asked him what to do about these high prices and the clever Ohioan simply broke from the haabit of blaming organized labor and the Truman administration and declared that the people should eat less, and just as his committee were packing their bags for a nation-wide tour to find out if prices are "really high."

It appears that Mr. Taft, in one situation while in California, even admitted that the Taft-Hartley labor bill needed revising. Just anything to be congenial since his trip West was of all things purely a junket to make political friends and influence people to vote "Republican" and for him as president—if indeed their own Governor Warren is not a candidate. But we are not as disappointed over Taft as we would be over Californians if they should vote to make him president.

Who's for and Who's Against Marshall Plan

By PAUL FRENCH

(Second of Three Articles)

In the previous column we saw the origin of the so-called "Marshall Plan," its relation to the more openly military "Truman Doctrine," as the latter's "economic wing" of the world-offensive of American imperialism, aimed to gain world-domination for American imperialism under the disguising slogan of opposing "Communism" and championing "Christian free enterprise"—capitalism. We also saw how, among those who favored it, were both reactionaries like Connally and Vandenberg, and liberals like Henry Wallace; while among those opposing it, were both Hearst and the Communist party.

Let us examine why these usually antagonistic forces got all mixed up like that. Firstly, let us take the reactionaries who favor the Marshall Plan. Because they helped to think it up, they know (whereas the liberals didn't seem to know) that the Marshall Plan is part and parcel of the war-like Truman Doctrine, masquerading behind a pose of "sweet charity" to "hungry Europe" which is "menaced," they say, by Communism, against which American imperialism has declared a sort of "holy war," exactly like Hitler did.

The Paris conference of June, between Bevin, Bidault and Molotov, revealed — in Molotov's statement of rejection and warning—that Bevin and Bidault, obviously prompted by Washington, had proposed a method of carrying out the "Marshall Plan" which would compel those European countries (mainly in eastern Europe) which had really socialized big industry and broken up feudal landholdings, to restore these confiscated properties to their owners—if they wanted loans from America—and to subject their national sovereignty through subjecting their national economy, to a "steering committee" of big powers that were, in turn really bossed by American imperialism.

That's why some American reactionaries hailed the Marshall Plan; if Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Albania wanted "American aid," they would have to give up their already-working plans for socialized industry and submit, politically as well as economically, to the ultimate over-lordship of American imperialism. If they rejected it, and many American reactionaries hoped they would reject it, the Anglo-American imperialist newspapers could howl that "Russia is to blame for splitting Europe," and the pet aim of Churchill and Truman of creating a "western bloc" of anti-Soviet governments which are trying to make their collapsing capitalism work, would be formed, and supported economically — and militarily — with American "aid."

This "Marshall Plan aid" would thus become the economic weapon, paralleling the military weapon of the Truman Doctrine, preparing World War III, as a war for world domination under the slogan of "stopping Soviet expansion."

But, in addition to all this; American imperialist economy must have an ever-wider outlet for its surplus production and surplus capital, or it will smother in its own economic contradictions, fall into unprecedented crisis at home, with masses of joblesa who may; also, threaten capitalist class rule right here. Hence, the Marshall Plan "aid" isn't "sweet charity" at all; but as necessary to keep American capitalism alive as it is to revive it in Europe. That's another reason why "our" reactionaries support the Plan.

The liberals, of the Mrs. Roosevelt, Henry Wallace, Samuel Grafton school, at first (though some of them have later begun to evince doubts) were in favor of the Marshall Plan, because, so they said, they thought it "replaced" the Truman Doctrine, which they correctly opposed because it openly appeared as preparation for war against the Soviet Union. The Marshall Plan, at first, looked to them exactly like the previously advocated Wallace plan for loaning Europe billions to buy tractors and food and so on, and thus to defeat what they call the "Communist menace" and "Soviet expansionism" by peaceful means.

When Molotov, speaking for the Soviet Union, rejected the Marshall Plan and warned small nations that acceptance of American "aid" might mean losing their sovereignty, Mrs. Roosevelt angrily scolded him for this; saying that America, as creditor, had a right to demand conditions for loans, as any banker might from any borrower. Whether the good lady has changed her mind about this or not, is not known. She hasn't said anything more about it. Wallace correctly declared that American capitalism, to avoid an economic crash, must have foreign trade and finance it through loans.

Capitalists like Hearst, not profiting from foreign trade or investments directly, fought the Marshall Plan, because they are taxed to provide government funds to loan countries no private banker would take a risk on, loans used to buy American goods, but nothing Hearst and his life have to sell. Moreover, and correctly, Hearst blurted out the truth that no amount of aid can save capitalism in Europe. And, if lack of trade brings crisis to America, with starving masses threatening revolution, Hearst has a "cure" for that, too; shoot 'em down, and blast the Soviet Union with atomic bombs, now!

The Communist party opposes the Marshall Plan, but not for the same reasons as Hearst. It correctly saw that the Marshall Plan was part of the Truman Doctrine. They opposed it, therefore. And on July 20, their paper, the Daily Worker of New York, featured "an American plan" for loans to "democratic countries" which, it held, could save America from economic crisis and aid world democracy by rebuilding world trade and prosperity—but loans without the anti-democratic and anti-Communist conditions inherent in the Marshall Plan.

Strangely enough, this Communist party "American plan" resembled in every important detail, the plan proposed some three years ago by Earl Browder, for similar loans, under similar conditions, for similar aims, to make capitalism work at home and abroad. At that time, Browder was ousted from his party's leadership on the charge that such ideas were "opportunist" in conceiving the idea that American imperialism could be anything else than rapacious and reactionary.

But the present July 20 Communist proposals to—in effect, "amend" the Marshall Plan to make it virtually identical with the Browder plan, implies, whether so intended or not, the same conception as Browder's, that the decisive circles of American imperialists are no worse than badly advised and need guidance, not revolutionary opposition from the people. Unfortunately, this approach adopts a metaphysical concept that the wishes, moods and whims, and not their material class interests, determine the actions of such capitalists and that, if they "wanted to," they could avoid an economic crisis at home, and become "intelligent" enough to save capitalism abroad by financing democratic reforms and socialized industrialization in Europe. (In the next column, what Europe is doing on the Marshall Plan.)

Trail Blazers:

By PHYLLIS SCOTT

Walter J. Miller

Walter J. Miller

A little more than a decade ago a scrawny youngster of 16 went before a big firm to apply for a position as a bookkeeper. With some hesitation he was accepted and three days later he went to work as a bookkeeper for the Dunbar hotel, which was managed by this firm. In two years he was managing the hotel, where he remained until 1939.

In the latter part of 1939, Walter J. Miller went down to Sixth street to open up the Regal hotel for Consolidated Hotels, Inc., a large wealthy concern. In the beginning he worked as a night clerk and was the only Negro employed on the staff.

When Miller became the manager, not two years later, something happened. Not only did he hire his own complete staff and expand the business beyond expectations but he showed the company where Negro employes could be used throughout their entire 150 hotels and apartment houses. Because the company had never before instituted this policy, 300 Negroes today are employed through the efforts of Miller.

Under his management the Regal hotel has grown by leaps and bounds and still is a profitable investment despite its low and reasonable rates. Since '42 they have had to take over two annexes, a total of over 56 rooms. In taking over the last building, the Paramount Drug store was added and remodeled into a first class commercial enterprise. In the meantime, Negro employment in and around this area increased.

However, it was during the war that his work became conspicuous. Working in a dual capacity for Consolidated as a supervising manager and good will ambassador, he directed the work of eight hotels; and went through white hotels lecturing on courtesy and service to their employes.

This was prior to his entrance into the United States navy. He trained in the naval school at Great Lakes and became an instructor there in 1944. Upon his discharge he resumed his old position as manager of the Regal hotel. However, professionally, he is an accountant and bookkeeper. He kept the books for the Dunbar hotel until he enables one to get a well-rounded education," declared the 29-year-old manager. "I have met so many different types of people from all over the world." Son of Mrs. Caledonia C. Miller and the late Walter J. Miller, Sr., former teachers of Tuskegee Institute, Miller said that his dad once told him—at a very early age . . "Each generation should strive to improve itself and stand up on its own dignity." His father worked extremely hard so that his sons could have an education and a better chance. Carrying this thought with him from childhood to his adult years, it became the incentive for his working toward bigger and better things, for which he yet strives.

He is a member of the Holy Name Society, Los Angeles Tennis club, American Legion, YMCA, NAACP, and plans to affiliate with UNNAVA very soon. In his leisure, he frequently plays baseball with the hotel team, and enjoys weight-lifting and horseback riding.

Miller, who is one of Los Angeles' most eligible young bachelors, is very serious about his work. He insists that his staff maintain a cooperative and friendly but impersonal relationship with the hotel guests; yet, they find him to be both fair and honest.

California's own Walter J. Miller, a product of its public schools and Southwestern Business college, has gone forth and met the challenge of a highly competitive business world. For his competitors have compelled him to work extra hard to hold his share of business success.

The Road to Health

By J. J. Carter, M.D.

GUARDING AGAINST POLIO

Mrs. Grant is a woman who takes no chances with her children's health. Often she is a little apologetic when she telephones me about some apparently slight sign of illness shown by one of the children. But I always assure her that she is doing exactly what I wish all mothers would do.

Not long ago she called to tell me that seven year old Susan had a little fever and a headache. She was worried about poliomyelitis or infantile paralysis, as it is commonly called, because a few cases had been reported in the neighboring county. I went to see Susan at once and kept close track of her for several days. During late summer and fall, polio is at its height. It is no time to take chances. I was happy to be able to tell Mrs. Grant that Susan was suffering from nothing more serious than a cold.

Mrs. Grant had been thoroughly frightened by the possibility of polio, though she had kept her head at the time. She wanted to know everything I could tell her about the disease and what she could do to protect her children from it.

I explained to Mrs. Grant that polio is caused by a virus—one of the smallest disease-producing organisms. It attacks the nerves that control the muscles of the body. It may weaken them and it may cause paralysis. Most often it affects the nerves controlling the muscles of the legs and arms, sometimes those that control breathing and swallowing.

The majority of people who catch the disease have only a light case, which often is not recognized and does not weaken or paralyze the muscles. More than half of those whose muscles are paralyzed recover without serious after-effects. The disease is not often a killer and, in many cases, crippling can be prevented by proper treatment.

Many people think of polio as a disease of young children, but older people may get it too, so everyone should be careful if there is an outbreak of the disease.

If there are cases of infantile paralysis near your community, it is wise to keep out of crowds as much as possible. Keep away from any person who has come from an epidemic area. Help keep your community clean of waste and exposed garbage. Keep flies out of the house and especially away from all food. Don't swim in water polluted by sewage.

Since polio often seems to attack persons who are overtired, I warned Mrs. Grant to see that her children get plenty of rest, to be sure that they are not under any unusual strain. They should also avoid chilling. It is important to keep clean. Hands should always be washed before eating, lest the hands carry germs to the mouth.

Parents should watch carefully for the first symptoms of polio. If a child develops a headache, unexplained fever, a cold or an upset stomach, he may be coming down with any of a number of childhood diseases, or it may be polio. Get in touch with the doctor at once. Meanwhile, put the child in a room by himself. Keep him warm, but comfortable. Give him nothing but liquids.

There is no known cure for infantile paralysis, but good medical care will prevent or correct many deformities. It is important to rely upon the doctor's advice in every case. The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is ready to help any community which has an epidemic. Information can be obtained from its county chapters or from its headquarters 120 Broadway, New York, N.Y.

BOOKS and AUTHORS

Ben Ames Williams newest novel is House Divided, and it is large in scope and large in size, containing over 1500 pages. It takes three brothers and two sisters of an old Virginia family, ardent Confederates, through the first hard pinch of the Southern Rebellion when they learn that their father was also the grandfather of Abraham Lincoln.

This book is the effect of that disclosure upon the character of each member of the family and the stories of their children and grandchildren as well as of the people of the South, soldiers and citizens. It depicts the ignorant boasting, the greedy ambition, the complacent arrogance and the secret sense of inferiority in which the seeds of war most easily thrive.

Dark Companion by Bradley Robinson is the biography of Matthew Henson, Negro polar explorer. He was born on an impoverished Maryland farm 81 years ago and ran away to sea when 12 years old. Nine years later he joined Lieut. Robert E. Peary, young white naval engineer on an expedition to survey a canal across Nicaraugua. Then for 18 years Peary and Henson were together in the far north suffering cold and starvation until on the seventh attempt they achieved their goal of reaching the North Pole. Admiral Peary proclaimed Matt Henson his most valuable aide because of his loyalty and his ability to speak the Eskimo language and to make friends with them and his great skill as a dog driver. The book is full of romance, excitement and challenge. The young author worked in close collaboration with his subject while writing the account of his life.

Miklos Gafni, People's Artist

It was not only the magnificent voice of Miklos Gafni, said to be a second Caruso by music lovers of critical bent, that thrilled the audience that filled the Philharmonic auditorium last Sunday afternoon for his initial performance in Los Angeles. It was the story back of the voice, a story of hardship and suffering that gave it the depth of sympathy and the rich mellowness which stirred the hearts of those who heard the young Hungarian tenor.

Born in the little town of Tiszachege 24 years ago, Miklos was just like any other young lad of that time. He wasn't particularly interested in music, although he always loved it. He didn't even know he could sing! As he grew up he planned to become a physician and surgeon, and it was while studying medicine in the University of Hungary that the tragedy of his life occurred.

The Nazis, under the direction of Hitler, took over Hungary in 1943. All Jews, under the new regime, were arrested and sent to concentration camps.

"No," answered Gafni, in answer to a question at a newspaper conference. "We didn't commit any crime. We weren't even accused of any crime. It was just because we were Jews."

Miklos and his family were taken to a concentration camp in Upper Silesia, Germany. He saw his parents die there—killed by the Nazis. He himself was forced to do hard labor—slave labor.

But in spite of all this, or perhaps because of this, Miklos began to sing. He sang for the other prisoners in the camp. Sang as the slaves used to sing on the plantations of the South in the United States—voicing their longing for freedom, giving expression to their inarticulate hopes in music.

But the hard labor, the lack of food, the unsanitary conditions of the camp took a heavy toll of Miklos' health. He became ill and at last was confined to bed.

"I weighed only 90 pounds," he said. "I couldn't walk. I couldn't move. If the Americans hadn't come within two days, I would have died."

But fortunately the American troops did come. They set all of the prisoners free, and heard from them of the young man who used to sing like the birds sing—naturally, easily effortlessly. Singing to ease his own sorrow as well as theirs.

It is this indescribable quality in Gafni's voice, the quality born of suffering, that tears at the hearts of his listeners with its pathos, even as it holds them enthralled with its beauty. It is the kind of voice that includes within its volume the aspirations of his listeners as it swells out and fills the auditorium, even as it has within itself a touch of their fears and their pain as it sinks to a soft whisper.

Gafni is a people's artist. And all the people of the world are acclaiming him as their own.

Miklos Gafni made his debut in the United States in a concert in New York City last February. He has gone to Australia since then, and returned from Hawaii last week to sing in this city. The concert last Sunday was a prelude to a greater concert to be given in Los Angeles next January 13.

Three Great Americans Chart Fight on Forces Of Jimcrow Reaction

Three great American citizens made three great speeches recently in Madison Square Garden, New York City. They were Henry Wallace, Paul Robeson, and Lena Horne. The occasion was the "Progressive Counter-Attack" rally of the Progressive Citizens of America.

We are giving excerpts from these speeches, although it is exceedingly difficult to "cut" anything so important were all three speeches. If space permitted, we wouldn't.

Henry Wallace

"Ever since the time of Jefferson it has been a fundamental tenet of American democracy that minorities have a right to be heard, that they have a right to argue before the public in an effort to expand the minority into a majority.

"If the Democratic party is a war party, if my party continues to attack civil liberities, if both parties stand for high prices and depression — then the people must have a new party of liberty and peace. The people must have a choice.

"There are some so-called liberals who believe that it is wrong to criticize our foreign policy. They tell me that I should confine my speeches to the domestic problems of jobs and security . . . I am no less concerned with domestic policies today than I was when I worked for the enactment into law of the Full Employment program. That program put into action can save the 60 million jobs we have today without the artificial stimulus of war threats, heavy munition programs, and a plan for universal military training.

"I am against this last because it is part of the foreign policy conceived by Hoover and being executed in the name of bi-partisanship by an administration which was elected on a platform of total victory over fascism and postwar economic security for our people.

"Franklin Delano Roosevelt inaugurated the policy of bi-partisanship in foreign affairs, but the bi-partisanship he accepted was based on principles of international cooperation and on the pledge to the people of the world proclaimed in the Atlantic Charter.

"The bi-partisanship which welcomes Herbert Hoover at the White House bears no resemblance to the principles of Roosevelt . . . He (Hoover) is quoted this month in a leading national magazine as questioning whether the U. S. had any place in the recent war against the German Nazis and Japanese imperialists. . . . If his philosophy continues to dominate our foreign policy, we shall, indeed, have sacrificed in vain.

"The present foreign policy of the U. S. defends reaction in the name of freedom. . . . I believe there are honest men in the Administration and in congress who have been fooled into support of this policy. Some are victims of a psychosis about Communism which has been carefully matured by men whose great fear is not Communism but Democracy.

"If we are to change the course of our overall foreign policy we must do three things: We must understand Communism. We must understand that our choice today is not limited to reactionary capitalism and Communism. We must take a realistic view of the domestic political scene.

"Communism . . . is a word used by reactionaries to cover every liberal idea. It is reaction's purpose to frighten us into silence for fear of a red label.

"Our crises are not brought on by the Communists. The people responsible for high prices, high rents, and growing insecurity are the monopoly capitalists and their political errand boys. Americans do not have to choose between capitalism and socialism; but we do have to choose between progressive capitalism and the reactionary monopolistic capitalism which is trying to strangle freedom both at home and abroad. . . . There are not many progressive capitalists, but these few together with leaders of organized labor and the small farmers hold in their hands the chief possibility for peace, jobs, and freedom.

"The week the Freedom Train begins its trip throughout the land. . . . I pledge to see to it that in our lifetime the Freedom Train of tomorrow will carry these additional documents: a permanent FEPC, a bill abolishing the poll tax, an act establishing the right of every American child to equal educational opportunities, regardless of race, creed, or color; legislation ending Jim Crow in our nation; and side by side with the Bill of Rights drafted by our forefathers, the ECONOMIC Bill of Rights proclaimed by Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

Paul Robeson

"We see today a terrific onslaught against loyal Americans from all kinds of committees. We see various loyalty tests . . . We see an attack on labor . . . We see the terrorization of the Negro people—North and South.

"America is deciding today which way it is going. Roosevelt and Wallace point one way—the preservation of our democratic tradition—the way of a world of a majority of the people. The Hoovers and the Luces and the Dulleses and the Vandenbergs point the other way—the restoration of the forces of destruction, contempt of the common people, a new imperialism to keep a struggling, oppressed world in chains.

"Of all the American people, the Negro can best testify about the state of civil liberties. For they've never enjoyed them from 1620 to this day. The Bill of Rights for them has been only a mockery. Why? Because certain privileged groups want to enjoy the fruits of their labor. We came as slaves. Today we are not technical slaves, but wage slaves. A Negro in the South works from 12 to 14 hours per day. Four of these would supply his manner of living. The remaining 8 or 10 go to increase the wealth of the planter. This also applies to the poor whites of the South.

"These forces which still hold white and black South in bondage—Northern banks and southern landholders — are stalking again. Their organizations happen to be Republicans and right-wing Democrats. They want to make the whole world one giant colony as grist to their mill. That's exactly what Hitler thought.

"Let us—a unified power of labor, liberals, Negroes, the Jewish of school segregation. They would appeal, he said, to the Pope's representative at Washington to "inform us whether we are sinning in the eyes of the Catholic Church" by protesting the admission of Negro students.

The group also adopted a resolution leaving it to the parents to decide whether to permit their children to remain in the schools affected. The group voted to call itself the Catholic Parents Association of St. Louis and St. Louis county.

Barrett said he removed his two children from school after the first day of the term.

Archbishop Ritter had ordered the opening of several white parochial schools to Negro children on the grounds of overcrowding in Negro parochial schools.

In a letter read at all masses last Sunday morning, he reminded churchgoers that "equality of every soul before Almighty God and obedience to ecclisiastical authority are tenets of the Catholic faith."

The controversy is attacting wide attention from students of race relations who realize that a determined stand by the powerful, highly disciplined Catholic Church, could readily undermine jimcrow patterns in this country. The effective use of the threat of excommunication by Archbishop Ritter is an indication of the vast power wielded over its communicants by the Catholic Church.

Against this is the findings of a recent survey conducted by the Commission on Community Interrelations of the the American Jewish Congress, which show that race prejudice is strongest among Catholics, with Protestants a strong second.

The survey conducted among college students, indicated that at least four-fifths of American whites have feelings of hostility against some minority group. (See EAGLE, Jan. 30, 1947).

'ONE' WOMAN CONFUSED IN COURT TESTIMONY

knocked her down, releasing her only upon the approach of another car.

Raphael told the police upon being arrested that he pursued the woman when she got out of his cab and started to run away without paying her fare. To this, the woman replied that she had seven dollars in her hand at the time he pursued her. This was contradicted by Frank Wood, a prosecution witness, who testified that Miss Tatum had only one dollar in her hand at the scene of the purported attack.

Under a rigid cross-examination by defense counsel Earl C. Broady, Miss Tatum floundered, contradicted herself, refused to answer certain questions. She testified she formerly worked at 4th and Central avenue and on the night in question, at the end of a visit with friends in Glendale, she drove by her old place of employment "to just see what it looked like" at 2 a.m. She refused to give the names of the friends she had visited in Glendale.

Her car broke down at 6th and Central, she said, and a colored man whom she had previously known, mysteriously appeared and rendered her some assistance. While he was with her, the police happened along and took her and her colored friend to the Newton street station. They were released, however, and the arresting officers then took her, not to 6th and Central where her car supposedly was, but to 6th and San Pedro because, she said, "it is easier to catch a cab there." She did not explain her failure to call a cab while at the police station.

Under Broady's cross-examination, she testified that she was born and raised in Henrietta, Oklahoma, and has been unemployed for several months.

Raphael steadfastly maintains his innocense. Plans for his defense are going forward, with the entire community in which he lives solidly behind the defendant.

pany in Southern California—assets $31,000,000."

It has been estimated that this title company handles 90 percent of all restrictive covenant procedures in Los Angeles.

The group approved plans at a meeting Thursday night to proceed with restrictive covenant court suits against 13 non-Caucasians within the next 30 days. Some 300 white property owners in the district attended the meeting, held in the Diana ballroom, 4067 Pico blvd.

Among court action projected was one against Dr. H. Claude Hudson, dentist and noted civic leader and former candidate for the Board of Education. Hudson lives at 1230 Van Ness ave.

A high pressure call for money to pay attorneys' fees was made by realtor Shattuck, who asked for "at least $25" from each property owner.

To clinch his appeal for money, Shattuck boasted that Rev. Clarence Wright, minister of the Wilshire Presbyterian church, who lives at 1501 Arlington ave., had "personally contributed funds" to press restrictive covenant suits in his neighborhood.

The meeting marked a revival of wide-spread action by the association which was started in 1946, Shattuck said.

Main reason for the resurgence of the group was recent court decisions against Dr. William A. Beck, and Mason Driver, who lives on South St. Andrews pl. Attorney Loren Mill has appealed the decisions to the California supreme court.

Shattuck also urged the property owners to "get busy and get all your neighbor's signatures on restrictive covenant petitions."

This appeal was spurred by a spectator who wailed it was useless for him to contribute money to the organization since "there are 19 property owners in my neighborhood who absolutely refuse to sign restrictive covenants."

Shattuck also threatened suits "for considerable amounts" aginist white property owners who sell restricted properly to non-Caucasian Americans.

He bewailed their "neglect of civic duty," asserted "if we can't enforce restrictive covenants in this area then pretty soon the whole Westside will be gone and be worth nothing for people of our class."

Only objection to the association's aims, as outlined by Shattuck came from an unidentified white woman who wanted to know why Shattuck kept talking about "damage to property" when non-Caucasians move into a neighborhood.

"You yourself said you had nothing personal again non-Caucasian," she said, "so I don't see why you keep saying things will 'happen' in the neighborhoods non-Caucasians moved into."

She was silenced by a chorus of boos and shouts of "sit down, sit down."

The parade wound up at the City Hall reviewing stand before Gov. Warren, acting Mayor Harold A. Henry and others officiated.

Floats, bands, uniformed marching units, prancing mounts and strutting drum majorettes lent color to the parade.

Members of the local Benjamin J. Bowie Post, 228, took a prominent part in the parade, as did the large delegation from the A. H. Wall Post, 435 of San Francisco, and the Col. Charles Young Post. With the Wall Post is Commander H. D. Richardson, recently elected second vice-commander of the 7th district.

The Bowie Post held an Open House at its club house, 5115 S. Central avenue, following the parade Monday night, in which members marched with its Bugle Corps. The club house and patio in the rear were crowded to capacity with out-of-town guests.

Negro Students

Two boys, Oscar Thomas and Roland Smith, on Wednesday were attacked on the school bus and Thomas fought back. The bus driver seemed to be sympathetic to the white boys, and stopped his bus while the white boys carried out their threat.

At school, too, just off campus, white students began calling names and throwing tomatoes. When the principal came out, he told the Negro students, "We don't want any punks like you here," and then proceeded to call the police.

The police officers came with threatening clubs, searched the Negroes, but found no weapons.

Barbara Long and Gloria Jackson were two of the other girls included with Charlesetta. The affair is not ended, but let's hope there won't be so serious an affair as last winter.

The small pullet eggs, due to be plentiful and reasonable in price on markets in early fall, may be substituted successfully for larger eggs in many recipes, cookery scientists of the U. S. DAMAGES IN SOLOMONIC VERDICT it developed that the house had changed owners, Mrs. John Davenport having sold it to Mrs. Eleanor Briggs. The sale added another character to an already heavy cast. Earl W. Toddy, the broker who made the sale, testified he had placed a sign in the lobby of the house notifying the roomers of the change of ownership, telling them they would have to move. To the sign, he had attached the name of Mrs. Davenport. The latter, however, denied responsibility for the sign, said the house was out of escrow at the time sign was posted.

Toddy was represented by Atty. L. Miller, Mrs. Davenport by Dario H. Nelson of 127 So. Broadway; and Mrs. Briggs by Crispus A. Wright.

Wherry testified that he had been given the run-around by Toddy and Mrs. Briggs when he sought to get a key for the new lock on the front door.

Will Rogers, a carpenter, testified that he had placed the new lock on the door. He also told the court he had seen Wherry leaving the house the day after he claimed he had been locked out. He had no idea, he said, how Wherry had got into the house. He denied that the lock had been broken.

In a burst of Solomonic wisdom, Judge Marchetti accorded damages of $150 to Wherry, ruled that Wherry could regain possession of his rented room. Wherry, the judge decided, should get $75 from Toddy, and another $75 from Mrs. Briggs. Newsmen covering the trial breathed a sigh of relief, made a dash for the nearest bar in search of a headache cure.

PRECISION TRANSPORTATION

PROBLEM #1 — Football

Determine the exact number of extra cars and coaches needed to transport an expected crowd of 85,000 persons at the Coliseum.

Precision transportation — the art of having the right number of public conveyances at the right place at the right time — is a science well-understood by our traffic engineers.

These trained specialists can measure the number of passengers who will ride the Transit Lines to and from every public gathering. They can tell, in advance, how many vehicles will be needed to accommodate sports spectators, school children and picnic crowds.

The transit pattern for Los Angeles is continually being calibrated as to schedules, headways and passenger comfort — and precision transportation of the future is beginning to roll.

Odessa James-Vance Jones To Wed in November Rite

Dainty white scrolls revealed the secret of Odessa James' betrothal to Vance Jones, when Mrs. Beatrice James honored her daughter with an elaborate luncheon on Saturday afternoon.

Ann Hunter Cunningham Is Bride of William Dickinson, Uniting Two Pioneer Families of California

Two distinguished early California families were united in marriage, when Ann Hunter Cunningham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Cunningham, became the bride of William Dickinson, in private ceremony on Sunday afternoon, 3 p.m., Sept. 21, at the Lincoln Memorial Congregational Church.

The wedding was very small, with dear friends of both families witnessing. Ann, in her regal wedding finery, was given away by her father, David Cunningham Sr. Her gown, a work of Mrs. Carona Bowmann's exquisite needle artistry, was a creation of white file material, complimented by dainty colar and cuff set made of heirloom rose point lace, and slightly embellished with seed pearl. At her throat she wore a gold locket, another family heirloom. Her fingertip veil was centered with the rose point lace, and was held in place by a coronet embroidered with seed pearl. A quaint bouquet of Stephenotis, carnations and white tulle points completed her wedding dress.

FALL SCHEME

With the freshness of autumn in the air, the color scheme followed throughout was timely with the season. The two attendants wore gowns of rich peach-colored file, and carried bouquets of yellow pompon dahlias tied in deep dusty green ribbon. Coral Bouvardia enhanced the bouquets and matching wreaths worn in their hair. Mrs. Jeanne Coleman assisted Ann, as matron of honor, and Miss Haroldine Browning was maid of honor. David Cunningham Jr., served as best man, and ushers were Robert Boswell and Albert Gates. The two wedding hymns were beautifully sung by James Patton, who was accompanied by Miss Edith K. Owens at the console.

Seconds before the vows were spoken, in double ring ceremony, the bride's mother, Mrs. David Cunningham, was ushered to her pew. She was stunningly garbed in a formal olive green afternoon gown, and wore a gold and brown rose hat. At her waist was a fresh corsage of Rust "Mums" and autumn leaves. Mrs. Estelle Dickinson, the bridegroom's mother, wore a smartly dated Dusty Rose Moire taffeta gown. Her hat was of turquoise blue feathers and her corsage was of "Better Time" roses. Out of town guests at the ceremony were: Mrs. Clara Patton, great-aunt of the bride, from Oakland, Calif.; Mrs. Marie Robinson of San Diego, and Mrs. Tomeasue Carlton of Fresno, Calif.

RECEPTION

At 4 p.m. the wedding reception was held at the Cunningham residence. Many were those in attendance who can look back on early days spent together in Los Angeles. The many gifts were viewed in the house. The receiving line was formed in the gardens. Mmes. Viola Rowland, Maurine Browning and Donna Cunningham supervised the hostesses, who included Mmes. Molly Lawson, god-mother to the bride; Seth Lee, Willa Garrott, Edna Cunningham, Grace Boswell, Angelique Bratton, Dorothy Houston, Puffy Hill, Marilyn Hudson, Flora Boswell, Jessel King, Irene Jones, Ethel Bell, Minnie Green; Misses Paulette Coleman, Marcelyn Cobbs, Lula Green, Betty Griffin, and junior hostesses Judy Bailey, Carmen, Elaine and Yvonne DeLavallade.

Women Designers Fight Over New Long Skirts

By DOLORES CALVIN

NEW YORK (CNS)—When a frustrated, stubborn fashion center stuck to its original idea of changing the length of womens' clothing this season by demanding the standard length to be 12 inches from the ground, they never dreamed the change would result into a verbal blow-by-blow war of women. But they soon found out. In Cleveland, the new "Two Inch Below The Knee" club has sprung up. Along Broadway and Fifth Avenue, women have resorted to wearing ancient dresses with signs "We will not wear longer skirts." In Harlem, housewives and society leaders buzzed unhappily, comparing views as the Fall season was ushered in, without the long skirts parading.

Women have given many reasons for the resistance. They say: the skirts are too awkward; they're a waste of good money; they look like shrunk nightgowns; too old-fashioned and matronly. Bobby soxers complain, "We can't wear long skirts and bobby sox too. Do they want to make old women of us?" But most agree that if they can't find anything else in the stores, long skirts will eventually win out.

Fashion Critics Advise For Beta Pi Sigma Show

A preview of the winter and early spring fashions will be exclusively yours if you attend the fashion and star-studded show given by the Beta Pi Sigma sorority on the night of November 10 at the Meadowbrook Ballroom, 8781 West Washington blvd.

Society has not yet forgotten the preview of fashions that was sponsored during the winter season by this same group of social minded as well as civic minded young women. At that affair the award was presented to the nationally known L'tanya, however, this year, with the cooperation of models already secured, the competition is greater, which has called for expert fashion critics opinion and assistance.

Since this is a benefit affair for the Vest View Hospital and the Beta Pi Sigma Sorority's Scholarship Fund, a large number of patrons is expected, so those wanting to make reservations may do so by calling DRexel 5425 and CE 29513.

20th Century Girls Enjoy Visit in Tia Juana-Diego

The 20th Century Girls met at the station Sunday morning, Sept. 21 at 7 o'clock and boarded the streamliner for San Diego and Tia Juana.

The girls, bright eyed with excitement had just taken their seats, when they were informed tables had been saved for them in the diner by Mr. Oscar Best, head chef, for breakfast. After breakfast the girls settled down to watch the scenery and chat.

They arrived in San Diego at 10:45 and boarded the Greyhound bus to the border, then on to the races where some were lucky and others weren't so lucky. Hamburgers, beer, and cola were enjoyed.

Back to Tia Juana for a "look see and shopping" tour. Jewelry, shoes, hats, perfume, and cards were among the things bought and a variety of Mexican food enjoyed.

Back to San Diego where the members stopped at the famed Douglas Hotel Cocktail Bar for a few cocktails then on to the station. The porter got all the members on early and seated before the mob. Tables were again reserved for dinner, thanks to Mr. Best.

The girls arrived in L.A. at 10 o'clock, tired but happy. Many thanks to Mr. Best for making the trip so enjoyable due to his thoughtfulness.

Mrs. Bea Smith will be hostess to the club Sunday, Oct. 5 at 1537 east 46th street.

Thressa Penn, reporter.

COUTURSTAT

By Grace Fisher Atkins

The fashion show sponsored by the Broadway Department Store of McCall's Fashion Clinic, last Saturday at the Biltmore, was essentially extreme in the new lengths. No particularly new features in style lines were observed. The shoulder pads still remained and most other features. Sally Spinnet, Broadway's fashion advisor, showed models for the teen-agers. Teachers' apparel was also modeled.

The McCall show was outstanding for simplicity. Any school girl or housewife or teacher could reproduce any of the styles with considerable ease. Homemaking teachers could afford much to the adult student by means of simple lines.

Little effort, or actually there was no attempt at remodeling the old obsolete wardrobe which must be revamped. The long skirts had no broken lines. In almost every case, the skirt area was in one piece.

Designing with broken skirt lines is a requirement for the new wardrobe. The old garments must be utilized. Yet new lines must appear to keep in step with the trend.

Combined With Hair Styles

"All derivative," signs the nation's leading hair stylist, M. Louis, in describing the present complexion of the American fashion scene. "It is a shame that the leading fashion experts of America cannot derive inspiration for their styles from the momentous present," M. Louis continues. "They continually revert to fashions of past eras and consequently American fashion is nothing more than derivative—mere carbon copies of the past." M. Louis contends that not only do eminent hair stylists make this mistake, but leaders in all phases of the fashion world. M. Louis is known as the originator of many of the leading hair-dos of the past 20 years, including the "Page Boy," the "Feather Cut," and his latest, the "Asymetrtic." A noted sculptor in his own right, M. Louis always sculpts his new hair styles in clay before creating them on the living model.

M. Louis, world's foremost hair stylist, says that certain hair-dos go with certain fashions. For example, women who wear pert bangs should wear peplums on their suits, girls with upswept hair-dos look best in circular skirts, and for those strapless, short dinner gowns, a shoulder length Alice-in-Wonderland haircomb is most appropriate.

Royal Viscounts Play Hosts to Farewell Party

The Royal Viscounts farewell surprise party given in honor of Mr. Clifford Pickett Jr. of Jefferson High school on Sunday, Sept. 7, was a huge success but still it was sad because his many friends hated to see him leave for the Navy.

The dinner was given at the home of his mother, 1449 E. 54th st.

During the evening Mr. Bud Scott sang and played the guitar.

Clifford Jr. enlisted in Uncle Sam's navy for 3 years. He left Wednesday, Sept. 11.

Community Chest Rally

One of the outstanding events of the year in the field of women's activities, the annual Rally for the Community Chest, will take place Wednesday morning, Oct. 8, at an 8:45 breakfast meeting in the Embassy Room of the Ambassador Hotel.

Of particular interest will be the annual presentation of the Gold Key Award, given for the sixth time to the woman voted outstanding in community health and welfare service. The Standards Committee now is reviewing nominations made by women's groups in the metropolitan area for this honor, according to Mrs. Curtis S. Albro, chairman of the Women's Committee for the Community Chest which has arranged the rally. Mrs. Albro also is president of Young Women's Christian Association, a Chest agency.

Ronald Reagan, Warner Brothers' star and a leader in veterans' and community projects, will be guest speaker. Dennis Morgan will be the vocalist, also appearing by courtesy of Warner Brothers.

In planning the rally, Mrs. Albro has had the assistance of an executive committee of 88 women, leaders in women's organizations in the metropolitan area.

"We proudly take part in our Community Chest campaigns because of the magnificient work its 159 agencies are doing for the men, women and children of our great and growing community," Mrs. Albro declared. "In an area always conscious of producing 'the biggest and the best,' we now have united more health, welfare, youth and veterans agencies under our Red Feather emblem than any other section of the country, thanks to the 'open door' policy of our Chest."

Women who wish to attend the rally are warned by Mrs. Albro "to get their reservations in early" as there has been an overflow crowd at each previous meeting.

Women Community Chest volunteers have a particular invitation to attend and can make reservations by telephoning Miss Archer, Michigan 8821, or writing to Community C headquarters, 729 S. Figu Street, Los Angeles 14.

SHOPPING WITH DORIS

By DORIS AUSTIN

Hello There:

Fabric is the keynote of fall and winter silhouette — people employ different methods to tell the quality of good materials, whether you shop as an inexperienced person or as an experienced dressmaker, the result can be the same by carefully planning what you want and working toward that. Remember speed is not of importance to the competent shopper if it is at all possible to refrain from making a quick purchase.

This year has been fashionably proclaimed by leading designers as "dress-year," which means that you are going to make many of the lovely designs and copy lots of the exclusive originals of this year's fashion trend, so let your selection of materials be the important factor in your dressmaking — it can make or destroy a beautiful pattern or design. Consider the weave of the particular material you want, think of its suitability for the wear in store as well as what it will do toward your physical being; does the quality of the material suit the pattern you wish to use—then think of the color tones—the depth achieved in the different kinds of materials, choose a color to blend or harmonize with your complexion and above all, do not forget that colors and materials can slenderize or add to your figure.

This is just a bit of the many fashion hints you may secure from the shopping services, call Doris at CE 2-0819 for any information. If it has to be bought, I'll buy it for you at such a minimum fee with no shopping worries that it will really please you. Investigate and see for yourself.

WHAT'S DOING IN THE SOCIAL SET

By JESSIE MAE BROWN

the way, the EAGLE Youth Writer, Bill Scott is now scribing for the DAILY BRUIN.

Then to my desk comes a very interesting letter from Gerry Masciana, fashion editor of HOME CIRCUIT magazine, edited and published by the very charming Mrs. Alone Feaman. Am quite sure most of you women readers recall Gerry's trip to the coast during the early Spring of the year, bringing glad tidings of this new magazine that depicts the life of Negro women in a most fashionable and glamorous manner. Well the latest has it that the mag has changed its title to CIRCUIT'S SMART WOMAN, and judging the cover of the debut edition the name has nothing on the content. Believe me when I say, the brown-skinned realm of journalism has just about come of age.

SOCIAL HIGHLIGHTS

On Sunday afternoon between the hours of 3 to 5 p.m. the Anchorettes will pour tea in honor of their parents at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Sheen. The sub-debs, who are under the assuming wing of Mrs. Emily Portwig, have a musical program set to hightlight the affair. By the way, this group of debs, three or four years hence, will be presented in the proper manner. . . At the wedding reception and ceremony uniting Ann Cunningham and William Dickinson, a goodly number of the city's pioneer residents were much in evidence. Lots of them having attended the marriage of Ann's parents more than 25 years ago. Then too, many of the offsprings (native Angelenos) assisted.

Chatted a brief spell with Ruth Williams Smith. Learned that her better half, Capt. Curtis Smith, will be instructing this semester at Howard university. Victor and Emma Manuel (Cunningham) were seen greeting old friends; Marilyn Hudson and Puffy Hill were serving punch, assisted by Flora Boswell and Lula Green. Mr. Jimmy Smith, the gent who introduced the Sr. David Cunninghams, was as proud as could be over the very beautiful marriage. Jimmy, a Legionnaire, was the center of attraction for a while, displaying his cap worn some years back in France. Donna Cunningham, David's wife, was very lovely in a peach-colored afternoon gown. A complete coverage of the wedding is featured in this week's Social Silhouette. Must mention that Rev. Lloyd Galloway presided at the ceremony in a manner that will long be remembered by the family and few close friends who witnessed the ceremony . . .

The "Stag" party for William "Dickie" Dickinson was held Saturday night at Bobby Boswell's and lasted well into Sunday morn. Just what happened the fellows wouldn't tell, but I gather that a grand time was had by all. Bert Kenner, Harold and Bill Faulkner, Ike Blocker and Elbert Hudson were listed among the guests. The William Dickinsons are now enjoying a brief honeymoon at an undisclosed place . . .

At Odessa James' betrothal luncheon on Saturday afternoon had my first glimpse of the Johnny Lehman's young son and Yvonne Johnson Beane's little daughter. By the way, Odessa and her fiance, Vance Jones, are two others betrothed who will unite old Los Angeles families. Their vows will be spoken on Nov. 23, at St. Philips Episcopal church.

Marcelyn Cobbs, still in the throes of enjoying a vacation from Howard university, will be honored in grand style, when Weldina Hefflin entertains with a dinner party at the Meadowbrook, Sunday night. Tables have been reserved for several couples of popular collegiates, who will enjoy dining and dancing to the music of the famed Duke . . .

WELL! WELL! WELL.

Mrs. John Thomas (Mabel) played hostess all day and night Sunday. Reason, her famed husband and six-year-old son celebrated their respective birthdays. Junior had 20 guests in during the early part of the day, while Mabel completed arrangements for the surprise party for John Sr., that took place that night. John was really surprised and the many guests in attendance had a grand time. Among those present were: Dr. and Mrs. Catoe Robinson, Libby Clark and sis Jerry; the Virgil Hills, Vernon Andersons, Wallace Baileys and a host of thers . . . Roy Loggins Jr., plans to fly back to the world series . . . Audrey Hester and Vivian Stevens are still agog over their recent visit in San Francisco. Both plan a return vacation during the Thanksgiving holiday . . . Rena Ann Marlowe is now vacationing in the Bay area . . .

The Lloyd Galloways are expecting Dolly's mother to arrive here from Jamaica, West Indies, before Dr. Stork makes his scheduled appearance . . . The Zoo Goosbys and Skippy Smiths stood as little Leslie King III's god-parents Sunday . . . Latest word from Marion B. Jackson has news of returning to L. A. soon and a few facts on the grand luncheon she enjoyed with schoolhood friend, the former Hattie Hopgood, now the famed Hadda Brooks . . . The Crop 'n' Tails will ride Sunday morning and their togs will be complete with new crops, a gift from the Nat Fearonces (Dorothea Towles) purchased in Mexico . . . The AKA's welcome party for new students on the UCLA campus will be Saturday night . . . Doris Weary was hostess to Iota Lambda-ors Saturday . . . Marion Ford and Marguerite Singleton are as busy as can be working for the telephone company. Believe me, they are added beauty to the clerical staff. Making deadline . . .

—'Til Next Week.

Navajo Colors Seen As Remedy For Late Mates

HAWTHORNE, Calif. — Housewives troubled by husbands who never get to meals on time might take a tip from the Navajo Indians in choosing "psychological" colors combinations for setting their tables.

Paul Tramz, Northrop Aircraft, Inc. illustrator, believed colors used by the Navajos for decorating their pottery were eye-appealing and appetite stimulating.

He suggested these colors be used in redorcating the interior of one of Northrop's non-profit employe cafeterias. As a result, average daily patronage cafeteria was opened.

A. B. Foremans Play Hosts

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Foreman had as their house guests the past summer, Miss E. G. Foreman and Mrs. Walter Hines, sisters to the couple, of Waco, Texas.

WALLFLOWER

If you are a wallflower, or think you are, don't let it hurt too much. Flowers can do two things, you know. They can wither, or they can blossom. And what a time they have doing it!

Anything can happen to you. Anything good! There are too many people who think there is just no hope for them. Perhaps one of the secrets lies in finding just what type of flower you are.

Everybody can't be an exotic, alluring flower, an ivory gardenia or a soft rose camellia. Some of us have to be of a hardier variety. Just plain everyday garden flowers.

If you wish to obtain some of the personality, and beauty that is necessary to aid you in finding love and happiness, let Prof. Herman aid you through his helpful advice.

Maps Plans to Help Integrate So. Migrants in New Communities

EAST BROOKFIELD, Mass.—Committing itself to a dynamic functional program to aid migrant-affected communities, the National Urban League included among its resolutions, adopted at the final session of its 1947 Annual setts, a provision to equip its 56 affiliates with all information and assistance necessary to aid the congested areas.

The conference proposed the undertaking of continuous surveys, so as to forecast southern economic conditions, as well as the potentialities in other industrial areas for absorbing Negro workers, the resulting material to be used as a basis for releasing advice to prospective migrants as to those areas where their economic possibilities appear greatest, as well as for assisting those newcomers already arrived, but not happily settled, in congested areas.

Other resolutions urged a congressional amendment to Social Security program to increase benefit rates, include agricultural workers, domestic and personal services, employes of religious and charitable institutions, and provide health insurance; congressional action in providing a comprehensive housing program along the lines of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner Housing Bill, a strengthening of race relations service; action by the secretary of labor and other responsible public officials to rectify the inequitable participation of Negroes — veterans and civilians — in the apprenticeship training program, particularly as it effect private and public home construction.

PRAISES WASHINGTON COMMUNITY CHEST

Soundly berating "bigoted and uninformed leadership in the community of the nation's capital" another resolution placed the National Urban League Conference on record as commending the Washington, D. C., Community Chest's "best leadership for evidencing its belief, practically, in social action for interracial cooperation through social work skills, including the orderly, democratically-conducted scientific procedures."

By a unanimous conference vote, which followed words of praise of the late T. Arnold Hill, an Urban League executive for 26 years, by both Lester B. Granger and Eugene Kinckle Jones, general secretary, a resolution was passed extending sympathy to Hill's family. The text of the resolution extolled Hill as a "pioneer social worker" whose service has been "invaluable to the Urban League movement," declared his "full knowledge of Negro workers and conditions affecting them made him the outstanding authority in this field." The conferees declared his death a serious loss to America, to Negro American particularly, and to the profession of social work.

URBAN LEAGUE FELLOWS

One of the unique events of the conference was a meeting of Urban League Fellows, men and women who have received educational assistance through fellowships from the National Urban League, which resulted in a decioisn to establish a $1000 fellowship. The grant is to be furnished by the group an dis to be administered through the National Urban League.

The entire conference was devoted entirely to the improvement of Urban League program, with sights set upon expanding its services in the field of vocational guidance, employment, housing, education, and race relations, and increasing its budget.

Lester B. Granger, National Urban League executive, making the keynote speech of the conference, stated "One responsibility of the Urban League in cities with swollen populations is to recruit, train and support additional leadership units in the Negro neighborhood, who because they know the problems first hand and are intimately acquainted with their neighbors can help restore the group discipline which has broken under social pressures of want, ignorance and greed.

"We must bring this realistic Negro leadership," he continued, "into contact with open-minded, public-spirited and equally realistic white people who are not necessarily interested in Negroes sentimentally, but are deeply eager to correct undemocratic practices, and to build secure community living for all. In addition, we must persuade these leaders, both Negro and white, to accept social responsibilities which are specific, sometimes difficult and unusually unpopular.

The conference recognized the excellent work of groups of Negro and wihte citizens working together by a resolution praising these groups. The resolution also urged that Negro groups in all American communities — worker, and employer, layman and leader—"accept greater responsibility for, and fuller activity in ,improvement programs affecting the total, as well as the Negro community."

More than 250 Urban League personnel, including a large number of local board members, were in attendance at the four-day workshop at Camp Awtarer, covering 50 wooded acres on the north shore of Lake Lashaway.

Russian Proposal to Curb War Mongers, Assailed as Attack On U. S. Free Speech Concept

NEW YORK — Russia's proposal before the general assembly of the United Nations that member nations of the UN enact legislation outlawing "war mongering" 'on "pain of criminal punishment", was under attack today as an affront to the American concept of freedom of speech.

The key feature of Russian UN delegate Andrei Y. Vashinsky's proposal would render liable to "criminal punishment" any newspaper, radio station or public speaker adjudged guilty of carrying on war propaganda.

His proposed UN resolution stated specifically:

"The United Nations organization considers it necessary to urge the governments of all countries on pain of criminal punishment to prohibit war propaganda in any form and take measures for the prevention and suppression of war propaganda as a socially dangerous activity threatening the vital interests and welfare of peace-loving nations."

Prohibition of such propaganda "would be completely contradictory to our concept of a free press and free speech," one U. S. official said. This also was the opinion of those newspapers and radio commentators who for the past two years have been shamelessly engaged in propaganda for war with Russia.

In his own country, Vishinsky said, should any person make a statement, even in infinitessimal degree resembling (those of U. S. war mongers), full of criminal greed for a new manslaughter, such a statement would meet with a severe rebuff and public disapproval as a socially dangerous act leading to a serious harm."

He named names in denouncing American war mongers, among whom he listed John Foster Dulles, Republican adviser on foreign affairs; Chairman Charles Eaton, R. N. J., of the house foreign affairs committee; Sens. Brien McMahon, D., Conn., C. Wayland Brooks, R. Ill., Geo. H. Earle, former U. S. minister to Moscow, and Paisley B. Harwood, vice president of Catler Hamer, Inc., Milwaukee, Wis.

Survey Shows School Segregation Spreading To Northern Communities

NEW YORK—School segregation and other Southern patterns of race relations are being effectively accomplished in many Northern communities, particularly southern New Jersey and Central Pennsylvania, according to a survey conducted by the NAACP in those two states.

The situation was pointed up this week by NAACP protests to the superintendent of the Harrisburg, Pa. school district in the case of a seven-year-old boy who was denied admission to the Boas school, a predominantly white school, although living within the prescribed area of jurisdiction of the school. The child, Byron Quann, was sent to a predominantly Negro school, in which district he did not reside.

The NAACP, throught its legal department, charged discrimination in the assignment of pupils in Boas school and other elementary schools in Harrisburg. In its letter to the superintendent of schools, it said:

"Needless to say, we feel from these facts that race is apparently playing a part in the decision to deny Master Quann the right to attend Boas school."

Attention was called to Section 1405 of the School Laws of Pennsylvania, which states in part:

"It shall be unlawful for any school director, superintendent, or teacher to make any distinction whatever on account of or by reason of the race or color of any pupil . . ."

The situation in Harrisburg is duplicated in nearby Steelton, Pa., where segregation in the elementary schools is almost complete, according to NAACP attorneys. They deeclared that the pattern of substantially segregating Negro children in the elementary schools of Harrisburg has been long established; that children of a few privileged Negro families have been allowed to attend predominantly white schools but that the masses of Negro children were required to attend segregated Negro schools supervised by "healing teachers" instead of principals.

No Negro teacher in the Harrisburg school system was permitted to teach or supervise any class in which white pupils are enrolled, no Negro teacher has been promoted to a position in the High school or has been engaged to teach in the High school, the attorneys said.

No change in the number of eggs is necessary in most recipes for waffles, griddle cakes, muffins, plain cakes and cookies.

But in custard, where thickness depends on the amount of egg, more small eggs must be used than larger eggs. In the standard recipe for baked custard calling for 3 eggs, the number should be increased to 4 when pullet eggs are used.

ENTER VFW CONTEST—Gussie Morris is one of several local girls who this week had entered the Armistice Day Queen and Court contest sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Negro VFW Posts Enter 3 Girls In Armistice Day Queen Contest

The two chairmen of the Veteran of Foreign Wars Armistice Day parade committees in the Central avenue district this week had united their forces to put over the VFW program 100 per cent in this district. They are G. W. Knox of the James M. Beck post 2651, and Gazanow La Chappelle of the Frank Earnest Post 2134, VFW.

The two posts have entered three local beauties in the contest for selection of an Armistice Day Queen and court.

Single girls between 17 and 21 who wish to enter the contest are urged to get in touch with G. W. Knox, AD. 8384, at once.

LOIS WILLIAMS

Cash prizes, gold and bronze trophies, a trip to Catalina Island with all expenses paid will be awarded the top 24 girls in the contest. In addition, there will be a movie test for the Queen.

Knox and La Chappelle said yesterday they would canvass the business and residential districts of the community to help promote the VFW Armistice Day program.

White Gary Daily Scores School Strike

GARY, Ind. — Adding its strength to the many democratic voices raised in denunciation of the parents of striking school children in Gary, Ind., the Gary Post-Tribune made its position clear in a recent editorial. The newspaper deplored the cause of the Gary strike, objection to the presence of Negro children in Emerson school, in spite of the fact that many of the newspaper's readers attempted to use pressure on its policy by cancelling their subscriptions.

"What have the people of Emerson district accomplished by standing out against the democratic policy of the school board?" asked the Post-Tribune. "They have lost a week's schooling for their children. They have stirred up a cauldron of ill-will which can become a lasting poison. For they are trying to turn backward the democratic process in an age in which that process is being accelerated everywhere . . . Our advice to those Emerson district people who want to advance the democratic process is to send their children back to school and quit ascribing to the Negro qualities and desires he does not have. Treat him like an American and we feel sure he will reciprocate and act like one, act like one even to the extent of satisfying the wishes of his critics."

Three to Get Urban League Scholarships

NEW YORK—Three recent college graduates will receive fellowships from the National Urban League, it was announced recently, for study in social work this fall. They are: Frances L. Clark, Fisk university, '47; Thomas Augustine, Oberlin college and Columbia university, '47; and Josephine Belle, Upsala college, '47.

Miss Clark, of Nashville, Tenn., will study in the New York School of Social Work, Columbia university; and Augustine and Miss Belle, both of New Jersey, will study in the graduate Departments of Sociology and Economics at the University of Pittsburgh.

The light texture of angel food and sponge cake depends on the proportion of egg white to other ingredients. Measuring or weighing egg whites gives more accurate results with these cakes than egg count. A successful measure for angel food is 1 cup of egg white to each cup of flour.

Walter White Among 64 Men Who 'Run' U.S.

NEW YORK — Walter White was named one of the 64 men who run America by John Gunther in the September issue of "'47" magazine. Gunther, the author of the current best-seller, Inside U. S. A., ascribed the power of the executive secretary of the NAACP to the fact that the balance of power in no fewer than 17 states depends on the Negro vote.

The difference between Gunther's listing of the wielders of power in the United States and the tabulation of influential men made in 1930 by James W. Gerard is indicative of the changes which have taken place in this country during the last 17 years. Whereas Gerard's list was composed almost entirely of tycoons, Gunther's selections include men from various occupations.

The growing importance of the Negro in national life and the increasing importance of the Negro vote are attested to by the selection of Walter White by Gunther as one of the men who guide the destinies of the United States.

Roller Dome Mgr. Tries to Bar Camp Fire Girls Party

A party of Camp Fire girls accompanied by their sponsor, Mrs. Evans, went roller skating at the Roller Dome on Washington way Sunday afternoon.

They were informed at the box office that it wasn't the pactice to admit colored folk, that colored folk had their places on the avenue, or they could go to the Shrine in L. A. The manager said he would sell them tickets bebecause it was legally right to do so, but if they made a habit of coming, he would turn the place into a private club. He also stated that the atmosphere wouldn't be nice for them at all.

The party patiently insisted upon getting tickets, and after receiving them the girls had a wonderful time skating to the soothing music of a pipe organ, and found the patrons' attitude very courteous and pleasing.

Worship God, a part of the Camp Fire Girls' creed, is put into practice by all the girls for they attend Sunday school and B.T.U. Two girls of the Camp Fire group entered Junior high school this term, making three girls of the group in Junior High. They are: Dolores Wilson, Marguerite Yates, and Carole Jean Evans.

Sunday School at First Baptist was very well attended Sunday. C.E.A. Brunson, superintendent of the school for 30 some years sets an example worthy of emulation for young and old. He is prompt and interested in the spiritual growth of the youth. Teachers and pupils were happy to greet their pastor, Rev. L. D. Revool who has been attending National Baptist Convention in Kansas City, Mo.

Mrs. Brunson also received a glad welcome home. She is a teacher of the beginners, and has been in Texas attending the bedside of her grandmother. The tiny tots were all smiles over her return. They hold banners for both attendance and offering each Sunday. George Pryce, assistant to Mrs. Brunson, carried on with the beginners during her absence. One Sunday he took the little tots on a treasure hunt, and carried cheer to one of the older members of the church.

Mrs. Vivian Rice, a member of the choir, has been ill but is recovering nicely. Her mother, Mrs. Jimmie Davis, and her sister, Mrs. Theresa Malchone and little Theresa Malchone, are visiting with her.

Santa Monica Notes

By Lowell Evans

SANTA MONICA — The new traffic laws are now in effect, which were legislated several months ago. You will find yourself violating the law by driving in the center lane less than the normal rate of speed. That is, if you want to drive slowly, it will be necessary for you to use the lane nearest the curb.

Another new law permits the motorist to turn after stopping at a red light. This has caused some conflict with the Santa Monica city ordinance hence they are making it illegal to make such turns on downtown streets. It will be well for you, Mr. and Mrs. Motorist, to acquaint yourself with these new laws.

Lena Horne has opened a Bingo house in Venice.

The Browne Barbecue Cafe is still serving the best food with courtesy and efficiency.

The latest estimate of the Santa Monica population is 73,409—with 5200 colored people.

There is a need for expansion in business here, such as drug stores and grocery stores. For results advertise int he EAGLE.

A rush phone call from U.S. army quartermaster corps, Washington, D.C., today froze 90,000 bed sheets scheduled for sale to veteran dealers on Monday, War Assets' Textiles Branch chief J. A. Wilson, announced.

Nearly 100 vet dealers were ready to snap up the entire offering of used and unused unbleached cotton bed sheets, with purchase orders already submitted.

KINLOCH'S ☆ KORNER

Dedicated to the memory of John Kinloch, who died in the struggle to destroy Fascism

Youthfully Speaking

By BILL SCOTT

HI GUY:

You might know him; he's a pretty popular fellow about town. He came to the land of sunshine from New Orleans, Louisiana, where he first saw day. From Wadsworth Grammar school to John Adams Jr. High to Manual Arts where he is now, our hero has been acquiring that knowledge so necessary to study medicine. UCLA will be the next school, while left behind will be memories of the Latin Club, the Aeolin Club, and Hi-Y of which he is now V-Prexy. Hobbies include record collecting and writing.

Oh, Yes! the name is David Reed.

Attention! The tall brown-skinned fellow who has been driving to school in the '47 Studebaker is a fine fellow, U-clans. He's got personality plus a service record as a flyer in Uncle Sam's air force. His name is Godfrey Walker and he's from the East. Go up and get acquainted. You'll like him.

Sherrill Luke sets the pace for young Negro leadership at UCLA as a yell leader again this semester. Let's see you UCLA folks at the rally Wednesday night to give Sherrill a boost.

The week-end nights seemed to find a crowd gathered at the Wasco Malt Shop. Where were all you socializers coming from? Connie Stevenson and Evelyn Middleton were kept busy jerking sodas. Didn't they feed you at either of those two parties?

Eula Lee Narcisse is kept fairly busy nowadays as president of the Y-Teen of the Woodlawn Branch of the YWCA. It's a voluntary leadership dinner set for September 23 that's first on her schedule now.

Laccions looked up to welcome the largest flock of freshmen of any college campus this past week. Of course Verdel Forrest was one of the many to begin to learn what real studying is.

Ulysses Ware is working; so are a lot of people I know, but this means a lot to LACC's track team and a sad feeling among many Laccions.

Melvin Embree is a "proud papa." It's a boy, and Leona is happy because that's what "papa" ordered.

The Alpha fraternity held that smoker Wednesday night, and a lot of fine prospective Sphinxmen were present. Names not to be mentioned yet.

Here's news. Joe Downs isn't available any more, girls. He's married. The young Mrs. is the former Mary Palmer. Congrats. Oh, yes! He's still attending City College.

Orchid Oliver has a roomer. She comes from Portland, Oregon, and she makes a lovely addition to Angel City and LACC, where she is beginning as a major in dental hygiene. Her name? Connie Maney.

George Waites hasn't opened his own business yet, but it won't be long now. However, he is practicing his soon-to-be vocation while going to tailoring school in the morning to further his tailoring knowledge. Want a suit made?

Jane Johnson did not speak Sunday at P. F. meeting, but will this Sunday. Be on hand.

Clyde Smith is in the bookkeeping business and is doing nicely. He is working for Bob Kipper, whose office is in the EAGLE Building. Clyde wants that early start in life although he is still attending Southwestern university as an accounting major.

Genie Maynard leaves us today to return to her home in Louisiana. Genie, who is the sister of Joyce Maynard, popular UCLA co-ed, made many friends in L. A. on her short visit here, and was almost persuaded to stay. But important duties called her home.

Jackie Frazer's mother died last week in the hospital after being ill for some time. Many L. A. guys and gals have asked me to give Jackie condolence and sympathy from the L. A. realm of youth. For all who know Jackie as the fine young lady she is, knew her mother as the woman who made her so.

See ya next week!!

Raisin' Cain

By CARL L. CAIN

SEGREGATION

During my recent visit to the South, one of the prominent matters that attracted my attention was the segregation of people from others by their races. Actually, it is an outright, outrageous form of caste system. There is no question in the minds of those who live in this part of our country about segregation. They have become used to it, and they seemed to care little about the state of affairs.

Nothing more reminded me of the Indian caste system of untouchability than did these southern methods of segregation. Negroes and whites are separated in railroad and bus stations, in theatres, in buses and on trains. In the south, there are schools for Negro pupils, and for white pupils. But the strange thing is, it is hard to tell who is trying to keep from touching whom. The Negroes here like to tolerate the methods of the southern white people no more than the opposite race like to tolerate their methods; they have no desire to attend white social gatherings, their theatres, and other places of public entertainment, not because they have prejudged the whites, but because they feel they are unwanted.

Unfortunately I made the sad mistake of entering a 'public' drug store in a small southern town, resting my body on a stool, and asking for an ice cream soda (and they do have them there). With an I-don't-like-your-attitude sneer, the soda fountain jerk, of the usual bulging size, blundered through with a: "We don' serve y'all them." For a moment I was puzzled, trying to untangle the expression, "y'all them." I couldn't figure out what he meant. Then, while being gazed upon by some of the other employes and customers, I understood, and hurried out of the store. I tried hard not to as much as snicker with laughter in their sight. And then it was they who looked silly.

The segregation system follows the people of the south right up into the door of Washington, D.C., and into the capitol building itself. Nothing is more disgusting than being treated as if someone had poison ivy, and you were the one. The colored people there do not consider themselves too distinguished to sit with the white people, and I can never see how this opinion was circulated and developed into the segregation system.

The situation in the fair city of Ft. Worth, Texas, is rather amusing. The scene of notice is the railroad station. The exits of the elevated tracks are simultaneousy descended by both white and colored. At the immediate opening of the exit, is a large, spacious waiting room, divided by no signs of white, or colored; but adjoining this part, there is a section of the large station "for colored" and "for white."

And in Houston, segregation has gone to the extent of having separate benches marked "WHITE" and "COLORED" outside the station, the same applying to New Orleans. Oklahoma City thinks it only appropriate that separate parks should be provided for white and colored. But I shall always believe that the park bearing the sign "FOR COLORED PEOPLE ONLY" was much more beautiful than the one marked "FOR WHITE PEOPLE ONLY."

But generally looking back, it is easy to admire the courage of the Negroes in this land of selfishness and injustice. They feel that if it is necessary to sit on the last three seats of buses, then they will sit there. The same applies to the divided sections of trains, and street cars. The dominating fact is that they are riding, and being transported from place to place as they desire. And they know, that one fair day, the people about them will wake up and realize that the Negroes have far more courage than they themselves. They will suddenly know that it is they, who are unworthy of sitting with the Negroes.

Negro Students Invited To Compete in Pepsi-Cola Nationwide Scholarship

"All over the country, boys and girls of unusual promise are denied the opportunity of college training because they cannot afford it. We have set ourselves the task of discovering and promoting the growth of some of these students who can add materially to the enrichment of the American way of life."

With this as a keynote, the Pepsi-Cola Scholarship Board this month is inviting all Negro students graduating from high school in 1948 to enter its fourth annual competition for 119 Pepsi-Cola Four-Year College Scholarships and 550 fifty-dollar College Entrance Awards.

According to an announcement sent to all Negro high school principals, 18 scholarships and 75 college entrance awards have been set aside specifically for seniors of the South's Negro schools. Negro students may also compete for the other awards to eb granted in those states which do not have a dual system of education.

The boys and girls entering the 1948 competition must be selected by their classmates as ones "most likely to make important contributions to human progress." The candidates who win the scholarships will have their full tuition and certain incidental fees paid for four years to any accredited academic colleges they wish to attend in the United States, its territories, or Canada. In addition, they will receive allowances of $25 a month during the four academic years plus traveling expenses at the rate of three cents a mile for one round trip between home and college each school year.

October 24 has been set as the closing date of registration for this year's competition. On Friday, Nov. 21, all candidates will take a special aptitude test in their own schools. The students in each state who receive the highest scores on this preliminary test will then take a second examination on Jan. 24.

32 Vets Register on Penn. Lincoln Campus In Freshman Class

The 157 freshmen who have registered at Lincoln this year come from 18 states and two foreign countries, British Guiana and British West Indies. The peak of the G.I. enrollment was reached last year, for there are only 32 veterans in the 1947 incoming class.

The ages of the freshmen vary from 16 to 28. Seventeen and eighteen are the ages most often found in the group. The 14 entering students at age 22 are evidence of the influence of the war years on the education of young men.

Where the freshmen list their occupational choices, medicine is the great lodestone attracting 64 of the 151 students. Physical education, law and dentistry claim 14, 12, and 11 respectively. The desired life work for the remainder of the students varies widely from biology and business to optometry and osteopathy.

Lincoln University Jammed to Capacity

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—Despite limited housing facilities on the campus of Lincoln university (Mo.), all of which are crowded to capacity, the enrollment in the college of arts and sciences, including the School of Journalism and graduate division, shows an increase of 49 over that of this time last year. To this figure are to be added enrollments in the School of Law, St. Louis, and the Laboratory high school, which will run the grand total to around 1100. A natural slight decrease in the number of veterans can be noted.

Overtaxed conditions of housing facilities for women are being somewhat relieved by an increase from 2 to 3 of single room occupancy through the use of approved, maple double-deck beds. A superficial check of city residence housing quarters indicates practically none to be found.

If your school can not supply this special order form, write to Musir Guild, giving particulars. The address: 3305 Wilshire Boulevard, Los Angeles 5.

THE REALM OF RELIGION

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. IKE EVANS, D.D.

Subject: Worthy Objectives for Life. Lesson Text and Outline Ecclesiastes 1:2,17; 2:1,11,24; 12: 1-8,13-14. Motto Text Ecclesiastes 12:13.

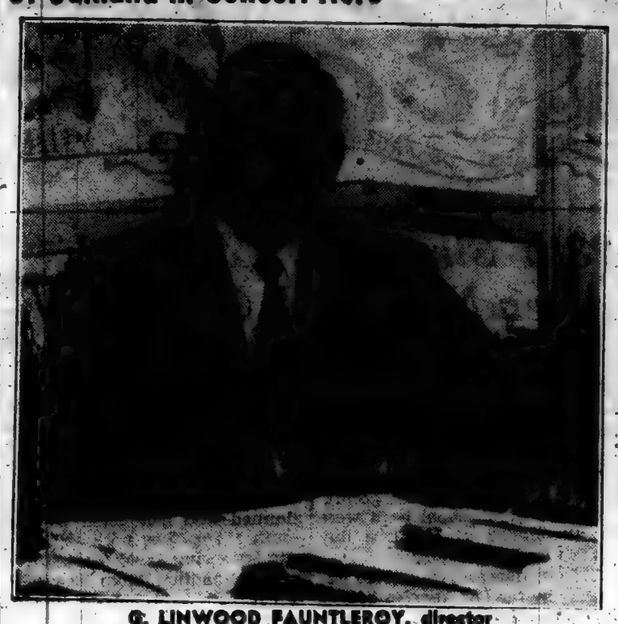
Introduction

The author of Ecclesiastes was not a skeptic but a seer; and his book is a document of neither pessimism nor optimism but of reality. If he opens with a conclusion that seems pessimistic, it was reached as the result of human folly and not of Providence; and he closes with "the conclusion of the whole matter" which shows accountable man on duty before God, his Saviour and Soverign. The point of the preacher in these pages is that, apart from God, nothing satisfies; hence men, to be happy, must come into harmony with God. The treatment of this general theme includes (in the passages before us) certain worthy objectives for life.

Comments

1. Varieties are impertinent to the soul, foreign, and add nothing to it; they do not answer the end, nor yield any true satisfaction; they are uncertain in their continuance, are fading, and perishing, and will certainly deceive and disappoint those that put confidence in them. This intimates that the wise man had his own heart fully convinced of and much affected with this truth, and that he was very desirous that others should be convinced of it and affected with it, as he was, but that he found the generality of men very loth to believe it and consider it. It vexed Solomon to see many that had wisdom not use it, and many that had folly not strive against it.

2. Solomon resolved to try what mirth would do and the pleasures of wit, whether he should be happy if he constantly entertained himself and others with merry stories, jests, banter and drollery; if he should furnish himself with all the pretty, ingenious turns and repartees he could invent or pick up, fit to be laughed over, and all the bulls, blunders, and foolish things, he could hear of, fit to be ridiculed.



When the Creator had made his great works he reviewed them, and behold, all was very good; every thing pleased Him. But when Solomon received all his works that his hands had wrought with the utmost cost and care, and the labor that he had labored to do in order to make himself easy and happy, nothing answered his expectations; behold, all was vanity and vexation of spirit; he had no satisfaction in it, no advantage by it.

3. It is the royal physician's antidote against the particular diseases of youth, the love of mirth, and the indulgence of sensual pleasures, the vanity which childhood and youth are subject to; to prevent and cure this, remember thy Creator. Call Him to mind when thou art young, and keep in mind throughout all the days of thy youth, and never forget him. Guard thus against the temptations of youth, and thus improve the advantage of it.

Comment on the Motto Text

The root of religion is the fear of God reigning in the heart, a reverence of His majesty, a deference to His authority, and a dread of His wrath. Fear God, that is, worship God, give Him the honor due Him and to His name, in all the instances of true devotion, inward and outward. The rule of religion is the law of God revealed in the scriptures. Our fear towards God must be taught by His commandments, and those we must keep and carefully observe. Whenever the fear of God is uppermost in the heart, there will be a respect to all his commandments and care to keep them. In vain do we pretend to fear God if we do make conscience of our duty to Him.

Christian Science Lesson Text 'Reality'

The Golden Text of the Sunday Lesson-Sermon on "Reality" in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, is chosen from the Psalms, and reads, "As for God, his way is perfect: the word of the Lord is tried: he is a buckler to all those that trust in him."

Matthew's Gospel relates that "Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people:." A passage from The Acts records that Peter came "to the saints which dwelt at Lydda. And there he found a certain man named Aeneas, which had kept his bed eight years, and was sick of the palsy. And Peter said unto him, Aeneas, Jesus Christ maketh thee whole: arise, and make thy bed. And he arose immediately. And all that dwelt at Lydda and Saron saw him, and turned to the Lord."

"Is the sick man sinful above all others?" asks Mary Baker Eddy in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." She replies, "No! but so far as he is discordant, he is not the image of God. Weary of their material beliefs; from which comes so much suffering, invalids grow more spiritual, as the error—or belief that life is in matter—yields to the reality of spiritual Life."

Have a heart that never hardens, a temper that never tires, a touch that never hurts. —Dickens

Christian Science Lesson Is 'Reality'

The Golden Text of the Sunday Lesson-Sermon on "Reality" in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, is chosen from the Psalms, and reads, "As for God, his way is perfect: he is a buckler to all those that trust in him."

Matthew's Gospel relates that Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people." A passage from The Acts records that Peter came "to the saints which dwelt at Lydda. And there he found a certain man named Aeneas, which had kept his bed eight years, and was sick of the palsy. And Peter said unto him, Aeneas, Jesus Christ maketh thee whole: aris, and make thy bend. And he arose immediately. And all that dwelt at Lydda and saron saw him, and turned to the Lord."

"Is the sick man sinful above all others?" asks Mary Baker Eddy in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." She replies, "No! but so far as he is discordant, he is not the image of God. Weary of their material beliefs, from which comes so much suffering, invalids grow more spiritual, as the error—or belief that life is in matter—yields to the reality of spiritual Life."

Be anxiously concerned with the needs of the age ye live in."—Baha'u'llah.

Jimcrow Reigns in Capital As Gov't Criticises Europe

WASHINGTON — While the Truman administration continues to point an acussing finger at European countries in charging undemocratic practices, there are several incidents in its own backyard that could stand looking into.

Americans are segregated in ghettos in the shadow of the Capitol, barred from the few decent theatres here, denied service restaurants and other public places because of their color. Others are suffering for their political beliefs, although the nation's highest court has maintained that neither the federal nor state governments have any right to force citizens to conform to any particular political belief.

An attempt was made this week to force children out of their house in suburban Bannockburn, Maryland, because of a restrictive housing covenant which bars Negroes, Syrians, Jews and Persians as residents in the area unless they are servants.

Nine property owners including J. Otis Garber, chief of the Budget Bureau's field service at $10,000 a year, filed suit to force Aaron Tushin out of his home, claiming "irreparable damage" was being caused by his residence there.

An employe of the U. S. Patent Office, Tushin and his non-Jewish wife, bought the property jointly and moved in a year ago. The suit was dropped "for the time being" when publicity and public indignation proved too embarrassing. Now Tushins are pressing for a court ruling on validity of the covenant.

Meantime, the Truman-sparked witch-hunt continues merrily. Although school facilities are being taxed to the utmost by the record enrollments and the teacher shortage, former professors and instructors are being turned down because of the witch-hunt hysteria gripping the nation.

Liberal - minded government experts who want a change in jobs and locale are finding it almost impossible to land positions in colleges and universities. College authorities simply are afraid to hire government workers because it might be interpreted as an attempt to escape the "loyalty" investigationg.

Egyptians Stone British Consulate

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt — Egyptian nationalists yesterday stoned the British Consulate and two British buildings, demanding that the Union Jack be hauled down.

Simultaneously, angry mobs attacked the British Union Club in the center of Alexandria and the British-owned Eastern Telegraph Co. The club's ornate windows were smashed and several employes were injured by flying stones and glass.

Meanwhile, Premier Mahmoud Fahmy Nokrasky Pasga told a meeting of his Saadist party in Cairo that his primary aim is to strengthen the Egyptian army "because words are powerless without action."

Nokrasky flew home from New York last Saturday after attending the United Nations general assembly session. Egypt is demanding immediate withdrawal of British troops from her soil and the Sudan.

Mrs. Arnetta Brown celebrated her birthday Tuesday evening. She was honoree at a family dinner.

Three Great Americans

people, descendants of foreign-born—all oppressed groups—let us protect our true American tradition.

"Let us turn this country toward the course of history—a world of all the people. Let us hear the clarion voice of Wallace who comes from the soil of America. Let us aid him by building, if necessary, an independent expression and organization of the will of the great majority of Americans who have fought and died for a world where every race and creed may walk the earth in true dignity."

Lena Horne

"Tonight I come to you not as an entertainer, but as a citizen. I want to speak as a Negro American and tell you what we see and feel in our nation's capital.

"I remember very vividly the first time I visited Washington. I was traveling as a singer with Noble Sissle's band. I was 17 years old and enormously thrilled at the idea of being in the seat of government. As the train pulled into the station, I stared in admiration at my first glimpse of those famous, clean-looking government buildings . . . I noticed a number of empty cabs. . . . Then I heard a woman say to a child who was about to open a cab door, "No, son, those cabs won't carry colored folks. We got to go outside and wait till a colored cab comes."

"That was my introdction to Washington. From that moment I knew what to expect. That was Washington then. That is Washington today. It hasn't changed.

"From Washington I hear the voices of my people calling out for freedom. For equality. For citizenship. For the right to human dignity. The nation and the world hear about the American way of life, discussed by American politicians in glowing terms. But the world and the people of this nation are not fooled by these democratic - sounding phrases. They are beginning to see the truth. They are getting it through the Southern Conference of Human Welfare, through the Progressive Citizens of America, in the stand taken by Actors' equity.

"Actors' Equity has voted that its members will not perform in any Washington theatre until Negroes are extended the same courtesies of admission of any other people. . . . This reaffirms my faith in the working people of this country, and I know that it points out clearly to my people that when Labor is strong and understands its role, we have an ally . . . And if all of us, Negro and white, work together then I am sure we can lick discrimination on every front."

The 75-man advisory rent control board in Los Angeles has been reminded by Msgr. O'Dwyer and the Citizens Housing Council of the "basic premises of rent control" which they are supposed to accept as members of the board.

In a letter last week-end sent to each member of the board, Msgr. O'Dwyer, on behalf of labor, religious, welfare and other civic groups, reviewed the reasons for rent control, stating that so long as a shortage of housing exists in this area, the need for rent control will continue.

The advisory boards, whose appointments were recommended by Gov. Earl Warren in cooperation with the Board of Supervisors, were sworn into office Tuesday night, Sept. 16, at the Federal Housing Expediter's office. These boards have the power to recommend decontrol in all or part of Los Angeles, as well as to make recommendations on individual landlord-tenant cases.

American Housewife Has 'Thank You' for Science

Recent discoveries and improvements in the manufacture of glass have lightened the burden of the American housewife in countless ways.

Thanks to modern science, we now have daylight-filled kitchens with glass walls; glass cooking utensils, extra-durable glass tumblers which will withstand hard blows and the thermal shock of boiling water, glass food and coffee containers which hold a nearly perfect vacuum, and many other conveniences.

Newest addition to the large and ever-growing family of glass containers for the home is a revolutionary no-deposit beer bottle recently placed on the market in California.

These new bottles, which cost so little they may be discarded in the trash can for the sake of convenience, are being manufactured by four California glass companies at a rate of more than 20,000,000 a month for nine of the state's largest breweries.

They weigh only half as much as ordinary beer bottles but hold the same amount. They are amber in color, short and compact to fit better in the refrigerator and the surface is stippled to give a better grip.

The new, no-deposit beer bottle is the lowest-cost container for beer on the market. Abundance of the principal raw materials used in glass manufacture, sand and lime, coupled with improved, high-speed manufacturing processes, make it possible to produce this bottle so it can be discarded after use like any other single-trip container.

The new one-trip bottles were developed by glass engineers about ten years ago and during the war more than a billion and a half were used to send beer to troops overseas. This is the new bottle's first appearance on the domestic market.

Men Again Nosed Out as Girl Wins Second Award of Abbott Memorial Journalism Scholarship

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—Second winner of the Robert S. Abbott Memorial Scholarship in Journalism for study at the Lincoln university school of journalism is Miss Lela Nuna Knox, junior student from Choctaw, Okla., according to an announcement by the Journalism school this week.

The scholarship, amounting to $400, was established a year ago by the Chicago Defender in honor of the paper's founder through John H. Sengestacke, president of the Robert S. Abbott Publishing company, publishers of the Defender.

Miss Knox, who ranked second in the 1945 graduating class of 90 students at Douglas High school, Oklahoma City, Okla., has maintained a high average in all of her course work since enrolling at Lincoln university two years ago.

In high school she won the "Most Useful Citizen Award," regarded at Douglas High school as the most worthy recognition a student may earn there. She was also president of the Student council, student conductor of high school assemblies, and received two scholarships to college.

Last June Miss Knox was delegate to a YWCA confernce at Estas Park, Colo. She served last year as literary editor of the Lincoln Clarion, campus weekly newspaper.

Miss Knox will serve a three-month internship period next summer on the Chicago Defender.

Miss Mamie Ruth Butler, senior in journalism, who won the Abbott award last year spent the summer on the Chicago paper and has returned to her studies at Lincoln and to a key post on the Clarion staff.

Gus Hawkins Backs DeSilva For Assembly

Sacramento's lonely liberals, led by Assemblyman Gus Hawkins, Glenn Anderson and Bill Rosenthal, took the lead this week in urging voters of the 63rd assembly district to send Joseph T. DeSilva to their side in the fight against reaction and monopoly.

JOSEPH T. DeSILVA, progressive candidaate for the State Assembly in the 63rd District special election on Nov. 4.

DeSilva, executive secretary of the Retail Clerks Local and one of the most militant leaders in the AFL, cleared the filing procedure this week with signatures to spare, despite his late entry in the special election slated for Nov. 4.

With the backing of AFL, CIO, the Railroad Brotherhoods, PCA, working people and businessmen of the district, the DeSilva Campaign Committee believes its candidate will finish ahead of his conservative and Republican opponents.

A Democrat not only in name but in practice, DeSilva is highly esteemed by the people in this community for his non-discriminatory ....policies ....within the Clerks' union and his enlightened views on full employment, housing and equal opportunity for all.

Regarding the "minority question," DeSilva says, "My platform is a reflection of my personal faith and practice. I don't believe a union has any room for discrimination. I don't believe a state or nation can allow discrimination and call itself a democracy."

Headquarters for DeSilva have been set up at 1542 West Jefferson and 4339 West Adams. Campaign volunteers are needed and will be welcomed at both offices.

tures, but I rebuffed them sternly and pulled them closer to me to emphasize the gravity of our circumstances.

When it seemed our shattered nerves could stand no more, we topped the Las Cruces Hill from which we could see the city. Las Cruces, New Mexico, lay beneath a camouflage of snow. From a distance, we could see the streets and tiny houses. It was a heartwarming sight after the harrowing ride from Benson. Seeing the trees there after the endless miles of snow-swept desert was like coming home to all things familiar. Our faces brightened.

"By golly," said the driver," we didn't use much gas on that last 50 miles."

"No, we didn't," I said," we traveled most of the way on nerve alone."

We all laughed. I gripped the driver's hand.

"Thanks for everything," I said.

"Glad to help you out," he replied. I could see in his eyes that he understood the strain I was under.

The ride from Benson was all the hitch-hiking we wanted for one day. We boarded a bus for the final 44 miles into El Paso.

When we were well under way Vaughn looked up and smiled.

"Gee, Daddy," he said, "I was awful scared."

"So was I," I said. I began to realize the terrific impact of the trip on his sensitive mind.

We reached El Paso at 4:30 p.m. The bus depot was steaming with people. There were old men and women and little boys squirming and fussing.

I checked the bags and led Vaughn and Christie into the street. It was snowing and the sidewalks were slushy with snow and ice and water.

The dark night before us convinced me of one thing: we had to have more money without delay. We made a bee-line for the telegraph office.

Next we slogged back past the bus station and on to the Union Depot. This was the same station I visited in November, 1944, when I was a soldier on my way to the war in the Pacific.

The huge waiting room was quiet and though not entirely deserted, having none of the bustle I had seen there that day in 1944.

I glanced furtively toward the Traveller's Aid stand which was closed and went on the news stall to buy a paper.

We walked back across the sleek marble floor. I saw a door marked "Colored Waitnig Room." The depravity of such segregation incensed me.

I poured silent curses upon myself and upon the degenerate people who permit the foul misdeeds of the past to flourish in the present.

By the time we reached the street I was like a volcano ready to erupt. I wanted not only to speak out against the injustices of the world, but I wanted to do something about them. The fond dreams of my youth to emulate the exploints of Richard Halliburton were poison that I wanted to spit out of my mouth.

Standing there in the snow with Vaughn and Christie appealing for food and a hotel, I felt the sharp pangs of fear and distillusion.

I toyed with the few remaining coins in my pocket. I had to think of something. I lifted the kids over the water swirling in the gutter and set off down the street.

Visits L. A.

This city was recently honored by the presence of Dr. L. M. Tellman of Kansas City, Mo. Little did most of us realize that in our midst was a man that for many years gave of his service as chief clinican to General Hospital No. 2, and in so doing was responsible for the training of hundreds of young physicians that have since become eminent men in their professions.

Dr. Tillman was truly a man of great foresight and was loved by all the interns of General Hospital No. 2, because in him they knew there was a race man willing to give all he knew in order that they should go out into this universe to practice practical medicine and to eleviate human suffering. He taught the fundamentals that were necessary to achieve success and gave of his time whole heartedly.

Dr. Tillman we honor you, we wish you abundant success all the remaining years of your wonderful life.

Autumn

By DORIS N. WEARYE

Cover the sky with robe of gray,
Rend the trees of green;
Scatter the blossoms of flowers gay,
Set birds on the wing.
Autumn is here a while to stay,
Take in all its beauty;
Nature is at her best today
As she fulfills her duty.
Colors of red, gold, yellow, brown,
Atmosphere cool and clean;
And the sky is dressed in gray
The trees bereft of green.

Accent on Sports

BY A. O. PRINCE
Sports Editor

OH SAY CAN YOU SEE

Undoubtedly the Los Angeles Dons were in a playful mood last Friday night when they ran up a 45-7 score over the hapless Brooklyn Dodger football team. The score in itself was reason enough for the mood and in all the excitement it is quite understandable how emotions could have run rampant.

It is a known fact that the Dons have made overtures to the Negroes in metropolitan Los Angeles with the inclusion of race players on the team and subsequent press releases on said players. That is why it struck us mighty funny that, after all the Don management would and did go out so wholeheartedly for one Dean Cromwell of U.S.C. during their halftime ceremonies.

Not once has the fact that Cromwell as an excellent track coach been attacked here and with all due respect we commend the Dean on his fine record of outstanding achievements in the track world. The Dean holds an enviable record and it is well known that he is quite versed and tested in his chosen profession.

As an Olympic track coach Cromwell could and would do an excellent job. Under certain conditions we could be reasonably sure that the squad would be expertly and efficiently handled. That is, of course, under certain conditions.

Given a squad of outstanding Caucasian athletes with records and performances equal to those of our most outstanding Negro athletes little else but a championship team would wear the American colors. It seems, however, that Negroes are destined, through ability, to participate with the American track entry. Cromwell has proven beyond a doubt that he is incapable of fully co-ordinating Negroes into his track patterns.

As evidence to the contrary, such men as Brice Taylor and Herman Mill have stuck to the Cromwell bandwagon. Evidently their contacts with the Dean were fruitful to them but this narrow prospectus can hardly be considered in regard to the future of America's chances in the international contest.

Daily rumors (and we admit that they are rumors) drift by our ears on the old Dean. Some of these we are most happy to let alone.

Already we have tried to check into the rumor that Cromwell placed his signature recently on a restrictive covenant petition. So far we do not know it as a fact and can not state that it is so.

It does seem that the Dons in including the salute to and aproval of the Dean in their recent football ceremonies, are putting the toe to the same spot they are trying to soothe.

IT TOOK SOME TIME

CHICAGO (ANP) — At least one manager in the National League's baseball circuit is convinced that Jackie Robinson, rookie-of-the-year first-baseman of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is a slick operator. That person is Charlie Grimm, headman of the Chicago Cubs.

Grimm said last week that "It's been a long time since we've had one man in the league who has an upsetting effect on every infield whenever he gets on base. Robinson makes them all squirm.

"After all, he takes such a good lead that you got to make a play for him. You've got to try and pick him off. He sets up the play himself and there's no choice but to make him take back a step or two."

He said that Jackie reminded him of "Pepper" Martin; the Cardinals' Indian player of more than a decade ago, "That gentleman would run right through the pitcher's box and dare you to tag him if you didn't try to keep him where he belongs. He ust loved to get on base for the confusion it could create."

Both Robinson and Martin have one thing in common. It's not the bases they steal, but rather the nervous tension engendered in the defense, which in turn, can touch off a series of costly misplays springing from an over anxiety to keep the player under control.

Through his quiet, but spectacular season's play with the Dodgers, Jackie propelled himself in the lead for first-base honors on the 1947 all-rookie ball club. His record shows that out of 582 trips to the plate, he scored 116 runs, had 160 hits, 12 homeruns, batted in 40 runs, for a percentage of .301.

Bernie Price, Trotter Ace Stepping Down to K. C. Stars

Bernice Price, one of the greatest pivot stars of all time, has signed his Harlem Globetrotters basketball contract. But Bernie won't be doing his playing this coming season on the Trotters' twenty-first annual team. Instead, as one of the key men in the organization, he has been assigned to the coveted task of managing the Kansas City Stars, the Globetrotters' crack associated quintet, under the same management.

The six fooot, three and one-half inch Price also plans to play with the Stars, where his wide experience at the pivot position should aid him in Developing future pivot stars for the Trotters.

Pierce originally came to the Globetrotters in 1938 from Toledo, where he had played with the Toledo Ciralsgy Packers. He put in five seasons with the Trotteers, being out in 1943 and '44 when he played with the Chicago Studebakers in the National Pro. League. Both these years he was among the circuit's top scorers. He had his biggest season with the Trotters in 1945 when he scored 1,682 points, mainly from his masterfully-handled pivot position.

A superlative ball handler and cool performer in the heat of important games, he scored the winning points against the Chicago Bruins when the Globetrotters defeated them to win the World's Professional Championship Tournament in the spring of 1941 in Chicago.

He suffered a badly shattered leg in an accident in the summer of 1945 and it was thought that his playing days were at an end. However, he joined the Globetrotters after the 1946 season got under way and played in part time capacity. In the season of 1947 his leg came around nicely and, as the months advanced, he improved greatly, climaxing his efforts with the greatest display of pivot play ever seen during the team's sensational tour of the Hawaiian Islands in April of 1947.

Wiley-Prairie View Renewing Old Feud

MARSHALL, Texas—The Wiley Prairie View game listed for Monday night, October 13, at the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, will find the Wildcats enjoying a two game lead on Prairie View during the history of their play at the State Fair of Texas Classic. Wiley's three recent victories put the standing at eight wins for the Wildcats, six wins for Prairie View while four games have ended in stalemates.

During the entire Wiley-Prairie View gridiron history, there has never been a really bad game between the ancient rivals. Even in 1941 when Prairie View's great running back, "Whippo" Hopkins crished Wiley 32-7, the scoreboard read P. V. 12, Wiley 7 at the beginning of the final quarter, with the ball in Wildcats' possession on the P. V. 8. This game has been unpredictable and anything usually happens.

Hampton Pirates Open Sept. 27

HAMPTON INSTITUTE, Va. — Hampton Institute's Pirates will open a tough nine-game 1947 football schedule Saturday afternoon, Sept. 27, on their home grounds against a Fort Bragg Army eleven whose potentialities Pritate Coach Jimmy Griffin says are "completely unknown."

Beyond predicting that the invaders would field a heavy team, Coach Griffin had nothing to say about the opening game. He did admit he was "worried about finding a quarterback." Rufus Gant, first string quarter, and Addison Nobbs, his main understudy, both are sidelined with injuries.

The Pirates this year have a good nucleus of returning 1946 lettermen. In the backfield will be Tom Casey, a hard runner and a brilliant punter, and at least three other good halfbacks in Wilbert Lovett, Raymond Payton, and Rudy Cooke; hard-charging Sam Blasingame and Captain-elect Fred Christian, at fullback; and Gant, Hobbs, and Orlando Bennett at quarter.

Manning the forward wall are Bill Corbin, Tom Kiah and Fred Williams at tackles; Walter Watkins, James Brown, and John Stinson at guards; Dave Ware and Clyde Reed at center; and five ends — James Bailey, Ray Stiles, James Lewis, William Lewis, and Bob Moorman.

The Pirates open their conference season with another home game on October 4, against J. C. Smith, and follow with their first road game against A. & T. college at Greensboro, N. C. on October 11.

Maxim Thinks It's Wrong Joe

CLEVELAND—Joe Maxim and his manager, dapper Jack Kearns, moaned no end when they heard that Joe Walcot had won the chance to oppose Champion Joe Louis in one of his non-title bouts.

"Good gosh," complained Kearns, "Maxim and not Walcott should be fighting Louis. Maxim was 'hipped' out of that bout." Kearns then preceeded to explain himself detailing how Maxim lost a much disputed decision to Walcott, thereby losing his chance to meet Louis last June in Los Angeles. "Walcott won that fight by hitting low," Kearns continued.

Meanwhile, Kearns doesn't think it too late for Maxim yet. "He's only 25," he explains. "Louis says he is going to fight once more after this Walcott match. Who can tell, we might make it yet."

Fitzpatrick to Battle Payne

Rusty Payne, San Diego clouter, who gave Fitzy Fitzpatrick a pasting not long ago, gives that worthy another chance in the ring Friday night in the 10-round main attraction at Hollywood Legion stadium.

Payne's victory over Fitzy was quite an upset, so much so that the powers-to-be immediately rematched the two fighters to ascertain whether Rusty's victory was a fluke or the real McCoy.

A large crowd is expected out Friday night as Fitzpatrick is one of the biggest drawing cards in the state.

USC-UCLA Tickets? Maybe Next Time

With the University of Southern California carrying perhaps its outstanding home schedule of all time, (Notre Dame, Stanford, Rice, UCLA) and because many persons failed to obtain season tickets and ducats for the Bruin tilt, last season, there has been a rush on season tickets this year. The result is that there will be no public sale of tickets for the Trojan-Bruin football game at the Coliseum, Nov. 22. This has been emphasized by Arnold Eddy, U.S.C. director of football ticket sales.

Eddy said that, with both the Trojans and Bruins having record advance sales of season tickets to the general public and alumni, and with the respective student bodies larger than ever before, it will be impossible to offer any tickets over the counter in advance of the classic.

Thomas, Bolanos In Return Match

John Thomas, classy member of the Bert Lewis-George Tolson fight stable, who has become too heavy for the lightweight division, will battle Enrique Bolanos, State champion, in a return match Tuesday night.

In a previous match Bolanos gained a technical kayo over Thomas, but the consensus of opinion was that Thomas had weakened himself making weight. Tuesday's fight will solve this question and a turnaway crowd is expected to sit in on this fight "natural."

For a long time Thomas reigned as the leading lightweight in this state and won fight after fight over the best his division had to offer both in local and eastern opponents. He was freely mentioned as the logical contender for the lightweight crown, but a trip to the Army for Uncle Sam ruined one chance and later Bolanos was given the first crack at Champion Ike Williams, who won the title from Juan Zurita in Mexico City.

Bolanos is a terrific favorite with Mexican fans and a capacity crowd is expected to turn out to watch the ex-bellhop from Mexico City do his stuff. Because Sepian fans like Thomas a record crowd is almost a foregone conclusion.

Wilberforce-Bergen College Inter-Racial Gridiron Classic

Wilberforce university, from Ohio, will provide the opposition for Bergen College of Teaneck, New Jersey, in the first inter-racial collegiate football game ever played in the United States. The game will be played in New York's Polo Grounds, on Thanksgiving Day.

One of the largest Negro universities in the world, Wilberforce, last year, had the outstanding college eleven in the nation.

Mike Jacobs, head of the 20th Century Sporting Club, his brother Bennie, and Commissioner Jonathan Battle, are promoting the charity contest. The Associated Negro Charities of America will benefit from the proceeds of the game.

Chairman of the precedent-setting event will be Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife to the late F.D.R. Mayor William O'Dwyer, of New York City, is vice-chairman.

Bob Trocolar, head coach at Bergen, who was instrumental in arranging the match, is concentrating on the 1947 edition of the Bergen Indian gridiron squad.

Meanwhile, the Wilberforce eleven with coach Dwight Fisher at the helm, is preparing to open its season with the Lincoln University Tigers on Saturday at Lincoln Field, Mo.

The Bergen-Wilberforce game is the only football contest scheduled for New York on Thanksgiving Day and is expected to draw a sell-out crowd.

Chicago Cubs Try Out Catcher

CHICAGO — (CNS) — Twenty-three year old John Ritchey, top catcher in the Negro American League, worked out before a group of Chicago Cub coaches in Wrigley Field and club officials. Although all were impressed, there is no immediate announcement.

Another Negro star was tried out the day before Ritchey, but the Cub's coaches were unimpressed and refused to reveal his name, said Harold George of the Cubs. Ritchey is in his second year of professional baseball. An ex-GI, he comes from San Diego, California. According to George, several Negro players have been scouted but Ritchey's tryout was the first in Wrigley Field. "All I can say," said George, "is that we're interested."

SAIPAN, M. I. — Mrs. Barbara Kaye Vacquero, wife of Jackie Vacquero, St. I (U.S.W.) former El Centro, welterweight boxer, is scheduled to arrive here next month via Naval Transport Service. Vacquero is stationed at a sea plane base on Tanapag.

Frank Sinatra was once a sports reporter on the Hoboken, N. J. Observer.

L.A. to View Barnstorming Major All-Stars

The Kansas City Royals, with a picked squad from the Negro leagues, will arrive in Los Angeles Saturday, Oct. 4 to play in the winter league baseball exhibition schedule. Their schedule includes games against the barnstorming squad of Bob Feller's major leaguers at Wrigley Field on Wednesday night, Oct. 15, and a double-header Sunday, Oct. 19.

Dan Bankhead of the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National league will head a stellar Royal pitching staff, which also includes Johnny Williams of the Cincinnati Clowns, Gentry Jessup and Jim Newberry. Buster Maywood and Sam Mairston, both of the Clowns, will share the catching chores.

The Royals will open their Southland campaign against the Long Beach Rockets Saturday afternoon, Oct. 4, at Recreation Park, Long Beach. The Rocket lineup will include a number of major and minor league aces, including Eddie Bockman, Cleveland; Vern Stephens, St. Louis Browns; Bob Sturgeon, Chicago Cubs; Jack Graham, Jersey City, and Chuck Stevens, Toledo.

Bob Feller, Cleveland's pitching ace, already has lined up Indian teammates Bob Lemon, Joe Gordon, Ken Keltner and Jim Hegan for his barnstorming tour, and has signed Jeff Heath, Browns; Frank Gustine, Pirates, and Eddie Miller, Reds.

If the Los Angeles Angels are eliminated from the Coast league play-off in the first week's series, the Royals may make their first appearance at Wrigley Field prior to their scheduled opener against the Feller squad on Oct. 15.

Angel Bowl Set Friday, Dec. 28

With the 1947 football parade now underway, the Angel Bowl Association, Inc. lost no time in insuring the use of Wrigley Field, as a site for the second annual Angel Bowl football classic on December 28.

John Hardee, president of the Association, and Foster Mackey, secretary, met with the management of Wrigley Field, represented by Bert Williams at the Association's office at 4365½ So. Central ave. Final agreement was settled for Sunday, Dec. 28, kick-off 2 p.m.

As is the custom, established at the first Angel Bowl classic, the Association is dedicating the game to an organization which has shown leadership to the colored peoples of the world. This year the Bowl is dedicated to the Prince Hall Freemasonry.

Carlos Chavez Stops Ramos

Carlos Chavez, featherweight champion of the state of California, weighing 129, scored a technical knockout over Luis Ramos, 125, featherweight champino of Puerto Rico, Tuesday night in a scheduled 10-round main event.

Roscoe Scally, 132½, hauled down a split 6-round decision over Ramon Alva, 129, in the semi-final, after a rough and tough battle. In one of the four-round prelims Tony Mesa, 144½, nodded Connie Smith, 144.

Wiley College

Marion Jones and Felix Cook have ben elected co-captains of the 1947 edition of the Wiley Wildcats grid squad. Thirteen lettermen were on hand at the opening of the Wildcats practice and their selection of leaders for the '47 campaign is a very popular one.

The Wildcats invade Atlanta, Ga. on Sept. 27 when they meet Clark university in their opening contest.

John Thomas TKO Winner

John Thomas invaded the welterweight division last week and scored a seventh round technical kayo over Lige Drew in the scheduled 10-round main event at Hollywood Legion stadium at the movie arena in some years and he celebrated it by thoroughly outclassing Drew.

Drew tried hard to put over a finishing punch but the clever Thomas evaded every haymaker Lige threw and in the meantime kept an educated left hand in the face of Drew throughout the battle. The referee stopped the bout when Thomas was hitting his opponent at will and Drew seemed on the point of going down.

Announce Dates For Golf Meet

Dates for the ninth annual Santa Anita $1000 Open Golf Tournament and Golf Week were anounced early this week by Supervisor Leonard J. Roach, Chairman of the Parks and Recreation Committee on the Board of Supervisors.

The event will be held Oct. 13 to Oct. 19 at the Santa Anita Golf Course in Arcadia County Park. Net proceeds this year will go to the Southern California Cancer Hospital fund, Roach states.

Chester Pierce to Break Precedent

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — Chester Pierce, Harvard's 200 pound tackle, will be in the Crimson lineup when it plays Virginia here on October 11. Virginia has already gone on record to go ahead with the game. In such a case it will mark the first appearance of a Negro against a white southern college team on southern soil.

Since it is the policy of the University not to force athletic members to play under conditions unfavorable to them, it was left entirely up to the team to decide if they wanted to play against a mixed Harvard team. They voted unanimously to go ahead with the game and the university administration concurred unanimously.

Although Virginia athletes have competed against Negro track and field stars, this was only done on Northern soil. Once years ago when Harvard insisted upon bringing its Negro player to Virginia territory, the game was cancelled.

On The Turf

As I See It . . .
— Geo. A. Ramsey

CALIENTE, Old Mexico—Welcome back home was the greeting from horsemen and the lovers of the sport of kings to that master showman and one of the greatest authorities on thoroughbred racing, presiding steward and director of racing, Judge George Washington Shillings, known for his many novel events, such as the Belles-Beau, the Wrong Way Corrigan and the ever popular Bronze Derby, better known as the Darktown Derby which is an annual affair. Many of these events and even more surprises will be staged in the near future by the popular judge. It was a ten strike for General Manager Walter Marty to secure the services of Judge Shillings who succeeds Judge J. J. Murphy. At the border course, General Manager Marty expects to make many more changes for the benefit of the racing fans.

Jack Malley, price-maker par-excellent, gave the boys and girls a good morning line last Sunday. Four favorites out of the first six races greeted the charmed circle. In the feature event of the day, "The Autumn," at six furlongs, Murcielago, who tried twice to defeat the South American wonder horse Sobregiro, found a field he could whip and scored a handy victory. Installed as favorite, the California bred came from fourth place in the stretch to win by one length paying $4.00 for two. In the secondary event, "The Sabu," Clints Choice made every post a winning one to score by five lengths. Overlooked in the betting, the game filly paid $12.40 straight. The longshot players started off with Redster in the first race to collect on a two dollar mutuel $30.80, and in the fourth Scotch Mist paid them $23.00 and the last race Bonnie Sea who won like a scared deer paid $14.80.

The daily-double combination of Valdina Love, winner of the second race, and Single Seater victor of the third paid $14.60, while the nitecap called the Quniela rewarded its lucky holders $50.40.

The feature attraction this Sunday will be "The Int. Circulation Manager Assn." handicap at one mile for a purse of $2,500, supported by "The Lone Trail." Ten other races will give the fans an exciting program.

Eddie (Rochester) Anderson was the guest of General Manager William (Bill) Collier at the greyhounds Friday night and his charming wife crowned the winner of the feature event.

Greyhound races are still the big nite sport south of the border at Caliente.

We deeply appreciate his cooperation and by way of a plug, the next time you're up around 1 a.m., stop in at the Casa Blanca, be well entertained and try some of their delicious food. I should have hired a guide to take me to it or a fortune teller to tell me where it was.

Edw. Burbridge Is Entertained At Casa Blanca

Eddie Burbridge, theatrical editor of the California EAGLE, climaxed the celebration of his twentieth anniversary in the newspaper profession and his natal day with a gala cocktail party at Stanley Morgan's beautiful Casa Blanca Breakfast club, located at 28th and So. San Pedro streets, last Sunday.

Birthday gifts and expressions of goodwill were showered on the honoree by many invited guests who enjoyed themselves sipping mixed drinks, dancing or just listening to the fine entertainment offered. Materially aiding in making the affair a success were Oscar Garrison, who served as a capable emcee, Allegretto Alexander, whose small combo started the party jumping, Sunny Bridges and his orchestra from the Play Room night club, Geechie Smith, Capitol Recording star, who sang a couple of numbers with Sunny's band backing him up and last but by no means least, Al Hibbler, vocalist with Duke Ellington's orchestra, who rendered several pleasing vocals. Emcee Harrison also tried out his tonsils on a few numbers.

Among those present were; Mrs. Martha J. Levy, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hilyard, Mrs. Minnie Hill of St. Paul, Minn., Mr. and Mrs. Al Evans, Jr., Miss Wini Orr, Mr. and Mrs. Houston Farrell, Mr. and Mrs. James Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bendy (he's Dynamite Jackson), Abie Robinson, John Thomas, Mrs. Lillian Cumber, Mrs. Gertrude Gipson, EAGLE theatrical columnist, Messrs. Hattie McDaniel, Erskine Hawkins Luring Crowds To Million Dollar

Erskine Hawkins and his "Tuxedo Junction" orchestra are currently making their first appearance on the West Coast in some time at the Million Dollar theatre here this week. Co-starred is Hattie McDaniel, the popular screen actress. The appearance of the fabulous trumpet wizard from Alabama State University and Miss McDaniel has created a furore here, for since Hawkins last appearance in the Angel City the whole nation has thrilled to a series of sensational recorded hits waxed by the Twentieth Century Gabriel.

Hawkins' appearance for a six day stay at the Million Dollar theatre was the signal for one of the greatest rushes on the box office that any theatre in this area has witnessed in years. Although the week is not yet completed, the indications are that the band which gave the country such hits as "Hawk's Boogie," "Toppin' In," "After Hours" etc., will establish new attendance marks. The enthusiasm which has greeted the swinging trumpeter here has far exceeded the expectations of even the most optimistic guessers.

Following the six day theatre stand, Hawkins resumes his tour of California, Washington and Oregon.

ON STAGE—Miss Hattie McDaniel, who earned an Academy Award for her portrayal in "Gone With the Wind", is currently appearing in person on the stage of the Million Dollar theatre. Co-starred is Erskine Hawkins and his great orchestra.

Xavier Cugat supported his entire family with his violin playing when he was but 12 years of age.

NEW YORK — Perry Jerome, musical director of Apollo Records, flew to Los Angeles this week to record four new sides by saxophone king Charlie Barnet and his orchestra. Jerome, himself the former featured saxophonist of the Benny Goodman and Glen Miller orchestras, rushed sessions in order to follow Barnet's latest disc award winner for Apollo, "Caravan," with a fast follow-up. Featured will be Al Killian and "Peanuts" Holland.

CHARLIE BARNET

Jerome, also head of the All-Star orchestras forming musical background on numerous recordings, ordinarily conducts Apollo record dates in New York, and is due to return next week to direct the cutting of comedy platters by Sam Levenson. Before leaving for Los Angeles he recorded Irish folk songs by Frank Saunders in New York, and new spiritual numbers by Mahalia Jackson in a special Apollo session in Chicago.

HOLLYWOOD. — Maxwell Davis, one of the musical directors of Supreme Recording Co., revealed this week that Emerson Scott and Jessie Cryor, who have several song hits to their credit, are working on a Christmas song they have composed which is due for an early waxing under this label.

Their star recording artist, Bobby Pittman, continues to maintain his national popularity as one of the outstanding sweet singers of the year, which was set when he recorded "Deep in a Dream" and "Don't Take Your Love From Me," five months ago.

'Peer Gynt'

Known for many fine performances before, the Actors' Lab workshop will present Henrik Ibsen's "Peer Gynt" for the next five weekends. It is being directed by Benjamin Zemach.

Will Premiere S.A. Composers' Works Oct. 15

Two works by noted South American composers will have their western premiere during the evening of October 15 in the Wilshire-Ebell theatre, under Mary Bran's sponsorship, when the brilliant young pianist, Reah Sadowsky, gives one of the musical season's first major recitals.

One is Heitor Villa-Lobos' "Bachianas Brasileiras" No. 4, written by the Brazilian composer in 1941. The other is a "Variations and Fugue on a Street Cry", written by Juan Orrega of Chile, last year, when the composer was in the United States on a Guggenheim Fellowship. It will be played by Miss Sadowsky from manuscript.

Leaders Meet to Discuss Plans for Combining Talent

NEW YORK—Two outstanding leaders in the movement to give all Americans a better sense of appreciation of the inherent artistry of the Negro met last Wednesday in New York. J. Garfield Wilson, director of the famous Camp Meetin' Choir, and Powell Lindsay, renowned actor, director, producer, and the organizer of the Negro Drama Group got together in the offices of their mutual representatives, Benjamin Zucker, to discuss how they could best unite forces to attain their common objective.

The meeting was made possible by the scheduled appearance of the Camp Meetin' Choir at the Golden Gate Auditorium at the same time as Powell Lindsay's group was conducting rehearsals of their current smash hit "Murder Without Crime," preparatory to going on tour.

Tentative plans have been set to arrange both joint performances and series performances.

Paul Robeson Sings for AYD In Chicago Tuesday, Sept. 30

CHICAGO—Paul Robeson, eminent baritone, will be heard in the featured role of the dramatic musical pageant "Music Americana-Spirituals to Swing" to be presented under the auspices of the American Youth for Democracy at Orchestra Hall, Tuesday, Sept. 30, at 8:15 p.m.

Robeson, with the support of a group of Chicago singers, will attempt to depict the dramatic development of America as expressed in the varying overtones of her music. "Music Americana" will go back to the Revolution of 1776 to initiate its musical journey and will dramatize the changes taken through Negro spirituals, traditional balladry, and rich New Orleans jazz as expressive of the hopes, fears, and desires of the segments of American singers.

Performing as the narrator, Art Peterson of the Actor's Company of Chicago will introduce a cast consisting of Greg Paschal of People's Songs, Lonnie Johnson, who will follow early jazz through its many moods, Charlotte Morris, and Bernie Asbel, who will present the balladry.

Time Is Cut on Air Commercials

ATLANTIC, N. J.—The nation's radio fans got a break this week when the National Association of Broadcasters at its 25th annual convention approved curtailment of commercial announcement time.

The commercial limitation was aproved despite sharp opposition particularly from small stations which contended they could not affopd the resulting loss in revenues.

Natalie Draper, a curvacious blonde who was first Tom Brown's wife and then Art Director Merrill Pye's, got her job playing Lady Castlemaine in "Forever Amber" by buying a mink coat.

In our years of visiting this night club and that one, or this spot and that one we have come across many, many vocalists and I mean good ones too, but never in all my experience have I ever listened to anyone with the originality and style like that of Ernestine Anderson. NEW YORK—With just about all the men (and a goodly number of women too) complaining about the horrible new long skirt styles that hide the shapely legs, bandleader "Cootie" Williams is going to do something about it. That "something" will take the form of an ooh-la-la leg contest all next week at the Apollo theatre here. The object of the contest will be to find the prettiest pair of legs in the theatre audiences at each performance of the all-star vaudeville show headed by the old growl trumpeter and his band during the week beginning this Friday.

COOTIE WILLIAMS

Tondaleyo Stars at De Lisa

By FLOYD SNELSON

CHICAGO—The famous night club De Lisa, brightest spot of the rollicking Southside is the scene of gala entertainment nightly. The current attraction is Tondaleyo and Her Calypso Dancing Boys, a fast and furious combo that is the talk of the town, which opened Friday evening.

According to the description published in Variety, theatrical trade news: "Tondaleyo and her sensational dancers offer a mixture of rythmns garnished with the femme's artistic terping, the males wearing colorful costumes register with vocal accompanied with gourd thumping in native West Indian calypso tempo. The chief stock is the inhibited undulations of Tondaleyo. She makes several costume changes, each more scanty and scantier. Charged with boundless energy, she's plenty sexy furiously waving her flashing red hair while giving out with ample 'bumps' and hip shaking torso which garners terrific applause and numberless encores."

She will remain in Chicago several weeks, under the management of Clarence Robinson, and will sail for an engagement in Paris, France, in the new year.

JoJo Says

Hats off to Brisco and R. Aubrey. These two were mainly responsible for the Compton-Southeast ping pong tournament last Thursday as part of United Nations week observances.

Looking at Billy Reinhard of the Dons last Friday night makes us more certain than ever that Oscar Givens is a fine ball player. Frankly there were two factors which caused Billy to beat Oscar out for the team. First he has a big brother star on the squad and second—well you tell me.

And speaking of the Dons, along about the next to the last game of the season, someone will wake up to the fact that "Sugarfoot" can snatch 'em.

Jefferson High school is looking forward to a football team which will match laurels with last seasons track squad.

Just in case you are interested: U.C.L.A. to squirm through Iowa and USC to unload the bench in the Washington tilt. Up north the Middies should make a good game of it with Cal and return east with a win.

I still believe that next baseball season will find the Pacific Coast League infiltrated with our ballplayers.

Assault for the roll, don't say I didn't tell you.

Tennessee 26, Arkansas 0

Tennessee State Tigers exploded four times in the faces of Arkansas State Lions Friday night in B.T.W. High Stadium, Memphis, Tenn., to defeat them 26-0 before 8000 spectators in the season opener for both sides. Carter, a flashy freshman from Oklahoma City, tallied 3 times during the night on long dazzling runs. In the first quarter he went through right tackle to score from the Arkansas 35, and in the fourth quarter for touchdown jaunts of 65 and 56 yards. Nat Taylor passed 18 yards to left end Smith for the other Tennessee score.

Samuel Houston 6, Butler 0

Butler College of Tyler put up a whale of a scrap against the more highly favored Houston Dragons last Friday before finally succumbing by the narrow margin of 6-0 in the Rose City.

On several occasions, a stubborn defense by the home team stymied threatening scoring gestures by the Augtin eleven.

Texas C. 26, Jarvis Christians 0

The Texas Steers displayed little that would benefit the scouts who cluttered the premises last Saturday as the Steers measured off their tenaxious Christian rivals 26-0. The game was played on a rainsoaked field before a small crowd who braved a slow drizzle to watch their favorites in their season opener. The strong Texas defense turned back the Jarvis men without permitting them a single first down. Von Lewis, Rex Shipman, James Riley and Malachi Wiggins scored for the Steers in that order.

LOOKING AHEAD

Receiving top billing at "The" football attraction of the week is the Tennessee State - Texas college intersectional melee slated for Steer Stadium, Tyler, the night of Sept. 27th. On strength of last week's performance Tennessee's 26-0 triumph over Arkansas looms more impressive than Texas' 26-0 score over Jarvis Christians.

The Wiley Wildcats rate the edge in their intersectional clash with Clark university of Atlanta, Ga. in the latter's city Saturday.

Shannon Little's Bishop Tigers clash with the Langston Lions at Langston this Saturday. The ranks of both teams will be studded with the most brilliant array of freshman gridders seen in the southwest conference during the past decade. The winner of this scrap will definitely be title aspirants.

Southern's Jaguar Cats will have their hands and hair filled with the Texas State university gridders Saturday in Scotlandville, La. . . . Ditto the Tuskegee Golden Tigers who play host to the Grampling college outfit the same day.

Pirate gridmen, after two weeks of twice-a-week pre-school workouts, settled down to a regular afternoon practice stint with the beginning of the fall classes this week. Coach J. Morgan (Jimmy) Griffin is proceeding with the formation of intrasquad elevens, begun last week when 30 freshmen and other new students swelled the Pirate ranks to more than 70 candidates.

The Pirates are expected to open the season on Sept. 27 with all but five of last season's regulars.

The Lincoln Lions have scheduled nine football games for the 1947 season. The opening game on September 20 was an interracial affair with the Lock Haven State Teachers College. This game is to be played under the arc lights in Williamsport, Pa.

The Homecoming game on November 8 with Fisk University a member of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association promises to be a fierce intersectional struggle between these teams of rival conferences. Lincoln is a member of the CIAA.

The Texas College Steers will pry open the 1947 football season on Sept. 20 in a game against their rivals from Jarvis Christian College. The Steers will have their hands quite fill with the strong Bull Dogs.

Tuskegee 27, Philander Smith 0

Tuskegee's Golden Tigers defeated Philander Smith of Little Rock 27-0 in Alumni Bowl last Saturday. Clarence Horn's plucky charges gave a good account of themselves against the strong Tigers who last year defeated them 55-0.

Roddy McDowall, recovered from injuries recently sustained in an automobile collision, has returned to Monogram for the remaining sequence in "Rocky."

Producer Walter Mirisch has announced plans to film for Allied Artists "The Gay Deceivers," based on "The Gay Banditti," a novel by I.A.R. Wylie.

L. E. Behymer presents Ferruccio Tagliavini, "The greatest Italian tenor since Gigli" (Life); "The Voice the GI's wrote home about from Rome" (N.Y. Daily News) on Sunday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock, October 5, at Philharmonic auditorium.

Job Ceiling Lifted in Pentagon Cafeterias

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Action by the NAACP's Labor Department cracked the lily-white hiring policy of the National Foods Corporation this week when Mrs. Willie Bernard, graduate of Virginia State college and former army hostess, went to work as a cafeteria supervisor in the Pentagon.

Although the corporation, which has its headquarters in Chicago and which manages the Pentagon's cafeterias has hired many colored persons as counter-girls and bus boys, it refused to employ Mrs. Bernard when she answered an advertisement in the Washington Post asking for applicants for the job of cafeteria supervisor. Mrs. Bernard, who holds a B.S. degree, was told by the personnel director, Lewis Rhodes, that she met all requirements, but when he learned that she was colored refused to employ her. The NAACP was informed by Rhodes that it was against his company's policy to hire colored supervisors, and an advertisement appeared again in the Post asking for a white supervisor.

After intervention by Clarence Mitchell, NAACP labor secretary, A. C. Boehm, manager of the Pentagon cafeterias, agreed to hire Mrs. Bernard. However, when Boehm left for his vacation, subordinates again refused to employ the colored woman. The NAACP dispatched a protest wire to Boehm and the following day Mrs. Bernard was instructed to report for duty.

New Group Formed Here to Fight Restrictive Covenants

A newly formed Committee Against Restrictive Covenants has been set up to battle the intensive restrictive covenant drive against non-Caucasians now taking place in many parts of Los Angeles. The immediate aim of this particular group is to arouse public support for six families now facing court suits in their fight to live in their own homes.

Among the announced aims of the new organization are: To abolish restrictive covenants; to unite all the people, especially the Negro, Japanese, Chinese, Korean, Mexican and Jewish, in joint activity to put an end to restrictive covenants.

To organize moral and financial support from trade unions, churches, veteran, political, and youth organizations; to show how restrictive covenants infringe on baasic civil rights of every person; to provide immediate aid, legal and community support for those threatened with eviction from their own homes under the odious terms of restrictive covenants.

The six families involved in the immediate court fight are: Tom Amer, 128 West 56th St., a Chinese-American who is a veteran of three years service; Dr. Yim Kim, a Korean-American dentist, 1201 South Gramercy place. Kim spent three years overseas as a captain in the army.

Dr. and Mrs. Alonzo Wilkins, 2425 Sixth avenue, who will have a hearing Oct. 3 on contempt proceedings to remove them from their home. Dr. Wilkins, a former physician from Griffin, Ga., is ill with tuberculosis. He has a wife and three children.

Tusneo Shigekuni, a Japanese-American, 2350 West 37th place. Mr. and Mrs. Riley Butler, 1357 West 37th place. The Butlers have two small children. And Mr. and Mrs. James Justice, 1288 West 37th street.

All told there are 13 families in this district against whom court suits are pending, some of them of more than a year's standing.

The Committee Against Restrictive Covenants is planning mass action on all the restrictive covenant cases, especially for the six now in immediate danger.

Uhl Reports Gains In Social Diseases

Gonorrhea has reached the top of the list of diseases reported in Los Angeles, accounting for nearly 30 new cases daily, Dr. George M. Uhl, city health officer, reported yesterday.

Syphilis, the war-time leader, has moved down to second place, and chalks up about 27 new victims daily, or better than triple the score of third-place chickenpox, which is averaging about 8 a day, he said.

"Los Angeles is suffering the same problems that are other American cities, and are considering the population migrations we have been subected to, the situation could be much worse here," Dr. Uhl declared.

"Venereal diseases, however, will not begin to decrease here until our people are a little better prepared to face adult life, and parents, who up to now have done only a partial or at home, will have to do a better and more sympathetic sex education program with their youngsters," he added.

Britain to Recall Troops in Ethiopia

LONDON (CNS)—Britain is expected to withdraw her occupation troops from Ethiopia very shortly according to an authoritative source. She is doing so under the terms of a request from Ethiopia for the conclusion of a new treaty of friendship.

The proposed new alliance would replace the temporary British-Ethiopian Agreement of 1944 which gave Britain permission to maintain her military mission and troops in the country.

Community Health Association Presents Lively Film, Group Sing Program

"Let My People Live" was the subject of an instructive and interesting health sound picture presented in the auditorium of the Southeast District Health Center last Thursday morning. A feature of the social health hour sponsored by the Community Health Association's 1947 health committee, headed by Mrs. Mabel V. Gray, the film emphasized the vital importance of early diagnosis and treatment for the cure of tuberculosis, "the great white plague."

Community singing capably directed by Mrs. Mamie H. Cook intepolated the program and gave it delightful stimulus.

Highlighting the event was Dr. Ruth J. Temple's description of plans for leadership "Health Study Club", training, and the "Block-to-Block" plan for disease precention and health promotion.

Every Wednesday morning at 10:30 was by mutual consent the day and hour set for this valuable leadership health course, which will include demonstrations of the economical and nutritious preparation of foods. That one person can eat three balanced and nourishing meals a day at the unbelievable cost of $5.04 a week will be demonstrated by actual meals and menus. Mental hygiene will also comprise a part of the training.

Everyone is invited to attend these weekly Wednesday sessions at 10:30 a.m. in the auditorium of the Southeast Health Center, 4920 Avalon boulevard.

Civic Groups, Unions Rallying To Fight on County 'Loyalty' Test

Indignant protest against the "loyalty" check imposed by the County Board of Supervisors is being expressed by scores of civic organizations, announced William R. Bidner, executive director of the Mobilization for Democracy.

To date, the Los Angeles County Committee of the Democratic party, Southern California Council of the American Jewish Congress, Los Angeles CIO Council, United American Federation of Labor, Southern California Council of Public Employees, AFL, Progressive Citizens of America and its Division of Arts, Sciences and Professions and Americans for Democratic Action have expressed themselves as vehemently opposed to the county "loyalty" check, especially the obnoxious section "D" which contains the organization affidavit and list of 150 civic organizations.

Scores of trade unions such as the L.A. Newspaper Guild, CIO; Carpenters Local 634, AFL and many chapters of the American Veterans Committee, Progressive Citizens of America and Southland Jewish Organization have passed resolutions calling upon the Board of Supervisors to withdraw the un-American "loyalty" check.

Thus far Supervisor John Anson Ford has publicly stated his opposition to the "loyalty" check and Supervisor Leonard J. Roach introduced a motion to strike out the obnoxious and controversial section "D" of the "loyalty" check.

The Mobilization for Democracy in cooperation with the United Public Workers, CIO and Local 558, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL, urges all wide-awake citizens to call upon Supervisors Darby, Jessup and Smith to respect the Constitution and the L.A. county Chapter by voting to scrap the un-democratic county "loyalty" check.

CHICAGO, Ill.—(CNS)—For pawning a watch once owned by a murder victim, Fred Jenkins, 26, of 5436 State street was sentenced to one year in county jail.

Royalties for Recordings Used to Furnish Sick Vets With Entertainment Programs

By HARRY LEVINE

If the general public that has been wonderingly watching the battle that has long been waged by Jas. C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, to force appropriate pay by radio stations and recording companies, wishes knowledge as to its purpose, the following highlights explain it.

The money secured by the national body has been allocated to the locals throughout the country, supplying their respective boards with funds to pay musicians playing benefit performances at hospitals, playgrounds, civic and patriotic gatherings. Not one cent is allowed to be used for a local's administrative work.

Local 767 of Los Angeles, for example has since last April divided the impressive sum of near $9000 among some 400 musicians that comprise the 40 bands and combos that are included in the outstanding organization.

Petrillo's aim, from which he never swerved and which has been achieved, was to make it possible for a musician to further his own employment by making recordings.

MUSIC PROVED AID TO CURES

Edward Bailey, sometimes dubbed by his friends "The Little Napoleon" of coast musical field, long-time president of 767, has with his efficient staff thrown full cooperation into the programs of the various local groups. He is in receipt of many letters from the heads of veteran's hospitals, enthusiastically relating the effect both physically and mentally that entertainment by the musicians and entertainers has had upon the patients. This added to the general upbuilding of their morale, has been of untold value, the messages say.

Among the veterans hospitals visited regularly each week are Sawtelle, at Sawtelle, Calif. The Long Beach Naval Hospital at Long Beach, Calif., the Birmingham Hospital at Van Nuys, Calif.; the McCormick veteran's hospital at Pasadena, Calif.; the Corona at Corona, Calif., and the San Fernando Valley. There are many permanently disabled paralytic patients in them.

Among other health and educational institutions visited and entertained regularly, are the Outdoor Life and Health sanitarium at Duarte, Calif., and many playgrounds under the direction of the Los Angeles City Playground and recreation department. Included, are the Pecan Playground, the Evergreen high school playgrqund, Jordan high school, and Lafayette junior high school.

Music for community singing has also been supplied all during the summer vacation, one of the largest gatherings taking place every Tuesday evening at Lincoln elementary school. South Los Angeles was one of the outlying suburbs especially grateful, for concerts presented regularly at Will Rogers Park 103 and Western ave.

Members of the office staff that have so systematically follow d out the schedules arranged and sanctioned by the board of trustees and directors include, vice president, Leo McCoy Davis; financial secretary, Paul L. Howard, and recording secretary, Florence C. Cadrez. Besides Bailey, board members include; Fay E. Allen, chairman; Geo. Orendoff, Harvey Brooks, Samuel Franklin, Ellis Walsh and Leonard Davidson.

That the royalties from the recordings are being put to the best of use, beneficial beth to the hard working artists, and to the public and very deserving vets, thus proves to be one of the finest moves ever perfected for the betterment of the American way of life. Each dollar thus paid must first be authorized by the board, and carefully accounted for and reported at the weekly meetings.

GUEST FATALLY SHOT IN HOLD-UP

Unidentified Man Probably White, Makes Escape

Robert Crane, 36, was shot through the chest by an unidentified holdup man at the home of Rainey Shaw, 421 Hooper ave., at about 11:15 a.m. Wednesday morning and died before an ambulance reached the scene of the crime.

MRS. TRUE L. APPLETON returns from extensive tour of the East. Story on Page 8.

At the time specified a man rang the bell of the Shaw residence and Mrs. Shaw answered the door. A man, who appeared to be white, wearing some sort of makeup and dark glasses, told Mrs. Shaw that he was a delivery man. He carried a tally board with papers clipped to it similar to that carried by delivery men. He asked Mrs. Shaw if anyone else was at home and she told him there was.

She led him to the kitchen where Crane and his wife, Jean, were seated. The man then said, "This is a holdup," and drew a gun. He told them all to lay on the floor and Mrs. Shaw and Mr. and Mrs. Crane did so. It isn't clear as to just what happened after that. Officer W. E. Toole told an EAGLE reporter, but evidently Crane tried to get up or made some move, for a shot rang out. Crane was hit in the chest and died almost instantly.

The holdup man then made

On The Sidewalk

By C. A. E.

WHEN the world's greatest leader, Jesus The Christ, sympathized with men's misunderstandings, lived and moved upon this earth, one of his first efforts in ironing out the wrinkles in a troubled world was to establish a school in new thought.

It is stated in the four gospels of the New Testament that Jesus gathered about him twelve men whom he called disciples, meaning pupils or students.

After the necessary training for the duties they were to perform, the twelve were called apostles, interpreted to mean teachers.

Jesus then assembled his students and commissioned them to go into all the world and preach the Kingdom of God and to heal the sick. The expression, "Teach the Kingdom of God," calls for an explanation as to what is meant by the "Kingdom of God." I can only state what it means to me: Do unto your fellowman as you yourself would be done by. That is, if you have plenty of food, warm clothing, a nice home—do not deny these to thy neighbor.

There must have been a monopolistic form of government in vogue when Jesus appeared on the earth scene, for we remember he admonished his messengers to take no money, not even a second coat on their journey.

No doubt Herod, the tetrarch, was perplexed by this new teaching, and feeling that his kingdom of ruling by the power of wealth might be destroyed, plotted the destruction of Jesus.

Jesus evaded His enemies, not out of fear, but in order to complete the job He had set out to do.

Looking out across the world, a new dispensation in world affairs is as greatly needed today as it was 1947 years ago that marked the period as "The Coming of Christ."

It seems that the great god Greed occupies the upper chamber in the hearts and minds of a few in all the nations, and their doctrine is: Keep the people divided, and we shall rule. Now the early teaching of the Christ is lost in a maze of propaganda designed to turn the people's attention away from their real enemies, and the enemies of the peace.

Listen to this latest flare-up. These are fighting words: "Russia has refused flatly to disavow a wantonly slanderous article published in its controlled press that compared President Truman with Adolf Hitler, the State Department disclosed today."

I see in them nothing so alarming and threatening to our standing among other governments, as our government's attitude toward Great Britain's treatment of the Jewish people's effort to return to the Holy Land, their inherent right. Nothing more diametrically opposite to the establishment of a democratic government as these three incidents:

This one happened in Alabama. A Negro soldier entered a Greyhound bus, and in the darkness took a seat by a white man. The white man did not object, but the bus driver did. The white bus driver called the police, and had the white passenger jailed because he did not object to the Negro sitting in the seat next to him. The white man was from Detroit where the CIO and the AFL labor unions have carried on an educational program teaching workers how to live and work together for the common good of all.

Some, or maybe I should say, a few are not afraid. The Washington Post, published in Washington, D. C., went to the rescue of Jules Clegg, 26, a Negro war veteran and one of that paper's employes last week. The Post splashed a front page story called for and got a grand jury investigation of police brutality.

Young Clegg was picked up by the police when a white waitress charged that some one had made a lewd remark to her. She failed to identify the soldier, as is often the case. Clegg was the first Negro stumbled upon by the police after the girl's complaint.

Labor government delegates at a commonwealth conference in Toronto recently received this message from Patrick Kennelly, also a delegate to the conference, that "We will never allow colored people into Australia." He said there are about 6000 black aborigines left in Australia, "but they are a dying race and are kept on reser-

White Waiter Fired; Wouldn't Discriminate

A 52 year old Greek waiter was out of a job today because he would not obey his boss' orders to refuse to serve Negroes.

The waiter, Mike Daniels, 427 S. Spring st., was discharged by the owner of the Marathon Cafe, 130 E. Fourth st.

Daniels, respected for his work in progressive causes here, was fired once before from the cafe. That was in 1946 when he helped with preparations for a meeting featuring Carvoulis and Georgalas, outstanding leaders of the

Scores Pretext Of Defending Freedom Abroad

BOSTON—If the U. S. government is sincerely interested in defending freedom and civil liberties, it should stamp out jimcrowism, supervise Mississippi elections, and call a halt to the Netherlands' use of American arms to suppress the Indonesian people, former Vice President Henry A. Wallace told a cheering crowd at Boston Arena Tuesday night.

Wallace denounced the administration's foreign policies, charged that "every propaganda technique known to man is being used to win support for basically rotten policies.

"It is obviously not official concern with civil liberties that troubles the men who direct our foreign policies—even if that is the banner under which they would mobilize us," he said.

He point out that the administration has "embraced" the fascist Peron regime in Ar-

Mrs. Bass Loses Purse On Return Trip From Fresno

Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass, editor of the California EAGLE, lost her purse last Sunday evening while returning to Los Angeles from the Independent Progressive party organiation conference at Fresno.

Loss of the purse was discovered outside Paso Robles after Mrs. Bass and her nephew, Earl Carter, who was driving the car, had stopped at a cafe for refreshments.

Checks amounting to $357.09 were in the purse, including checks numbered 1307 for $52.44; 1308, $37.91; 1310, $27.24, and 1309, $35. Also one made out to the EAGLE by Mathews & Williams, attorneys, and another from the Second Baptist church.

Cee Pee Johnson Arrested on Drug Charge

It doesn't look as if Bandleader Clifford P. (Cee Pee) Johnson will play that engagement he had scheduled for Oct. 18 at the Royal Palm hotel in Honolulu. Cee Pee, who is 32 and resides at 242 E. Adams blvd., was arrested last Saturday along with three friends and held by narcotic officers on a charge of violating the health and safety code for the illegal possession of narcotics, in this case, three marijuana cigarettes.

Narcotic officers grabbed Johnson and his friends at 29th street and Trinity avenue, and said somebody threw the packaged cigarettes out a window of the car they were traveling in just before the arrest. All four denied having them.

Arrested with the maestro were James McDowell, 35; his wife, Beverly, 25, of 1564 W. 36th street, and Mrs. Dorothy Boyard of San Francisco. Plane tickets

Sparks Dodgers' Futile Offensive In 1st 2 Games

(Special to The Calif. Eagle)

YANKEE STADIUM, New York City.—One bad inning spelled the difference between victory and defeat for the Brooklyn Dodgers as the world series opened here Tuesday before 73,365 fans, the largest crowd in series history. The rampaging New York Yankees took a one-game lead over "them Bums" by winning the initial tilt, 5-3.

The Dodgers jumped into the lead in the first inning 1-0 with Jackie Robinson, the team's first baseman, the first man to get on base when he waited out Pitcher Spec Shea in his first time up. On base, Jackie swiped second base on Shea's first pitch to the next batter, scoring later on Dixie Walker's single to give Brooklyn its first run.

Robinson walked again his next time up and generally worried Shea while on base. He was a live spark in the Dodgers' offense, acquitted himself well on first base and committed no errors.

BAT STAR WEDNESDAY

In Wednesday's game before over 69,000 fans at Yankee Stadium, Robinson distinguished himself at bat although his team lost to New York, 10-3. In four trips to the plate Jackie struck out, flew out, batted in a run with a single and doubled in the eighth with no one on base. He again played his position at first base well.

Robinson is the first Negro ever to participate in a world series.

VICTIM OF L. A. POLICE BIAS—30 year old Elijah Newlins of Indio, Calif., (shown with his wife) must return to L. A. October 6 to face trumped up police drunk charge. Newlins was arrested during recent visit here. The couple are well known and highly respected citizens of Indio. Many of their neighbors will attend the hearing to testify to Newlins' fine character and constituent activity.

Albany School Board Bans Play 'Deep Are Roots'

ALBANY, N. Y.—The Albany Board of Education which recently sought to bar the use of a public school for a concert by Paul Robeson, this week had banned the use of a high school auditorium for a performance of "Deep Are the Roots." The play, a forthright presentation of the menace of racial bigotry, enjoyed a highly successful run on Broadway.

Neile F. Turner, president of the Albany board, was urged yesterday in a telegram from Walter White, NAACP head, to reconsider the board's action.

"If democracy is to survive in the present war-torn world, it will be due solely to ability of democratic governments like ours to face its defects and correct them," White told Towner.

Banning of "Deep Are the Roots," White added, "only increases doubts of minorities that such evils will be corrected and will also be held up throughout the world as proof of charges that the United States believes in liberty and justice only for white people."

Anti-Covenant Demonstration This Afternoon

An anti-restrictive covenant demonstration will be held this afternoon in front of the home of Dr. and Mrs. Alonzo Wilkins, 2425 Sixth avenue, on the eve of court proceedings to evict them from their home because they are Negroes.

The demonstration was called by the newly organized Committee Against Restrictive Covenants, which is urging all citizens to partcipate in this protest against the enforcement by the courts of private property agreements which serve to nullify the constitutional rights of a large segment of the American population.

Hearing on the covenant case against the Wilkins is scheduled for tomorrow, Oct. 3, 9:30 a.m., Dept. 34, superior court. Wilkins will be represented by Attorney John McTernan.

Dr. Wilkins, a retired physician from Griffin, Georgia, is ill with tuberculosis. The couple have three children.

Georgia Plans To Segregate Voters at Polls

ATLANTA.—If present plans hold, Georgia will hold its 1948 Democratic party primary with "complete" segregation of white and Negro voters at the polls next July 14. This program was arranged by Gov. M. E. Thompson's political supporters as a concession to the Herman Talmadge faction which seeks to keep the primary "white."

Although the rules committee of the Thompson party executive committee set up no new educational requirements to cull out Negro voters, it did remind prospective voters of the state constitutional provision that all who seek to vote must read or write the constitution to the satisfaction of election officials.

Third Party Launched At Fresno Meeting

The drive for a third political party in California, The Independent Progressive Party, was launched with great acclaim last Sunday in Fresno, at a conference of 64 delegates from all parts of the state.

The new party's organizing committee sent out a call for 15,000 volunteers to circulate petitions for 500,000 signatures. These signatures must be collected by February 28, in order to allow for the usual number that will be declared invalid. There must be 275,970 valid signatures to have the party placed on the ballot for the primary election.

The method of collecting signatures had been agreed upon at the first organizational meeting of the new party, in order to prevent the need of any liberals leaving the Democratic party and reregistering in the Progressive party, get it on the ballot. The great value of educating the people to the need of something different than what now exists in both the old parties, was also stressed as favoring the signature method.

Hugh Bryson, San Francisco, was confirmed as the permanent chairman of the organizing committee; James Daughtery, Los Angeles, vice-chairman; A. B. Godlsby, San Francisco, treasurer; L. H. McMillan, Richmond,

Protests Panama Discrimination Exposed by Eagle

WASHINGTON—"Apparently, the hemispheric solidarity talked about by 21 American republics in Rio de Janeiro a few weeks ago means only solidarity between the non-Negro peoples in the Western Hemisphere as far as Panama is concerned," Leslie Perry of the Washington Bureau, NAACP, charged in a letter to J. J. Vallarino, the ambassador from Panama. This conclusion was drawn after the NAACP learned that Panama has a law prohibiting immigration to that country by American Negroes and stringent requirements designed to discourage them as tourists.

(Panama discrimination against Negroes was exposed by the EAGLE in an article by Hilton Alonzo Phillips, pub-

Stettinius Heads New Project to Exploit Liberia

NEW YORK—A new American-sponsired project for the exploitation of the vast natural resources of the West African republic of Liberia was launched here this week, the Associated Negro Press reports.

The new group is headed by Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., former U. S. secretary of state, and former head of the powerful United States Steel Company. It includes top-ranking American industrialists and military men, and has the blessings of both the U. S. and the Liberian governments.

The American group is to provide the capital and the industrial and mechanical "know how," according to the ANP. The Liberian government and Liberian government and Liberian citizens are to share in the management and control of the Liberian Company as the new overall corporation is to be known. They will also participate "effectively," says ANP, in the Liberian Education Foundation, which is "to go along hand in hand with the industrial development of the country."

The Liberian Company will be jointly owned by the Liberian government and the Stettinius associates, it was declared in a joint statement issued by Liberian Secretary of State Gabriel L. Dennis and Stettinius here last Friday.

The arrangement, the statement asserts, "is based on mutual desire to bring prosperity to Liberia and to improve the health, education and levels of the people by use of American technology, skill and capital, through the development of Liberian natural resources."

The statement said nothing of the economic and strategic advantages accruing to the United States from a deal which further strengthens American control of the important West African republic.

American directors of the company include: Stettinius, chairman of the board; Blackwell Smith, Princeton, N. J.; Fleet Admiral William F. Halsey, retired; Joseph C. Grew, former U. S. ambassador to Japan; James D. Mooney, president of Willys-Overland Motors, Inc.; Robert L. Lynch, president Culpepper Steel Corp.; Philip D. Reed, chairman board of directors of the General Electric Co.; E. Stanley Klein, vice president, John P. McGuire Co., textiles; Claude A. Barnett, director of the Associated Negro Press; Frank T. Ryan, president of World Commerce Corp.; Gen. Julius Cecil Holmes, righthand man of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower during World War II.

Dr. John E. Orchard, dean of the graduate school of business administration, Columbia university, will be economic consultant.

Five Liberian directors and five additional American directors will be added.

The Liberian Educational Foundation will be endowed by a "substantial proportion" of the stock of the Liberian Company, according to ANP, which lists the purposes of the foundation as "to advance education of Liberians in every way possible, including bringing Liberian students to the U. S. for training in medicine and technology, and assisting in the creation of the University of Liberia."

San Mateo Covenant Drive Flops

REDWOOD, Calif.—White racist real estate agents are being bypassed in this community and minority groups are discovering an abundance of un-restricted property for sale, thanks to the militant local Council for Civic Unity.

Left fuming and impotent is the San Mateo County Board of Realtors, which recently spearheaded a short-lived move to keep the peninsular 'lilly-white.'

The council, moved to action by the burning of the incompleted home of war veteran John Walker early this year, has launched a property-listing service for non-Caucasian buyers which makes it unnnecessary for them to contact commercial realtors.

Junior High Student Shot By White Cop

TOLEDO, Ohio—James Wakefiled, 14-year-old eighth grade pupil, was shot and seriously wounded Wednesday night across from his home by a white policeman who said he mistook him for a purse-snatching suspect.

Wakefiled, who is enrolled at Robinson Junior High School, was taken to Mercy hospital, where he was placed in an oxygen tent and given two blood plasma transfusions.

A bullet from the gun of Patrolman Albert Fedell entered his chest, penetraated a lung, emerged from the right side and passed through the muscle of his righ arm.

'Certain Death' if Returned to South, Says S. C. Refugee

TRENTON, N. J.—A 27 year old refugee from Southern jimcrow justice yesterday charged that in returning him to South Carolina, the state of New Jersey was sending him to "certain death."

The refugee, Charles Collier, has been ordered returned to South Carolina by New Jersey's court of errors and appeals, despite his contention that South Carolina authorities had denied him a fair trial, tortured him into confessing a $15 theft of cigarettes and chewing gum.

Nine years ago, Collier escaped from a Greenwood County, S. C. jail after serving 13 months of a 19-month sentence for theft. He came to Newark, lived here for eight years before South Carolina authorities located him. Arrested last year, his extradition was delayed for over a year by protests of interracial groups.

However, State Atty. Gen. Van Riper finally ordered him to be returned to South Carolina, declaring that New Jersey could not pass on the fairness of a trial in another state. Van Riper's decision was appealed to the court of errors and appeals, which upheld the attorney general's ruling.

Catholic Group Pressing for School Jimcrow

ST. LOUIS—Ringleaders in the move to block the enrollment of Negro children in St. Louis white Catholic schools met last night and mapped out a program to bring pressure upon Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter to rescind his action.

Led by Joseph P. Barrett, chairman of the recently organized racist Catholic Parents' Association, they decided to draft and circulate a petition among Catholics of the city and St. Louis county, seeking to have white parents withdraw their children from the parochial schools involved.

Barrett said the purpose of the petition would be demonstrated to the archbishop that the group represents the feeling of a majority of white Catholics in seeking "separate educational facilities for Negro pupils.

There was no comment from the archbishop, who last week ordered the dissenters to drop plans for legal action against the admission of Negro children or face excommunication.

A news account published in the St. Louis Register, official weekly newspaper of the archdiocese, said, however, the archbishop's action concerned only about 400 Negro pupils out of a total enrollment of more than 50,000 in the parochial schools.

Barrett said he and "several others" of the group have withdrawn their children from the parochial schools.

He told reporters no reply had been received to the group's letter to the apostolic delegation, Archbishop Amleto G. Cicognani, at Washington, appealing for Cicognani's intercession on the group's behalf with Ritter.

vations." Negroes, Chinese, Japanese, and other dark-skinned peoples are barred from that country.

The Russian magazine writer, Boris Gobatove, could be taught to respect our government, but I am afraid not by the use of our guns and ammunition sent to Russian neighbors, but by our respect for the Constitution which we ourselves devised and dedicated as our guide to a better world.

Think of a statement like this: United States elections are capitalistic and for a special class, whereas Soviet elections represent real genuine democracy.

Say or do what you please, but there is just one way to refute such a statement, and that way is to fulfill the promise of our Constitution—life, liberty, and happiness for all Americans, whether native or foreign born.

A man hustled off to Germany because, politically speaking, he believes in Wilkie's doctrine of One World; a Negro soldier lynched when he feels that by virtue of the fact that he offered his life on the battlefields of Europe to win world peace; that this should insure an unmolested bus ride from one point to another—these are some of the other agents of destruction we, the American people, should fear.

It is not what Mr. Gobatov says, but what we ourselves are doing against the establishment of a government for the people, by the people, for one world—that should cause a right-about face alarm in our government.

Must 'Demand and Get Equal Education for All, Wallace Urges

PHILADELPHIA—Assailing the "able practitioners of racist theories in our midst," Henry A. Wallace last night urged that we "demand and get" full educational opportunities for all, regardless of race, color or creed.

Repeating the joint performance of last week at New York's Madison Square Garden, Wallace teamed up with Paul Robeson for a twin defense of civil liberties before 12,000 here at Convention Hall at a meeting sponsored by the Eastern Pennsylvania Chapter of the Progressive Citizens of America.

Robeson drew a tremendous ovation when he gave the first public performance of Langston Hughes' new protest ballad, "Freedom Train," the ballad Hughes wrote to "check up" to see if the Freedom Train, which is here in Philadelphia bearing historic documents of freedom, will have Jim crow audiences when it enters the South. The crowd broke into thunderous applause when Robeson, a PCA vice-chairman, repeated the refrain: "I am goin' to check up on that Freedom Train."

Wallace, now editor of the NEW REPUBLIC, demanded that the nation's press, radio and movies use their combined means to promote brotherhood, rather than intolerance. "The least we can expect from a principled free press," he told the PCA rally, "is equal treatment for the scientific fact that John Rankin is a liar when he tries to claim that Negroes are a racially inferior people."

Wallace demanded legislation to wipe out intolerance in America. "It is true we can't force people to love one another," he declared, "but we can legislate against tolerance, we can minimize the friction in our human family. We can demand and get a permanent FEPC. We can demand and get an end to Jim Crow. We can demand and get full educational opportunities for every American child regardless of race or creed."

"President Truman has the power NOW to enforce Fair Employment Practices in the federal government, where discrimination in hiring and firing is increasing at an alarming rate."

Wallace attacked the city of Peoria, Illinois, for denying a hall to Paul Robeson and declared: "I shall hope that when the Freedom Train pulls into Peoria, it will ,at the invitation of the American Heritage Association and the good citizens of Peoria, have Paul Robeson on board."

Boris Karloff Tells Plans to Fight for More Negroesin Films

CHICAGO—Boris Karloff, horror man of the screen, who is darker skinned than most colored men, teHs some of his experience with racial discrimination in October Negro Digest.

"I am a guest in this country," says Karloff with fine courtesy, "and so I cannot criticize my host." He did say, however, "I was never exposed to anti-Negro feeling in England or in Canada. In the states, my own relations with Negroes have always been of the friendliest." He did not say anything about his relations with white people in the states.

Karloff is planning, however, to fight definitely for race equality in Hollywood, and tells of some of the plans he has laid before the Screen Actors Guild. He and Negro screen star Louise Beavers are members of the Screen Guild committee to fight prejudice against Negro actors.

"Our job is to get more work for Negroes in films," he said. "We plan to insist that in all scenes at least 10 percent of the characters be Negroes moving about ordinary business the same as other people."

Boris Karloff is a British subject.

Thespians Hear Talk By Hollywood Actor

"Do not act! Be the person you portray," was the advice given by Morgan Farley, Hollywood actor and dialogue director, to The Thespians at a meeting of the theatre group held last Friday.

"To learn your character," said Farley, "requires painstaking research, just as much research as to be scientist."

Farley pointed out the great advantage of The Thespians in living so near Hollywood, the movie capital of the world. If the Thespians produce worthwhile plays, its members may save opportunity to break into films.

The Thespians are now casting for "Cafe Panorama," a story of Negro life on Los Angeles Eastside. Rehearsals are held every Wednesday and Friday from 8:30 to 10 p.m. at 4272 Avalon blvd., 3rd floor. Actors, singers, dancers are needed. Frank G. Greenwood is director.

Negro Editor To Do Column For White Daily

SAN BERNARDINO—J. Robert Smith, editor of The Tri-County Bulletin, was appointed columnist for The Daily Sun, in this city, last week.

Smith will contribute a weekly column to the only San Bernardino daily on the contribution and achievement of the Negro, both locally and nationally.

The Sun is one of the largest dailies in California and its editor, James A. Guthrie, is well known for his liberal racial policy.

Smith was formerly an editor on the Baltimore Afro-American newspapers, New York Amsterdam News, a local Los Angeles paper, and a special feature writer for the daily New York Post. He will continue to edit his own paper, in addition to writing a column for the Sun.

Editor Smith is one of the few Negroes who have been given an opportunity as newspaper writers on "white" newspapers. It will be remembered that some years ago Mrs. Eloise D. Thompson, wife of the late Noah Thompson, wrote for the old Los Angeles Tribune.

Smith's entry in the "white" newspaper world, however, is a break that will be an entering wedge for other qualified Negro newspaper writers to be considered in the daily field. Congratulations to both The Sun and to Mr. Smith.

Police Ordered To Enforce L. A. Clean-Up Laws

All police officers have been instructed by Chief of Police C. B. Horrall to rigidly enforce certain municipal ordinances to combat the ever increasing dirtiness and unsightliness of streets and sidewalks throughout Los Angeles.

Among the ordinances to receive special attention are those regulating the leaving of baggage, merchandise, and personal property upon sidewalks; the posting of signs or handbills upon any sidewalk, post, tree, fire hydrant, street sign, etc.; and the obstructing or contaminating of public walks or streets by allowing any soil, rubbish, trash, tin cans, ashes, or refuse of any kind to accumulate.

Alert action is also to be taken against offenders who obstruct the sidewalks by allowing vending machines, weight scales, produce stands, and other parts of their buildings to protrude upon the city's property and become a public nuisance and menace. Included in this category are establishments that allow any type of amplifying system to carry any music or other sound onto or over public street or sidewalk in tones audible to a person of average hearing faculties.

Mitchell Flays 80th Congress For Failure to Broaden Social Securify Act., Up Minimum Pay

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—Flaying the 80th congress for its failure to pass needed legislation, Clarence M. Mitchell, NAACP labor secretary, told the Catholic Tri-State Conference meeting here that, as far as the welfare of the people is concerned, this last congress might just as well never have been in session.

Mitchell declared that the only people who benefited from congressional consideration of FEPC legislation in 1947 were those railroads which collected fares from persons who went to Washington to testify, and Governor Wright of Mississippi who was in a campaign at the time, and, undoubtedly, endeared himself to his supporters by claiming credit for blocking passage of the act.

The labor secretary pointed out that, beside ignoring the FEPC bill, congress failed to broaden the Social Security Act for the coverage of domestic and agricultural workers, neatly pigeon-holed bills to raise the minimum wage level to more nearly meet the present cost of living, and, through the Taft-Hartley Bill, shackled the American labor movement by preventing its leaders from political action to defeat the worst congressional offenders at the polls.

"The congress further cut appropriations of the Wage and Hour Administration—thereby decreasing the staff of the agency at a time when 51 percent of the establishments being investigated are found to violating the law and more than $18,000,000 is being illegally withheld from over 300,000 underpaid employes," Mitchell said.

"There is need for year-round political education so that only those persons whose total record is good will have an opportunity to get elected. We must mobilize the right-thinking people in a national drive which will write the badly-needed social reform into our law," the labor secretary concluded.

The conference, called by the National Catholic Welfare Conference, was attended by 3000 delegates. Philip Murray, president of the CIO, Dr. George Shuster, president of Hunter college, New York City, and His Eminence Edward Cardinal Mooney, the Archbishop of Detroit, also spoke.

Harlemites Pay Tearful Tribute To LaGuardia

NEW YORK—Harlemites bade a tearful goodbye to Fiorello H. La Guardia, former mayor of New York, who died last Saturday of cancer of the pancreas. Mourning the man who gave good government to the world's largest city, including the largest belt of Negro people, Negroes from all walks of life turned out among an estimated crowd of 50,000 to view the remains of LaGuardia as he lay in state in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

Commented noted humorist Harry Hershfield in what was probably an overstatement, "I didn't think since Lincoln's day have so many Negro people passed the bier of a white man."

One woman, dressed in deep mourning with a black lace kerchief on her head, passed the bier weeping loudly. She dropped a single red rose in the caskot crying "poor Mayor La Guardia is gone." Attendants helper her from the line.

Another woman, Mrs. M. G. Bradley, visiting here from Columbia, S.C., stayed over in New York an extra day so that she could pay her respects to "Butch", as he was affectionately called. "I feel very sad", she sad. "He was a wonderful man. I listened to him every chance I got on the radio. I loved him very much."

Justice Hubert T. Delany, who owes his post in the Domestic Relations Court to LaGuardia, stood in the guard of honor throughout the day.

Major Whitlow is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor L. Whitlow, 1021 N. Genesee, Hollywood, and former grid star at UCLA.

Imposter Gets Blazers' Money

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—An imposter who presented himself as Milton Ebbins, personal manager of Johnny Moore's Three Blazers, used an ingenious ruse to fleece a dance promoter out of $1000 when the Blazers played a one-night stand at the local auditorium.

With more than $6000 in the box office via a crowd of some 4000 persons, a man identifying himself as Ebbins, asked the promoter for $1000 of the Blazers' percentage money and was promptly given that sum after signing Ebbins' name to a receipt.

The thief, who is still being sought by local police, was gone from the scene more than an hour before the ruse was discovered. When Sid Fields, road manager for the Blazers, totaled up the night's receipts and was informed that Ebbins had collected a part of the money, he quickly acquainted the promoter with the fact that Ebbins was in New York and could not have been at the auditorium.

The first five men to take advantage of the army air forces' "Pick Your School and Then Enlist Plan" were accepted for enlistment yesterday at the army's recruiting station at 610 So. Main st, according to T/Sgt. Carl Pritchard.

The men were: Louis E. Blake, 19, Stephens, Arkansas; Garland Davis, 30, 1693 W. Jefferson blvd.; Appyles B. Ford, 17, 1223 E. 49th st.; Edward M. Phillips, 17, 4704 Honduras st., and Duane D. Vest, 17, 929½ E. 22nd st.

Ford, able to find only low-paid work in civilian life, decided to enter the army so he "could support his wife and child decently."

Blake, fresh in from Arkansas, stated that "doing work as a track-laborer proved to him that he needed to know more to be a better man — and the army seemed to be the place to learn."

Youngsters Phillips and Vest, both former students of local high schools, selected the army "for experience and training that would give them a better start in life."

Worker Fatally Shot By Two Policemen

Drawing a knife on the police proved fatal to William J. Smith, 40, itinerant shipyard worker, last Thursday. Smith was surprised by Officers P. C. Richards and M. H. Reid when they saw him emerging from the shadows behind a housing project at 108rd street and Central avenue.

When the police tried to question him when they found him carrying a woman's purse, and made an attempt to arrest the suspect, Smith is said by officers to have pulled a spring knife and slashed at them.

Richards received a cut finger and slashed shirt in the scuffle while Reid was kicked in the groin. Both officers said they fired when Smith broke free, two bullets killing him instantly.

Reid was treated at Georgia Street Receiving Hospital.

An Eagle reporter was unable to get the address of Smith.

Asks Post Office Reinstate Fired Cleveland Clerk

NEW YORK—Reinstatement of Joseph Bryant as an employe of the Shaker Square station of the Cleveland Post Office, with full back pay, was demanded by the Civil Rights Congress in a letter of protest to the postmaster general in Washington.

Protesting Bryant's dismissal, Joseph Cadden, national executive director of the Civil Rights Congress, asserted that the dismissal and the manner in which it was carried out "have deprived him of his civil rights.

"This position is further supported by Bryant's exoneration by the federal district court," he said.

Bryast, the only Negro window clerk in the exclusive Shaker Square station, was discharged because of the allegation that he had fraudulently demanded and received 72 cents in postage. A subsequent trial in the federal district court resulted in his acquittal.

Chain Gang Fugitive Fights Return to Ala.

BOSTON—James Hines, 39, pleaded with authorities yesterday to prevent his return to an Alabama chain gang to serve out a 15-year sentene for a $5 robbery he said he didn't commit.

Discovered when police fingerprinted him following an automobile accident, Hines was ordered held in $10,000 bail as a fugitive after he admitted to a municipal judge that he escaped 14 months ago.

He was convicted in Mobile, in 1942 of the unarmed robbery of a 15 year old white boy.

"The boy couldn't even identify me until the detective almost made him," Hines said. "My trial took only 10 minutes. The judge stood up and apologized, and told me it was the jury sentenced me, not him."

Hine's attorney, Irwin T. Dorch, president of the Boston NAACP, said Gov. Robert F. Bradford of Massachusetts had ordered an investigation.

In his appeal, Hines told how he had worked his way north to Boston after escaping through a swamp near Montgomery penitentiary. He said his wife, Anna, and their three children met him here.

The citation accompanying the award read, in part:

Bishop Gregg visited the battle fronts throughout the world as a representative of 40,000 Negro churches and six million members, and served as a goodwill ambassador to the fighting forces on all fronts."

Famous Folk Like To Roll Dice, Too

NEW YORK—Do you like to roll dice, watch the horses or shuffle the pasteboards? Then you're in good company, according to the October issue of the Journal of Living.

When it comes to having fun, there's nothing that Princess Elizabeth, future queen of England, likes better than a rousing game of backgammon. "You have to have dice to play it," she points out, "and dice fascinate me."

America's First Lady, on the other hand, prefers horses. "When it comes to outdoor sports," declares Mrs. Harry S. Truman, "I like any game, or anything, that horses have a part in—because I adore horses."

Card games, the magazine found, are Hollywood's choice for relaxation. Bridge and gin rummy take lead among such glamour girls as Loretta Young, Jeanette MacDonald and Lauren Bacall. They are a favorite with Justice Hugo Black, of the United States supreme court, too. "Any card game is acceptable," he says, "just so long as the whole family can play."

Delinquency, Recreation Problems To Be Discussed at Meet Oct. 14

Recently a group of interested citizens of the Avalon Central area met for the purpose of reorganizing the Southcentral Coordinating Council, a functional body through which the needs of the community might be studied and met. The group plans to give special attention to the problems of delinquency, inadequate recreational facilities, and housing conditions.

The Community Service Division of the Coordinating Council, headed by Mrs. Margaret Rakestraw, is sponsoring the first public meeting of the council, Know Your Community Night, to be held at Carver Jr. High on October 14 at which time experts will participate in a panel discussion.

These speakers will bring information about the population, recreational facilities and general trends of planning in this area. Heading the speakers list is Simon Eisner, planning architect of the City Planning Commission staff and a member of the College of Architecture staff of U.S.C.

This meeting is the first of a group of efforts to be brought to the public through the Coordinating Council, which aims to render a real service in the area by providing a body which will bring together all forces in the area interested in facing squarely the many problems of its residents. Dewey Davidson is the newly elected president of the general body.

Improvement Noted in Cab Service Here

The Eastside section of Los Angeles is to be congratulated upon the service it is now getting in the way of taxi cabs. It is all or at least in a very great measure, due to the fact that Albert S. Smith was recently appointed traffic supervisor by the Yellow Taxi Cab Co.

For years the citizens on Central avenue and vicinity had complained about poor taxi service to no avail. Now, however, that service has been upped at least 90 percent.

This improvement was especially noticeable last August when the National Medical Association and other organizations held conventions in Los Angeles. Whenever a taxi was wanted, it seemed to be right there.

This prompt service was also remarked at the formal held by the Swan Social Club at the Elks' Club home last Friday. When the affair ended, taxis were drawn up at the curb two abreast. And there was no long-drawn out wait for the tired members who were anxious to go home.

Smith is the first Negro in the country appointed to so responsible a position as that of traffic supervisor.

Arizona Labor Federation All Out for Co-ops

TUCSON, Ariz.—(CNS)—In an annual convention notable for its unity, the Arizona State Federation of Labor went on record September 13 in support of the cooperative movement and resolved to set up committees in each local to study ways and means of furthering it.

Several addresses given during the gathering at Tucson, stressed the need of cooperatives to increase purchasing power and assure quality to the workingman. A formal resolution presented by representatives of seven locals and adopted by the convention cited the recommendations of the American Federation of Labor.

The Arizona Cooperative Association was originally organized by leaders of the State Federation, and has now broadened to include a representative cross-section of the state's population.

Glasster Baylor, an early settler of Los Angeles, departed this life Saturday, Sept. 6, at 6:55 p.m.

Baylor came to California from Alabama over 60 years ago. He was one of the founders of the Second Baptist Church now located at 24th and Griffith Ave.

His last years were spent under the tender watch and care of his devoted neice, Teresa Bailey of East 47th St.

Final services for Baylor were held on Thursday, Sept. 11, at one o'clock fromthe Second Baptist Church. His body has been lying in state from Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 9, at Roberts Mortuary, 1415 South Central Ave.

Norman Houston in New York for Meeting of Insurance Executives

Norman O. Houston, president of Golden State Mutual Life Insurance Company, left Los Angeles en route to New York on September 22 to attend the 24th annual conference of the Life Office Management Association at the Hotel New Yorker, September 24-26. He will meet with heads of some 200 of the largest insurance companies in America which compose the association. No Negro-owned company holds membership.

Houston is a special guest at the conference in recognition of his firm's interest in the association's research on improved management of insurance companies, and its participation in the association's education program for clerical and field forces.

Twenty-six members of the staff of Golden State Mutual are studying the insurance course, 74 percent having passed the first examination given in May. Houston set an example for the staff by taking and passing all four tests of the first course, to receive special commendations from executives of Life Office Management Association.

At the New York conference, Houston will give particular attention to discussions on the training of supervisors, service to policyholders, developments in office methods and machinery, and trends in home office buildings.

He will also visit local offices of the laarge companies and confer with officials of National Life and Accident Insurance Company to gather information on particular management problems.

The trip will require three weeks and will include visits to the state insurance departments of Illinois and Texas.

Passaic, N. J., Gets Its First Negro Teacher

PASSAIC, N. J.—It could have have been a sense of shame which kept the Passaic Board of Education from indulging in any fanfare or even official announcement this week in making its first appointment of a Negro to the Passaic school system. In a strictly hush-hush action, the board named Harriet Gibbs, 26, of 43 Elm St., Rutherford, N. J., to a long-term substitute teacher position at $2000 a year.

Miss Gibbs is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Jonathan C. Gibbs, 52 Market St., this city. She was born in Trenton, N. J., is a graduate of Dudley High School, Greensboro, N. C., Barber-Scotia Junior College, Concord, N. C., and Howard university, where she received her bachelor of arts degree.

After graduation from Howard, Miss Gibbs was employed at the Office of Dependency Benefits, War Department, formerly located in Newark. She has taught in nursery schools in New York City and Bridgeville, Delaware. She is now attending Paterson State Teachers college, where she is doing work towards a permanent Kindergarten Primary certificate.

Her father practised medicine in Trenton, N. J. for 18 years before coming to Passaic ten years ago. Her mother, the former Miss Catherine Allen, a graduate of Miner's Teachers college, taught in Washington, D. C., prior to her marriage.

There are two other children, Phyllis, now Mrs. John D. Fauntleroy of Washington, D. C., and Jonathan G., who are also Howard graduates. Mrs. Fauntleroy held her M.A. from Columbia Teachers college in English, and taught at Morgan State college last year. Her brother is a sophomore in Howard Medical school.

To Push Fight For 3 Convicted Mississippi Lads

NEW YORK—In a desperate effort to secure the freedom of three Negro youths of Decatur, Mississippi, the National Association for the Advance of Colored People has employed counsel to appeal for the convictions of Thomas Tingle, James Monroe Tingle, and Henry C. Smith. The youths were accused of attempted rape of three white girls in Little Rock, Mississippi, on the night of July 28 and the Tingle brothers were arrested and taken to jail in Decatur where the police claim they confessed to the alleged crime. Smith was taken to jail in Newton, Mississippi.

The first trial, at which the youths were represented by Attorney J. Marshall Carr of Newton, Mississippi, resulted in a hung jury with several white witnesses testifying that the attempted rape did not take place. The jury voted eight for acquittal and four for conviction even in the face of this evidence. At that trial, the Tingle brothers testified that they had been beaten brutally and that their confessions were secured by this brutality. Defendants are in possession of blood stained clothing and show evidence of physical mistreatment.

A second trial was held on August 29 where, despite the evidence of white witnesses, the youths were convicted and sentenced to two years in prison, an extraordinarily low sentence for the type of crime which they are alleged to have committed.

An appeal to the Mississippi supreme court will be taken immediately in this blatant instance of Mississippi miscarriage of justice.

Legion Ducks Jimcro Issue

NEW YORK—The plight of homeless veterans wasn't the only thing the recent American Legion convention ducked. It ducked the question of jimcrowism in the organization. A number of resolutions, submitted to the resolutions committee, dealing with the Legion's jimcrow set-up never reached the floor for a vote by the body. They were all tabled by the committee.

According to the few Negro delegates at the 29th annual convention of the largest veterans organization in this country, at least four resolutions were submitted that had special interest for Negroes.

One of the resolutions recommended that the Legion go on record against segregation in the armed forces. Another dealt with the liberalization of Legion procedures in locals in the deep south where Negroes often cannot receive charters even though they agree to set up jimcrow locals. A third requested the end of alleged jimcrow in the burial of veterans in the national cemeteries of the state of Minnesota.

On the issue of housing, the convention turned thumbs down on the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill which it branded as "communistic." Many rank and file delegates had other views, however, charged the Legion's national housing committee's report had been dictated by the real estate lobby.

JUNGLE TOUR

Sailors, soldiers and marines stationed on the isolated Pacific rock called Guam have found a strenuous but interesting way to spend Sundays and whatever leisure hours they may have. Arranged by Red Cross workers, the "Jungle Tour" is an all-day affair, including hours of trailblazing, mountain-climbing, swimming, hunting and eating.

Investigate the Klan? Perish the Thought!

WASHINGTON—Stetson Kennedy, author of Southern Exposure, was ejected from the capitol when he attempted to interest the Un-American Committee in an investigation of the activities of the Ku Klux Klan. Kennedy appeared in the Capitol Building clad in a white Klan robe, and armed with facts. He tried unsuccessfuly to see Robert Stripling, chief investigator for the Un-American outfit.

Stripling later admitted to reportera that he wrote Kennedy he would be glad to talk about the Klan after the author had requested an interview. Keenedy wrote his book, Southern Exposure, after observing Klan activities first-hand as a KKK member in Atlanta, Georgia.

Queried about the incident by reporters, Un-American Committee Agent Louis Russell, formerly with the FBI, said he was too busy to investigate the Klan. He was looking over back files of the Daily Worker.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced that public hearing on sugar cane wage rates and prices for 1948 will be held in the Virgin Islands on October 2. Similar hearings on both sugar cane and sugar beet wage rates and prices will be held between September 29 and October 29 in Puerto Rico, Hawaii, and California.

15 Americans To Attend World Women Assembly

NEW YORK—Eunice H. Carter of Carter-Johnson Associates was in the group of 15 American women who have been invited to attend the first International Assembly of Women in Paris. The group sailed from here on September 22. The conference will convene from September 28 through October 1, and will attract some 200 women leaders from all parts of the world.

"Women and Peace" will be the theme of the meeting, and the delegates will seek to hold a "non-politically dominated, non-Government controlled conference" where they may freely discuss "human and educational problems affecting peace and freedom".

Mme Vincent Auriol, wife of the president of France, is honorary chairman for the Assembly, and Mme Georges Bidault, wife of the French foreign minister, will be the active president. Apart from the formal sessions, a round of entertainment for the visiting delegates is being arranged under the direction of Mme Bidault.

During the past week Mrs. Carter has been attending sessions in Philadelphia of the International Council of Women with which the National Council of Negro Women, of which she is chairman of the board of trustees, is affiliated. She has attended many such conferences, being an officer with both the National Peace Conference and Women United for United Nations.

Las Vegas Pool Jimcrow Challenged

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — A committee of the Las Vegas Branch, NAACP, has appeared before the mayor and city commissioners protesting the unwritten policy of segregating Negroes to the use of the Westside pool only.

There are two municipal swimming pools in Las Vegas, one known as the central pool, a vicinity where a small minority of Negro residents live; the other, the Westside pool, which is located in a neighborhood composed almost entirely of Negroes with but few whites. Petitions are ebing circulated in the attempt to get segments of the entire city in opposition to the policy.

The mayor has agreed to form an inter-racial committee to study community problems, and it is hoped through a program of education to prepare Negroes as well as whites to be integrated into the life of the larger community. As Rev. William H. Stevens, president, Las Vegas branch, pointed out:

"Too many of our people are unconcerned about their rights, and either too timid, or not interested enough to be active participants in expressing their opinions, or working toward the elimination of these evils: segregated theatres, refusal of service in public restaurants, etc., which are glaring evils in Las Vegas."

STUDY ABROAD

More than 3000 World War II veterans are studying abroad under the educational provisions of the GI Bill, the Veterans Administration informed Red Cross officials recently. They are enrolled in 322 foreign institutions in 34 countries.

Government Aid Urged to Provide Needed 1,750,000 Homes a Year for Nation

"Public enterprise" must take over the ob of providing the 1,750,000 homes necessary each year to provide America with decent housing if private enterprise continues its failure to meet that goal, the CIO Economic Outlook declares in its current issue.

The publication was issued by the CIO Department of Education and Research in cooperation with the CIO Housing Committee. It said that a combination of forces and events during recent years has "brought this nation today as sorry a housing shortage as it has ever known."

Passage of the Taft-Wagner-Ellender Bill (S.866), to establish "means for building houses to suit various income groups," and of the Taylor-Douglas Bill for federal aid for self-supporting dwelling units for veterans who can afford a $30 to $50 monthly rent, was advocated by the CIO publication as the best way of meeting the crisis.

The building industry has demonstrated once again its complete inability to meet the nation's shelter needs. There is no alternative now but to turn to government aid," the Outlook said.

A solution must be found, it added, through "government nourishment, protection and support for mass production of housing." Government aid for factory-built mass production homes, it said, "is practically the last hope of the private businessman."

Noting that a few "pioneers" have developed technical know-how to use the same home-producing methods employed in the construction of autos and radio, the Outlook warned that without such assistance the prefabricated homes industry "must experience years of trial and hardship in order to educate communities to systems of planning and developing housing on a large scale.

Community efforts similar to the vast bond issues which financed the nation's highway system and the government land grants to the railroads are necessary to "assure the availability of land and community facilities for the large-scale producer of housing, with no nonsense about antiquated building codes," the Outlook said.

"Many building code provisions today are in a class with the law that, as a safety measure, required a man on horseback carrying a red flag, to ride in front of every train. Such laws have operated, and still operate, to make housing prohibitively expensive for many families and to keep housing relatively scarce."

The CIO publication charged that while other trades have forged ahead with new production techniques, "the building industry has clung largely to the handicraft methods which flourished in the days of Thomas Jefferson."

In addition, the CIO bulletin charged that a disproportionate share of new homes are built for upper income families, while families in low income brackets and in minority groups face an acute shortage. The industry has "never learned to build for the mass market," the Outlook charged, and has been "addicted to the 'hand-me-down' theory in housing."

Harlem West Indian Leaders Back Move for Federation of Islands, Urge Freedom Goal

NEW YORK—On the eve of the Montego Bay (Jamaica, BWI) government-sponsored conference which opened yesterday (Sept. 10), West Indian leaders in Harlem let leaders in their native land know via a 12-point suggested program that federation in that area of the Caribbean is a goal which must be attained.

A memorandum to the Caribbean Labor Congress from the American Committee for West Indian Federation urged delegates to the labor confab to hold firmly to the correct and basic position of complete freedom.

The Caribbean Labor Congress' sessions were held last week. The American Committee for West Indian Federation was represented by observer-delegate Augustine A. Austin, wealthy Harlem real estate operator.

Austin assured delegates to the Caribbean Labor Congress of the solidarity of West Indian-Americans with their brothers in the Caribbean, hailed the stand taken by the Congress at its first conference in Barbados, Sept. 1945, in favor of federation of the islands, with self-government on the basis of wholly elected legislatures based on universal adult suffrage, with policy-making executive councils responsible to the legislature, and of wholly elected local government authorities.

Federation should be based, Austin suggested, on:

- Full responsible self-government based on free elective institutions and adult universal suffrage.
- Complete control over external affairs.
- Wholly elective federal and local legislatures, functioning through ministers wholly responsible to the legislatures and the people.
- The constitution of the Commonwealth of Australia appears to be most suitable with modifications in keeping with conditions obtaining in the West Indies.
- A wholly elected bi-cameral federal legislature should be duly considered.
- The principle of including nominated members in the federal and local legislatures is considered inconsistent and unacceptable.
- The principle of appointments of administrative officers by the Crown should not be admitted.
- The provision for reserved powers, which may be employed to negate self-government and to override the will of the people, should be uncompromisingly rejected.
- The suggestion to use the present Jamaica constitution, with its broad reserved powers as a model for a federal constitution, cannot be entertained.
- Every effort should be made to secure the adherence of the Bahamas and Bermuda to the Federation.
- A definite date should be set for the recognition of the Federated Caribbean Commonwealth as a free nation as in the case of India.
- Any such federation should be included as a member of the United Nations.

Signers of the memorandum were Austin, chairman, and Richard B. Moore, secretary. The communication also mentioned that an American Association for West Indian Advancement was being formed.

Tensions Laid To Rights Denial

Racial tensions in American communities develop out of the denial of equal opportunities to all American citizens, William M. Jones, industrial relations secretary of the Los Angeles Urban League, told a radio audience last Friday afternoon. Jones participated in the weekly Urban League Reports over Station KRKD, 2 o'clock to 2:15.

"Tensions have developed in part over stimulating the individual to demand the Four Freedoms, which we are supposed to be fighting for all people to have," he said. "Tension has developed in white people who think the Negro is moving too fast, or who do not want him to move at all."

The program then swung into its regular dialog feature, preceded by the following statement by Bob Wolf, announcer:

"I assume that since Negroes are American citizens, it is presumptuous to ask what Negroes want or have a right to expect, for under our national laws they are given all the rights and privileges of American citizenship."

Union President Scores Attacks On Cooperatives

PHILADELPHIA — Declaring that congress and big business are "out to do a wrecking job on farmers' cooperatives, using the House Small Business Committee as a convenient mask," President Donald Henderson of the Food, Tobacco, Agricultural and Allied Workers Union, CIO, yesterday urged a meeting of representatives of the National Farmers Union to meet the attack on cooperatives.

The invitation, addressed to National Farmers Union President James G. Patton, said: "Members of our union, FTA-CIO, with their close relation to farmers, realize perhaps more clearly than others the dangers to the national welfare involved in any attack on the family-size farmer."

The attack on farmers cooperatives by the Small Business Committee, Henerson added, "is a threat to the welfare of both farmers and workers alike."

Revoke American Citizenship?

One John McDowell, member of the House of Representatives from Pennsylvania, has stated that at the next session of Congress he plans to introduce a bill which would revoke the citizenship of a Communist.

McDowell, as you can guess, is a member of the House un-American Activities Committee, the committee which boasts such members as Rankin on its lists.

The American Committee for the Protection of Foreign Born is fighting this bill, as it is fighting cases in which citizens of foreign birth are being persecuted because of their labor union affiliations or activity in organizations of liberal thought.

American citizenship is not a favor that can be conferred or withdrawn lightly. When the new citizen pledges allegiance to the flag of his adopted country, when he takes the oath renouncing his fealty to the country of his birth, it is a solemn and significant ceremony. He is being taken into the family of Americans whose leaders have been Abraham Lincoln and Franklin Roosevelt. Deep within him beats the resolve to be worthy of such a country.

But his idea of this great country of America is molded about the love and veneration in which he holds Linoln and Roosevelt — leaders whose ideals have been condemned again and again by men with such picayunish minds as that of McDowell's and other members of America's Number One Subversive Committee.

Following the ideals of those heroes, these new Americans are to have their much-desired citizenship taken from them upon the whim of an individual who scarcely knows what America means. Can you blame them, then, if they in very truth renounce the ideals of America and in bitter frustration become what this un-American Committee pretends to judge them for being?

If we wish to save America from Communism, we have been told again and again, we must make America so attractive, so desirable, that no one would ever think of changing even one iota of its system. Depriving a citizen of his American citizenship will not turn him from the path of Communism. It will only make him more determined to go farther in that way.

War To Save Greed

If we have another war—and for some reason or other the fear of one seems to have darkened the very air about us—it will "not be a war for freedom," Henry Wallace says. "It will be a war for the salvation of entrenched greed."

"Frightened as greedy men, fearing the chaos of domestic depression, doubting our ability to have full production and full employment in peace, may drive us to war on the slightest pretext," he told a rally sponsored by the Eastern Pennsylvania Chapter of the Progressive Citizens of America in Philadelphia recently.

You can sense the fear of those worshipers of the private profit system everywhere. And if they can transmit that fear into us—into the millions of American citizens who decide what our government shall be—we will unconsciously walk down the plank to destruction as trustingly as the cattle follow their leader to death in the slaughter houses of Chicago.

Their fear, of course, is the loss of their power, of the billions of profits they have made from the labor of others. But they tell us they fear that our much-loved "American free enterprise system" is endangered. And many millions of us are fools enough to believe them. And to follow them to our own destruction—dying that they and their system of greed might live.

Shall we not as free men and women stand on our own feet and think for ourselves on such momentous questions? Shall we continue to be fooled into the belief we are fighting to "save America," to save the system of "free enterprise," when in reality it is nothing but a war to save the wealth of the greedy in high places?

Let us make up our minds that in this coming year of 1948 we will not follow any leader down to the slaughter, like dumb driven cattle. Let us make up our minds right now, and stick to it through all the months that follow that in 1948, perhaps the most heart-searching year of American history, we will fight and vote only for liberal candidates from the president down.

If we elect a president who is for the people, and if we give him a Congress to work with who is for the people,, we ourselves need have no fear of either a war or a depression. And then we can let those who have made their money out of labor, starve along for themselves.

Vishinsky Lashes Enemy

Who is that enemy?

There are so many. Vishinsky named John Foster Dulles, an American delegate to the United Nations, as influencing the United States to adopt a foreign policy which "cannot but lead to war" with the Soviet Union.

For two and one-half hours Vice Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky in a press interview, the first he has ever granted while attending the United Nations, lashed out against the warmongers in the United States who have made profits out of all wars and who evidently seem bent on another in order to make more profits.

The Soviet Foreign Minister said his criticisms were directed against "individuals, some institutions, capitalistic monopolists, some parts of the press, and some representatives of the government"—all who are actively engaged in promoting fear and distrust of the Soviet Union. He could not understand, he said, why such persons could not be put into prison—"the warmongers, provocateurs and instigators of slaughter who are the most offensive criminals against freedom, progress, and the happiness of mankind.

"No, those who helplessly drop their hands before the unbridled warmongers take great responsibility toward millions of common people over whose living bodies they want to run this terrible death machine.'

It was exhilirating to read and hear that at long last the worm had turned. Millions in the United States have heard and read nothing but lies about the Soviet Union. They believed them. They heard nothing else. Many never wanted to hear anything else. Now at least Russia is challenging the people of the United States to think for themselves a bit.

Mr. Vishinsky said the United States and Britain should take their troops out of Greece and Turkey. We certainly have no more right to keep our trained soldiers in Greece than the Soviet Union would have to send troops to Mexico or Central America—to promote Communism there as we profess to prevent it in Europe, where it's none of our business anyway what the people do.

Mr. Vishinsky included others in his category of warmongers besides Mr. Dulles. Among them was Walter Winchell. He called him a cheap liar. And if you listened to W.W.'s reply on Sunday night, you'd agree with the Vishinsky label. W. W. is either a cheap liar or a nit-wit or a conceited ass. Or all three in one.

And yet W.W. could do, and in many instances has done, such a good job in exposing evil! The harm done by Mr. Winchell is in telling so many half-truths, which in reality are worse than downright lies.

But after this outburst by Mr. Vishinsky, which like a tonic, should arouse us out of our lethargy, what are some of the evils we should combat on our own soil?

There are threats to the peace in our own land which may act as reprecussions to set off a world conflagration. There is the growing tension between capital and labor. When big shipping companies can suddenly decide to shut down all harbors without a moment's notice, although labor unions must give a notice of at least 60 days, does not that threaten the peace and security of the nation? And perhaps of the world?

We point the way to war by talking the Red Scare everywhere and always. Perhaps we'll have sense enough to shut up, now that a bold spokesman has asked us to put up, and we know we can't. We need to talk about the strikes in this country, the high prices, the impossible rents, the increditable housing situation, the racial discrimination, the lack of a FEPC, the segregation, the restrictive covenants. Oh, there are dozens of rotten situations in our counry that need to be taken care of.

So let's stay at home and mend our own fences and clean our own back yards. Thank you, Mr. Vishinsky, for that slap in the face. It may serve to open our eyes a bit.

17 Years of Service to The Community

The Golden State Mutual Life Insurance Company is celebrating 17 consecutive years of splendid service to the community by adopting a new method of divided payment which marks another step forward in this progressive company's plan to render the best possible service to its policy holders.

Under the new method as dividends are declared on policies for each year, they are added to the face amount of the policy as paid-up additional insurance. This increases the value of the policy automatically. The dividends date back to 1946. This method has brought unexpected additional money to 74 beneficiaries of death claims paid during the past year.

Golden State is one of the outstanding insurance companies of the country, and The California Eagle congratulates it upon its progressive program.

THINGS I SEE

By Marian Inglewood

Helen Gahagan Douglas, our member of Congress from the 14th Congressional District, a dynamo of energy, virtually tore the 80th Congress to shreds at a meeting held recently of the 64 A. D. club.

Her subject was "The Shame of the 80th Congress," and as she told the story every decent American citizen should hang his head in shame at the antics of the representatives whom we sent to Washington to make the laws for the country. And this in spite of the heroic efforts of R. A. Taft to bamboozle the American people into believing that Congress was and is the best ever!

Mrs. Douglas characterized this present Congress as an angry Congress, as one dominated by hate. "Scarcely had the prayer of the chaplain ended," she said, "in fact, we could still hear its echoes in the hall, when someone would jump up and begin a tirade against the labor unions, or against FDR, or price control, or OPA, or even Wallace's pigs—those pigs, you know, that the government bought when Roosevelt first took office because the farmers had no corn to feed them, and then had them killed and processed and given to those on relief."

She said you'd hear that sort of thing all day long and every day that Congress was in session. For nine solid weeks they "held an inquisition over that outstanding public servant, David Lilienthal, which fortunately backfired the same as the investigation of Howard Hughes."

Congress, maintains Mrs. Douglas, should work for the prosperity of all people; it should work for a balanced economy; it should uphold the Constitution and the Bill of Rights; it should work for a lasting peace. But the 80th Congress did none of these things. At least not in its first session. The second session will begin next January, and if the members of Congress can be made tot feel by the people back home that their jobs are in jeopardy, they may ment their ways next year.

The session just ended was dominated completely by Wall street, said Mrs. Douglas. "They hated people. They put pennies before persons. They were willing to sell out the peace of the world for the cash rise on a bag of wool. Day after day they came on the floor with the cry, 'Economize! Economize! Economize!'

"But they economized only when it was a question of helping the people. They took away the school lunch for millions of little children, who will suffer now from rickets and other diseases because of malnutrition. They cut the funds for the labor department, for the agricultural department. The conservation program was cut to the bone at the mement when the world is crying for food. The appropriation for power plants was cut to the roots. And then," she added, "Governor Warren had the gall to come to Washington and say California needed more power plants, when his whole party voted to cut down that power."

Mrs. Douglas described graphically how bills were sent through Congress at the behest of Wall Street, how votes were changed to conform with its wishes. The vote of every member is recorded as he votes, she explained. But when the "Aye" votes seemed to be getting toward a majority, if it was a measure Big Business did not want carried, the speaker of the House simply stopped the voting for a while, and someone went around among those who had voted and told them to change their votes. At the end before the votes were counted, those members got up and requested that their votes be changed to "No." And the measure was lost.

"Wall Street had spoken," said Mrs. Douglas. "It was obeyed.

"No," she answered a questioner, "President Truman's veto of the Taft-Hartley Act could not have been sustained, not even if he had gone down on his hands and knees and crawled all the way from the door to the speaker's stand, and pleaded, 'Please, please, vote yes for the vetot'."

Mrs. Douglas is one of a group of only five in that House of Representatives of more than 400 who has a voting record of 100% on all progressive measures.

"We feel very lonely sometimes," she complained. "We are out-voted on every issue."

That is the tragedy of this 80th Congress. No matter how many good measures may be presented —FEPC, anti-lynching, anti-poll tax, and all the other liberal laws we have been fighting for —Mrs. Douglas has only one vote. No matter how hard she fights, she is not able to change one stubborn reactionary Congressman. She is not Wall Street. She represents the people.

Yet we, the people, are responsible for that shameful reactionary 80th Congress. We voted for them—those stupid reactionaries. We elected them. We elected them by staying at home on election day. And if we don't want a worse 81st Congress, we'd better make up our minds right now to vote, and vote for all liberals, and get our friends and neighbors to vote in 1948.

THE LIVING SOUTH

By Harold Preece

Copyright, 1947, by New South Features

You can't put out a volcano with soapsuds. And you can't stop the fascist bedbugs in bedsheets by soft soaping the people about what they are up to.

If we look at the increasingly grave fascist danger in America with the eyes of grown folks instead of the eyes of babies nursing their bottles, we'll understand that we'll all wind up drinking soapsuds and liking it if we don't act cussed quick to put out that volcano called racism.

That's what I've been thinking when I've been reading in the papers about two recent reports on raacism that will probably be in my mail when this column is before your eyes.

The first report issued by Dr. Elmo Roper, in the form of a survey made by Fortune magazine, was issued just aboua a week ago. It shows how far the policy of throwing soapsuds on the volcano of racism has gotten us. It shows how many confused, bewildered, bedevilled Americans have already been scorched by racism while polite, genfeel liberals have been mixing up soapsuds in the form of noble "inter-racial" sermons and resolutions.

JIM CROWING THE JEWS

Granting the margin of error that you have to assume in judging any human calculations, more than one-third of the American people—36 percent —now feel that the Jews have "too much economic power." Twenty-one percent—more than one-fifth — believe that this ancient and fine old people, just recently the victims of the worst human slaughter in history, exercise too much political power even though we have never had a Jewish president and but few Jewish governors of states.

Only 10 percent believe that the Jews, victims of discrimination as are Negroes, deserve better breaks in this democracy whose constitution guarantees everybody an even break.

Negroes fare much better in this annual poll of public opinion on race relations taken by one of America's swank magazines. Thirty-four percent of the people favor giving Negroes a better break, according to the figures made public by Dr. Roper and Fortune.

Only 8 percent of the population feels that the Negro is a "menace" economically and politically. Which speaks volumes for the change of opinion in the South whose traditional prejudice should normally have made that figure much higher.

But, friends, don't start patting yourselves on the backs and start calling the Lord's covenant people of Israel "damned Jews" as you have been called "damned niggers." Because fascist propaganda in this period is intended to get members of minorities to fighting each other by soft pedalling the anti-Negro line and accenting the anti-Jewish line—until the day when Herman Talmadge of Georgia or somebody like him takes over in Washington and begins pitching all of us into the volcano hell of fascism.

That's the meat of the first report I've been talking about. And the second report follows the first like a good hanging ought to follow a lynching.

According to an exclusive story in the Sept. 20 issue of the Chicago Defender, the President's Civil Rights Committee is due to make a report just about now recommending sweeping civil rights legislation to outlaw discrimination and the threatened mass murder of minorities in our America.

LAW OR SOAPSUDS

If this report is going to be more than some Truman soapsuds—mixed up with a lot of Greece—the forward-looking people are going to have to see that its recommendations become law. Otherwise, the whole report will be nothing more than a part of the whole phoney liberal front which the phoney Truman administration is putting up to campaign against the just-as-phoney Republicans like "why don't you eat less" Bob Taft in next year's elections.

Otherwise, it will be pouring a pint of soapsuds on a volcano flaring up and belching hate and death from Maine to California.

There are some mighty good recommendations in that report—including a $10,000 fine and a 20-year prison term for being mixed up in a lynching. The report also calls attention to the need for federal FEPC legislation, improved educational facilities for the great mass of the people, and so on. America has been waiting for some sort of a government body to make just such a report and we ought to make enactment of its provisions one of our main campaign issues come election time in '48.

However, the report which I have not yet seen, should include a recommendation for the repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act so that Negroes can organize with white workers into unions and thereby build the most solid foundation for democracy, without being harassed by this foul piece of legislation which the Devil cooked up in the mind of his two henchmen in Washington—Bob Taft and Fred Hartley. Maybe, such a provision would have been highly displeasing to Charles Wilson, who is not only chairman of the President's committee but also president of the big union-hating corporation, General Electric.

I'd like to see us get the soapsuds out of our eyes and the soft soap off our tongues. I'd like to see us man the fire engines which are all out political action and smother that volcano before it burns up America.

CLEANING WINTER CLOTHES?

Safety experts advise you to use non-inflammable, non-poisonous and non-explosive cleaning fluids if possible. Clearly label any poisonous cleaners and keep them out of the children's reach, Roger C. Plaisted, accident prevention director for the Los Angeles Red Cross chapter, warns.

Let's Elect De Silva

The friends of Joseph T. DeSilva, candidate for the State Legislature from the 63rd Assembly District in the special election November 4, are rolling up a substantial majority in that election.

DeSilva is executive secretary of the Retail Clerks Local, AFL, and is one of the most militant leaders in the AFL. He has the backing not only of his own Labor Union, but also that of the CIO, the Railroad Brotherhoods, and all the progressive businessmen and working people of his district.

We need men of his calibre to represent us in Sacramento. There are all too few of them there now. And just as Mr. DeSilva has been a fighting man in his AFL Retail Clerks Union, fighting against every form of discrimination, so we know he will be fighting for the people in a larger sense when he has the opportunity to help make the laws that govern the State of California.

The California Eagle endorses Joseph T. DeSilva for the State Assembly from the 63rd District.

The many friends of Mrs. Ida Brandon, who lives with her daughter Mrs. Phillip Brown, 1264 West 36th street, are sorry to hear of her illness, and wish for her a speedy recovery.

Volunteer for Community Chest Work

A call has gone out from Community Chest headquarters for 46,000 volunteers to work in the Community Chest campaign, which will be known as the Red Feather campaign, from October 15 to November 15.

The total amount required for the 159 agencies embraced in the Chest is $7,322,- health, welfare, youth, hospitals, clinics, children's homes, and dozens of other services to be rendered to the people of 240. The agencies include veterans, Los Angeles and outlying districts. Only the funds, which have been pared to the one campaign is held each year to collect minimum by months of checking and rechecking, instead of worrying the public by having a separate ampaign for each of the 159 different organizations serving the people through the Chest.

All who volunteer are asked to give a few days, half days, or evenings of their time to this community service, when and where convenient. It is the kind of service in which all can give gladly and freely of what they have, if not so much in money, at least in telling others of the need and the great good the Community Chest is doing for the people who must have help.

General campaign headquarters are at 729 South Figueroa st. MI. 8821. Chairman for the Adams-Central and the South Park dishtricts are: Bernard F. Jefferson, 4251½ South Avalon blvd., and Mrs. J. S. Peach, 1615 East 52nd street.

W. J. Wheaton Says

The news of the week, that is to say the most sensational news of the week, is the renouncing of racial ties by a white minister. One is not surprised when a Negro, bedeviled by laws and custom tries to go Aryan, but when a prominent Aryan renounces his all and throws in his lot with the underdog, that's news. A Rev. Kenneth Patterson, white Madison, Wis., Unitarian minister, says that he felt uncomfortable in his role as a white man and was casting his lot with the colored peoples of the world. It is said that his wife and many of his congregation agreed with his decision and concluded to do likewise. It is hoped that their effort to bring about a better understanding between people of different colors will prove successful and teach some others that color is no stigma.

The recent appointment of a Negro educator as principal in one of San Francisco's public schools should not be the cause for much excitement and comment. The man in question was appointed for his efficiency, as were a number of other selections. There was racial sympathy and to deem it such not alone embarasses the persons who selected him but, partially nullifies his ability as an educator, and for that ability he was appointed. It is to be deplored that he should be singled out for special honors; if such is to be done the suggestion would be in order to invite all of the new appointees along with the appointer and thus show appreciation and interest in the whole system of our public schools and interest in the education of our youth without regard to color or racial lineage.

The poll for the three women who had contributed most to the happiness and welfare of the world was given recently. They were Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of the late President Franklin D., Ethel Barrymore and Kate Smith. They are the three worthy women who in the opinion of the judges are the feminine standouts of the year. It being impossible to name all of the worthy women, of all the worthy endeavors, whether they be white or Negro, whatever the color or race, the consensus was the three selections.

Senator Robert Taft has made his political survey throughout the coastal and northwest regions. He came, he saw, but we can not have a belief he conquered.

The contestants for the various offices to be filled in San Francisco in November, have pulled the lid off the political pot and the campaign is in full swing. The question who is best fitted for mayor is the uppermost question. The three most talked of, Franck R. Havenner, Judge Robinson, Supervisor Chester McPhee, are the men on the political spot. So far Franck R. Havenner, who represents the fourth district in congress, appears to have the edge. Judge Robinson started his campaign some months past and the public is well acquainted with his views as to how the city should be governed and his panacea for its ills. McPhee has been somewhat handicapped by Mayor Roger Latham, who is persona non gratis, with the public, and who has endorsed him. The citizens of San Francisco don't want anything that savors of Latham and MPhee has lost prestige through the Latham endorsement.

Franck R. Havenner, aside from his experience as a public servant in his capacity of congressman and his term as a member of the Railroad Commission, now the State Utility Commission, served 11 years or more as a supervisor in the city and county of San Francisco, Havenner is well acquainted with the needs of the city and has known it from the days, or nights, when he plodded the waterfront in quest of news, in those days he was a star reporter. He came through the times that the city was making history. He knows its needs as no other does.

BOOKS and AUTHORS

Twin Pines by Harvey Smith is a modern family story reminiscent of Claudia. The parents are very much in love with each other but have the usual differences. They always make up eventually and stick together, especially when reflections are cast against either one of them. Mother usually manages to get her way by means of adroit maneuverings, but occasionally when father has imbibed too much he is a bit difficult. Even that she handles without too much friction however.

The young son and daughter have their own problems and are in turn problems to their parents. The boy is continually running away, first from home, then from boarding school. From the time he is eight until he enlists in the Marines he worries the family, but then they are very proud of him and forgive all past escapades. A pleasant novel to pick up for an evening's entertainment.

A LAYMAN'S VIEW

By Leon W. Steward

CENTRAL AVENUE TO HAVE CHRISTMAS LIGHTS

We read in an earlier issue of the California EAGLE that Central avenue, where the high cost of living is higher and evidences of a common concern regarding its welfare has been totally lacking for at least the few years we have been treading there, will be properly (?) bedecked at Christmas time. It appears that a group of Central avenue merchants have finally taken time out from cashing in on the lush profits which the city's festest spenders have been yielding since the advent of war, for a session at which they decided to make their trade area less unattractive at least during the Christmas season, when just about every other trade or shopping area is bedecked with the season's red and green.

Leon Steward

Last Christmas several dozen people remarked to us or in our hearing sentiments registering all the way from disappointment to stark resentment that "Central avenue is the only shopping area where the merchants have not seen fit to decorate in keeping with the season." Several asked us to comment on this in this column. We replied, as we often do when persons suggest certain kinds of topics for our discussion in this space, that we seriously doubt that the people who are guilty of such offenses are the kind that read feature columns. In fact most of the people who do business on Central avenue are not residents of the district and have only one mission in the district and that is a strictly business one.

Yes, business is their mission, and they seldom if ever concern themselves over the welfare of the blocks or street which furnishes their business opportunity. It has never occured to most of them that most of the people who come into their stores, shops and offices come from blocks where everyone is watering and cultivating grass and flowers to make their home environment lovely and livable. Many of them, living less than a block from Central avenue not only keep their yards clean and green but also clean streets in front of their property. These merchants have scarcely noticed that their patrons are becoming provoked with the filth of the side streets just off Central ave. and the little and filth of the very sidewalks in front of their places of business.

One day we were noting a stream of papers littering the sidewalk. They had been wrappers on ice cream bars sold at the drug store on the corner of 43rd pl. and Central ave. When we reached the store front the manager, or a young Caucasian who said he was the manager, was coming out of the door. We mentioned the mess that the wrappers were making and asked if there was anything that could be done about it. He replied, "Yes, the city could put a waste paper can out there." We asked if he had tried to get one and he simply replied nonchalantly, "That's their business"—meaning the city's.

Well, let us hope that this group when it meets does not stop at Christmas decorations. Let's have a group of businessmen who are going to take an interest in giving these people who are paying the highest prices in town a neighborhood shopping district clean and decent enough in which to trade and one that reflects appreciation of their trade. This is our first discussion of the subject. There will be others coming. Maybe you will want to call them to the attention of the proper parties.

Why We Should Have A New Political Party

By BENJAMIN VAGANOV

Benjamin Vaganov, 4160 Cleveland avenue, San Diego, veteran of two world wars, miner, factory worker, artist, painter, former columnist to the United Nations Conference at San Francisco, and above all, as he expresses it: "one naturalized citizen who accepted our democracy as our ancestors established it," has the following to say about the organization of a Third Party.

The time and changes! How fast they got over the ground; how light the traces they leave behind them!

One hundred and sixty years ago we proclaimed: "We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of our liberty, do ordain and establish this constitution for the United States of America."

This constitution provided us with three branches of the government, the duties of which are to legislate, to execute, and to judge our country in the frame of constitution.

Two branches of our government today fail to carry out their duties. The legislative and executive branches fail to apply and to enforce Article 15, Section 1 of the amendment to the constitution which says: "The right of a citizen of the United States to vote shall not be denied nor abridged by the United States or by any state on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude.

The legislative branch failed also to act in order to enforce section 2 of this same article which says, "The congress shall have the power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation."

The legislative branch of our government decided also to violate Article 1 of the amendment to the constitution which says: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press or the right of the people peacefully to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievance."

The executive branch of the government failed in the application to all citizens of Article 4 of the amendment to the constitution, which says: "The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated and no warrant shall be issued but upon probable cause supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized."

Above all our traditional motto, "one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all," was mocked by the executive order with the creation of second class citizens from whom the un-American oath was required.

This long train of abuses and usurpations practiced by those two branches of our government is placing the third one, the judicial branch, in a jeopardizing situation. So far, although it was slow in its actions, the judicial branch generally was worthy of the traditions of our ancestors, but it is on trial today.

The responsibilities for all these things might be placed directly on the inertia of the general masses of citizens themselves, but mainly on two corrupt political machines, Democratic and Republican alike, who changed so easily the fundamental ideals of our ancestors to the greed for power and money.

Shall we continue to be inert and by this allow those corrupted political machines to secure the special privileges and interests of special groups; or shall we be worthy of our ancestors and follow the precedent set by John Hancock and others?

If we follow the first course it wouldn't be an exaggeration to state that our continued inertia will help those corrupted political machines to crucify the sacred fundamentals of our America on the cross of special privileges and interests of special groups.

Following the second course we could loudly declare: It is our right, it is our duty to throw off the rule of such political parties and to provide new guards to our future security. The late history of both parties is a history of repeated injuries which point toward the establishment of absolutism over our people.

Our oncestors foresaw the tendency of certain individuals to some form of absolutism and they provided the limited terms for the elected officers of our government. But it was above their imaginations that our America would have two political parties with the same ideology which would create a corrupted political machine, and with this the absolutism over the people.

Therefore in the name and the authority of the good people we should establish a new political party—the people's party—which would destroy the system of special privilege for power and money, which would bring our constitution back to life, and put into practice undelayed justice, domestic tranquility, common defense, general welfare, liberty to ourselves and our posterity, and peace toward the rest of the world.

Dr. Frank G. Zeta

By PHYLLIS SCOTT

Unfrightened by injudicious forecasts of an unsuccessful undertaking, Dr. Frank G. Zetar entered a not-too-celebrated field and introduced the Negro community to a branch of health science virtually unknown to them before. Although it is difficult to place one's finger on any definite evidence when Negroes first began to accept chiropractics as a profession, it can be said that Frank G. Zetar has had tremendous influence on its acknowledgement in this community.

As an established chiropodist back in '32 he found many existing foot disabilities that could not be healed by treating the foot alone. It was at that time that he realized certain limitations to get the required results for his patients and undertook the study of chiropractics.

His decision was strengethened by the fact that his mother, who suffered many rheumatic ailments, responded to manipulation of the body and heat treatments, and the chiropractic profession offered this type of therapy.

In the early days of his profession he focused his attention on the ailments that were most prevalent in the community in which he practiced; namely foot disabilities, gastro-intestinal disorders, and rheumatics. With this thought in mind he realized that if he could relieve those whose bodies were racked with aches and pains, the name of chiropractics didn't matter. Patients would return again and again. And that's what happened.

It is his belief that the only reason more people haven't accepted chiropractics as a profession or as a healing therapy is that they know nothing about it. A patient, who was in the office on the date of this interview, told me that she had gone to Dr. Zetar's by mistake but after one treatment was sorry not to have known about it sooner.

For all its adversities, chiropractics has had a tremendous success. There seems to be an eagerness on the part of the people to learn more about it. Even in Port Au Prince, Haiti an EAGLE subscriber read about Zetar's treatments and wants to come to California as his patient.

As natural as sunlight, fresh air, and proper dieting, chiropractics embodies this and more, such as exercise, release of nervous tension through spinal manipulation, water treatments, and posture correction. Dr. Zetar is now planning to incorporate Children's Clinic to give needy children proper health and postural treatments.

Zetar, who is a native of Rayne, Louisiana, came to Los Angeles in 1923. He attended the public schools of Louisiana and Los Angeles, received extensive business training in business colleges in the city. In 1932 he was graduated from the American College of Orthopedics in Chicago and later, finished from the Los Angeles College of Chiropractic.

A few months ago he celebrated his 19th wedding anniversary to Alfretta J. Zetar. Their three children, Geraldine Marie, Frank Garry Jr., and Eleanor Alfretta have their parental devotion and loyal friendship. Completing the happy, close-knit family is Mrs. Zetar's mother, Mrs. Lecter Zetar, who lives with them at the spacious home.

Of the many professional and civic organizations, he is a member of the National Chiropractic Association, California Chiropractic Association, charter member of the Chiropractic Hospital Association, 32nd Degree Mason Shriner, YMCA, NAACP, and present chairman of the scholarship committee of Phi Beta Sigma fraternity. The Zetars are members of First AME church, 8th and Towne.

His leisure time activities include golfing, swimming, hiking and horseshoe pitching. The Smile, which is one of the first rules of health, is the Zetar trademark. His patient but determined fight to make chiropractics a recognized healing therapy in this community has no doubt been the influencing factor in more Negroes entering the field.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the 31,000 Scouts and Scouters of the Los Angeles Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, I congratulate you in commemoration of Newspaper Week in California October 1 to 8.

Freedom of the press is one of the tremendously important items listed in our Bill of Rights. The Boy Scouts of America, having been chartered by the congress of the United States, is pledged to make the program of Scouting available to all boys, regardless of race, color or creed. The cooperation of a free press is a necessary factor in helping us achieve this objective.

The purpose of the Scout Program is to develop the character of our boys and train them for citizenship through the use of Volunteer Leaders. Again, this ideal could not be realized unless the boys of today who are the citizens of tomorrow, have the opportunity of reading the current news in a free press.

The contribution to the war effort of your newspaper and all others, whether they are Daily's or Weekly's, is well known. The challenge which faces youth today is greatly appreciated, particularly with th elimitation of news print. As we are aware of the handicaps under which you are working, I trust that we may be of some service to you in the near future, and will be ready to do a good turn when called on. As you know, our purpose in this greatest of all Boy Organizations is to build character and to train for citizenship. Your aim and purpose is somewhat the same as ours, and I know that we will be able to work together throughout the years to come. We do appreciate the many courtesies and the fine cooperation give by you in the past, and will give you our whole-hearted support in the future.

Sincerely yours,
Assistant Scout Exec.
GLEN RICE,

ASKS AID FOR STUDENTS

Dear Editor:

I hope this article will be published in behalf of the Negro boys and girls who are more than willing to make something out of their lives and future, but who are at a standstill because of financial difficulties. It seems to me that we, as a race, could use a few more good doctors, attorneys, and dentists, etc. There are quite a few boys and girls I know personally who have finished high school with flying colors and are eager to go on, but are unable to do so because of lack of funds.

Well, what are we going to do about it? Sit back and let their ambitions become pipe dreams? You, doctors and attorneys, etc., concentrate for a minute. What if you were one of these unfortunate people? What if your parents were unable to help you through school? Or if you had to use all of your earnings to take care of home troubles? What would have become of you?

Such thoughts do not enter into the minds of successful business men, because they do not think of the other person. It seems to me this is a little selfish on their part. I'm not saying they have forgotten how to do kind deeds, for I know myself they have offered their services to those who needed it and didn't ask for pay. They did this gladly if they knew those people they helped were unable to pay.

Let's take you attorneys, for instance. Wouldn't it be grand if you would get together and select one boy who had the qualifications of becoming a torney would make a pledge good lawyer, and each attorney would make a pledge to set aside a dollar or so each week for the schooling of the boy?

Just think what this would mean to that boy. One more Negro would be on his way to success. Take this boy in your hands. Guide him, help him along. And when he has reached success, you can be proud you took part in something worthwhile. The same can be done by doctors and dentists. Let each profession choose a person and see to it that he or she gets the right to be schooled.

I would gladly render my service to such a cause, although I would not be able to help right now with the funds, because I, too, am struggling for success. But you can rest assured that I will do more than my part when I am able to. I am a song writer. Yes, it is true I do have a few records on the market. But I am sure that would be farther than I am today if our Negro musicians would stop to think that I am a young girl, trying to make something of myself. But, no, they are successful, and have no time even to look at my work to see if they can use it. I need no funds to carry on my song writing — just a helping hand from those who have reached the top.

I hav enoticed that we, as a race, are very selfish after we have reached success. Do we worry about the other fellow? Do we lend a helping hand to help some one else have success? I think my idea is worth thinking about, and worth putting into action.

So let each profession get together and adopt a qualified student, and help him with his schooling. You successful doctors and attorneys, give a fellow a break.

LABOR ON THE MARCH

By THEODORE JOHNSON

The Waterfront Employers Association has launched a new lock out strategy against CIO walking bosses this week which may result in a tieup of the entire Pacific Coast waterfront.

The WEA is depending upon the Taft-Hartley law to protect them in violating the contract with the International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union. "It's aim is to destroy all gains made by the Union over many years," declared Harry Bridges, president of the ILWU.

The waterfront employers called the lockout following a months' long campaign against recognition of the ILWU as the bargaining agent for the walking bosses or foremen. The employers contend that the foremen are a part of the management, and so have no right to organize.

The foremen in Washington and Oregon, however, have organized and they were recognized by the shipowners in those two states. Contracts were signed by the employers and the foremen's union of the CIO, and there is no strike there and no lockout.

But in the Los Angeles-Long Beach area all harbors were ordered to be closed tight beginning last Tuesday at midnight for an indefinite period. In issuing a statement the employers made it clear that they were forcing the issue as a test of the Taft-Hartley law.

After receiving a report of the employers' attitude, the Los Angeles CIO executive Council called on the more than 100 CIO unions "to give full and unstinted support—moral, phyical, and financial—to the longshoremen."

"The Council regards this as one of the first real significant tests of the Taft-Hartley slave law," said Philip M. Connelly, executive council secretary.

Continued attempts will be made, however, to adjust the differences. The employers can handly be consistent, it was pointed out, to recognize a foremen's union in some sections of the Coast and not in others. Besides it will be rather difficult for the Waterfront Employers Association to explain to the public the shutdown of a whole harbor, when all they have to do is recognize a foremen's union and be willing to sit at a table and discuss conditions with them.

Europe Has Alternative To the Marshall Plan

By PAUL FRENCH
(Third in a series)

Directly after Secretary Marshall spoke of "the Marshall plan" on June 5, Britain's Foreign Minister Bevin called 22 countries to meet at Paris to confer on it. Molotov went to see what the plan was, how it was to be carried out, on what conditions and just how much aid America would give. Nobody could tell him what America might give—or rather loan, since it was not even supposed to 'give' anything.

But Bevin and Bidault had, very clearly with instructions from Washington, cooked up quite a plan of administration of "the plan" by themselves as a "steering committee," to supervise the smaller nations, and with power to allot, or withhold, American loans to such smaller nations—and to themselves—not according to the needs of these countries, but according to productive schemes worked out by these two big nations on the 'steering committee."

"There exist two forms of international cooperation," said Molotov in finally rejecting the Marshall-Bevin-Bidault plan, "one being the development of political and economic relations between states possessing equal rights—in that case their national sovereignty does not suffer from foreign interference," and—secondly—where "one or several strong powers" dominate over others, and as a price for their "cooperation" actually deprive these other countries of their real independence. He pointed out that, because England or France might need foreign markets for certain products, Poland or Czechoslovakia might be required to stop producing such things, if they wanted an American loan. Moscow would not join such unequal "cooperation."

This walk-out by the USSR and eight other countries which, after closely studying what they might get into and not get out of, followed its advice, left 16 countries, many of whom had not fought in the war, or even had been allies of Hitler, to accept the Marshall plan. Turkey, Sweden and Portugal being among those who did not fight at all, but rather profiteered from the war. Italy and Austria having fought on Hitler's side. And, as later revealed, Germany itself—the British-American zones containing all the biggest Nazi war industries, the prize of international reactionary cartels—was to get the biggest share of American capitalists controlled them! In partnership, apparently, with their former Nazi owners.

Great gobs of anti-Soviet propaganda broke out in the American press. The USSR was accused of "splitting Europe in two." Mark Ethridge of Kentucky, Truman's envoy in the Balkans, came back shouting that "Russia wants chaos." The L.A. Times' customarily stupid Polyzoides cried out on July 23, that the USSR "has adopted revolutionary poverty as its most effective weapon."

But, while loudly pretending that Russia was trying to "wreck European recovery," most reactionaries, as the New Republic (July 21) pointed out, were enthusiastic about "the split." Now they could build that anti-Soviet western bloc outlaw the USSR and its friendly neighbors, and could, so they thought, rebuild capitalism in western Europe and dominate it, too.

However, things began to happen that weren't in such a menu. Things which recalled Stalin's opinion, publicized many months ago, that, even if countries hostile to the Soviet Union wanted to, they could not 'encircle" the USSR, or bring effective pressure upon it to destroy its socialist system.

In mid-July, the Chicago Sun's man in Moscow, Alexander Kendrick, wired that there was "a Molotov plan" of international cooperation, based on the equality of all nations, going great guns in eastern Europe, and even lapping over into agreements between countries behind "the iron curtain" and many countries all over the map. He said:

"Trade agreements have been made between Bulgaria and Holland; between Poland and Switzerland; between Yugoslavia and Egypt; between Czechoslovakia and Austria; between Finland and Switzerland; between Poland and Austria; while Soviet-Hungarian, Soviet Czech, and Soviet-Bulgarian trade treaties are under negotiation. Rumania and Yugoslavia have come to agreement on the Danube; and Yugoslavia has even signed an agreement with a private corporation, the Ford Company of Egypt. All this has been done without benefit of any steering committee."

And Kendrick winds up (New Republic, July 14) by saying about Bevin's notion of organizing Europe without including the Soviet Union: "Anybody here will bet a hundred rubles it can't be done."

Since that was written a number of other trade treaties have been made, one very important between Bulgaria and Yugoslavia, the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia, and Bulgaria and Romania settled their Danube dispute and signed a "treaty of friendship and mutual aid" (United Press, July 17. On July 18, Hungary and the USSR signed a trade treaty whereby $30,000,000 of goods would be exchanged yearly, Russia sending Hungary raw cotton, iron ore, fertilizer, salt and chemicals, and Hungary sending Russia oil, steel, cotton goods, machine building machines, electrical equipment, tobacco and farm products.

(Noteworthy is the fact that, at the same time Hungary agreed to get cotton from the Soviet Union, the U. S. State Department haughtily cancelled a loan of $7,000,000 to Hungary, with which Hungary was to buy American cotton, giving as the reason, that Washington didn't like the Hungarian government. This is an excellent way to cut off foreign trade for America, as if it doesn't need it, and badly.)

On August 7, a British-American delegation from the western zones of Germany showed up—behind the "iron curtain" in Yugoslavia, and made a trade treaty for $100,000,000, with Marshal Tito, no less! And they report that they have already, quietly, done the same with Finland and Poland! Again, on August 10, England, the proud, had turned to Hungary, not to the USA, to buy food! Hungary, the awful "Soviet satellite"! And on top of all this, Britain goes entirely bust! Stops buying foods and films from the USA. France is falling into a similar crisis, Australia stops buying from the USA, and America stands to lose $4,000,000,000 a year in foreign trade!

No wonder that, on July 21, United Press, telling of a terribly secret meeting in Washington, where Secretary Marshall gave "a dark world picture," concluded by saying that this secret parley "underscored the fact that the secretary's widely-hailed plan for European recovery is in trouble at home and abroad, and that the rival Molotov plan for eastern Europe is away to a flying head-start." This is the story of a fashionable 18th century London girl who loves a man who does not love her but wants her money. Both live to regret their step. It is in diary form and tells frankly of her own vanity and foolishness. It is well told and gives the reader the impression of living in the story and experiencing life with Pamela.

Mrs. FDR's Race Relations Article Irks Rep. Rankin

WASHINGTON—"Communist propaganda" was the familiar charge hurled this week by Rep. John E. Rankin of Mississippi at a magazine article by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt on race relations.

Rankin made his attack during hearings before the Un-American Committee into the entry of Hollywood songwriter Hanns Eisler to the United States. His reference was to a section of Mrs. Roosevelt's page in the September issue of the Ladies Home Journal, entitled, "If You Ask Me."

A white mother wrote in that a Negro high school student had asked her daughter to go to the junior prom with him. The mother asked Mrs. Roosevelt "what would be your reaction to such a situation?"

Acknowledging that in America such a question was difficult to answer, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"If your daughter had known this young boy well, I do not think it was in any way astonishing that he should ask her to go with him, because if they had been on a purely friendly acquaintanceship basis, there was no more reason why she should not go with him than with any of the other boys whom she knew equally well."

Mrs. Roosevelt advised the mother not to "worry too much," about her daughter's school friends, adding that "I would be rather proud that a boy of another race felt that he could ask your daughter to go to a prom—which shows, I think, that her attitude has been kind and mature."

And that, according to Rankin, was the most insulting Communist propaganda ever thrown in the face of the white women of America." No Communist, he said, "could have given a more flagrant insult to the white women of America than did this article."

Daniels said he also asked Giolman, "Do you know that this country fought a war to liberate the Negro people and establish their rights? Do you know there is a law on the California statutes that says a restaurant that refuses service to Negroes can be prosecuted?"

Daniels said Giolman replied: "Let me worry about the law."

In a statement of principles, unanimously adopted, it was noted that millions of Americans "want a party which will fight for the policies of FDR" which are "carried on today by Henry Wallace and his supporters inside and outside the Democratic party," and that as presently constituted the people have no choice between the two major parties, both "captives of monopoly big business groups."

The conference pledged the new party to fight for: Price and rent control and adequate low-cost housing, the rights of labor, civil liberties for all the people, and equality for all without discrimination.

The rights of veterans to jobs and education and to the peace they won; security against the hazards of old age, sikness and unemployment; the rights of small farmers and small businessmen to economic security and justice; security against depression and monopoly domination of political and economic life; and support of the United Nations and world peace.

Hail Recovery Of Dr. Hudson

The many friends and well-wishers of Dr. H. Claude Hudson are rejoicing over the fact that after a long siege of illness the good doctor is on the road to complete recovery.

Dr. Hudson ran on the ticket in last November's election for a seat on the Board of Education. He proved to be a great favorite in that election and no doubt would have gained a seat had the people of the Eastside, where he is most popular, been registered to vote.

Dr. Hudson is an outstanding liberal and one ever ready to lend a hand in every movement for the advancement of the human race. He served as president of the local branch of the NAACP for ten years.

Wallace said the peoples of Europe and Asia were "not fooled" by the United States. "They know our interest in the Middle East is an interest in oil, not principles."

He suggested "the administration give evidence to the world that we are as concerned with Americans being deprived of the right of a ballot, as we are about the voting rights of peoples of eastern Europe, by sending a commission to supervise the election of a successor to Theodore Bilbo in Mississippi.

"If it is the right of the individual that concerns us," he added, "let us . . . stamp out jimcrow practices, and that greatest usurper of individual rights—unemployment."

Wallace called for "organized strength" to take "control of the country from Wall street." If we "organize rapidly and well," he said, "we can force the present administration to fight for the controls and rationing necessary to distribute current scarcity and enable all Americans to eat well."

HPA Welcomes Laws Family Home, Adopts New Fall Program

The regular meeting of the Home Protective Association last Friday evening took the form of a welcome home reception to the Laws family at their home, 1245 East 92nd street. The family had been visiting relatives & friends in Texas, and returned to Los Angeles only recently.

This family has been fighting the restrictive covenant injunction which has ordered them to leave their home because they are Negroes. They went to jail rather than obey this unconstitutional decree. The HPA is taking their case through the courts, and is now awaiting a long overdue decision from the State supreme court.

In aldition to discussing restrictive covenants and the best ways of fighting them, the HPA also discussed the high rents, high cost of living, police brutality, etc. at its meeting last Friday, believing that all are lumped together in the struggle of Negro Americans for the right to live as American citizens.

The fall program of the HPA was launched, and the following recommendations were adopted: That the regular meeting of the HPA be held the last Friday of each month; that there should also be one church meeting each month, and a rally every three months for the purpose of raising funds.

blished in the EAGLE for August 21. The article was based on Phillips' personal experience and investigation during a tour of the Caribbean area.)

Ambassador Vallarino in a letter to Perry had written:

"Article 17, Law 54, 1938, still in froce, requires that any person of prohibited immigation to the Republic of Panama, should ask the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, through the Panamanian Consul at the Port of Embarkation, permission to visit the country only for 20 days, and if granted, the applicant must make a deposit of $500 at that consulate, to guarantee his return to the country of origin."

(In his story in the EAGLE, written in Panama City, Phillips told of his difficulties in getting a special permit to land in Panama, commented on the fact that Art. 17, Law 54, conflicts with Art. 23 of the U. S. Panama treaty of 1903, which bound Panama not to pass any laws affecting the rights of American citizens without consent of the United States.)

Perry has also filed a protest with the ambassador from Guatemala, whose country is likewise accused of barring Negro Americans.

Quarterly Social Enjoyed by Original Cavalrettes

The Original Cavalrettes and their husbands were entertained by members Kathryn Davis, Muriel Jefferson, and Dorothy Leonard in their quarterly social meeting held at the home of Mrs. Leonard recently.

Guests included the husbands and Mrs. Willa Mae Wright of Oklahoma City, a former member of the organiation, and Mr. and Mrs. Johnson.

Many interesting games were played, and prizes were won by every one.

After a delightful buffet luncheon the members motored to the home of Mrs. Rosa Johnson, on E. 53rd street, and Mrs. Wenonah Redd, on W. 35th street, from there to Mrs. Wilda Clarke's for breakfast.

The delightful affair ended with all parties treking to the beautiful rumps room of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Armstrong, on East 55th street.

How women and girls may get wanted relief from functional periodic pain

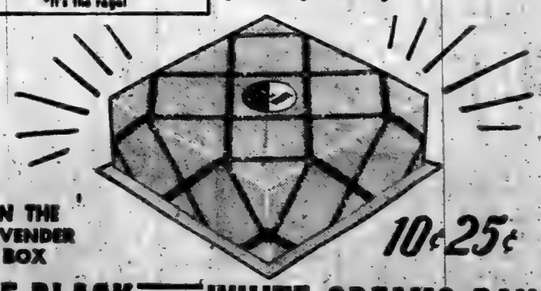
Cardui is a liquid medicine which many women say has brought relief from the cramp-like agony and nervous strain of functional periodic distress. Here's how it may help:



1- Taken like a tonic, it should stimulate appetite, aid digestion, thus help build resistance for the "time" to come.

2- Started 3 days before "your time", it should help relieve pain due to purely functional periodic causes.

Try Cardui. If it helps, you'll be glad you did.

YMCA To Launch Bigger Program For Local Youth

The 28th street YMCA announces that its youth program for the fall and winter will be the largest and most inclusive ever attempted by the Branch Youth Division.

Operating on the slogan: "More "Y" Activities for More Boys", the youth division staff is working over time getting things in readiness for the opening of the new program. The staff has been increased to nine full and part time secretaries and instructors who are under the leadership of Emory L. Gain, youth program director.

The program is designed along the lines of the new "Four Front" Club program sponsored by the National Council of the YMCA and embraces "Y" Indian Guides, Gray-Y, Jr. Hi-Y and Hi-Y for boys five to 18 years of age.

A greatly augmented Youth Program Committee will work with George E. Bryant as chairman, covering the various phases of the program such as camping, finance, program, community clubs, etc.

WHAT'S DOING IN THE SOCIAL SET

By JESSIE MAE BROWN

FRIENDS OF Dr. and Mrs. John Alexander Somerville received, in the mail this week, Script formal announcements of the couple's 35th anniversary of marriage. A reception will be held at their South Harvard Boulevard home on Oct. 16, and a host of their many friends will be present between the hours of 4 and 7 p.m., to help them celebrate the grand occasion. Thirty-five years is quite a long time, when you stop and actually think about it. However, when 35 years have been spent doing good in the community civically, religiously and socially, the years seem to slip by unnoticed . . .

Jessie Mae Brown

At this writing your scribe isn't quite up on the exact date or time, but when this reaches you, Atty. Martha Malone Williams, and Atty. Bernard Jefferson will probably have spoken marital vows. This will not come as a surprise to the couple's many friends, for most of them have been expecting it, since the courtship took on a serious note between the two prominent barristers early last summer. While chatting with Martha last week, I learned that the vows would be exchanged with no fanfare at all. She definitely plans to remain on her job, and the only change will be her name, Atty. Martha Malone Jefferson. At this point, congratulations are in order.

On next Sunday afternoon, from 4 until 6, the staff of the Los Angeles Public Library is honoring Miss Althea H. Warren, retiring City Librarian, and Mr. Harold L. Hamill, new City Librarian, in the Central Library rotunda. Thought this would be an interesting bit of info to the book mined . . . And to those interested in art, the Van Saake Art Exhibit which opened Wednesday at 9523 Santa Monica Blvd., Beverly Hills, is featuring two fine portraits of Negro children. If you happen to be interested, do attend the exhibition . . .

WEEK-END

The past week-end was sprinkled profusely with parties, football games and Greek-letter doings. Following the UCLA opener Friday night, the football enthusiast, especially the Alpha men, found their way to Skippy and Minghnon Smith's hilltop home, way out near City Terrace Drive, where it is easier to get lost than to find the place. We won't go into who was there, but all the college campuses were well represented, as were all the Greek letter orgs. The Sphinx men played host.

On Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith (Skippy and Minghnon) entertained a small group of friends, with a wee hour breakfast honoring the orchestra leader, Erskin Hawkins, and some of the men in the band who attended school with Skippy. This marked my first trip to the much heard of Smith hilltop manse, that is the last word in modern furnishings, from a custom-made radio, especially for the Smiths, to a marble-top dining room table. The food, prepared by Minghnon, assisted by Jessel King, was delicious, and the music, that could easily

Wives of Sigma Are Presented

The garden of the Westchester Place, home of Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Hardimon was a perfect setting for the presentation of the Wives of Sigma on Sunday afternoon between the hours of 3 to 5 p.m.

The charming matrons whose husbands hold membership in Phi Beta Sigma's graduate and undergraduate chapters, were outstanding in smart black attire with contrasting white gardenia corsages. The newly organized group of women received felicitations from some 400 guests who attended the delightful affair throughout the afternoon.

Officers of the group include: Mrs. H. A. Howard, president; Mrs. Luther Hudson, 1st vice president; Mrs. John P. Allen, 2nd vice president; Mrs. Frank G. Zetar, secretary; Mrs. S. P. Johnson, treasurer; Mrs. Aaron Douglas, Asst. secretary; Mrs. Albert Maddox, parlimentarian; Mrs. W. E. Hardimon, chaplain; Mrs. Dennis John, Sgt.-at-Arms and Mrs. Granvill Norman, reporter.

Now that the Wives of Sigma have been officially presented to the public, they are uniting all efforts toward making the Phi Beta Sigma Pre-Thanksgiving Dance, scheduled for Meadowbrook Gardens, a huge success.

Eastern Trip Ends In Nov.

Mrs. Charles Burris Sr., went East on Aug. 25, staying in Chicago, and Joliet, Illinois. She visited Scranton, Penn., and New York City, then on to Boston.

Mrs. Burris plans to return to Los Angeles during the latter part of November. She is visiting her mother in Boston, friends in Scranton, and Mrs. Emma Burris, her mother-in-law, in Joliet, also Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fields in Joliet, and her brother in Chicago.

Beta Pi Sigma Rush Party

Last weekend's social calendar was interluded with one of the loveliest Coffee Brunches, given by the Beta Pi Sigma sorority (Business and Professional) in a rush party for the fall pledges of '47.

Pokeno and Tripleau was enjoyed by all. Chairman of the day was Mrs. Bernice Nance.

With fashion cutting new figures in all the fall and winter clothes and most of the women trying to decide which will be her choice is interested in being among those present at the glamorous fashion premiere at Meadowbrook Ballroom.

Just a note of entertainment: Mabel Scott, Bal Tavern's one and only Jean Arthur and show; Jessie Cryar, Edith Wilson and some gorgeous dancers will be on hand.

Models will be of rare beauty, poise and personality. The public is invited to come out and help these sorority girls contribute to the West View Hospital. General Chairman is Jane Neely; Pres. Thelma Lee Wallace, Reporter Gwen Valentine.

The first meeting of the 1947 Jefferson PTA was held Sept. 25, with President Glover presiding, and Chairman Pulliam in charge of the program. Theme "Foundation a Bulwark for Human Development." The following gave short, but interesting talks: Mrs. Glover, Dr. Fisher, Mrs. Wheeden, and Mr. Farnham. Solos by Miss Viola Pulliam and Mrs. Hughes, the music director. Your co-operation is solicited in an effort to increase the PTA attendance.

Musical Is Key To Fall Opening Of P. H. C. C

The staff of Pilgrim House Community Center, under the leadership of Arthur J. Bacon, Jr., boys workers, presented Mrs. Pricilla Lortaine Kerr, soprano in recital in the Pilgrim House Auditorium Friday night. The event was in celebration of the third annual Fall Opening program.

The program was largely made of sacred music which was greatly enjoyed by an audience of the young people of the center and their parents and friends. The Y-Teen girls club of the center served as ushers.

Mrs. Kerr is formerly of Austin, Texas, where she attended expects to study music in Los Angeles.

REASON ENOUGH for this cheerful group was the linen shower Mrs. Israel Smith and the Youth choir of New Hope Bpt. Church gave honoring Miss Rosetta Williams Sunday afternoon. Miss Williams is director of the Sr., and Youth Choirs of New Hope. Left to right (standing): Lela Shumate, Burnis Johnson, Doris Lobe, Rosetta Williams, honoree, Bernice Johnston, Barbara Wilson; (sitting) Dorothy Williams, Beverly Brown, Israel Smith, Dorothy James, Christine Byrd and Savannah Redmon. Ninety gifts were registered at the shower that was held at Mrs. Israel Smith's home. The wedding date is Oct. 12, at New Hope Baptist church.

OLD FASHIONED and beautiful is this portrait of the former Mary Frances Williams and her bridesmaids. The maids' gowns were of ribbon taffeta featuring a madonna neckline and flowing train. Season's Most Fashionable

A wedding of rare beauty was solemnized on Sunday, Sept. 28, at the People's Independent Church of Christ, uniting the former Mary Frances Williams and William Maritoe Peterson. A sweetheart "old fashioned" theme was carried throughout and the color scheme was white with color contrast in the flowers.

The bride, who marched on the arm of her brother-in-law, Charles Corley, was given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. Mamie Boyer Williams, who came from New Orleans for the wedding. The bride's gown was a creation in traditional white Lohengrin satin, designed and made by her sister, Miss Maude B. Williams. It featured a Victorian aire, with a triple tiered bertha collar, a torso fitted bodice buttoned by dozens of petite bridal buttons. The torso was heavily draped in front and continued around to form a huge bustle that flowed into a fish-tail train containing yards and yards of gleaming satin. Her bouquet was a "Wedding Ring," tuffed with white satin ribbon, cluster effect of white orchids and Stephonotis showers. For something old, she chose an heirloom lace petticoat. For something borrowed, she wore a pearl necklace with diamond studded clasp and matching earrings.

The bridal attendants wore old-fashioned dresses made of ribbon taffeta with drape hipline and bustle back. The gowns featured a Madona neckline with fitted bodice and a train flowing two feet. Heart-shaped halos, made of white tulle covered with Lily of the Valley sprays and side bustle streamers completed the headdress. The bridesmaids carried hearts, tuffed with Fuschia satin ribbon, garland with Celosia and Bettertime roses, complete with a Cupid's arrow in center. Bridesmaids were: Margaret Goode, Mary Elizabeth Scott and Eunice Gross. Matron of honor, Mrs. Sarah Emily Porterfield, differed slightly from the maids in that she carried a heart tuffed in Nile green satin ribbon showered with Stephonotis, clustered with Mystery Gardenias.

Adding to the entourage were Candle girls, Artyne Thomas and Marvelle Henderson, who wore white net dresses with metalic tops and wrist corsages of Mystery Gardenias. Junior bridesmaid, Claire Louise Coffee, wore a replica of the bridesmaids' dresses and hat, and she carried a colonial bouquet of Stephonotis and pink and white carnations.

Flower girl, Paula Phillips, wore a Katie Greenway creation in white tulle, complete with tulle heart-shaped hat and basket. A string of baby pearls adorned her neck and a tiny pearl bracelet on her left arm.

Marco Peterson served his brother as best man, while Thomas R. Porterfield was man in waiting. Ushers were: Carl Peterson, Morris Peterson, William Traxclair, Sammie Banks, Larry Pickins, Balfair Gland, William Mills, Milton Hayes, Nathaniel Hill and William Moulden.

The beautiful wedding music was played by Mrs. Fannie E. Benjamin at the Austin console. Jay Loft Lynn, tenor, sang "Until" and "Because." Claire de Lune, Ave Maria and the Iota Phi Lambda Sorority song were included in the musical interlude. Rev. Clayton D. Russell officiated, and the wedding took place in the main sanctuary of the Independent Church that was exquisitely decorated by Dostey's, in all white flowers.

RECEPTION FOLLOWS

Immediately following the ceremony the wedding reception was held at the home of the bridegroom. In the receiving line were Mrs. Mamie Boyer Williams, the bride's mother, who was stunning in blue with matching plumed hat. Mrs. Stella Taylor Peterson, the bridegroom's mother, chose a black gown with matching chapeaux.

Hostesses at the reception were: Alma Henderson, Ruth Seagraves, Geraldine Peterson, Jacqueline Clay and Iota Phi Lambda sorors, Rosa Hill, Hazel Macbeth, Doris Wearye and Catherine Garcia. On September 21, a reception was given by Mrs. Lucy Goode, the bride's mother in honor of the bride and groom.

The reception was held in the family residence of the groom's parents 717 E. 32nd st. Mrs. Frances Brown, a cherfshed friend of the bride's family beautifully decorated the house with shrubs and fresh flowers of the season and had full charge of the entire affair.

The Hostesses were: Mrs. Lottie Douglas, Mrs. Mary Burns, Mrs. Altha Lenard, Miss Vanala McHatten, Miss Jackie Qualls, and Misses Elouisa and Marcella Brown who are sisters of the groom.

It was amid this beautiful setting with continued strings of sweet music, between the hours of 3 and 7 p.m., that over 150 persons meandered through the Brown's home to say Bon Voyage to the young couple and view the gifts.

Bride Planes From Florida For Los Angeles Wedding

In a setting of majestic beauty and dignity, Virginia B. Carter, formerly of Jacksonville, Florida, became the bride of William W. Moulden, resident of Palo Alto, California, in a private ceremony solemnized in the handsome drawing room of the home of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Satchell Morris II, 4151 Woodlawn avenue, recently.

The bride, a native of Washington, D. C., was graduated from the Florida A. and M. College, Tallahassee, where she was awarded the degree of B. A. in elementary education. Joining the Wacs in 1945 she took her basic training at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, and later she was assigned to the 318th Base Unit, Lockbourne Army Air Base, Columbus, Ohio, where she advanced to the rank of sergeant. She is a member of the Zeta Phi Beta sorority. She flew here from her home in Jacksonville, Florida, for the event. Dr. Charles Satchell Morris II, in whose home the nuptials were celebrated—and who joined the parties in marriage—was formerly her pastor at the historic Bethel Baptist Institutional church, Jacksonville, as well as the pastor of her mother, Mrs. M. L. Carter, widely-known English teacher in the Stanton high school of the Florida metropolis. The bride was given in marriage by Mr. Carl Moulden, uncle of the groom, who is exalted ruler of one of the local Elk lodges. At present the bride is studying in the Graduate school of Education at the University of Southern California.

The groom, a native Californian, was educated at San Jose State college where he received the degree of B. S. in radio engineering and natural science. While in residence at San Jose he was elected to membership in Alpha Eta Rho, honorary aeronautics fraternity. Entering the United States army in 1942, he was made a first lieutenant the same year. He saw active service in the Mediterranean Theatre of Operations where his entire unit received the Presidential citation. Upon being honorably discharged from the army he joined the California National Guard where he was also given the rank of lieutenant. Currently he is studying electronics and television in Los Angeles where he is an executive of a radio equipment and supply establishment.

A small informal reception immediately followed the ceremony, after which the happy couple left by motor for a brief honeymoon trip which took them to Palo Alto, San Francisco and other points in Northern California. The newlyweds wound up their trek at Val Verde. They now are residing at 2920 Van Buren place, Los Angeles, where they are "at home" to their host of friends.

take the title of a jam session, was Erskin's best. Among those enjoying the affair and voting the Smith's a perfect couple of hosts were: Paulette Coleman, Nita Hippard, Marcella Monroe, Ruth Gage, Jane Criner, Anna and Joel Price, LeRoy Beavers, Leslie King and a host of others . . .

Saturday afternoon found the S. C. Deltas holding their "Rush" party for new girls on the Trojan campus. Also invited were their sorors from UCLA.

As per usual, Sunday's highlights were many. The Wives of Sigma were presented at the Hardimon residence. The ladies were looking very sophisticated and lovely in uniform black dresses, and their guest list was sparkled with names that are familiar in the circle. By the way, the Pre-Thanksgiving Supper Dance that the Men of Sigma have planned for Nov. 21, is fast becoming the "looked forward to" event. The Wives of Sigma club will take an important part, assisting their husbands with the sale of tickets . . . On Sunday night, Weldina Hefflin gave a farewell party for Marcelyn Cobbs, out at tthe Meadowbrook Gardens, where her father, Leon Hefflin, has a good deal to do with promotion, and the breaking down of segregation barriers. Also in attendance at the very gay affair, were Dr. and Mrs. P. Price Cobbs and Mrs. Maxine Hefflin. Guests enjoyed dinner and dancing to the music of Duke's orchestra. Marcelyn, who planed from L. A., on Monday for Howard University, was in the company of Robert Kyle. The hostess, Weldina, was escorted by Milton Smith, and other couples present were: Lorraine Tennett and Lucas Harris; Cathleen Mason and Sherril Luke; Jean Carrol Cummings and Price Cobbs; Rebecca Brown and William Farrington; Jeanne Arnold and Arthur Lewis; Cozetta Eubanks and Price Cobbs; Cloria Crouch and James White; Frances Jones and Victor Rideau; Haroldine Browning and Richard Gower; Yvonne Cole and Lavert Patterson; Jackie Dickerson and Elroy Lott; Dorothy McGalughlin and Fay Thompson, and Frank Peterson.

The dinner tables were centered in fresh-cut flowers, and the hostess topped her very smart costume with a white orchid. Marcelyn is starting her Junior year at Howard . . .

The Iota Phi Lambda Sorors are making plans for a reception honoring their regional director, who will arrive in the city the early part of October. The guest list is nearing completion . . .

There is a special need for talented young women, I learned from Doris Wearye, who is an active member of the group . . . Grace Fisher Atkins is looking most charming in her latest black and white creation. The modiste was the center of attraction at last Sunday's wedding reception for her cousin, Bud Peterson and Mary Frances Williams . . . It will be Catalina Island and vacation for Gloria Bunch and her sister a few weeks from now. Twas only last Sunday that Wini Allen and Dr. Toney visited the beautiful island . . . Gloria Ford is to be commended for her two promotions in the Telephone Company, at the present time she is a staff clerk . . . Making deadline . . .

'DENA CHIT-CHAT

By JOHNETTA ARMSTRONG

Everyone certainly seemed to be having a wonderful time at the Club Echo's Weiner Bake in the yard of Virgil and Sweets Smock. It was a nice night and everything was sold out. Ernest Bruce, who I hadn't seen in years was on hand, Butter Ellis, taking a little time out from his sax, Irene and Stanely Miles. Hallie Huff, who is taking a beauty course in L. A., Elbie Hickambottom, Marge and Arthur Moss, and Lexie Walker were some of those noted enjoying the hot dogs and punch. Also chatted with Bert and Dewy Martin, Wilma Lane, who was having quite a time putting her little son to sleep. Bump Cunningham, Pete McCollough, and Sid Heard dropped in a moment before leaving for a night of gaiety in the big city. Sweets Smock looked as clever as ever in a very smart slack suit. Emma Biggs and Agnes Johnson made a cute pair as they sat taking the tickets in their ladies-in-waiting attair. Everyone stopped whatever they had been doing when Clara Stewart and Jimmie arrived from a dinner in Monrovia. Clara was smartness itself in a blue green crepe frock, an alligator shoulder-bag, shoes of the same and a gold choker.

Guest of honor at a baby shower given by her sister Lillian Brown, was Bernice "Dewy" Martin. A tiny crib made of crepe-paper was the center of attraction, around which the many presents were laid. For a good number of the guests it was the first time they had played a game called Bonanza, but I'm sure that everyone certainly enjoyed it. Betty Cunningham, who is now motoring a new Mercury, East, Bebe King, dressed in the latest fashion, as usual, Emma Williams, Irene Miles, also a fashion plate among the young matrons, Emma White, Myrtle Cunningham, Bobby Johnson, and Mary Louise Edson. Dewy really received some darling presents which included a beautiful, satin comforter and pillow, and the cutest white satin booties . . . Well

Anchorette Sub-Debutantes Honor Parents at Tea Sun.

The sub-debs of the Anchorette club poured tea in honor of their parents on Sunday, Sept. 28 from 3 to 5 p.m. The spacious Kenwood Avenue home of Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Sheen was the setting for the affair, that was well attended by the membership of 23 Anchorettes and their parents.

The young girls, representing some of the city's finest families, are under the advisorship of Mrs. Emily Brown Portwig, who organized the group after a suggestion by Dr. Mahlon C. Cooley, to get a group of girls together the age of his daughter, Carolyn, and he would do the same with a group of boys the same age. In March of this year, Mrs. Portwig, noted for her work with teenagers, organized the club of girls between the ages of 12 to 14 years old. The first meeting was in the form of a luncheon at the Portwig's residence, known by their many friends as "The Anchor". Honored guest was Joan Arnold who had moved here from New York. Joan named the club "The Anchorettes", after the Portwig's home.

Promptly at 4 p.m. Sunday, a musical program was presented by the Anchorettes and the officers of the Club were introduced, as follows: Barbara Garrott, president; Gloria Hunicutt, 1st Vice president; Nari Hardon, 2nd Vice president; Carolyn Cooley, Recording Secty.; Barbara Grant, Corres. Sect.; Eugenia Sheen, Treasurer; Cecelia Rene, Sgt.-at-Arms; Janice Shelby, Chairman of program; Mary Ann Baumann, chairman of yells; Shirley Alexander, Chairman of music; Joan Arnold, Parliamentarian; Shirley Johnson, chairman of Sunshine.

Other sub-debs in attendance were: Marion Hamilton, Carmen Garrott, Shirley Lee, Fayette McCallister, Angelita Nicholas, Lystreta Nicholas, Arlyne Provost, Camille Roane, Patsy Roberts, Sandra Shields, Barbara, Weaver and Antoinette Brown.

Jewell Crawford Marries

The former Miss Jewell Crawford, member of the 13 Charms, became the bride of William Milton in quiet ceremony on Sept. 6.

A reception followed the ceremony with close friends of the couple attending.

Women Gather For All Femme Party Sat. At Mabel Scott's

"For Women Only" was the very unique theme followed by Miss Mable Scott and Mrs. Hariette Wadley when they entertained at an all day fun fest Saturday in the Rumpus Room and Patio of the Scott residence. Games, chatter galore, and delicious food and drink highlighted the gathering that called for milady's most casual attire.

Mable Scott, one of the most active charter members of the Benevolent Association for professional entertainers considered the affair a good exchange system for club ideas. Members of some of the city's best known groups were in attendance, including co-hostess, Hariette Wadley of the Doll League Charity club, Gertrude Gipson of Les Dames, Ragmell Bagnerese, Laura Slayton, Marjorie Wright, Orchid Girls; Leola Hatcher, Silhouettes; Gloria Mitchell, Crop 'N' Tails; Norma Green, Junior League; Ruby Barbee Williams, 13 Aids; Frieda Eskridge, Les Femmes Aujour hui; Given Valentine, Beta Pi Sigma; Lucille O'Daniel, Joan Douglas, Grace Johnson, Juliette Ball, Ruth Mills, Juanita Berry, Nadine Cole, Omega King, Lena Terrance, Louise Nichlson, of the BVA and Velma Miles, Myrtle Fortune, Vera Wilson, Johnette LaStrapes, Lillian Lomax, Jean Young, Velma Miles, Lola Johnson, Robbie Chevialier, and Laazora Powell.

The BVA, which boasts a charter membership of 26 women entertainers, was organized with the idea of benefiting actors and actresses in need. A building plan, and burial insurance are the present aims of the group of which hostess Mabel Scott is interested. The BVA will need the cooperation of other club groups to put its plan over. With this in mind, mind, the very gay Saturday party also struck a serious note. The affair held sway between the hours of 1 and 9 p.m., with all attending having a very enjoyable time.

SHOPPING WITH DORIS

By DORIS AUSTIN

Hello There:

Primarily, this is a shopping service offering aid to you for any and all types of buying for each and every member of the family but it is also a service to try and save you time and finance through shopping hints and every day usages that perhaps you do not know of. One of the chief worries of most families is clothes and the lady involved usually is the one to go without to provide accurately for the others if there is a limited income—so here a hint or two to help glamourize that old wardrobe without having that made-over look.

It's possible you have the making of lots of clothes excitement right in your closet. Take for one, the dress hanging in the back that you discarded long ago because the skirt was full and never hung right or maybe in hemming your trimming came out too short; it's a good basic. You love the color and the neckline is simply enchanting and does marvelous things for your face contours. Take this dress and select a good contrast for one of the new slim skirt (don't try to match because there will be a difference in wear and color tone), slit the flared skirt and wear it over the slim skirt with a belt of the contrast or if becoming add a line of gold or silver and you have a lovely peplum dress and all it took was a little time and about a yard and a quarter of material for a skirt.

There are lots of ways to remodel old looks into new, achieving a degree of smartness and a new confidence that only new clothes can bring. Call for any hints or shopping aids you may need. Don't just read this with a skeptic air—try it and see. CE. 2-0819 is the number and no obligation to you. Get those suits out, we'll alter them next week.

SO ABOUT YOU MAKING WISE DECISIONS

CARELESSNESS

We can never be reminded too often of our attitudes and carelessness on our jobs, at home or at play. This little word actually means . . . loss of lives, homes, and disfigurement of the body.

First of all, it is failing to think or remember. Second: carelessness is "taking a chance." There is something about our confidence in ourselves that always tells us "it can't happen to me." And sometimes we are right — but sometimes the odds don't work out and an accident is the result! Third: carelessness is being offguard — not keeping on the alert. That's when accidents really happen. One minute we are safe and sound — in a flash of the next it happens.

THINK, take no chances, be on your guard against carelessness — and you will have no regrets.

Mrs. E. G.—Dear Sir: I have been reading the column in this paper for a period of years and have found it both helpful and interesting. I am coming to you with a problem of my own. What should I do concerning the trouble in my home?

Ans.—After giving your question careful thought and consideration, I feel that perhaps you are right in assuming your husband no longer has any interest in his home. But what he does need is more responsibility; you have made it much too easy for him in the past years, because you have taken over most of the bills and obligations. I would like to advise you further regarding this matter, if you will write in for a private reply, as the column does not allot enough space.

Mrs. T. W. — What is his trouble?

Ans.—Probing into the matter I find that your husband needs medical attention. Perhaps one of the clinics would be able to help him, you should persuade him to consult someone very soon.

E. M. W.—Were my eye glasses stolen or did I misplace them?

Ans.— A careful analysis of your question indicates that you misplaced your glasses. A careful search in your bedroom should prove successful.

M. E. L.—Will I marry this man?

Ans.—Your Lucky Stars and Guiding Planet indicate marriage for you in the very near future. The man you speak of is very much in love with you, and would make you a suitable companion.

R. R.—Dear Prof. Herman: You will never know how much joy you brought into my life the other day. Thanks for your splendid advice and instructions. The Hindu Love and Charm Bag is certainly all that you say and more.

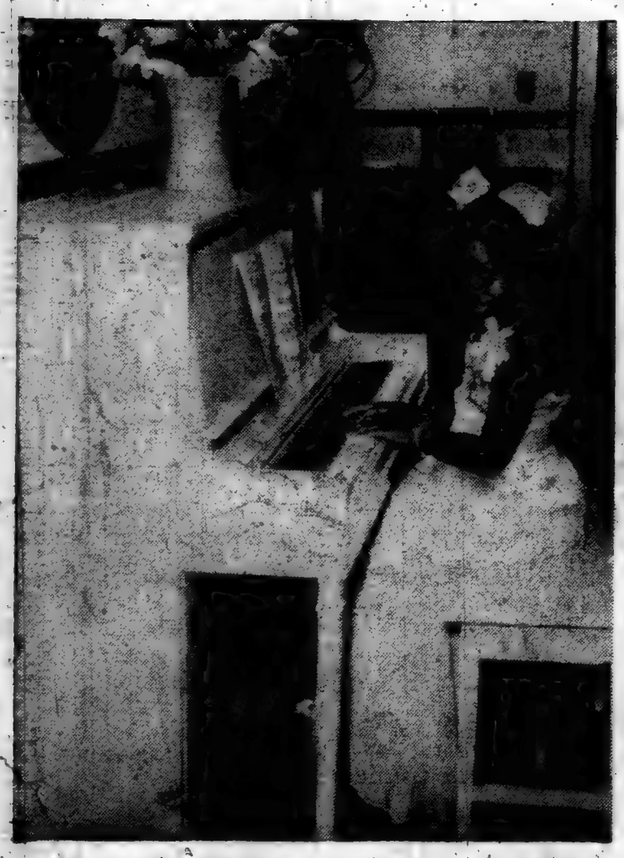
C. P. W.—What should I do?



Ans.—Concentrating on your question I am of the opinion that you should visit your sister and see if you can help her. For she seems to have quite a load on her just now, that is one of the reasons she hasn't written to you.

Miss L. V.—Will I have a chance to really be his best girl friend without the money problem coming up?

Ans.—Because of the nature of your question I would prefer answering it in a private reply. Write in at your earliest convenience.

U. S. Sailors' Mob Attack on Negroes Angers Swedish Body

Attention, Secretary Marshall:

Introduction of American race hatred practices into Sweden is vigorously condemned in a resolution adopted by the powerful Swedish branch of the International Federation of Democratic Women, and read at a recent meeting of Los Angeles branch of the Congress of American Women.

The resolution is based on an outrageous attack by white sailors on Negro sailors in the Swedish port of Stockholm. The attack occurred when two American ships, one manned by whites, the other by Negroes, docked at the port. The Negro sailors, going ashore first, were amusing themselves in an orderly way in cafe and dancing pavilions when the white American sailors went ashore and singled out isolated groups of Negro sailors to attack and beat up until Stockholm police intervened.

"Democratic opinion in this country has had ample reason to feel indignant at the recent painful clash between colored and white American sailors in a Swedish port," says the resolution adopted by the Swedish women's group, 600,000 strong. "According to a police report the brutal conduct toward the Negroes and the outrages on them were, o ntheir part, unprovoked."

"What has happened was obviously a manifestation of the contempt for colored people that in certain parts of the United States has taken on the grossly offensive form of unpunished lynchings of Negroes.

" Race persecution, in whatever form it may appear, is inconsistent with a democratic system. The conduct of American citizens in this case, is not of a nature to contribute towards a strengthening in the world of the belief that America stands for democratic ideals.

"On account o fthis actualization within the bounds of our own country of the treatment of Negroes in the United States, we find ourselves obliged to insist on respect for democratic traditions, which, in accordance with Swedish ideas, condemns every kind of race discrimination.

"In our opinion, the treatment of the Negro population in the United States not infrequently implies a disowning of humanitarian demands made in various quarters, that American authorities take measure to protect their citizens against aggression (by white Americans) on Swedish soil.

"We also want to express our hope that the present action of American Negroes to bring their claims for equal rights of citizenship before the forum of the United Nations may be supported by democratic opinion in America and outside of it."

Santa Monica Notes

By LOWELL EVANS

After having had a pleasant week end, I am again writing a yarn or two and plugging for our advertisers. Before commenting on the products of our advertisers, please remember that we can last longer if we go at a normal rate of speed, by the way that brings me to a yarn I heard about a character who was a fanatic about appointments. It seems that nothing could stop him from making an appointment with a gardener, he could not take time for his breakfast, or anything else that his attention was called to, so he finally reached the place where the gardener resided, he was met by a character who asked him if he was interested in the magic of life, and he replied that he did not have time, he had an apointment. This character told him that he knew about his appointment, and said, you see I am the one that you have that appointment with and I am death.

A waitress and a customer were discussing horse races. Said the customer to the waitress, do you know a sure winner in today's race? She replied STAY-AWAY—is your best bet. When you visit our advertisers' places you can see their merchandise is of the best quality and servide is rendered with a smile.

I have just been informed that the new Calvary church will be formerly dedicated November 1, 1947, I have been assured that they will carry a full page about the history of the church and the various merchants will list their ads in the Eagle as a matter of congratulations. Thanks to our advertisers.

Alameda NNC Maps Campaign On Job Bias

OAKLAND—The Alameda county chapter of the National Negro Congress this week was preparin a poll to carry on its fight for jobs, spurred on by the results of a United States Employment Service survey.

More than twice as many employable Negroes are jobless in the East Bay, the figures revealed, compared to employable whites.

In announcing the poll, Charles McMurray, acting president of the local NNC, said the organization also would survey sentiment on fair employment.

The USES survey, reporting on the employment picture in Almeda county in February, found that 2408 Negroes were receiving unemployment insurance. The number comprised 23 percent oft he total drawing jobless benefit payments, although Negroes make up only 10 percent of the population in the East Bay.

These figures do not include the number of unemployed Negroes whose past earnings did not enable them to file for the benefits, McMurray pointed out. Including these, he said, would make the disparity still more marked.

Pointing out that in New York where fair employment is enforced by law, Negroes are not barred from jobs because of "race" designation on USES application cards, McMurray called for an end of such labelling in California.

A PROGRESSIVE NEWSPAPER FOR ALL PROGRESSIVE PEOPLE

Ten Cents

Raisin' Cain

By CARL L. CAIN

During the summer, I chanced to take a vacation tour of our much talked about south. I gathered quite a number of facts that I should like to relate to you. The methods of living there are especially precarious. The people live in a state of insecurity, depending upon either the yield of their crops, or the poor salary from the factory work, for the necessities of life.

The farmers go on year after year gambling with nature and the worn out soil for crops that are expected to support a large family. Some of the methods of farming are old and incapable of giving the required service. The homes, in too many cases, are many generations old. During the summer, they provide acceptable shelter—but come winter and the rainy season, and the occupants had best move to the outside.

Southern rural life is the symbol of endless toil for the breadwinner of the family. Each day is a separate day, and provided for as such—and it has been said that even mice don't hang around waiting for fallen crumbs, for there are none. Many of the homes are far from the simplest expectations of comfort, furnished off in cheap, unmatched pieces of furniture. Though the hills and green valleys are fertile for cattle raising and ranching, the tenants are not financially able to buy and pay for them. They pay rent year after year, and keep up the property by farming. In general, farming and public work are the only occupations. Yet, in no other part of this country are there such plentiful and abundant natural resoruces; the tall timber reaching toward the sky, the swift rivers seemingly begging to be harnested for electrical power. But the people are the poorest, the most burdened lot to be found anywhere. Alertness is ever a 'must' to ward off starvation itself.

The most pleasure-inclined outlooks of the farmer are the Saturday afternoon gatherings on the street corners of the many small towns which break through the densly wooded regions. Their joy is in the remarks and comments traded about the weather and the type of seeds that should be planted on this or that acre of land. And though the sale of intoxicants is illegal in many areas, they look anxiously forward to the "swig" that will be taken, come sundown. All the time they are aware of the poor prices that are going to be paid for their crops milled cotton at a high of 15 cents per milled pound, at times eggs reaching a low price of ten cents per dozen.

The southerners are defeated in their efforts of progress because of the lack of coorporation, and the fact that the industrialists are not outwardly willing to venture into anything "big." The man with the financial backing feels that if he has a dollar, that dollar is of more service in a bank than in a 'sure-fire' investment. The idea of enlarging his business, and hiring more labor is not at all inviting. Therefore, the vast natural resources too often go undevolped.

The morals of the people are always at a low peak. Their thoughts are ever centered about the simple life that is led. When a crisis arises, it is faced in the same unsubstantial manner as the smaller problems. When diseases sweeps an area, wiping out stock, the farmers look to the "county agent" or the government man for aid, because there is no one else to turn to.

But out of it all, there is a new light beginning to show. Improvements are being made on every frontier; electricity is appearing in many homes, and though the telephone is practially unknown, the automobile is practically never absent. Many of the people are learning the meaning of comfort through prorress. The new era is dawning on this part of our country, brought on by education and the patterns of enjoyment styled by the "city folks." Though the progress is slow, it is not at all absent.

EDITOR'S NOTE: More important factors in the awakening of the South are (1) increased industrialization of that section during the war, (2) growth of the labor movement, (3) development of a fairly strong progressive movement, and (4) resultant emergence of new patterns of thought.

Too, not lack of cooperation, whether on the part of farmers, workers and/or businessmen is the main reason for the backwardness of the South, but the wide prevalence of absentee ownership of both land and industries, the South's status as a colonial appendage of the nation, the ignorance which colonialism inevitably fosters.

What's Happening

By Johnny Delgardo

Just in case you're all wondering why Bill Scott isn't writing his column on the Youth Page anymore, well, leave me the honor of informing you that he has been promoted. Yes, Scott is now the Sports Editor of The California EAGLE. Congratulations, Bill, and here's wishing you lots of success on the job you are now undertaking. My only hope is that I can carry on your fine work on the Youth Page.

With "King Football" stepping back into the spotlight, and numerous sorority and fraternal activities over the weekend, the fall social calendar got off with a big bang.

Seen Friday night in the gigantic Bruin rooting section were Yolande Stovall, Eleanor Rosemond, Stanley Robertson, Carl Wills. Also noticing the fine play of the UCLA stars Bob Mike, Harry Thompson, and E. M. Cabell were: Bill Holland and his constant companion Wendy Golden, Gerald Stoval and Pauline Jones, looking amazed at the exploits of Iowa's Emlen Tunnell. Congratulations are in order for Sherril Luke and Roy Johnson, yell leader and bandsman respectively.

Following the game the Sphinx Club of Alpha Phi Alpha gave a party to celebrate the Bruin victory. Seen dancing starry eyed were: Vernon "Butch" Randall and his new flame, Geraldine Ingram; Arthur Lewis and Diane Lewis; Jackie Dickerson and Alva Tabor; Milton Smith and Weldena Hefflin; Hank Melton and Regina Mingleton.

Saturday night the A.K.A.'s and the Alphas hosted the new students on the campi.

A.K.A.'s played hostess to the new girls on campus Saturday night at the home of Soror Weldena Hefflin. Judging by the charm of such young ladies as Mitzie Montgomery, Janis Epps, Theresa Richards, Louise McVey, Jean Arnold, and many other beauties, the lads of UCLA will have a tough time studying.

Sunday night at the Meadowbrook the popular Miss Weldena Hefflin entertained a party of 35 in honor of Marcelyn Cobbs, who planed east this week to return to her studies at Howard university. Dancing to the fine music of the one and only Duke Ellington were: Frank Peterson and Fay Thompson, Sherill Luke and Kathleen Mason, Price Cobbs and Jean Cummings.

Highlights of the local grid clashes over the week end were LACC's Woodley Lewis's 74-yard touchdown run against Redlands U. John Ainney; Compton's ace halfback's two touchdowns against San Diego Navy; and Big Bob Boyd, first string wingman on Loyola's Lions, against Colegio de Mexico.

Well, that's about it. I hope you will be able to bear with me again next week, when I again open my notebook.

Heading the list of newcomers at A and T for the current school year is Dr. A. K. Nyabongo who will teach economics and sociology. He holds both B. A. and M. Lincoln Prexy Urges Study Of Politics

At the opening exercises beginning the 94th year of Lincoln university, Dr. Horace Mann Bond, the president, urged the student to make a study of the practical politics of our land. He said that there is too much political ignorance and apathy among the American people. The president stated that his recent experience in running for the school board in Oxford Township taught him that too few people are sufficiently interested to become aware of the way in which our system of political parties operates. "The student election," he said, "should be a good training ground to learn how ballots are cast and counted. The president exhorted his hearers to take a greater interest in voting if they would perpetuate the principles of the "American way."

In urging the students to become acquainted with the heritage of freedom loving America, Dr. Bond said we must develop a consciousness of the obligations of freedom—of self-control and rigid self-discipline. Self-emancipation, he averred, is the real freedom that is found in the inner mastery to control one's own inner desires and passions.

The president pointed out that Lincoln was founded in 1854 by men who were a part of the great tradition of human liberty and that successive generations of Lincoln men were adding their bits to this great heritage. This acceptance of democratic responsibility, he said, is very much evident in those Lincoln sons who have given so generously to the present building campaign of the university. Thus giving is evidence that the Negro in America is accepting his responsibility to the democrtic ideal as he gives to an institution which was founded on the burning desire that all men should be free.

NAACP Youth Confab Scheduled for Nov. 5-9 in Houston

NEW YORK—Ruby Hurley, Youth Secretary, NAACP, urged in a recent communication to the West Coast Regional office, 916 Kearny street, San Francisco that Youth Councils on the West Coast make all effort possible to send representatives to the 9th Annual Youth Conference to be held in Houston, Texas, November 5-9.

Houston conference promises to be the most largely attended ever held by youth groups. The proximity of Houston to branches on the West Coast makes it more accessible than previous conference meeting places. Branches are urged to send youth representatives even though they may not have organized Youth Councils. Such representation may be the means of establishing such a council.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. IKE EVANS, D.D.

Subject: The Better Revelation. Lesson Text and Outline, Hebrews 1:1-4; 2:1-3; John 14:5-11. Motto Text, John 14:9.

Introduction

The better revelation of God to man includes the incarnation of the Son of God as the Saviour, revealing the invitation to sinners to accept the salvation revealed; the intercession of the Mediator, as and in the inheritance assured by the Saviour's guarantee and guidance of the saved to their eternal reward.

Comments

The persons to whom God spoke by the prophets: to the fathers, to all the Old Testament saints who were under that dispensation. God favored and honored them with much clearer light than that of nature, under which the rest of the world were left. The order in which God spoke to men in those times that went before the gospel, those past times: He spoke to his ancient at sundry times and in divers manners. (1) At sundry times, or by several parts, as the word signifies, which the Old Testament dispensation—the patriarchal, the Mosaic, and the prophetic; or to the several gradual openings of his mind concerning the Redeemer: to Adam, that the Messiah should come of the seed of the woman; to Abraham, that he should spring from his loins; to Jacob, that he should be of the tribe of Judah; to David, that he should be of his house; to Micah, that he should be born at Bethlehem; to Isaiah, that he should be born of a virgin. There was first the natural revelation; then the patriarchal, by dreams, visions, and voices; then the Mosaic, in the law given forth and written down; then the prophetic, in explaining the law, and giving clearer discoveries of Christ: but now we must expect no new reveltion, but only more of the Spirit of Christ to help us better to understand what is already revealed.

(2) When we have received gospel truths into our minds, we are in danger of letting them slip. Our minds and memories are like a leaky vessel, they do not without much care retain what is poured into them; this proceeds from the corruption of our natures, the enmity and subtlety of Satan (he steals away the word), from the entanglements and snares of the world, the thorns that choke the good seed. The despisers of God's salvation are condemned already, under arrest and in the htnds of justice already. So they were by the sin of Adam; and they have strengthened their bond by their personal transgression. There is no escaping out of this condemned state, but by accepting the great salvation discovered in the gospel; as for those who neglect it, the wrath of God is upon them, and it abides upon them.

(3) Jesus Christ is willing to make the best of His people's knowledge, though they are weak and defective in it. He knows the good that is in them better than they do themselves, and is certain that they have that knowledge, and faith, and love, of which they themselves are not sensible, or not certain. Christ's testimony concerning their knowledge made them more sensible of their ignorance, and more inquisitive after further light. Christ is the way. Christ was His own way, for by His own blood He entered into the holy place, and He is our way, for we enter by Him. By His docttrine and example He teaches us our duty, by His merit and intercession He procures us our happiness, and so He is the way. In Him God and man meet, and are brought together.

Comments on the Motto Talk

All who saw Christ in the flesh might have seen the Father in him, if Satan had not blinded their minds, and kept them from a sight of Christ, as the image of God. All who saw Christ by faith did see the Father in him, though they were not suddenly aware that they did so. In the light of Christ's doctrine they saw God as the Father of lights; in the miracles they saw God as the God of power, in the finger of God. The holiness of God shone in the spotless purity of Christ's life, and his grace in all the acts of grace he did.

'Europe Isn't Dead' Religious Delegate Finds, 'Courageous Spirit Is Reconstructing Nation'

By PHYLLIS SCOTT

Returning to Los Angeles last week from the Second World Conference of Christian Youth which met in Oslo, Norway, Jane Johnson told an Eagle reporter of the grave problems existing in Europe today.

Leaving New York for England via troop ship, she said that they found conditions there very "critical as far as food, clothing, and coal is concerned but the spirit of the English people in the face of such problems is admirable." And in Germany they saw the worst signs of apathy, devastation, and evidence of hunger than any other place on their whole trip. "At small town railroad stations, hoards of poorly clad children met their train in hopes of receiving food from the passengers." They found the city of Hamburg standing as it did three years ago . . . almost completely demolished. Block upon block laid in shambles. Apparently, no attempt has been made to clear it away.

Holland is making admirable recovery from the war, stated the young co-ed. "They are busily engaged in reconstructing their country as rapidly as possible.

The food situation in the cities of France is very critical. In Paris babies are rationed to one cup of milk per day. (In England the adult is rationed to 20 cents worth of meat per week.)

The twofold purpose of the trip was to attend the conference and visit the reconstruction centers, particularly in England, France and Holland. Seventy-four countries were represented at the Norwegian conference by 1300 delegates. Miss Johnson, who represented Pilgrim Fellowship of the Congregational church, was one of the 225 delegates from the United States. All branches of the YMCA, YWCA, Student Christian Youth on college campuses, and youth organizations of various denominations were represented from this country.

In three different languages (English, French and German) delegates discussed some of the pressing problems facing the world today in light of what Christian Youth could do about them. Among these were:

- The Palestine problem
- World Order
- Moral Chaos
- Man and His Inventions
- The Christian in a Secular Environment
- The Home as a Basis of Society

In the light of all these problems it was recognized that Christianity is a minority movement, but delegates left the conference convinced that if the principles of Christian love and brotherhood were sincerely practiced, even by a small minority, the world would be a better place in which to live. Delegates returned with a renewed sense of Christian living.

They attended the International Work Camp for two weeks at the College Cevenol and sidetracked to Geneva, Switzerland, for an enjoyable week-end. They visited some of the historical landmarks in Paris before sailing from LaHavre the latter part of August.

Miss Johnson said that they "went to Europe in expectation of finding a corpse . . . countries reduced to ashes and ruin; instead we found a living spirit and admirable progress being made in reconstruction. That is not to say that the situation is not grave. It is undeniably true that, this year, Europeans face the coldest winter ever yet endured . . . that the lack of food is not becoming better. Returning home we wondered at the injustice of one-third of the world's people being averted while two-thirds are literally starving."

According to the youth worker, the need for several kinds of reconstruction is evident; among these are the physical, moral and spiritual. As individuals each can do his share. She urges youth clubs to:

- Send packages to Europe through social and church agencies.
- Write to European students —she has over 400 names. European students are looking for something to believe in and American youths can help them.
- American youth should keep themselves well-informed on national and international matters and not be swayed by public propaganda agencies.

Under the sponsorship of Pilgrim Fellowship of Lincoln Memorial Congregational church, 4415 Hooper avenue, Jane Johnson addressed the regular meeting of the group last Sunday and spoke before a group of 500 Jewish youths that afternoon. She will be the guest speaker at a youth group in Pasadena next Sunday. She is also a member of Pilgrim Fellowship of Lincoln. Horace Johnson is the group advisor.

Church School of All Faiths Open for Youth Enrollees

Parents of this community have been extended an open invitation by leaders of the Protestant, Roman Catholic, and Jewish faiths to enroll their children in Weekday church schools which are now operating in the Los Angeles city school district on a release time basis through cooperation of the Board of Education. Classes in the weekday church schools will open Monday, October 6.

The church schools offer religious instruction to pupils attending elementary schools, and junior high schools. Classes are held off the school premises in nearby churches or other convenient quarters. Pupils are released from public schools for a period of 40 minutes one day each week for the purposes of attending the classes in religious education. Enrollment in these classes is purely voluntary and limited to those children whose parents have made written request to the school principal.

Each of the five religious groups joined in the weekday church school program conducts its own schools, and parents are asked to designate the group which they wish to instruct their children. Groups conducting weekday church schools include the Church Federation of Los Angeles, Roman Catholic church, Evangelical Released Time Religious Education, Inc., Christian Science church, and the Council of Jewish Rabbis.

Rev. D. M. Johnson, Pastor

REV. B. CLARENCE COOKE, Field Scout executive, Los Angeles Area Council, who is at present a student at the National Training School, Boy Scouts of America, Mendham, New Jersey. Rev. Cooke will be remembered for his outstanding service on the Eastside. He is the former assistant pastor of St. Paul's Baptist church, and served under the late Rev. S. A. Williams. He did a splendid job for the Boy Scouts while at St. Paul's, and also aided in that work at Jefferson High school. Rev. Cooke says the National Training School "is indeed great. The training is intensive. The fellowship and experience are priceless."

Announcement

To our many friends who have anxiously been inquiring as to when we would begin the work of our new organization. We wish to say that we have been holding meetings regularly in our home since Conference, but the increasing attendance is making such a demand that we had to secure larger quarters.

We are now holding services at 909 E. 33rd street.

Services are held each Sunday at 2 p.m. except the second Sunday when we will meet all day. Or week nights, Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. ALL ARE WELCOME.

Gilbert Family Versatile Group

Have you heard the Gilbert family? They are a devoted group from the Southland and who sways the hearts of men wherever they appear. They sing, they preach and they pray.

Too much praise cannot be given to Rev. and Mrs. Gilbert for rearing their children in such a Christianlike manner. The Lord has given the daughter a beautiful touch at the piano.

Their three boy preachers are spiritual atomic bombs, liberally endowed with the Holy Ghost for it is true that none can preach as they except anointed of God.

Rev. Hattie M. Crooms, pastor of the Soul Winning Tabernacle, presents them Saturday evening, October 4 at 7 in the comfortable auditorium of Azusa Pentecostal Temple, 27th and Paloma street of which the Elder and Mother Cotton are pastors.

Please come early unless you wish to stand.

Political or professional reputation cannot last forever, but a conscience void of offence before God and man is an inheritance for eternity.

Finalists for Wings Over Jordan Scholarship Contest Impresses Groups With Interracial Project

NEW YORK — An interesting and gratifying result of the Wings Over Jordan scholarship award contests has recently come to the attention of rev. Glynn T. Settle, originator and director of the world-famous choral ensemble.

The scholarship contests, based upon the writing of an essay on the subject "Why the Negro Spirituals should be Pre-[illegible]ve always been open to [illegible] children regardless of [illegible] religion. However, in most cases, all the contestants were Negro children. In Grand Rapids, Michigan, where a contest was conducted last May, children from several white churches wrote some very fine essays on the subject. The judges were deeply affected by the insight of the young people on the matter of the origin and value of Negro Spirituals.

A brilliant Negro student won the contest but one of the finalists was a white student. Clariece Voss. Rev. Settle and the contest supervisor were so impressed with the writing of this young lady that they arranged an interview for her at the local Columbia Broadcasting System radio station. Miss Voss was employed in the program department of Station WJEF as a result of the interview.

On September 24 the former contestant wrote to Wings Over Jordan. The letter was an example of how a project such as the scholarship contests may effect inter-racial relations. Miss Voss is now conducting forums among her church and school associates to discuss ways and means to bring about better understanding among people of different races. She further stated that the contest gave her the first opportunity of her life to really get to know that there is no basic difference in people because of racial origin. Since that time, the young lady has made a study of all material available on the subject so that she may do her small but effective part in making our world a better place in which all people can live in peace and happiness.

Quartet of World's Greatest Choir to Sing at Neighborhood

The former members of the Wings Over Jordan Quartet will appear at Neighborhood Community church, 47th place and San Pedro, Tuesday, October 7 to 8 p.m. The program is being sponsored by the Monogram club of the church. The public is invited to attend, Rev. H. Mansfield Collins, pastor.

Baha'i News

The regular Sunday afternoon meeting of the Baha'i World Faith to be held at their Los Angeles Center, 331 South New Hampshire avenue, on October 5 at three will be in the form of a youth symposium with Mignon Thomasson, Eva McAllister and Caswell Ellis leading the discussion on the subject The Human Race—Its Past Achievements and Its Destiny.

The Baha'i Faith has become generally known as a religion identified with teachings which assert the oneness of mankind and the basic unity of spiritual truth. What is less widely realized is the fact that the Faith has also produced a clean analysis of the causes for the disturbances which have afflicted humanity in this era. Our wars and revolutions have been foretold; the larger trends interpreted, and the meaning of hanges in attitude and opinion presented in terms of a major historical transformation.

The Youth Symposium will be followed by a special meeting on Wednesday, October 8th, at 8 p.m. at the Center, at which Harlan Ober, attorney and lecturer from Boston, will discuss the subject Security For A Falling World.

Fast driving is one of the most common causes of excessive oil consumption, the Automobile Club of Southern California advises. At speeds of 55 miles an hour, the average car consumes one-third more oil than the amount it would use at 40 miles an hour.

Robeson Stars in Chicago AYD Fete, 'Music Americana'

CHICAGO — A capacity audience of 2600 Chicagoans filled Orchestra Hall on Tuesday evening, Sept. 30, to hear Paul Robeson, world famous Negro baritone, who has laid aside his schedule of concert tours to fight for the civil rights of his and all people.

Robeson starred in "Music Americana — from Spirituals to Swing," a program tracing the development of modern American music. The show was presented by the American Youth for Democracy.

Spirituals, folk songs, work songs, jazz, blues, and swing music were heard during the performance. Among the well-known artists who took part in the program are Charlotte Morris, jazz and boogie-woogie pianist; Lonnie Johnson, "The Roamin' Rambler", blues singing Gregory Paschal, baritone; and Bernie Asbel, popular folk-song singer of Peoples Songs.

The AYD chorus of 50 voices opened the concert with "Joshua Fit the Battle of Jericho"; the theme of the program was 'Let My People Go.' Robeson topped the program, singing several songs. A leader in the fight against anti-Negro discrimination, Robeson was presented by the narrator as 'Joshua, strong and righteous, blowing a trumpet, blowing down the walls of Jericho, breaking the walls of prejudice and fear and sorrow. And the people listen.

Joshua, leading his people toward Freedom Road, the highway built on the crumbled stone of the shattered walls . . . leading his people toward singing tomorrows . . .' It was Robeson's first appearance in Chicago since the big "Salute to Robeson" which was held at the Civic Opera House last spring after city officials at down-state Peoria refused to let him sing there.

Ascot Ave. School Has 3 New Teachers

Ascot Avenue Elementary school is commencing the school year with three new teachers, announces Bessie Bruington Burke, principal. There will be a total of 23 teachers on the faculty.

Mrs. Burke states that there are 800 pupils in attendance at the present time, an increase of 100 over a year ago, and it will be necessary to carry a number of half-day sessions in the primary department.

In line with the theme, "School Today the American Way," which has been adopted by the entire school system as its slogan for the current year, Ascot will emphasize through learning, vigorous work and faithful service.

Supt. of Schools Vierling Kersey has instructed teachers and principals that standards of discipline, courtesy, safety and carefulness, respect for person and property, decency, reverence, manliness and true feminity are to be expected of every pupil and are to be kept at a high level.

"School is the one place where the great lessons of belonging, co-operating, helping, sharing, working together, and finding and supporting good causes are to be learned," asserts Dr. Kersey. "Doing these things better is the finest way to improve America now."

What High Prices, Asks GOP Solon

Wondering how you are going to continue eating in the faces of constantly spiralling prices? You are just being hysterical, according to Rep. Clifford Hope, Kansas Republican who played a leading role in the killing of price controls.

The American people have "a "exaggerated concern" over food prices, Hope said on a University of Chicago Roundtable broadcast last Sunday. They should overcome their "hysteria" by realizing that the national income has increased more rapidly than food costs, he said.

Uhl Warns Cancer Victims of Quacks

There are a "disturbingly large number" of quack doctors in Los Angeles pretending to treat cancer victims with useless but complicated-looking machinery and other nostrums, Dr. George M. Uhl, city health officer, warned yesterday.

"These charlatans take money from dying people promising them immediate cures. They produce impressive paraphernalia that look like surplus goods from a Frankenstein movie, or some simple gadget that they pass off as the result of years of research," he said.

"Quacks capitalize on the people's fear of cancer and surgical treatment. They play upon the desires of most persons for a simple cure and for a 'doctor' who has a portfolio of testimonials and can 'guarantee' his work," the health officer declared.

Cancer is certainly a dangerous disease, but caught early, it responds easily to competent medical treatment, he pointed out, stressing the need for securing a reputable physician when the first suspicious symtoms appear.

Some quacks are convicted of malpractice, but a good many of them either skip town or cover up their illegitimate tracks so well that authorities have a difficult time proving guilt, he said.

As thousands of children trooped back to school after their long summer's vacation, playgrounds and recreation centers of the Los Angeles City Recreation and Park Department this week were completing arrangements for a full program of activities for the fall season, general manager George Hjelte announced today.

Demos alerted To Fight High Prices, War

California Democrats this week had been warned that "high prices" and "war" were the most dangerous enemies facing the country.

The warning was issued by James Roosevelt, chairman of the state Democratic committee at a gathering of the women's division of the committee.

Roosevelt and Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas were chief speakers at a "Sunday Fiesta" at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Brown, 5685 Whitley terrace.

"Both these problems must be solved by Democrats," Roosevelt declared. "They can and will be met by the Democrats if we are able to keep the Democratic party liberal.

Congresswoman Douglas presented a point by point indictment of the 80th congress—"which fought for weeks over setting the clock ahead on the Capitol wall, while it was setting back the clock of the entire nation."

Mrs. Douglas denounced the "loyalty oath" bill passed by congress as "offensive" because it violates "a traditional precept of American justice and assumes a person is guilty until proved innocent.

"There was so much discussion of communism in the last congress," she said, "that there was no time left for democracy."

Unveil Bust of Pioneer Educator, Founder of Grambling College

GAMBLING, La.—A tribute to a pioneer educator who went into a remote section of Louisiana and established Gambling college, one of the outstanding educational institutions of the state, was paid last Sunday when a beautiful bust of founder Charles Adams unveiled here. President F. D. Patterson of Tuskegee was the speaker for the occasion while Adams' granddaughter, Jean Adams, drew the veil from the bust, as his five children looked on.

When Charles P. Adams graduated from Tuskegee in 1900, he was sent by Booker T. Washington to the little hamlet of Grambling in response to the request of two citizens, F. L. Richmond and R. Hollis. The start of Grambling was similar to the founding of Tuskegee for Booker T. Washington had been sent to Alabama from Hampton in much the same fashion. In 1928 Grambling was made a state college and is now a four year teacher's college supported by the state of Louisiana. R. W. E. Jones succeeded Adams in 1936 when the latter was retired. Principal Adams was awarded the Citation of Merit award by Tuskegee in 1946. Isaac Hathaway of Tuskegee sculptured the bust.

"All normal human beings," said President Patterson, "regardless of color or creed want fundamentally the same things. These are security for one's self and one's family, good schools for children, protection of civil rights, the right to work and be healthy and the privilege of serving God according to the dictates of one's conscience.

"Education is the backbone of democracy. It is the bulwark of protection in war and peace. The perilous quality of the future demands that this nation derive the full strength which education can bring from its total citizenry. Education does not cost. It pays. It is ignorance and undeveloped resources, human and material, which represent the cost a nation can ill afford to bear.

"America spent more for war in one day than all the nations of the earth have spent for peace in 1000 years." Patterson said, "The cost of war would maintain the peoples of the earth in great plenty were we to cease destroying our national wealth."

Central Ave. Merchants Set Up Two Groups to Improve Eastside Business Section

Two separate groups of Central avenue merchants this week were mapping plans to improve the avenue, make it as attractive as other business thoroughfares in the city.

One group held its third meeting last Thursday at the Last Word Cafe, set up a permanent organization, elected officers, and discussed plans to give the avenue its first Christmas holiday decorations. They adopted the name, Central Avenue Chamber of Commerce. Leo Margolis, Victory Market, presided.

On another section of the avenue, at the Clark Hotel, another group held its second luncheon meeting, and organized under the name of The Central Avenue Community Council. Called together by the community organization department of the Urban League and the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, the group organized under the name of Central Avenue Community Council. It pledged itself to direct a community campaign to enhance the avenue, effect cleaner streets and sidewalks, more attractive display of merchandise, and safe pedestrian travel.

Old Folks' Rally Friday, Oct. 3

The Citizens' Committee for Old Age Pensions will hold an Old Folks' Rally, Friday, October 3rd, at 1:30 p.m., in the Masonic Hall, 1050 E. 30th street, Los Angeles.

"The State legislature at the last session voted itself a $75 per month pension at age 63," said George H. McLain, chairman of the Citizens' Committee. "The old folks are now engaged in a campaign to pay for the circulation of petitions so that the people of California will be allowed to extend themselves the same privilege, thereby enabling the needy aged and blind to meet the present inflated cost of living. If the members of the legislature can vote themselves a decent pension, so can the people."

The meetings are free and open to the public.

Office Workers Join Battle of the Skirt

The Battle of the Hemline is still raging. The office workers have jumped into the fray with both ankles showing.

Members of the CIO's United Office and Professional Workers of America passed a resolution condemning the drastic change in style as another raid on their strained budgets.

According to the union, any radical change in hemlines would hit the white collar workers right in the solar plexus. White collar workers, they claim, are expected to have that well-groomed look and dress in up-to-the-minute fashions.

Celia Wilby, organizer for the union, said: "If the gentlemen who are figuring out how to get rid of the extra yardage will also figure out a way of increasing salaries, we might go along with a longer hemline. As matters stand, most office workers can hardly afford their cleaning bills—let alone a change in wardrobe."

Teacher Institute At Junior College Opens This Evening

A series of three "Vorkshops in Business Occupations," will be held at East Los Angeles Junior college, 5023 East 6th st., room 423, according to Dr. Rosco C. Ingalls, director, at 3:30 p. m. Thursdays, October 2, 9 and 16. These meetings are for administrators, counselors, and teachers of business subjects in junior and senior high schools in this area.

Business Joins Labor to Back Joseph DeSilva

Business joined hands with labor this week in endorsing Joseph T. DeSilva for assembly in the 63rd District's special election on Nov. 4. The Westside Chamber of Commerce announced its endorsement and full support of the coalition labor candidate as the man who will represent all the people of the 63rd.

Spokesmen for the Chamber expressed their intentions of joining with the AFL, CIO, Railroad Brotherhoods, PCA, the Townsend Clubs and the Parents' Council in electing DeSilva to the assembly.

Taking part in the action were officers and board members of the Westside C. of C., including President Earl J. Griffin, chairman of the board Allen C. Woodard, Nellie Gilchrist, Frieda Sheppard, Luther Beason, James Sidney, Dr. Benjamin Rose, Leon H. Hardwick, Lorraine Armstrong, James W. Dostey, S. Alexander, Beatrice Taylor and Charles Lisburg.

Vernon C. Robinson, chairman of the 63rd District Democratic Committee, also announced endorsement of Joseph T. DeSilva by the committee.

Leading churchmen and civic figures of the district are also lining up solidly behind DeSilva, whose long-standing program of racial equality within his union, the AFL Retail Clerks Local 770, has won high praise from the press and key figures of the community.

On October 8 the topic which will be discussed by four business leaders is "Solving Sales Problems." On October 15 "Increasing Sales With Sales Psychology" will be the topic.

UTSE, CIO Wins Wage Increase For Red Caps

CHICAGO—A new wage contract between the CIO United Transport Service Employes and 16 eastern railroad companies represented by the Eastern Carriers Conference Committee was signed today which calls for a 15½ cents hourly increase for red caps, dining car employes, and train porters.

Amounting to more than $1,500,000 annually, the increase raises the basic hourly minimum of red caps to 91 cents or approximately $30 more on the monthly paycheck. The new rate will increase the dining car employe's monthly earnings by $37.20.

Willard S. Townsend, president of the UTSE-CIO, headed the union's negotiating committee. Other officers who participated and signed for the union were: Vice President John L. Yancey, Secretary-Treasurer Eugene E. Frazier, Vice Presidents Earl Adams and John A. Bowers of New York City.

The wage dispute started earlier during the year, when the UTSE-CIO served notice on all railroads with which it holds contracts for an increase of 20 cents an hour to all existing hourly rates. In the final negotiations concluded this week, the eastern railroads acceded the 15½ cents rate, effective Sept. 3. Similar agreements with the Western Carriers Conference Committee and non-represented railroads are expected to be signed within the next few days.

EAGLE SPORTS
PROGRESSIVE NEWSPAPER FOR PROGRESSIVE
Vol. 68—No. 26 The California Eagle, Thursday, October 2, 1947—21

Sports on Parade

By BILL SCOTT
Sports Editor

GRIN AND BEAR IT

It's a changing world, brother, and along with the changes often come a few surprises. What Yours Truly is getting at is that the California EAGLE now has a new sports editor, Leaving the youth page, I hope to fill the hole left by A. O. Prince.

LABUCHIERIE'S MAGIC CHARM

EAGLE sports news took its start for this week Friday night when the UCLA Bruins controlled the pigskin in the L. A. Coliseum for a 22-7 victory over the Iowa university Hawkeyes. The first quarter seemed like a waste of money to some of the 89,800 football fans present, but the second quarter awoke everyone when Iowa's left-half, En Tunnel scored for Iowa's one and only T.D. What Bert LaBruchierie said to his squad during the half-time would interest a lot of football coaches, because the Bruin eleven came back in the second half to chalk up 22 digits, making the final score 22-7.

Bob Mike, USLA right tackle, veteran of last year, showed Bert Friday night what he can expect the rest of the football season from this 220 pound, 6'1" lad. UCLA's first game of the season found Mike playing three out of the maximum four quarters. Mike's company to the UCLA-Northwestern game to be played in Chicago will include Harry Tompsons, former LACC tackle who finds his first year at UCLA a promising start, and Emerson Cabell from Ohio, who is converting from fullback to tackle.

The American Baseball League loses fans this week and I wonder why. Could it be that Jackie Robinson is in the National and a lot of baseball fans believe that the Dodgers on top will help put Robinson at the same place. Personally, I think Jackie will get there anyway.

THESE ROBINSONS

It's a bulletin from the State Athletic Commission of California, and it's sitting here on top of a stack of mail that would scare even Van Johnson. Believe me brother, when I say that I love all sports, but some from the grandstand only. The commission has listed here ill and unavailable boxers. Six eye injuries, one shoulder injury, three hand injuries, one ear injury, and one nose injury. Somebody is out of the fight game for awhile. Ray Robinson, welterweight champion keeps away from such bulletins and there is little doubt in Ray Robinson's fans' minds that Cecil Hudson will add one to the Chicago bulletin when he meets Ray for a non-title 10 round match on Oct. 2, in Chi. In a previous bout with Hudson in Chicago, Ray put the K.O. on his to-be opponent.

JUST A SUGGESTION

The radio situation looks desperate in the homes of divided sport fans about this time of the season. "Pop" wants to retire after a hard days work by listening to the World Series, but "Sunny" seems to think that the football game is more exciting. Of course the iron first rules in such a case.—Suggest—Buy another radio.

SAYS STANLEY ROBINSON

Last year John Finney of Compton City college may have been chosen "the junior college athlete of the year, 1946," but not Los Angeles City way. They are giving odds that he won't repeat this feat. The main reason, the City College supporters say is a 180 pound half-back a la Buddy Young named Woodly Lewis.

Last week when the City college dropped a heartbreaker in the last 90 seconds of play to the strong University of Redlands eleven, the above mentioned Lewis was not only all over the field on defense, but averaged 13.8 yards every time he took the ball. Not being satisfied with this mere feat alone, the flashy ex-Manual Arts speedster took a handoff from quarterback Chuck Isaacs and rambled 74 yards through the entire Redlands team for a one of the two Cub touchdowns.

Make no mistake in believing that Lewis is a rank amateur to this game called football. He lettered on the last year's City college eleven, and was the outstanding player in the Cubs upset 19 to 7 victory of Little Rose Bowl champions Compton. The short, stocky speedster was also a twice letterman on Manual Arts great high school teams of '41 and '42. Lewis was also an excellent hurdler while at Manual and on last season's powerful City college cinder squad.

Come December and the votes are being cast for the "junior college athlete of the year," remember the name of Woodly Lewis of Los Angeles City college, and don't be surprised if he takes the honor.

BATTLES TUESDAY—Turkey Thompson, top Pacific Coast heavyweight, will toe the mark in a 10-round main event bout Tuesday night against Arturo Godoy.

Southwest Sportograph

By R. E. DIXON

DALLAS, Texas—College pigskin warriors had to pull off those wraps and lay it on the line during the past weekend as the following results will testify:

Tennessee State 34, Texas College 6; Southern Univ. 51, Texas State Univ. 0;

Wiley 40, Clark Univ. 7; Bishop 13, Langston 12; Prairie View 12, Sam Huston 0; Butler College 12, Jarvis Christian 6; Tuskegee 19, Grambling 6.

A fast, smart and rugged Tennessee State eleven outclassed Texas College eleven in Tyler Saturday night to grind out a decisive 34-6 victory before some 5,000 stunned spectators. Tennessee scored early in the first period after a Texas fumble was recovered by Tennessee on the Texas 25. Pulley scored over right guard on his second effort from the 3 yard stripe. Taylor's 7 yard pass to Holbert in the end zone accounted for the visitors' second t.d. as Davis converted his first of four successive extra points via placements. Davis whirled on his own right tackle for the third Tennessee marker to end the first half scoring and made the the score 20-0.

In the third quarter, Texas scored in short order after receiving the kickoff. The payoff was a 37 yard heave from Shipman to Raymond Von Lewis who made a spectacular catch in the end zone as the ball caromed off the fingers of a Tennessee back.

The Mountaineers in th efinal period scored twice, the first coming on a three-yard toss from Taylor to Holbert and the second on Williams interception of Shipman's pass on the Texas 39.

Prairie View 12, Sam Huston 0

Bobby McDonald's trusty right arm rifled three timely passes to diminutive Marcellus Bell who scored one touchdown and set up the second one on the Dragons one yard line to give the Prairie View Panthers a hard earned 12-0 victory over the Sam Huston Dragons on Blackshear field.

Wiley Wildcats 40, Clark Univ. 7

After the first half which ended 8-7 in Wiley's favor, Fred Long's Wildcats came back strong in the last heat to add 5 six-pointers and two extra points to swamp Clark University 40-7. The running of Jimmy Valentine and "Goon" Owens featured the second half for Wiley and wrought havoc with the Atlanta boys defense as the latter registered four touchdowns. Virgil Stanley's sensational 75 yard punt return accounted for the fifth touchdown scored by Wiley in the final stanza.

Miles scored from the Wiley four yard line in the first period for Clark's lone tally.

Bishop 13, Langston 12

Shannon D. Little's Bishop Tigers fought their way up hill in the last half to overcome a 12-point first half deficit and defeat the Langston Lions 13-12 in a ding dong conference skirmish on Langston field. Langston scored twice as the results of blocked kicks in the second quarter.

The Baptists scored in the third period. Christian caught Langston napping as he later passed from his own 15 and completed the game winning toss with an 85 yard touchdown. A foul by Langston gave them the automatic extra point which clinched the contest.

Southern 51, Texas Stat eUniv. 0

The Southern Jaguars rode roughshod over E. V. Rettig's Texas State Univ. gridders from Houston with a 51-0 triumph which avenged their 0-0 stalemate of a year ago against the same team. The outcome was not long in doubt as Key's, Perry, Severand, O'Neal, Calloway, Millon, and Henderson registered touchdowns for the home team. The latter scoring twice.

Butler 12, Jarvis 6

Butler College came through to shade the favored Jarvis College Bulldogs 12-6 Saturday afternoon on Butler field. A week earlier, Butler held Samuel Huston to a 6-0 borderline triumph.

Bolanos Kayoes Thomas in 4th

Enrique Bolanos, 135½, knocked out John Thomas, 139, in the fourth round of their scheduled 10-round main event Tuesday night before 10,400 fans. There was a gross gate of $38,863 and a net of $30,552. Each fighter received 30% of the net.

Kansas City Royals Due in L.A. October 3rd for Series

The Kansas City Royals, crack eastern baseball team recruited from all the major colored leagues arrives in Los Angeles tomorrow for their coming series with Bob Feller, star Cleveland pitcher, and his world series all-stars. The team will limber up at Long Beach Saturday and then journey to San Diego for a doubleheader with the coast league all stars.

Buster Heywood, Sam Hairston of the Cincinnati Clowns, Ed Steele, leading slugger in the western league, Jimmy Newberry of Birmingham and Herb Souell of the Kansas City Monarchs, are some of the players familiar to Los Angeles fandom. Among the noted newcomers will be Goose Tatum, who played here with the Harlem Globetrotters basketball team at the Shrine. Tatum is considered the funniest man in baseball. Playing first base, he keeps the stands in stitches with his unpredictable antics. Gentry Jessup, star pitcher of the American Chicago team is also due. The star of the pitching staff will be Dan Bankhead, first colored twirler to be signed in the major leagues. He will report as soon as the world series is over, as according to the eligible list sent out from Happy Chandler's office, he is eligible for duty in the series.

Bob Feller is in New York now and will remain there to pick up most of his team, which will be composed of Yankee and Brooklyn players. The two teams meet Wednesday night, Oct. 15 and Sunday, Oct. 19, at Wrigley field. Fans are urged to get their tickets early, as the last two years produced sellouts.

Rusty Payne Is Stopped in 1st By Fitzpatrick

Fitzy Fitzpatrick, 180, reversed a previous defeat at the hands of Rusty Payne, 180½, last Friday night at Hollywood Legion stadium, when he chilled that worthy leather-pusher in 2:20 of the first round of their scheduled 10-round main event bout.

Making his debut at the Legion, Fitzy slammed home his potent right hand punch to Payne's jaw and Rusty took the full count from Referee Frankie Van, after which the San Diego boy's handlers had to drag him to his corner, use smelling salts and a vigorous neck massage to bring him back to the land of the living.

Edgar Robinson, 155½, was kayoed in the fourth round of the scheduled 6-round semi-windup by Ray Dioses, 160.

CALIENTE, Old Mexico — It was four straight winning efforts for the great South American horse Sobregiro when he won the feature race last Sunday at the world's greatest Sunday race course. Although he had to be extended for the first time since he came to the border course. Five horses started in the main event for the once around mile for a purse of $1500. One-Armed Cager Joins Famed Five

CHICAGO, Ill.—The Harlem Globetrotters basketball club has received the signed contract of Boid Buie, the one-armed sensation, for the 1947-48 season. Buie was farmed out to the Kansas City Stars, the Globetrotters for the series of games in the Hawaiian Islands where he was a revelation.

Owner A. M. Saperstein intimates that he will use Buie with the Kansas City quintet again most of this coming season to give him another year of seasoning. "With the Stars, Buie will be able to play in every game as a regular," Saperstein said, "and we want to prime him for a regular starting berth in a year or so with the Globetrotters, and not carry him as sideshow attraction." Saperstein says the personable youth can do more with one arm than most players can with two.

Standing 6 feet, 2 inches in height, Buie, at 21 years of age, has carved an unique niche for himself in sportsdom. Eight years ago he was driving over a country road near his home town of Pine Bluff, Ark. Dust from farms swirled in a dense cloud over the highway, and Boid didn't see the intersection and the speeding car.

The next thing he remembered he was in a hospital. A few days later the doctors amputated his left arm, inches below the shoulder. Boid had played basketball in grammar school and loved the game, and, all he could think about as he lay in the hospital, was playing again. "My folks didn't think it could be done," he smiled, "and I'd better at basketball out of my head. But I just couldn't. I told them I was going to play and nothing was going to stop me."

The rest is history. He became a star for four years at J. C. Carbon High on the Arkansas State College campus at Pine Bluff, averaging 18 points a game. In his last season, he sparked the team to 18 state victories and was named to the all-state quintet.

At Tennessee State College, he captained the team three years he played, was a standout at every position, averaged 11 points a game, and in his senior year led State to the Midwest Conference title. Then came the offer from the Globetrotters and his brilliant season last year with their farm club, Kansas City and later with the Trotters.

'Turk' Thompson To Fight Godoy

Turkey Thompson, promising local heavyweight, gets a chance to negotiate another rung of the ladder to a title shot when he faces the veteran Arturo Godoy in a 10-round main event Tuesday night.

Turkey, who is one of the most capable heavies in the nation, will be battling a man who has twice stood up to Joe Louis, the champion, and given a good account of himself on both occasions. If the Turk gets over Godoy other lucrative matches are in the making against ranking opponents.

MURIEL RAHN STARS IN CARNEGIE HALL OPERA

★AMUSEMENTS★

NO FOOLING

By EDDIE BURBRIDGE

HOT OFF THE GRIDDLE— When the Club Harlem staged its grand opening in New York last Thursday one of the principals of its all-star revue was DARLENE O'DAY, known here for her fine exotic dancing . . . From my homie town, New Orleans, DINK JOHNSON. now knocking out tunes on the 88's at his own spot at 42nd and Avalon. It's known as "Dink's Place" . . . Wildroot upped the salary of the King Cole Trio another $250 for their Saturday show over NBC and picked up their option for another 13 weeks. The trio goes on the air wherever they happen to be . . . Woody Herman is fronting his own orchestra again. With the band is Ernie Royal, formerly with Lionel Hampton, who can be heard in a blistering trumpet solo on Julia Lee's new disc "Snatch and Grab It." He'll handle plenty solo work in the brass section for Woody. Thanks to Dave Dexter for this info . . . Louis Armstrong created quite a furor just before departing the West Coast by taking a blast at rebop, bebop and other so-called "progressive jazz." Satchmo says these music styles are too technical. Various musicians and vocalists variously agreed and disagreed with him . . . Count Basie into the Million Dollar theater Nov. 19-25 . . . Roy Milton New Orleans bound . . . Nat Cole and Johnny Mercer will duet on wax for Capitol . . . Al Hibbler creating a sensation singing with the Duke Ellington band at Meadowbrook . . . Horace Henderson running his own night spot in Salt Lake City and fronting a five-piece combo at the [illegible] . . . Marie Bryant through shooting scenes for the pic "Your Red Wagon" . . . Herb Jeffries warbling at the Morocco club in Hollywood . . . Kid Ory still at Billy Berg's . . . Lionel Hampton currently turning the Million Dollar theater into a madhouse with his frantic music, backed by a fine stage show . . . El Herbert will audition for work at Billy Berg's Thursday . . . Lillian Cumber out with her magazine again the first week in this month . . . Bill Johnson, who wrote "Tuxedo Junction," fronting his RCA Victor Combo, has waxed "Don't You Think I Oughta Know" . . . Ethel Waters and the Hall Johnson Singers will appear in a joint concert at Clarksburg, West Virginia, Friday, Oct. 17. Following this date the singers will combine with Miss Waters in a series of concerts that will take them into 7 states along the Atlantic seaboard and in the Middle West . . . Billy Daniels, famous for his rendition of "Diane," opens Friday, Oct. 17, at the Caverns night club in Washington at $1500 per week, the highest salary ever paid a male vocalist in Dee Cee . . . Illinois Jacquet rang up an all-time attendance record at the Waltz Dream Arena in Atlantic City last week. There were 2878 paid admissions for a gross of $4317. There would have been more but the fire department made the gentlemen at the box-office close their windows . . . Billy Eckstine, now at the Onyx Club on New York's 52nd street, has just waxed four sides on the MGM label. Before the aforesaid discs, Billy was backed by a 26-piece orchestra under the direction of Hugo Winterhalter in recording for MGM. Eckstein's record "The Wildest Gal in Town" has become a smash hit . . . Buddy Johnson, "Walk 'Em Rhythm" maestro, jumped off a southern tour to rush to Manhattan for a recording session for Decca. He had played 56 consecutive one-neght stands . . . Time out to say that Lorraine Kimberly is a sweet one and Jean and Helen Mitchell are answers to any man's prayer for beauty and grace . . . June Richmond has been offered the lead in "Empress Josephine" which goes into rehearsal late this month. By the way, June neither smokes nor drinks . . . Celia McNeely will start casting for a musical she will present soon featuring songs written by herself and sung by her. Incidentally one of Celia's sons is in "Banjo," a flicker playing the Orpheum theatre now. She conducts the Busy-Bee children's club but she's as busy as a bee herself. Her musical will feature adults.

Lena Horne Set To Tour Europe

Gorgeous Lena Horne, after a record-breaking run at Monte Proser's Copacabana in New York, is set for a six-week tour of Europe, starting in October. Lena will be the first American star to make such a tour since the war. NCA is booking the sultry-voiced singer across the continent, with Paris as the first stop.

Cast as Egypt'n Princess

NEW YORK— Muriel Rahn, noted concert and operatic soprano gave ample evidence this week that she is the most logical candidate for the Metropolitan's next production of "Aida" when, and if, that august body ever decides to "lower the bars" and admit native born American artists of color to its ranks.

In a startling well cast role of an Egyptian Princess in "The Martyr," original grand opera by H. Lawrence Freeman, veteran Negro composer, produced at Carnegie Hall last Sunday with a white and Negro cast, Miss Rahn matched her physical perfection for the part with a thrilling vocal and dramatic performance that stamped her as top material in the operatic field.

Not since Caterina Jarboro appeared in the role of "Aida" for Maestro Alfredo Salmaggi at the old Hippodrome theatre in this town a decade ago has anyone shown such potential physical, vocal and dramatic attributes for "Aida" as La Rahn. Watching this former 'Carmen' of Carmen Jones romp through the difficult singing and acting assignment given her by composer Freeman, we could not help wish that Branch Rickey has as much to do with "The Met" as he does with the Dodgers.

The hundreds of music lovers who witnessed the premiere of "The Martyr" were thrilled by the brilliant score of H. Lawrence Freeman, and reports have already stated that another of his works will soon be heard. Miss Rahn left New York following her splendid performance for a coast to coast concert, tour that will take her to Pittsburgh, Forth Worth, Wichita Falls, Austin, and other Texas cities continuing to Phoenix, Arizona, Los Angeles and returning by way of Omaha and several midwestern colleges.

No Advance Ducats For Guild Concerts

The Music Guild announces that there will be no advance sale of single tickets for the opening concert of the season on October 14, or for any of the other concerts it has scheduled for Wilshire-Ebell theatre. The house will be sold out entirely by season subscriptions.

TALENTED ACTRESS—Catherine Lewis has been nominated for the leading role in the current Experimental Studio play, "It Will Only Take a Minute." (See story.)

Young Actress Gets Lead in New Stage Play

Catherine Lewis, talented young actress, has been nominated for the leading role in the current Experimental Studio play, "It Will Only Take a Minute," it was announced this week.

A native of Los Angeles, Miss Lewis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lewis. She graduated from Jefferson High School and at the University of Southern California specialized in Social Science. A student of the dramatic arts she has appeared in such vehicles as the "Mikado", the operetta "Kansas" and many other stage plays.

The young actress is unmarried. She is a good singer and lists bowling as her hobby. Miss Lewis is a member of the Actor's Experimental Studio, 4365½ So. Central avenue. To contact her, phone Arnett Williams at AD, 1-7492.

Buddy Johnson Asks More Time

SAN ANTONIO, Texas—Bandleader Buddy Johnson, who is currently barnstorming through the southwest on a one-niter tour, has notified his booking agents, the Gale Agency in New York, that if they want him to keep his band in operation, they had better make no future deals for the Johnson band to play dates where the distance cannot be covered along the ground.

Just as in other lines of endeavor the time comes when the musician is no longer able to follow his chosen line and that is one of the principal reasons why the Musicians Protective Association functions . . . to be in a position to aid these men and women of the profession. Memberships in AFAC for Three DETROIT—Memberships were issued this week to Toni Palmer, George Bias and Melrose Colbert in the American Federation of Authors and Composers by Robert Siebert, president of AFAC.

AFAC is a counter-part of BMI and ASCAP, the latter of which Negroes have had very little opportunity to crack except in very rare cases.

Many radio stations which have had to adhere to strict and stiff regulations with other music clearing societies are all ears to AFAC and express a great desire to go along with them.

Recruits Noted Players

Producer Michael Kanin has recruited a group of outstanding stage players for the "Othello" sequence in the current Kanin production, "Imagination," at U-I.

His Majesty Will Invade Million $

BALTIMORE, Md.—Count Basie, the "Jump King of Swing," teed off on a coast-to-coast theatre and ballroom tour by opening a week's engagement on stage of the Royal theatre here with his band and his sensational new "One O'Clock Revue" last Friday.

The Count's barnstorming tour, which will carry him through 14 states, will wind up in California on Nov. 11, when the Basie entourage takes to the stage of the Million Dollar theatre in Los Angeles for a week's engagement.

COUNT BASIE

Basie's west coast excursion will mark his first appearance in that territory in almost a year, and bookings that are now being set will keep him there well into 1948. Basie was to have headed west early this past summer, but that project was cancelled when he elected to remain in the east for engagements at Club Paradise in Atlantic City and the Strand theatre on Broadway, where he conceived and formulated his brilliant "One O'Clock Revue," which is the rave of theatrical circles.

Prior to heading out on tour, the Count and his bandsmen waxed a series of new records for RCA Victor, which will be processed during their swing through the hinterlands.

Basie's itinerary, in part, is as follows:

Oct. 3, State Armory, Stamford, Conn.; 4, Central Amusement Park, Allentown, Pa.; 5, Madrid Ballroom, Harrisburg, Pa.; 9, Trianon Ballroom, Toledo, Ohio; 10-16, Paradise Theatre, Detroit, Mich.; 17, Tomlinson Hall, Indianapolis, Ind.; 19, Savoy Ballroom, Chicago; 21, Orpheum Theatre, Springfield, Ill.; 22, Rialto Theatre, Joliet, Ill.; 23, Palace Theatre, South Bend, Ind.; 24, St. Ambrose College, Davenport, Iowa; 25, St. Louis, Mo.; 26, Municipal Auditorium, Kansas City, Mo.; 27, Rainbow Ballroom, Denver, Colo.

Duke to Jockey Discs in 1948

Duke Ellington, who recently celebrated his 20th year as topmost bandleader and composer in the modern idiom, is set to start emceeing his own disc jockey show over station WMCA in New York on January 1. The show will be transcribed, syndicated, and will be aired in New York from 12 midnight to 1 a.m. Thanks to the Duke's easy informality, the show promises to be one of the highspots of the coming radio year.

Lydia Fostini Concert Oct. 7

Lydia Fostini, beautiful young soprano, wife of John Fostini, who is featured along with Joel Fluellen, noted Negro actor, in "The Burning Cross," the sensational anti-Ku Klux Klan picture that will soon be shown in Los Angeles, will give her first concert of the new season at the Assistance League Play House, De Longpre and St. Andrews, near Sunset and Western, on Tuesday evening, Oct. 7, at 8:15.

Singer Preps for So. American Tour

Reah Sadowsky, young pianist to be heard in recital under Mary Bran's sponsorship, in the Wilshire-Ebell theatre, October 15, at 8:30 p. m., has been diligently preparing her own musical "Good Neighbor" policy.

In preparation for a tour of South America and the Caribbean in 1948, she has been expanding her already large repertoire of more than three hundred compositions to include a complete program entirely made up of works by C e n t r a l and South American composers.

THE DISC By I. Spinum

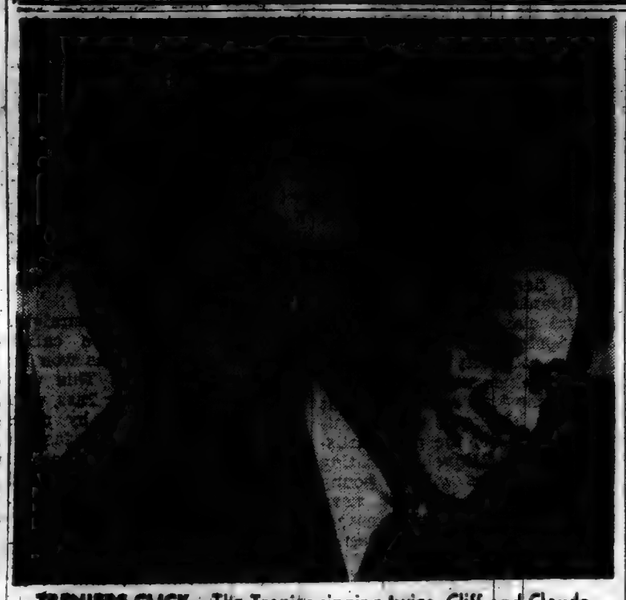
The Supreme Recording company announced this week that it had signed Pee Wee Wiley, T-Bone Walker's cousin as the first blues shouter to be put under a long trm contract by the company.

A big publicity build-up is being planned for the new singing find.

Bobby Pittman, Supreme's sentimental singing star, whose platter "Don't Mention Love To Me" coupled with "Deep In A Dream" has made him not only a national favorite but one of the disc jockeys as well. He has two new releases titled "If I Had You" and "I Had To Give You Up", which should add immeasureably to his fast growing popularity.

NEW YORK—Bob Bailey, new crooning sensation of C o u n t Basie's orchestra, has made an auspicious debut with his first record with the Basie band on the Count's new RCA Victor release of "I'm Drownin' In Your Deep Blue Eyes, Baby".

Young Bob, whom the Count d i s c o v e r e d at a college in Georgia last year and promptly hired for the ballad singing job with his band, had previously waxed a couple of sides with the Basie band for Columbia, but release of these selections was halted by the Columbia firm firm when Basi switched his recording affiliations to RCA Victor shortly after the first of this year.



Eli Oberstein, recording chieftian of RCA Victor, has expressed great enthusiasm for Bailey's singing style, as a result of which Bob will be featured on several forthcoming Basi platters.

When Billy Eckstine signed with the MGM recording company earlier this year, it was with the understanding that the contract called for his services as a bandleader. The MGM executives at first balked at the idea of Eckstine doing a single, but when his first two releases on that label developed into smash hits, they did an about-

La Fitzgerald On Jack Smith Air Show Today

NEW YORK—Ella Fitzgerald, who scored t h r e e sensational smash clicks on the Jack Smith Show last season has already been recalled for her initial appearance on the coast-to-coast October 2. Last s e a s o n Miss Fitzgerald set some kind of a personal achievement r e c o r d when she was the lone artist to play three guest encores.

The program featuring Jack Smith is an informal musical melange of music and comedy featuring the multiple talents of one of r a d i o's brightest personalities along with a band and a nightly "n a m e" guest star. The program is broadcast over the entire Columbia Broadcasting System network at 7:15 E.S.T.

AT MILLION $—Lionel Hampton, personable maestro, is currently appearing in person at the Million Dollar theatre, backed by his great orchestra and a lively stage revue.

A new disc jockey will ride a red hot show emceeing for the Figueroa street used car dealers when "Shadrow Rides the Airways" featuring N e g r o jazz immortals on platters both old and new.

Listeners are invited to tune in this fast little show for a real treat from an emcee who specializes in spinning t h e jazz classics.

Lionel Hampton Clubs to Be Organized at Schools

Another indication this week of the upward surge of Lionel Hampton popularity as a showman and vibraharp king came with the a n n o u n c e m e n t that "Lionel Hampton" clubs will be organized on each major Negro college campus throughout the South.

Already applications for the establishment of such u n i t s have come in from Tuskegee in Alabama, Bethune-Cookman in Florida, Virginia State college, and indications are that over sixty chapters will be established this fall.

Youth groups on campuses desiring to affiliate should send t h e i r applications addressed "National Lionel H a m p t o n Clubs," % Associated Booking Corporation, 45 F i f t h Avenue, New York City.

Each club that is formed will get a complete set of Hampton hit Decca Records which includes the maestro's famous "sweet," "boogie," and "hot."

took the early lead and at one time was ten lengths in front of his field with Murcielago and Sobregiro running in that order. As they turned into the home stretch Steploch, the longest price horse in the field, made his move and had his nose in front of Sobregiro at the 70-yard post, but Jockey H. Johnson went to work on the South American to gain the victory by the shortest of noses. The fans thought that Steploch had won but the camera proved that the Chilean was again the victor to the boos of the crowd. The verdict was just.

The winner paid $2.60 straight. The secondary feature called "The Golden Way" was won by the favorite Nitrate. This was also very close. Creole Pass, who had trailed his field by more than ten lengths, came fast in the stretch and just missed greeting Presiding Steward George Shilling's charmed circle.

The supporting event will be "The Hermosa" at one mile and 70 yards. Ten other races from sprints to distances will give the lovers of the sport of kings plenty of excitement. The Quiniela backers of the combination of Kaweah King and Major Ebony, who finished in that order, received $16.80.

Greyhounds' General Manager William (Bill) Collier was all smiles Saturday nite when one of the largest turnouts of the season was on hand and witnessed Dash By win the feature event of the evening, running the 5-16th mile course in 32 seconds flat. The winner paid $7.80. Honey Gal finished second to make the Quiniela pay $29.20. In the tenth and final race Lady Squeak was the victor and paid $32.60. Pocket Nugget ran second. PCA States Policy on Demos-for-Wallace Movement, New Party

The Progressive Citizens of America will urge its members to "take such part as they may see fit" in either the "Democrats-for-Wallace" movement or the campaign to put the Independent Progressive party on the ballot in California, but will "retain its status independent of all political parties" and will continue to refrain from endorsing any party or candidate for the Presidency at this time, it was announced from their Southern California office this week.

This policy is embodied in a Statement on Political Policy adopted by the board of directors of Southern California PCA, endorsed by representatives of 20 Southern California PCA Chapters, and now being submitted to the membership of the 28 chapters for ratification.

Terming the "Democrats-for-Wallace" movement "The most tangible evidence of effort by progressive Democrats to revitalize and liberalize that party" and its principles "The statement urged those PCA members who are active Democrats "to support that movement in every way possible."

At the same time, the statement placed no bar on PCA members participating in the recently launched drive to put the Independent Progressive party on the ballot in California. Taking note of the announced intention of the Independent Progressive party to support progressive candidates who may be running on tickets of other parties, and to refrain from opposing progressive Democrats who face contests in their own party primaries, the PCA statement declared that "under these circumstances PCA members and other progressives could work unitedly for the nomination of progressive candidates in the Democratic primaries in June 1948."

Phillips Returns from 10,000 Mile Tour of Caribbean Area

Hilton Alonzo Phillips, local specialist in diplomatic and consular law, arrived in Los Angeles this week after an extensive tour of some 10,000 miles through Central and South America, and the islands of the Caribbean.

Phillips returned home via New York and Washington, where he conferred with Liberian Secretary of State Gabriel Dennis and other Liberian officials under former President Charles Dunbar King, who was Liberia's first minister to the United States.

The people of Latin America, said Phillips, spurn the philosophy of a master race so prevalent in the United States, and deplore the strained relations between our country and Soviet Russia. They say, "we are needlessly being blackmailed into support of a dying system of imperial banditry and colonial exploitation which has brought Western Europe tottering to it knees."

Phillips pointed out that many people in the Antilles, especially in American Puerto Rico and British Barbados are actually dying of pellagra caused by malnutrition and starvation," and that in so-called "healthy overpopulated Barbados, the death and birth rate run almost neck and neck, far in excess of much maligned Liberia."

"I saw children with extended bowels and slim legs who were actually being eaten to death by rickets, hookworm and pellagra in the islands visited. In Trinidad, the jobless, led by Uriah Butler are so militant that food riots are feared, while in Barbados and the other islands news are actually suppressed concerning the deplorable economic state of plantation peonage and minority exploiter rule."

Phillips advocated a scheme of immigration from Barbados to Liberia, and conferred with government officials of most of the countries visited.

The grand tour, made entirely by air, included Mexico, Guatemala, El Salvador, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Panama, Colombia, Venezuela, Trinidad, Barbados, St. Lucia, Antigua via Martiniqua, Dominica and St. Kitts, St. Thomas and Puerto Rico. While visiting Governor Pinero at San Juan a tour of Puerto Rico was undertaken. Mr. Phillips also spent time with relatives in New York and Brooklyn, and visited the grave of his mother, and father, the late Captain Edwin Augustus Phillips.

Pullman Laundry Workers Gain Wage Increase

CHICAGO—More than 1000 Pullman laundry workers employed in Pullman laundries at New York, Chicago, Washington, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Kansas City, Miami and Oakland, Calif., gained a 15½ cent wage increase, following completion yesterday of wage negotiations between the Pullman Company and the CIO United Transport Service Employes.

The new wage pact, which establishes a 91 cents basic hourly minimum in Pullman laundries, was signed by President Willard S. Townsend, executive vice-president John L. Yancey and Mrs. Ethel J. McCoo for the CIO union. H. R. Lary, supervisor of industrial relations, represented the Pullman Company.

The CIO union represents all laundry workers in the company's 12 plants scattered throughout the country. This includes mangle workers, washermen, coat pressing operators, truck drivers, seamstresses, janitors and watchmen.

Joining the UTSE-CIO in 1943, the Pullman Laundry workers have obtained five wage increases since that time. In 1943, the basic hourly minimum was 38c. Two years ago, the workers obtained vacations with pay.

The new wage agreement resulted from demands made upon the company last spring and is retroactive Sept. 1, 1947.

Job Training

In order to meet the growing demand for qualified janitors throughout the city and county, a class in Custodial Engineering is being offered at Jordan Evening school, located at 2265 E. 103rd st., near Alameda. The instructor for this class is Chief Custodial Engineer Scott at Jordan High school.

Victory Seen Near In Fight for Fired Cleveland P. O. Clerk

CLEVELAND—Victory in the campaign for reinstatement of Joseph P. Bryant, Jr., in the postal service, seemed imminent this week as Acting Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson assured Congressman Crosser that "The Civil Service Commission will be requested to authorize his (Bryant's) reinstatement."

Bryant, the only Negro window clerk in the exclusive Shaker Square station, was removed from his position last Oct. 15 and upon charges by post office inspectors of overcharging 72 cents on postage was dismissed from the postal service a month later. In April of this year, a federal jury acquitted Bryant of the charges after 20 minutes deliberation, but the Post Office Dept. refused to give him back his job.

The case has been the subject of thousands of protests to the postmaster general, and of resolutions by the National Alliance of Postal Employes and other organiations. It has been aired on the floor of congress. The leading community organizations of Cleveland formed the Cleveland Negro Citizens Council to push the fight for Bryant's reinstatement.

In his letter to Congressman Crosser, Acting Postmaster Donalson states that "A thorough review has been completed of the entire file in this case and the conclusion has been reached that Mr. Bryant has been sufficiently punished." Donaldson did not explain just what it is that Bryant was punished for, considering that the federal court fully exonerated him of the charges made against him.

ANTI-COVENANT PICKETS march in front of Dr. Alonzo Wilkins' home, 2435 Sixth ave., in protest at attempt by white neighbors to evict family from own home because they are Negroes. The demonstration was organized last Thursday by the Citizens Committee Against Restrictive Covenants. The following day hearing on the Wilkins covenant case was postponed to October 27 in Superior Judge Frank Swain's court, when they must answer a contempt charge.

On The Sidewalk

By C. A. B.

THE most un-American activitiy on time's calendar at the present is being carried on by the Un-American Activities Committee.

This un-American steamroller is headed towards Hollywood to make an attack on the motion picture industry. On its way to California it by-passed many Fascist organizations working against our Americanism. We cannot iron out those wrinkles in our national life that appeal to our fancy or prejudice, and overlook those designed to destroy the peace at any price.

For instance, the Un-American Activities Committee and all other committees or agencies must sooner or later realize that discrimination against Negroes in the Army, in the Navy, and in the Marines, is un-American.—

That an uprising against foreign born Americans, used as an instrument to punish those who disagree with us politically, is un-American.

Find the authors of and the motive back of the person or persons who sent out the little pink papers inviting certain people to come to Washington to testify about Hollywood.

TURN the searchlight on the revival of the lynch spirit which invaded the South as an aftermath of World War II. The victims of this lynch spree fought side by side to make America and the world safe for democracy with those who composed the lynch mob.—

Do these things, and you will find the real un-Americans who are working to destroy our government.

A condition that should also engage the scrutiny of the Committee is the wide-spread policy of certain powerful influences to deprive Negro citizens of their right granted by the Constitution to buy property, build homes, and live decently. This condition spelled out means restrictive covenants.

A local case in restrictions is that of Dr. Alonzo Wilkins and his family.

When I visited the Wilkins in their spacious Sixth Avenue home last week, I wondered how individuals who "pledge allegiance to the flag and to the republic for which it stands, one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all" could object to the presence of this family.

DR. Wilkins, his wife, and three children, in my estimation, possess all the qualities that go to make up a healthy, clean community atmosphere. And what is true in this case can be applied to other Negro families who have purchased homes in the territory known as the Southwestern Wilshire district.

If fighting for the right to live where one can afford to buy nets one the title of "Red" by one's enemies, I will take it with a grain of salt and will go on even, if necessary, single-handed fighting the enemies.

And I feel that our chief enemies are our greedy Republicans on the Jimcrow Freedom Train now wending its way across the continent, and their compatroits, those Democrats who blended so perfectly in the pattern of the 80th Congress to defeat the anti-lynch bill, the anti-poll tax bill, but to create the Taft-Hartley slave bill. And most of all the Negro leaders who refuse to accept the truth in a situation that keeps them slaves to a tradition they never fully understood.

To the Un-American Activities Committee I say these are some of the real evils of Democracy you should investigate and remedy.

AND to both my enemies and my friends within my racial group, there is only one path of escape from the fiery furnace of hate for you—the Third Party Movement.

For more than 80 years the leaders of both political parties have been promising the Negro people political freedom. The beginning was made when the Negro was freed from chattel slavery. But since then both parties have found excuses to retard the Negro in his search for freedom, for education, for the privileges accorded him in the Constitution.

Lifting himself up by his own bootstraps, with little or no help from either government or individual, the Negro has climbed up to a position where he can stand the equal of any white man today.

Nevertheless the discrimination practiced against men and women of darker skin in industry, in schools and colleges, in every walk of life, has engendered a feeling of mental slavery. No longer a chattel slave, the Negro is nevertheless a slave mentally through fear of losing his job, of losing his home, of going hungry and cold and seeing his loved ones go hungry and cold.

This condition in America has aroused a deep hatred within the soul of the American Negro, just as the 80 years occupation of Egypt by Great Britain has aroused

Judge Brushes Aside Defense Burglar Plea

Clarence D. Dawson, 120 South Beaudry avenue, who shot and killed little Eddie Hines last July while he and three of his companions were playing hide-and-seek, was found guilty of murder at the conclusion of the trial held in the superior court of Judge William R. McKay last week.

Eddie Hines, a Negro boy of 14 years of age, who lived with his parents at 311 Diamond street, was playing hide-and-seek with 3 other boys. Eddie was "It." The three boys who were hiding, crawled through a torn screen over a window into the basement of a building nearby.

Eddie, in hunting them, came to the window, poked his head into the window—and was shot by Dawson who claimed he thought the boys were prowlers.

Dawson, who is connected with mining and land development, had just come home from a five-days' trip to the desert. He claimed he had missed on different occasions several articles from the building in which the boys were hiding, and that when he saw Eddie standing by the window and heard a noise in the basement, he thought the place was being burglarized. Dawson also claimed that he had called out to Eddie, and that the boy had turned upon him, so he shot in self defense.

But these flimsy excuses were overruled. "A life is a life," said Judge McKay. And Dawson was pronounced "guilty of murder." Sentence will be pronounced November 12.

Night Club Waitress Named In Divorce Suit

Exotic Marie Coker, the former Marie Dickerson, internationally known "shake" dancer and one time toast of local theatres and night spots, this week had filed suit for divorce against her handsome husband, Henry Coker.

The complaint, prepared by Attorney Curtis C. Taylor, alleges extreme cruelty and names a glamorous night club waitress as co-respondent.

It relates that the couple were married in Honolulu on Feb. 25, 1943, lists community property approximating close to $15,000, including two automobiles, a bank account and income property at 916 East 25th St., where for several years the curvaceous Marie has conducted a palatial rooming house, known as the Lanakai Rest Home, and cater-

The case against Elijah Newlins, of Indio, arrested on a trumped-up drunk charge by Los Angeles police, was dismissed Monday by Judge Elmer Doyle in the municipal court.

Newlins, 86 years of age, is one of the most highly respected citizens of Indio. He and Mrs. Newlins, aged 80, were returning from a visit to Newlins' brother in Oakland, and were accidentaaly separated in the Los Angeles Union Station while changing trains. Mrs. Newlins continued on her way home thinking her husband was probably on some other coach of the train.

Robinson Retires, Young Hill Heads Angelus Firm

After serving as president of the Angelus Funeral Home since it was organized 22 years ago and five years as manager, L. G. Robinson, former custodian of janitors and elevators service for Los Angeles county for 36 years, yesterday announced his retirement as head of the popular mortuary, located at 1030 East Jefferson blvd.

This is the second retirement for the well known business and civic leader with the past five years. When he left the county service in 1942, Robinson was probably the most admired of the 17,000 county employes at that time.

Named by the Angelus board of directors to succeed Robinson, at his suggestion, is John L. Hill, 24, son of the late John L. Hill, one of the firm's organizers, who was vice-president-manager until his death in 1942. Young Hill was chosen vice president of the company a few months ago.

Commenting upon his youthful successor, Robinson said: "In

C., after appearing at the "Keep America Free" testimonial rally sponsored in their honor by the Southern California Chapter of the Progressive Citizens of America Wednesday evening, October 15, in the Shrine Auditorium.

Jury Acquits Vet On One Count; Disagrees on 2nd

SAN DIEGO—A jury in Judge Joseph Shell's court yesterday acquitted Raymond Brashear of the charge of attempting to attack a police officer, but failed to agree on the second charge against the young World War II veteran, that of attempting to stab a friend, William Dabney. The court ordered a retrial of Brashear, but set no date for the new trial.

The charges against the young vet grew out of the events of March 9 last when he celebrated his first night at home after two and a half years of active service overseas with a small party at his home.

The evening ended in a violent quarrel between William Dabney and his wife, who were guests at the Brashear home, 2063 Ocean View, followed by the entry of police and the shooting of Brashear by a white plainclothes man, Harry E. Hale.

Police testimony that young Brashear attempted to stab Dabney was contradicted by the veteran's mother and other defense witnesses, who emphasized that there was no quarrel between Brashear and Dabney, that Brashear together with others at the party was merely trying to separate Mr. and Mrs. Dabney

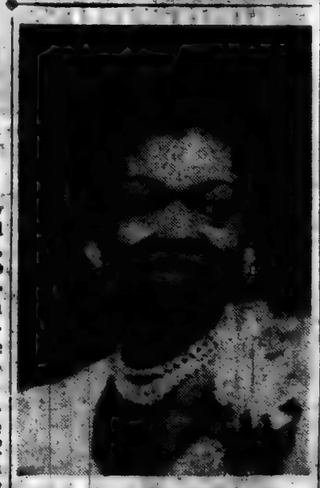
Dan Marshall Leads Assault On Nazi-Like Law

A 50 year old California master-race law, forbidding intermarriage of whites with Negroes and Orientals was attacked as unconstitutional Tuesday before the state supreme court in the first constitutionality test of the Nazi-like statute.



Sylvester S. Davis Jr., 24, a graduate of Los Angeles City college, and Andree D. Perez, his white fiancee, asked the court for a writ of mandate ordering Los Angeles county clerk J. F. Meconey to issue a marriage license which he denied them last August 1.

The test case is sponsored by the Catholic Interracial Council and was argued by its chairman, Attorney Daniel C. Marshall, who told the tribunal the state statute violates the first and 14th amendments of the federal constitution and Art. 1 of the state constitution, guaranteeing freedom of religion.

He pointed out that the petitioners are Catholics and "there is no rule, regulation or law of the Roman Catholic Church which forbids a white person and a Negro person from receiving conjointly the sacrament of matrimony and thus to intermarry."

To the spectators in the court, the scene seemed to

Boyd Named By Pepsi Cola To Head Negro Staff

NEW YORK—Continuing Pepsi-Cola's established policy of encouraging opportunities for Negroes in all of its business activities and related endeavors, Walter S. Mack Jr., president of Pepsi-Cola Company, yesterday announced the appointent of Edward F. Boyd as assistant sales manager. Boyd is a native son of Riverside, Calif.

Boyd will make his headquarters in Long Island City, N. Y., th executive offices of Pepsi-Cola Company. Under his direction, a Negro field staff will be integrated into the organization.

Boyd joins the Pepsi-Cola Company after an extensive career in the fields of public housing, labor relations and social welfare. He has had wide experience in racial relations and in promoting the welfare of colored people, and has been associated with such organizations as the National Housing Agency, the National Urban League, the Civil Service Commission of San Francisco, the National Youth Administration, the Screen Actors' Guild in Hollywood, and the housing authorities of Los Angeles and Vallejo, Calif.

A native of California, although he is now a resident of New York City, Boyd is a graduate of the University of California, and has also attended Riverside Junior college and taken special work at the University of Southern California and Columbia university.

In announcing Boyd's appointment, Mack declared: "Pepsi-Cola has a firm and established policy of encouraging opportunities for Negroes in all of its business activities and related endeavors. Besides the direct employment of Negroes as well as white people in its own organization, the company has always insisted that its community projects be for the benefit of all, without regard to race, creed or color. These projects have included Job Awards for young people finishing schools; Service Centers for men and women in the armed forces; open-air concerts; square dances in the parks; a nationwide art competition; and many other generous community activities.

"In all of these endeavors," Mack added, "we have constantly sought to make their enjoyment and benefits available to people in all walks of life. To this end, we have striven to promote the welfare of all groups in each of our community projects.

"Back in 1940, when job opportunities for young people were still scarce, Pepsi-Cola instituted a Job Awards program, a plan which sought to bridge the gap between graduation and business by giving young college graduates actual business training for one year at a good beginner's salary. The winners of these Job Awards, which were in the form of paid business internships, received actual business training in specially created jobs with the Pepsi-Cola Company. The Job Awards were successfully repeated for the graduating classes of 1941, but were compelled to be suspended after the United States entered the war.

"Another Pepsi-Cola endeavor is its Scholarship Program, begun in 1945, which is designed to enable high school boys and girls to go to college, who could not do so without the company's financial assistance. At least 121 full four-year scholarships and over 550 college entrance awards are given to outstanding boys and girls each year, in order to develop and train them to play their part in the building of the future America.

"In order to insure the participation of these awards of Negro students in areas with separate Negro educational systems, specific provisions have been made to distribute a specified number of scholarships exclusively for Negro students in those states.

"During the war, Pepsi-Cola also established a series of Pepsi-Cola Centers for Service Men and Women, open to all ranks and races, and in addition operated a number of Pepsi-Cola Junior Clubs for teen-agers in the metropolitan New York area. One of these teen-age centers was the Pepsi-Cola Junior Club of Harlem, in which children of the community could find wholesome recreation in their after-school hours.

"A fifth Pepsi-Cola activity, worthy of mention, is its annual nationwide art competition, now in its fourth year. The purpose of this competition, which this year offers a total of $35,950 in cash prizes, fellowships and calendar purchases, is to help the American public to know and understand the art of our times and our country, and at the same time to help artists to earn a living. Negro artists, as well as those of all races and creeds, have been represented in this annual competition."

It is unlawful to engage in a motor vehicle speed contest or speed exhibition upon any highway or to aid and abet such activities. You also are liable to arrest if you participate or assist in barricading or obstructing a highway for such a contest or exhibition.

The 1947 Legislature enacted a law requiring that where a roadway is not bounded by any curbs or barriers, parallel parking is required unless otherwise indicated.

a kind of madness among Egyptians against everything that is British.

GREAT Britian decided that she would evacuate Egypt. But she also decided that that evacuation shall be slow, and that it shall never include the Sudan, the pride of the land of Egypt.

Similarly the politicians of both the Republican and Democratic parties have decided that the Negro shall be "uplifted." He shall be granted full citizenship. When? In years to come. His freedom shall come gradually, as "he shows himself fit for it."

Friends, the time is now. If the Negro people are not ready for full citizenship today, they will never be ready. The time is now to throw off the shackles of this mental slavery. To assert our American manhood and womanhood. To proclaim our independence. To tell our political "friends" in both parties we intend to stand henceforth on our own feet. To think our own thoughts. To have our own party, if you please.

That party, friends, is The Independent Progressive Party. Petitions are being circulated now for signatures to make its creation possible. Get busy. Sign. Circculate.

British Decision Angers Nigeria

LONDON.—Angry protests swept Nigeria and the Cameroons this week when it was learned that their request for a democratic constitution and guarantee of eventual independence had been bluntly turned down by the British government, according to a cablegram from Lagos, Nigeria.

The request was presented to British Colonial Secretary Creech Jones by a Nigerian-Camerons delegation headed by Dr. Nnamdi Azikewe. Azikewe said Jones' answer "disgusted" the delegation, that it was "the last delegation that will come to Britain" from the two West African colonies. "We will beg no more," he said.

The cablegram from Lagos reported "wild general reactions" in that city, with Nigerian youth leaders raising the cry of "life with freedom or death."

Speakers at a Lagos mass meeting called by the powerful National Council of Nigeria and the Cameroons to hear the result of the London negotiations denounced the British reply as "an unprecedented insult to Nigeria and the entire African continent."

Several speakers advocated a civil disobedience and non-cooperation campaign against the British, sending of delegations to tour the United States, Russia, France, India and other countries to evoke public support for Nigeria. Speakers also proposed an appeal to the United Nations.

The delegation to Britain had asked abolition of the Crown system of government prevailing in Nigeria as "outmoded," "static, unprogressive, and not in accordance with the democratic ideals for which our country contributed her share in man-power, money and materials in World War II."

The delegates were instructed specifically to protest against the Richards' constitution imposed upon the colony, as "subversive" of the democratic rights of Nigeria and the Cameroons, and "derogative" of the status of the native paramount rulers, and to demand that "immediate steps be taken now towards self-government for Nigeria and the Cameroons."

The Richards constitution provides for a legislative council of 44 members, all but four nominated by the British governor, holding office at his pleasure and "not answerable to the taxpayers." West African leaders denounce it as a fraud.

The National Council of Nigeria and the Cameroons is a federation of 183 political parties, trade unions, professional and business associations, farmers and peasants organizations, tribal unions, youth leagues, students and other cultural organizations in Nigeria and the Cameroons.

File Sweatt Appeal Against Univ. of Texas

NEW YORK—NAACP attorneys for Herman Marion Sweatt, Houston, Texas postman, this week had filed brief on appeal in the case against the University of Texas, in which Sweatt is seeking entrance to the law school.

The brief for Sweatt in the court of civil appeals is based on three points:

(1) There is no rational basis for racial classification for school purposes; (2) public schools, "separate but equal" in theory are in fact and in practical administration consistently unequal and discriminatory; (3) it is impossible to have the equality required by the 14th amendment in a public school system which relegates citizens of a disadvantaged racial minority group to separate schools.

The brief contains not only legal authorities but a carefully assembled group of recognized authorities as recorded in scientific journals, legal, sociolfgical and economic.

On June 26, 1946, the district court of Travis county, Texas, ruled that the University of Texas in refusing to admit Sweatt had violated the constitution of the United States. The court, however, gave the state six months to either set up a "separate but equal" law school or to admit Sweatt to the university. On December 17, 1946, the same court denied a petition for writ of mandamus on the grounds that the state proposed to set up a Negro law school in February of 1947.

This judgment was appealed in the court of civil appeals of Texas and on March 26 last that court reversed the judgment of the trial court and remanded the case for further proceedings. In May of this year, a full trial was held in the district court in Austin, Texas, at which time Sweatt's lawyers began a direct attack on the legality of the segregation statutes of Texas. The present appeal continues that attack.

Back DeSilva For Assembly

Community leaders rallied this week in support of Joseph T. DeSilva for assembly in the 63rd district, with endorsement by Thomas L. Griffith Jr., Dr. H. Claude Hudson, Curtis Taylor, Dr. Vada Somerville, Loren Miller, Leon Washington, Leonard Christmas, Fay Allen, John Merchant, H. A. Evans, Ed Hawkins, A. T. Patrick, Lorenzo Lowdoin and a score of others.

Endorsement of DeSilva is based upon his record as executive secretary of the AFL Retail Clerks, Local 770, his sound, progressive platform and his pledge to represent all the people of the 63rd district. He is a staunch advocate of fair employment practices.

The DeSilva platform, which was officially released this week in leaflet form, covers 12 points. Prefacing the platform is this statement by DeSilva: "My first official act upon reaching Sacramento will be to call for a special session of the Legislature to investigate runaway prices and the housing situation."

L. A. Contractor to Erect New Industrial School in Liberia For Baptist Foreign Missions

At the close of the 67th annual session o fthe National Baptist Convention which met in Kansas City, Mo., the Foreign Missions division received special recognition by the startling but noteworthy announcement that Joseph B. Wilson, a 67-year-old contractor of Los Angeles, would devote the remaining years of his life to the church.

Wilson will leave for Liberia November 1 via plane to supervise the building of roads and bridges which will make the church's mission in that country more accessible.

"For many years I have looked for an opportunity to serve God and my church," Wilson said. "Finally the door has been opened to me. I hope through my mechanical contribution to make easier the work of those who carry the great message of the spirit."

Before leaving he will ship the necessary material for the completion of the hospital and industrial school to be erected. Plans have been drafted to enlarge the existing hospital and build a new industrial school, which is badly overcrowded.

Wilson is a member and deacon of St. Paul Baptist church, Rev. J. L. Branham, pastor. He is the father of three daughters and grandfather of five grandchildren. Two of his daughters, Mrs. Lillian Miller and Verna Mae Wilson of 2439 S. Western ave., reside in Los Angeles. Mrs. Selma Barksdale is a resident of Chicago.

Joseph Wilson, who became a licensed building contractor back in '43, attended Arkansas State college, Pine Bluff. In the early part of the year he was guest speaker for his Alma Mater on Founders' Day. (Photo on P. 15).

Urges U. S. Recognize Europe's Turn to Left

FLUSHING MEADOW, New York—The cause of world peace would be greatly advanced if the Truman administration would recognize what is dying and what is being born in Europe.

Jan Masaryk, foreign minister of Czechoslovakia this week attempted to clarify the administration on that question. "Europe," he told the general assembly of the United Nations, has gone definitely to the left." He emphasized it might be well for every member country to face that as a reality.

The Czech spokesman prefaced his declaration by saying that he hoped it would not be considered "startling" to the delegates of the 55 nations but that the trend to the Left was nevertheless a "well-established fact, based on historical development and economic necessities."

Masaryk said that although such talk might send shivers up the spines of some countries, nationalization of important parts of industry has become the irretrievable program of Europe today."

Noting that one of the subjects most widely discussed in the assembly was the widening rift between the East and the West, he implied that the United States, as recognized leader of the West, should especially recognize the Leftward trend in Europe.

Masaryk scolded the Western powers on their plans to rehabilitate German heavy industry. He declared that the Czechoslovak people were worried by the talk about putting German industry back into the hands of private German enterprise.

"Our people remember only too well what was the result of Western capital's being poured into Germany after the First World War," he continued. "You can persuade me personally that Germany is not dangerous and will not be dangerous for some time to come, but you cannot persuade a girl working in my office whose whole family, without exception, has been exterminated."

Evidently alluding to the Marshall Plan and the Truman Doctrine, the Czech spokesman critized efforts of the United Nations.

UN Asked to End Smuts' Control of Southwest Africa

NEW YORK—U. N. representatives meeting at Lake Success were requested this week by the Council on African Affairs in New York to terminate South Africa's jurisdiction over the former German colony of Southwest Africa, which was a mandate territory under the League of nations.

Representatives of 24 nations in the U. N. last week condemned the failure of the South African government to submit a trusteeship agreement for South West Africa in accordance with the resolution approved last year by the U. N. general assembly. It is now up to the assembly to decide what further steps should be taken in this matter.

In a detailed five page memorandum sent to Secretary-General Trygve Lie and U. N. delegates, the Council on African Affairs urged the general assembly "to give the following directives to the trusteeship Council of the United Nations:

"1. That a commission of investigation be sent to ascertain the present conditions and needs of the African population in South-West Africa;

"2. That the administration of South West Africa be given over to an international administrative body under the jurisdiction of the Trusteeship Council of the United Nations."

These demands were based on the submission of evidence supporting three charges. The first was that the failure of the South African government to present a trusteeship agreement for its mandate territory could "not be justified on any grounds." Secondly, it was charged that steps had in fact been taken toward incorporation of South-West Africa.

It was further contended that South Africa's violation of the Charter's provisions regarding respect for human rights in the case of its own non-white inhabitants, and its bad record of administration of South-West Africa, disqualified the Dominion government from continuing to rule South-West Africa.

Statements of General Smuts himself and citations from official records of the South African government and the Permanent Mandates commission of the defunct League of Nations were included in the evidence supporting these charges.

"The contention of the South African government that it is not legally bound to submit a trusteeship agreement for South-West Africa is tantamount to flouting the authority of the international organization and proclaiming exclusive and absolute ownership of the territory. Such a stand cannot be countenanced by the United Nations," the United Nations," the memorandum declared.

The statement was signed by Paul Robeson, chairman, and Max Yergan executive director of the Council on African Affairs, whose headquarters are at 23 West 26 street, New York, N.Y.

The past dinner party given for the membership was hosted by Mrs. Laura Johnson at the home of Mrs. Faye Armstrong, 4628 Wall St.

Negro Extension Workers Increased By 197 Since '45

Of the 924 additional agricultural extension workers appointed in the South through Bankhead-Flannagan funds since the 1946 fiscal year, 197 or 21 per cent were colored, reports M. L. Wilson, director of Extension Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

North Carolina leads the list of States with the appointment of 36 additional colored farm and home demonstration agents and supervisors; and Mississippi is second with the appointment of 31. The total number of Negro Extension Service agents and supervisors stood at 790 as of June 30.

Missouri Unions To Fight State's Anti-Labor Laws

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—Missouri Negroes are watching with keen interest the preparations of Organized Labor for a major campaign against the state's new anti-labor legislation. The campaign is being organized by the state's two major labor movements and independent unions.

Decision to appoint a committee of attorneys to map the strategy of the legal fight was voted at a meeting here attended by representatives of the Missouri AFL, CIO, machinists and telephone workers unions.

The Missouri CIO Council's officers and executive committee were voted full authority at their state convention to test the two laws either by declaratory judgment or test suits arising under operation of the laws.

One of the laws prohibits picketing and stirkes in the powerful utilities industries. The other applies generally to unions and bans secondary boycotts and jurisdictional strikes, provides for state-conducted strike votes and makes unions liable to damage suits. The law can be enforced by injunctive activity.

Indian Press Hits Anglo-U.S. Bloc

NEW DELHI — The Indian press this week has sided with Russia in its controversy with the Anglo-Saxon bloc in the United Nations.

Typical of Indian press comment was the statement of the Indian News Chronicle, leading Indian-owned newspaper in India's capital, that Anglo-American tactics were "obviously intended to place Russia in the wrong every time she differs from the Anglo-American group by the exercise of her majority vote."

Asks Virginia Court Reverse Censors' Ban On Anti-Klan Picture

WASHINGTON—Jack Cartwright, Screen Guild Productions' public relations chief here to press appeal to the Virginia State Board of Censors to lift their ban on "The Burning Cross," announced yesterday that a special screening of the anti-Klan picture will be held October 9 for the National Press Club in Washington, to be attended by newspaper columnists, correspondents and reporters.

The Censorship board reaffirmed its ban on the picture last Saturday, and it is understood the Screen Guild Productions intends to ask the Virginia state court of appeals to set aside the board's ban.

The staate board banned the film on grounds it would tend to revive "animosities, dislikes and enmities," and might "incite crime."

A Screen Guild spokesman charged that the board's reasoning was "erroneous".

"The picture is a very definite indictment of the KKK and all similar un-American activities," he said. The only thing it could incite is hatred for un-American activities."

He said the board's action was a threat to freedom of speech and the press and that an appeal would be filed in Richmond.

Juveniles Get Break

Juvenile violators of federal laws will get probation, instead of prosecution and a court record, for their first offense under a new program announced yesterday by U. S. Atty. James M. Carr.

Under this program, known as the Brooklyn Plan, youthful offenders will be placed under strict supervision of probation authorities with prosecution indefinitely deferred and no court record will be filed unless the probation is violated.

Big Dairy Interests Keep 'Poor Man's Butter' Off the Market

NEW YORK.—The dairy interests who have forced butter prices up to $1 a pound are also responsible for keeping margarine—the "poor man's butter"—off many a worker's table.

Desupite restrictions on the product, however, trade reports show margarine sales are outstripping butter sales two to one. The reason? Margarine—when it can be had—sells for from 30 to 36 cents a pound.

Consumers could get the butter substitute for even less, however, if it were not for a series of discriminatory taxes imposed by the government over the last 60 years under pressure from butter lobbyists.

The federal government puts a tax of 10 cents a pound on colored margarine and ¼ cent a pound on uncolored. It also requires your grocer to buy a license costing $48 a year before he can sell colored margarine or $6 for selling uncolored.

The wholesaler from whom the grocer gets his margarine must pay a license fee of $480 a year for the privilege of selling colored margarine—$200 on uncolored.

Margarine manufacturers also get penalized. They must pay license fees of $600 on the manufacture of all margarine. Still other restrictive laws require hospitals, restaurants, charitable, religious and other institutions which buy and color margarine to pay a yearly manufacturers license fee of $600 plus an excise tax of 10 cents a pound on each pound so colored.

In addition, eight states have laws charging an excise tax on margarine ranging from 4 to 15 cents a pound, nine states charge a retailers' license fee of $1 to $1000 yearly; 11 states require retailers to buy licenses costing from 50 cents to $400 a year; and 23 states, mainly in the north, forbid the manufacture or sale of colored margarine altogether.

All these discriminatory taxes penalize the consumer for buying a food which the government recommends as a "wholesome and nutritious food."

Despite popular belief that margarine is inferior as a food to butter, the committee on public health relations of the New York Academy of Medicine says that "margarine, fortified with vitamin A, is nutritionally equal to butter."

According to the National Association of Margarine Manufacturers, butter averages 9000 units of vitamin A per pound, while most margarine contains 15,000 units per pound.

AVC Renews Protest To 'Loyalty Check'

The American Veterans Committee this week made it clear elimination of its name from the purge list of the county's "loyalty check" had not affected its opposition to the witch hunt against 20,000 county employes.

A resoultion adopted by the AVC stated, "We are opposed to any sort of political test for employment, whether that test be directed at uncovering the political affiliation with the Republican party, the Democratic party, or any other party."

It called for repeal of the entire "loyalty check" ordinance.

Deep Sea Diver Retires, Tells Of Adventures

Richard Turpin, deep-sea diver, with 58 years of service in the United State Government, is now living a retired life at 3921 West 27th street, sharing his experiences and adventures with his friends and neighbors.

Turpin has been diving in the waters of every ocean in the world and has had real battles with sharks, octopi, and other fierce denizens of the deep.

His most thrilling adventure, no doubt, took place in the Puget Sound Navy Yard. He was master diver in that yard. One day when he and a helper had gone down some 30 feet to repair the pier, Turpin suddenly felt something sieze him, and drag him down. It was a sudden drop of about 35 feet, a fact which alone was dangerous.

But when Turpin caught his breath and had time to look around, he found a giant octopus had hold of him!

In fighting an octopus, Turpin always tells his listeners, you must never try to cut off his arms. There are too many.

"Strike for the body itself," he says. "Stab him just above his two big eyes, or just under the sac by which he throws out an inky fluid to darken the waters."

Turpin had a long sharp knife with him. His arm was strong. And he struck, and struck hard. First just above those great bulging eyes, then again just under the sac with the inky fluid. The octopus gave up the struggle, and Turpin began to breathe again. He signalled for the crane used to hoist heavy objects, and when the octopus was hauled up and weighed in—it tipped the scales at 500 pounds and measured 35 feet from end to end!

Turpin has also gone down for pearls, to search ships wrecked and lying on the ocean floor, to hunt for lost treaure and for just about everything that could be found on the bottom of the sea.

He served 36 years in the United States navy and 22 years in Civil Service. He has invented a machine by which electric welding can be done under water, and another machine for gas burning under water. They are both used by the government now.

After these many years in the service of his country, Turpin at the age of 72 is still enjoying the enthusiasm and vigor of youth, and likes nothing better than recounting his many adventures to his appreciative audiences, open-mouthed with wonder.

New Yorkers Eat Third Less Meat

NEW YORK — Net result of a four-day hearing on spiraling living costs was the discovery that New York's 7,500,000 people are buying one-third less meat as a result of increased prices.

The inquiry was conducted by a congressional subcommittee headed by Sen. Ralph E. Flanders (R. Vt.). At the outset, Flanders announced that his committee was trying to find out who was responsible for high prices and scarcities. Four days and 40 witnesses later, Flanders professed to be still puzzled.

"Where is the meat increase going that the packers show in their statistics?" he asked. "Where is the surplus going? That's what we would like to know."

Local Community Chest Leaders Set for Intensive 1947 Drive

Excellent progress has been made during the last week in organization for the Community Chest campaign, according to reports received from Mrs. J. S. Peach, chairman for the South Park District, and Bernard F. Jefferson, chairman for the Adams-Central Area, with many additional Eastside leaders enlisted in key positions.

In Mrs. Peach's division Mrs. Pauline Payne, 1000 East 46th st., and Mrs. Ella Bunch, 1032 East 42nd pl., have enrolled as co-colonels, aiding respectively Mrs. Portia B. Griffith, colonel of Division 82, and Mrs. Vernetta A. Menefield, colonel of Division 84.

Mrs. Calversa Randle, 641 East 43rd st., active in the Avalon Community Center, a Chest agency, has enlisted as district secretary to assist in work in the local campaign headquarters.

etWtquartesr

Enrolled with Jefferson is Mrs. Gertrude Hicks, prominent in many local civic and charitable projects, and an outstanding Chest campaigner of many years service. Mrs. Hicks is president of Sojourner Truth Home, one of the 159 Chest agencies.

The newly enrolled divisional heads are Mrs. Josephine Chambers, 1328 East Adams blvd., active in LA Urban League, which receives Chest support, who is colonel of Division 80. Mrs. Ella Bunch, 1032 42nd pl., is her co-colonel.

Mrs. Mabel V. Gray, 786 E. 40th pl., also a leader in previous highly successful Chest campaigns, heads Division 81. She is a member of the board of directors of Urban League.

Completing the roster of colonels for Jefferson's district is Mrs. Augustus Glover, 3002 11th ave., president of Jefferson Hi PTA, and active in the PWCA, each of which receives Chest appropriations. Mrs. Malinda Mae Garland, 1015 East 54th st., president of Eastside Settlement House, another Chest-supported organization.

October 11 and 12 have been designated as Community Chest Sabbath, according to the day set aside for religious observance by various faiths. The heads of 850 churches and snagogues in the Los Angeles metropolitan area are to dedicate part of their services to the annual humanitarian appeal.

Campaign headquarters are at 4272 Avalon blvd., under the direction of Miss Ruby Shelby, staff director, who held a similar post in the successful campaigns here last year for the Chest. Telephones are being installed.

Wallace, Paul Robeson Cheered By Crowds On New Jersey Tour

TRENTON, N. J.—Henry A. Wallace, Paul Robeson and Dr. Frank Kingdon made a one-day swing through New Jersey last Saturday. They told cheering throngs in Trenton, Deal and Camden that "the Truman administration has joined forces with the reactionary Republican party in an all-out drive for war", that unless this course is changed, "Americans must create a party for peace and prosperity."

Former Vice-President Wallace told 1600 people at a morning rally in Trenton's War Memorial that "the people are being subjected to a terrorizing drive . . . they have no outlet for expression." We all must work together, Wallace urged, to defeat the "reactionary Wall Street capitalists who are trying to run the world."

Robeson, in an impassioned address to the Trenton gathering, said that today, Negroes are faced with a great choice — "Which side are we on?"

"My father," he said, "was born in slavery, and it was natural for him to think of the Republicans as the traditional party of freedom. My own education, in nearby Princeton, was financed by a rich white man.

"We used to depend on these crumbs from the wealthy Republicans. But that time is gone forever. Any leader who still does this betrays not only the Negroes, but all the American people. I tell my son that he must fight for his rights.

"Today, we must find our allies in the ranks of labor, the unions and among the other oppressed groups in America."

After the Trenton meeting, Wallace, Robeson and radio commentator Kingdon conferred briefly with Albert Einstein at the noted scientist's Princeton home.

For Robeson, the Trenton appearance was something of a homecoming. Son of a minister, the great singer was born in Princeton, and later won top scholastic honors at Rutgers university, where he was one of the first Negroes to be admitted.

At later meetings, Wallace warned the people that "any world war we might become involved in, we are in danger of losing, because we would not be upholding the rights of oppressed people throughout the world."

Dr. Kingdon, on the platform at the Camden rally Saturday night, was drafted to run for the U. S. Senate because "he speaks with Wallace for the program of our great departed leader, Franklin Roosevelt."

Seeks to Aid Police Tag Traffic Violators

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—California motorists will be asked to place 1948 registration cards in their automobiles in such a manner that the name and address can be read through the closed front left-hand window, Motor Vehicles Director Edgar E. Lampton said yesterday.

A request to that effect is being printed on the reverse side of the new registration cards.

"By this means we hope to eliminate a large share of the inquiries from police departments concerning registration of cars tagged for parking violations," said Lampton.

WASHINGTON — The government yesterday began action to obtain from $30,000,000 to $40,000,000 from 717 railroads it accuses of overcharging the government on shipments of explosives and ammunition during the war.

Nonwhites Pace U. S. Population Growth 1940-47

WASHINGTON — The nation's population passed the 143,000,000 mark in April with the non-white population pacing the increase, the Census Bureau disclosed yesterday.

Since 1940, the bureau said, the non-white population grew almost twice as fast as the white, while the population in cities showed an increase at the expense of rural farm population. It estimated the non-white population at 15,017,000. Its rate of growth was 11.6 percent, compared to 7.5 percent for the white.

The west grew faster than any other section of the country increasing by 3,427,000 or 24.7 percent. The south grew slowest, increasing by 1,107,000, or only 2.7 percent, mainly because of mass migration from that section.

Wallace Seeks Price Control, Congress Recall

BOSTON—In an address before 1000 delegates of the 12th convention of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, CIO, former Vice President Henry Wallace yesterday called for a special session of congress to enact a rationing and price control bill and to investigate the "loyalty" check of federal employes.

He called for investigation of the Taft-Hartley anti-labor law, said the nation needed a price control law "with teeth in it," to bring down spiralling prices, and termed the loyalty check "a witchhunt."

Wallace sharply denounced every "congressman, military man or columnist" who "slyly hints that we should drop (atomic) bombs now." He warned that no nation would emerge as winner from a third world war.

"The war that is being bred for us must be stopped," he said. "The United States with all its great wealth, with our arsenal of atom bombs and with the great moral principles of our people will never win a third war."

He assailed the 80th congress as "reactionary," said the domestic and foreign policy of the nation "is today in the hands of military men and Wall street men."

Fire Destroys Some 1000 Homes Daily

Since this time yesterday, over 1600 building fires have killed 28 Americans, destroyed nearly 1000 homes, 140 stores, 80 factories, 6 churches, 6 schools, 5 theatres, and 3 hospitals, says the National Fire Prevention Association in urging observance of Fire Prevention Week, October 5-11.

Last year, 10,000 Americans were burned to death and $562,000,000 worth of property was destroyed by fire, according to NEPA. At the fire prevention conference last May, President Truman pointed out that the fire loss, in lives and property, which occurs annually in our forest and rural areas makes up an important part of the tremendous annual toll.

Gen. Hospital to Get Modern Alarm System

Steps to afford better protection against fire for over 1000 patients and several hundred employes housed and working in the old unit of the General Hospital were taken this week by the county, according to Supervisor Leonard J. Roach.

Having been notified by fire inspectors that the old unit constitutes a serious hazard because of an inadequate and anticipated alarm system, the County Purchasing and Stores Department was instructed to seek bids for a modern alarm system.

Millions in USA Safety Deposit Boxes

One of the most explosive problems in granting aid to foreign countries, but one which is discussed very little, is what to do with the money foreign millionaires have invested in America?

Much of this money is invested in factories, in real estate, in farm land, in ranches, and much of it is simply lying at rest in safety boxes in U. S. banks.

The amount is estimated to be something like $14,000,000,000. There is no sure way of finding out exactly who owns what. As a matter of fact, American bankers and big Business generally do not care to investigate too closely.

Those millionaires of foreign countries who have brought their money to America, and invested it in business or put it for safe keeping in safety deposit boxes, are doing so because they, too, believe in "free enterprise" and the private-profit system. They are taking their money out of their countries and bringing it to America, because they feel it will be safer for them here. They have a feeling that in their country, their property will soon be socialized. And that would spell calamity in their opinion.

Of the grand total of about $14,000,000,000, the U. S. treasury has learned that Great Britain has something like $490,000,000; France $200,000,000; Greece $33,000,000; Italy $170,000,000.

That's just the amounts that have been actually found out. How much more there is, one can only guess. But the point is that while the taxpayers and American citizens generally are generously giving taxes and contributions to help the people of Europe, the bloated compatriots of those same starving people are waxing still fatter through having their millions safely deposited in America.

There should be some way of compelling these private citizens of foreign countries to do their share with the dollars they have hoarded or hidden in the U. S. And if there's a will there's a way.

Deeds as Well as Words

This week which is just ending, October 12, was Civic Unity Week for the city of Los Angeles. It was proclaimed so by Mayor Fletcher Bowron.

In the Mayor's proclamation he spoke of the great need of unity and stated that one of the most serious threats to American unity is discrimination because of race, religion, or national origin.

We agree with him. And we think his proclamation is well-worded, and his call for the schools, churches, civic, social, and business groups; the press and the radio and all citizens to unite in a pledge of unity and rededication to the principles of American democracy of equality before the law and brotherhood under God, is fine.

But—there have always been so many fine words! Must it ever be thus? Mere words and not deeds? The Los Angeles Council for Civic Unity, which engineered all efforts for the making of pledges for that unity, did a splendid job for this past week.

But we need more than mere pledeges. We need active work in such trouble spots as the Fremont High School, where students have had virtual race riots because of their objection to a few Negro students.

We need more than mere pledges for unity and the parrot like repetition of the pledge of allegiance to the American flag, to solve the problem of restrictive covenants. There are many families today fearfully awaiting a decision from our American courts, as to whether or not they shall be permitted to live in their own homes.

Such things, and many more which might be cited, do not measure up to the ideals—on paper—of "American democracy of equality before the law and brotherhood under God." They tend, rather, to embitter the victims of such injustice, to make them lose faith in America, to make them question and to doubt the efficacy of our government.

If we wish real unity and cooperation in Los Angeles, as in every part of America and of the world, we shall have to put into practice the splendid resolutions we make on paper. We shall have to have deeds as well as words. The Council for Civic Unity will have to work every day of every week throughout the year to make its program a reality.

If men are to be prevented from moving into a society of abundance, they must be dissuaded by certain doctrines which undertake to show either (1) that the goal is impossible to attain, or (2) that the goal is undesirable.—Barrows Dunham in Man Against Myth.

Too Little Too Late

Henry Wallace, editor of The New Republic, offers some very thought-provoking comments in an article of October 2, entitled "Too Little, Too Late."

Mr. Wallace thinks everyone should read the report of the Paris conference, in which the needs of 270,000,000 people of Western Europe are told. Because of long and continued drought the wheat and rye supply will be nearly 400,000,000 bushels below prewar. Meat is only two-thirds of pre-war level, and milk four-fifths. France and Italy are hit worst, and in many areas of Western Europe the food shortage will be greater than at any time during the war.

The Paris report, says Mr. Wallace, "is an example of what coordinated efforts and planning can produce. It had the good result of getting the cooperating nations to study their needs and plan self-help."

"But the essential for self-help," says Wallace, "is people with sufficient nourishment—sufficient calories—to produce. Last July we stressed the necessity of immediate American action to see that this fuel for human life was provided these peoples in time to sustain them during the winter.

"Thus far, nothing effective has been done, and as this is written, there has been no indication that the Administration and Congress will act with the vigor and speed the critical situation demands. This emergency is more vital to the peace and welfare of the world than is the installation under the pretext of an "international emergency" of a new Secretary of Defense.

"It is another case of too little and too late. Congress is much more interested in reducing taxes and creating campaign issues than it is in putting Europe on its feet.

"My readers know that I have absolutely no faith in any type of Marshall Plan which sets up Western Europe against Eastern Europe. Politically we shall gain nothing but hatred from using our billions to pressure governments and peoples. The reactionaries at the top will love us because they think we are saving their hides. The workers will hate us because they think we are trying to maintain or install reactionary governments and influence the economic system of Western Europe to the benefit of Wall Street. If congress were to meet tomorrow and carry out the full recommendations of the report within two weeks, I still would expect most of the governments of Western Europe to move to the Left this winter.

"Our Administration and congress are utterly naive to think that the countries of Europe will sell out their political birthrights for a few billion dollars. They may take our money and our products, but sooner or later they will act politically just as they please. We are not loved in Europe, and the more we use economic pressure to intervene in European affairs, the worse we are hated. We look at the votes in the UN Assembly and think we are swinging three-fourths of the nations of the world against Russia. Temporarily, military and financial power may give us a position of unique prestige in the UN, but among the people of the world we are steadily losing ground. An implemented Marshall Plan will not help us to regain that lost ground. The failure of the Administration to mobilize American sentiment and plan a basic formula for aid, while the Europeans were inventorying their needs, has made the Marshall Plan look like an enlarged and glorified non-military application of the Truman Doctrine.

"I am not in sympathy with the present political objectives of the Marshall Plan, but I am very much in sympathy with the hungry people of Western Europe. I know that by taking prompt action we can increase the wheat available for Europe by many millions of bushels.

"The Administration and Herbert Hoover talk about voluntary action. It will not do the job. Certain advertising and public relations concerns will get nice assignments, many of them volunteering their services, to draw posters showing fat livestock eating wheat in the US when the hungry people of Europe are in terrible need. Speakers will make the circuit of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs. Spot announcements will be made over the radio. Our moral fervor will be whipped to a lather under the leadership of the firm of Truman and Hoover. But in terms of wheat saved for the hungry people of Europe it will add up to very little. If farmers can make more money by feeding wheat than they can by feeding corn, they will feed wheat. The congressional committee that is trying to control grain prices by public pronouncements will not get very far. It may scare out the amateur speculators and make prices drop for a time, but it will not cure the underlying situation which is caused by a short corn crop in the US and a short wheat crop in Western Europe.

"When human misery is at stake, it is time for both congress and the Administration to grapple with fundamentals. Once they have a program, publicity is fine. But voluntary appeals and publicity drives without a program will do nothing more than salve the conscionce of an American public which is determined to help Europe. It will take more than voluntary appeals to break through our complacency and get results in terms of extra wheat shipped."

THINGS I SEE

By Marian Inglewood

Of course we should guard our atom bomb secret. Guard it well. At least until we and the rest of the world have made up our minds that we won't learn war any more, but that we'll sit down around a council table and thresh things out without shooting. We're doing that fairly well in the United Nations, but even so there are a great many people who still believe we should keep our powder dry and our secret atom bomb under cover.

That is why several weeks ago there was such a hue and cry raised in many papers about two GI's who had taken some important documents from the US government files which concerned the atom bomb. They were taken only as souvenirs, said those boys, and they were recovered before any damage was done.

But I wonder if those newspapers know that right now there are some 400 German Nazis "quietly working inside the nation's most heavily guarded laboratories?" Surrounded on every side by "America's latest secret weapons?" What's the use of guarding those laboratories so well on the outside, when inside they are full of possible spies greedy for every bit of information they can pick up about our military system?

Those 400 Nazis are German scientists who were brought here after the war to add their knowledge to that of our scientists in the perfection of more atom bombs. But American scientists do not want them. They have protested again and again to the military authorities concerning their presence here. American scientists say these Germans will not add to our knowledge anything of value about atom bombs nor any other secret weapon.

American scientists point to the fact that Hitler had banished the best scientists from Germany long before the war. The scientist who discovered how to release the "binding energy" of the atom, was a German scientist, Dr. Lise Meitner, expelled from her native country because she was a Jewess. If Hitler hadn't been so stupid, it might have been Germany that made the first atom bomb. They were trying hard enough to accomplish that feat, goodness knows, but their very best scientists were wandering abroad in exile or languishing in concentration camps. So of course they lost out.

The program for bringing the Germans here was sponsored jointly by the Army and Navy and was called "Operation Paperclip." They said it was "essential to national security," and shortly after the war closed U. S. Army teams were literally combing occupied territory for German scientists, under orders to get them before the Soviet Union did.

But — "The Germans we brought here are the equivalents of our high-class radio hams," said one distinguished American physicist. "At best they are clever military engineers," remarked another. "Don't call them scientists."

U. S. Army officers in their eagerness to make a good showing, and produce as many "scientists" as possible, often took Germans who wanted to get out of the country and come to America, simply upon their say-so that they were top scientists. Since coming to America, many have been discovered who did not even have professional degrees. One of the ranking "scientists" working at an important research project, was a lawyer in reality. Others are what would be classed in America as master mechanics, graduates of trade schools.

Besides all this, they are still Nazis. Hitler said, you remember, that if they had to surrender it would not be because they had lost the war. They, the Nazis, would simply go on fighting in another way, and, he predicted, "We'll win in the end."

A large proportion of those here now were formerly active in the Nazi Party. Most of the specialized war work in Germany was done by young technicians who had grown up as Hitler Youth, and had absorbed the Nazi philosophy until it became a part of them. These are the ones now working on the greatest of American military secrets, paying lip service to democracy in the presence of their Army supervisors, but among themselves still talking of the day when the "superior race shall rule the world."

Americans have the reputation all over the world of being the most gullible people that live. We believe any yarn anyone tells us, and the "Bigger the lie," as Hitler put it, "the more liable we are to believe it."

These observations supposedly describe the "masses," the rank and file, those of us who haven't much education. But it would take a pretty dumb cluck among us to make as colossal an error as our military chiefs have made in entrusting our greatest military secret to a bunch of German Nazis.

THE LIVING SOUTH

By Harold Preece

Copyright, 1947, by New South Features

Once the slave ships sailed into Boston as they sailed into New Orleans and Savannah. Once children of God — black men and women — were sold on Tremont street in Boston as they were sold on Decatur Street in New Orleans.

But once the New England conscience awoke while the Southern conscience slept in the nightmare of slavery. The sons of the hard-working English Puritans challenged the sons of the good-for-nothing English aristocracy who ruled Dixie. Human slavery was outlawed, first in New England and then throughout our slave-bound nation.

As I write this in Boston on a golden Saturday afternoon of Indian summer, I can hear the chains clinking once more on Tremont street. When this column is finished, I shall take my wife and child for a long walk in this old town which not only gave refuge to exiled Southern abolitionists of the past, but which now gives shelter and happiness to us whom the modern slaves have exiled from our homeland below the Mason-Dixon line.

I know that the vicious, rotten-for-burying old South follows with hate and vengeance Southerners of either color who may be forced to leave the South but who cannot be forced to lease the struggle of the South's people for justice and brotherhood.

For just a few miles away, in Charleston jail, sits one of my fellow—Southerners, a 39 year old Alabaman by the name of James B. Hines. The slavers have come after him because he is a black man. I know that if he goes back to Alamaba to the chain gang that it won't be too long a time before the same slave catchers will be after me and Celia and David who are white.

I know that if these damned deputies, with the hearts of devils, can take black men back to chain gangs that everything conceived in the New England conscience, in the combined conscience of that poor white — Negro South which hated slavery, is in danger of being wiped away.

There was once a day when New Englanders gave any slave catchers five minutes to get out of town. I'd like to cut that time, in this day and hour, by four minutes and 55 seconds.

South's Old Story

You've probably read the story of James B. Hines of Selma, Ala., and Boston, Mass., in one or the other of the Negro papers. I'm not going to dwell much on his story because it is the story of thousands of men who have been framed up in Southern courts on any charge that a mule-eared Dixie cop wanted to prefer. It is the story of a few men who have managed to escape to the great, free North and, maybe, the story of thousands of other men shot in the back or mangled to death by bloodhounds when they tried to get away.

Very briefly, James H. Hines, church member and working man, was arrested by policemen whom he had never seen when he went from his home in Selma to Mobile, Ala., in 1942, to try to find work in that booming war production center. On the unsupported word of a small boy, he was accused of theft and without the shadow of evidence, except the kid's "identification", sentenced to 15 years on the Alabama chain gang.

They beat him up the first day on the chain gang because every Negro prisoner gets a whipping as his "initiation" into that fraternity of sorrow for the prisoners and of shame for Dixie. With the help of his devoted wife, he managed to escape last year and come to Boston where he got a job. He has lived there like the decent, hard-working man that he has always been.

Today, as I walk with Celia and David along the beach, my heart and conscience will be troubled. I will know that Mrs. Hines and her three little children are sad at heart in their little cottage in a Boston suburb. And I'd much rather see James Hines and his family taking a pleasant walk in Boston on Saturday than busting rocks in Alabama on Saturday.

I have been asked to serve on a defense committee that William Harrison, fighting associate editor of the Boston Chronicle, has called together to work with the NAACP on the Hines case. I'm going to ask each one of you, too, to serve on that defense committee because you have never failed the South that wants to live whenever I've asked you to take action on a foul outrage like this one.

Letters For Hines

Please, readers and fellow-defense committeemen, sit down right now and send two letters. Write to Governor Robert Bradford, State House,

One Representing Many

Eugene Dennis, general secretary of the Communist Party, was found guilty of "contempt of Congress" last June, and on July 8 was sentenced to a fine of $1000 and one year in jail, but was released on bond, pending an appeal for a new trial.

The judge offered Dennis a chance to "purge" himself of contempt of congress, but he replied, "I do not consider myself guilty of contempt of Congress. Therefore, I could not, in good conscience, purge myself of a contempt of which I am not guilty."

Eugene Dennis had been judged guilty of contempt of congress by the Un-American Activities Committee, before whom he was prevented giving his testimony when he was being questioned concerning the Communist Party.

But it is not Eugene Dennis, the man, or even the member of the Communist Party, who is being tried. It is all those of liberal views, all those who believe in making the creed of the brotherhood of man a working reality, who are being tried in the person of Eugene Dennis.

A year ago this un-American Committee boasted it had more than 1,000,000 names on its black list. Is yours there? If so, then you, too, are being tried with Eugene Dennis.

"No one who stands for justice," said Henry Wallace, "no one who speaks of Roosevelt with pride, no one who dares praise Willkie's vision of one world is safe from attack."

Will the Marshall Plan Work?

By PAUL FRENCH

Whether the Marshall Plan will "work," depends upon what the Marshall Plan is, as well as what it is supposed to do. And what it is remains a mystery, in spite of the fact that, recently, the 16 European nations it is supposed to "help" have presented to Washington a "gimme" request for the tidy total of $22,440,000,000 (B) over a period of four years.

But that is only what they ask. What they're going to get is the mystery, to be settled by the U. S. congress. And as time goes on, it looks more and more doubtful that congress is going to allow any such sum. Also, it looks as if what it does allow, it will be late, and also entangled, as Molotov warned, in such "conditions" as not only to deprive the nations getting it of their real independence, but also the aims of the Marshall Plan.

This gets us around to what those aims are. Firstly, it must be stated that there are two sets of aims, one set to be believed by the simple-minded, the other set of aims being the real things aimed for. The first set of aims, well-advertised, is that Big-Hearted Uncle Sam merely wants "to feed Europe," and, also, "reconstruct its industries so it can get on its feet." Only fools believe that.

For, behind these excuses, everybody knows, since it has continually, though rather unofficially, been talked about, is the second set of aims, the real ones, that the Marshall Plan, by "feeding" Europe, is aimed (1) to "prevent these capitalist countries from going Communist," and (2) welding them into a "western bloc" for the ultimate aim of war on the Soviet Union, and (3) the less-known aim of getting and keeping enough foreign trade for American imperialism to avoid (so it is falsely hoped) a terrible economic crisis.

Can the Marshall Plan attain even the advertised aims of (1) "feeding Europe" and (2) "reconstructing Europe's industry?" Certainly, these aims are physically possible. But are they politically possible? It is when the physical solution is presented for carrying out, that the political obstacles arise to prevent it.

First, it is physically possible for these 16 Western European nations themselves, without American help, to "feed" their peoples, and, also, "reconstruct" their industries. But, in order to do this, they will have to take the same political measures as have the countries of Eastern Europe, of overthrowing the governmental rule of the capitalist-landlord classes, and socializing their big industries and distributing baronial lands to the landless peasants. This is politically impossible, since these capitalist-landlord governments are not going to overthrow themselves.

About the success of this system in Eastern Europe, there is no doubt. Even hostile journalists, like Marquis Childs, tell of the intense reconstruction there. True, they have difficulties, and could use help. But, as Alexander Kendrick (New Republic, Sept. 22) says: "A trip through central Europe will provide convincing evidence that there are not going to be any more depressions in Poland, Czechoslovakia, and other countries with economic plans" (meaning socialized big industry and agrarian revolution—PF). The 16 Marshall Plan countries could do that, too. But their anti-Communist governments don't want to, and our anti-Communist government regards the idea with terror.

Secondly, it is physically possible for the United States to both (1) "feed Europe," and (2) "reconstruct its industries." But, politically, when it comes actully to doing these things, capitalist contradictions arise to prevent. American monopoly capital rules the American government, and it also foresees its own need for getting and holding as much of the world market for manufactured goods as possible. Therefore, outside of reconstructing "German" war industry and getting it into the clutches of American trusts at that, why should American imperialism "reconstruct" its competitors? Politically, it would be suicide, so it will not be done on any large, effective scale.

Therefore, American imperialism will only "feed" Europe with consumer goods, and then (1) in stingy quantities which political howling "taxpayers" will restrict, and (2) only when there is a big profit in it for speculators, and (3) only under such humiliating "conditions" as will rob these countries of their real independence and tie them tightly to American imperialist policy.

Already we see that, as reported by Ernest K. Lindley (Newsweek, Sept. 22), when the 16 nations met at Paris to work out their end of the Marshall Plan, American imperialism, represented by William Clayton of the State Department, Jefferson Caffery, ambassador to France, and Lew Douglas, ambassador to Britain, were all on hand to boss the job, to tell these "independent" nations what they could and couldn't do. Lindley says that:

"Behind the scenes, polite suggestions—which it was mistakenly thought would be heeded — were followed by earnest solicitations, then by plain talk, and finally by stern, if friendly, warnings."

Even at that, when the 16 nation committee finally worked out a plan that Clayton approved, when it was sent to Washington, it was discovered to be so full of holes as to where the money was to come from that it would have been ridiculed to death had not our "free"

W. J. Wheaton Says

On one of our trips across town we were fortunate in occupying a seat with a woman who with her son and his wife and daughter had arrived in this city as migrants when Uncle Samuel was crying for help to construct ships and airplanes to stop Hitler and Hirohito from invading the homeland.

During the course of conversation we discovered a fountain of homey philosophy that, to us, was so replete with good, unbiased, "Horse Sense," that we manouvered an invitation to visit, and when she added, "I'll have supper at six" on Wednesday, we marked the calendar immediately. So, if we are not mistaken, this column is going to contain some interesting reading from a source that has lived a full and interesting life under conditions most abject, and yet has looked on conditions as they were and as they are with the philosophy of a Plato and the humor of a Sam Clemons. We were astonished at her informed condition of affairs both national and local, because in the course of conversation she made acknowledgement of her illiteracy. That made us more determined to form an acquaintance which might be beneficial to both.

The national convention of the AFL is meeting in this city (San Francisco) and all of the nationally known leaders, including the unpredictable John Lewis are present. As usual Lewis is in the spotlight, owing to his refusal to comply with the edict encouched in the Taft-Hartley Act requiring all officers of unions to affirm that they are not Communist nor affiliated with Communists. Lewis has refused to sign and thereby hangs the tale. Unless he signs the unions lose the protection given by the Labor Relations Board and thereby lose certain benefits. Lewis is on the spot for there is an effort to demote him from the vice-presidency by a number of unions, including the powerful Teamsters Union of Dan Tobin. If that fight matures it will be worth watching and "Yours Truly" hopes to have a ring side seat.

The protesting Catholic parishioners of St. Louis had a shock when Archbishop Ritter issued his ukase. If you remember, the parents of the children attending the parochial schools objected to colored Catholic children attending the same schools as their children and banded to seek an injunction from the courts to nullify the order of Archbishop Ritter. The Archbishop seems to be very positive, as he gave the objectors warning through a letter read at all masses throughout the archdiocese that, if they carried out their threat of action against the Church they would be open to the gravest penalty the Church can exercise. Which in the Catholic Church means . . . evcommunication." Obedience to ecclesiastic authority is a cardinal principle of their faith," and he reminded them of "the equality of every soul before Almighty God.

It takes courage to stand by and enact one's convictions. How many resort to acts of expediency and practically debauch our own conscience? For instance: There is room for vast improvement in our democracy; there is plenty of room for criticism at home and abroad. This nation has the opportunity to sell democracy to the world, but this nation will have to set the example. It will have to show the world that its precepts that all men are equal before the law is a fact and not a mere phase. It must show to the world that when a crime is committed against any citizen, regardless of color or religious belief, the culprit will be punished through process of law. There is no wonder that nations mistrust us when there is evidence, so obvious that other nations can see, that there are discriminations and restrictions because of race or religion. It we are not honest with ourselves; others will not believe us honest.

A LAYMAN'S VIEW

By Leon W. Steward

THREE PROJECTS WHICH GIVE OUR YOUTHS A CHANCE

Much has been written and spoken regarding "juvenile delinquency." It is well that we give some thought to our young as we pass on to them our own frustrations and perplexities growing out of such war dislocations as result from carting them across country into the midst of new social situations (including that of finding an adequate roof for their heads) and at a time when youngsters themselves are already befuddled by the war exigencies which took away their associates, and older brothers and sisters and offered them high pay to leave school, which they took or were restrained from taking by parents who themselves double-teamed on the job front and left their children to the schools and the streets—very new and very different streets to those they had known back home.

Leon Steward

Yes, the children of these migrants to Sunny California have been the hardest hit by these dislocations and the frustrations which have resulted from them.

Nor have the natives and near natives among our youth gone untouched by these tremendous factors. Even if they were not touched by these confused immigrant youngsters they were nonetheless affected by war hysteria and the problems common to all youth everywhere.

Now we are passing on to them the fears which the daily press and radio have drummed into our minds about impending war, atom bombs, high prices and a depression that is "just around the corner." While people like us insist that you regard with alarm the rising tide of reaction.

Thus the question comes, WHAT CAN WE DO FOR THEM?

Fortunately we all—parents and citizens—wish to do something for our future leaders and there are at present at least two special opportunities toward which we may express our concern for them.

28 ST. YMCA

There is hardly a section of Los Angeles which needs a youth center more than the area which is served by the 28 st. YMCA: And we know of no agency better qualified to give the youth of that area a better chance to evolve the kind of body, mind and idea of life with which to withstand the rigors of the present and face the uncertain future. We might write at length on this subject because we have had a close up opportunity to see for ourself just what the YMCA offers our youth and how favorably they respond to its program and challenge.

This week the 28 st. YMCA is launching a campaign to enlist new members to its active program. Not only does it want every boy between 9 and 18; it also wants those 18 to 28 who want to keep physically fit and athletically in competition. But a special invitation has been issued by the "Y" to every man young enough to drag himself into the gym or swimming pool to join one of the present active groups of "Y" men who are keeping fit and having fun or to become a part of others which are to be organized after the campaign for such as show the good sense to join for the purpose of taking part in a great health building program. They are indeed fortunate to have a YMCA at their service at such a low cost.

ANOTHER REAL OPPORTUNITY

The final opportunity to which we wish to point with pardonable pride to those who sincerely wish to give our youth a better chance is the one agency which has contributed greatly to Negro youth's chances over the nation over the past decade, namely—the Community Chest. It is the Chest which makes available the services to such youth serving agencies as the YMCA, YWCA, Boy Scouts, Pilgrim House and Community Center, Urban League, Avalon Christian Church Community Center, and other community centers within the financial reach of our youth, whose after school hours are of such great peril to their welfare. Join the "Y" and give generously to the Community Chest—and so give our youth a better chance. If you don't, who do you suppose should.

A Travelog

By VAUGHN G. PROCTOR

We didn't go far along the street that snowy night in El Paso before I determined a course of action—we would sleep in the police station. I didn't know how, but I thought there must be a way without arousing too much suspicion. I went to a phone booth and called the police. The phone rang at the other end and while I waited for it to be answered, I glanced at the kids through the door of the booth. They were playing tag in circles on the drug store floor. The ringing stopped and a gruff vocie answered.

"Hello," I said. "There was an accident on the road into Las Cruces and—"

"You want the Traffic Bureau," the voice said. That upset my plans I hung up. A few minutes later I got the police on the phone again.

"What I wanted to tell you," I said, "was that because of the accident my two children and myself are temporarily in your city without funds. We need a place to sleep. May we sleep in the police station overnight?"

There was a long pause. Finally, the voice said, "Well, come over and we'll see what we can do for you."

We spent a little money on sandwiches and then walked to the police station. It was some distances away and the constant struggle with the slush and the water that filled the streets drained my strength. When we arrived, I was trembling and fearful.

The police station was like many I had seen from the outside. There was a coldness and a deadliness about it. We entered the sergeant's office and a few minutes later he came marching in. He sat down stiffly in his swivel chair, attended to some papers on his desk, then arose and came toward us. His brisk military air made me shrink inwardly. Looking down at Christie from his great height, he said, "Do you want a place to sleep?" With her amazing sweetness, Christie tilted her head to one side and said, "Yes, I do."

It was as simple as that. The sergeant picked a key off the wall and led the way out of his office. Glancing back, I noticed for the first time a young man in civilian clothes standing beside a huge suitcase. He appeared worried and forlorn.

"This is the best I can do for you," said the sergeant and he unlocked the door. "Police traffic court," he said. He switched on the gas heater, which thundered into action with a great accelerating roar. "Sorry I don't have any bedding for you," he added.

"That's all right," I said. "This is much better than sleeping on the street." He left and we prepared for sleep. Vaughn and Christie's shoes were soaked through.

I wanted to write letters, but after a futile attempt, decided against it.

We picked out a corner in the prisoners' dock and arranged ourselves on the crude benches.

Some time later, when the kids were asleep and I could no longer quiet my growling stomach, I arose and went out in search of a restaurant. Vaughn was sleeping on my coat and I didn't want to disturb him. I moved swiftly into the cold night. The streets were deserted. The snow had stopped falling. I hurried toward the lighted window of a cafe.

After eating a sandwich, I sped back to the traffic court. As I approached I saw a policeman half-pushing, half-dragging a handcuffed, dark-complexioned man along the street. I stopped short.

"What'd I do? What'd I do?" he sobbed. My heart gave a sudden jolt. I rushed after them. All the indignation and frustration and defiance I felt earlier in the evening came over me again.

Jerking and wrestling at each step, the policeman and the prisoner neared the door.

"What'd I do?" cried the man again. Suddenly he swung his manacled hands over his head and broke free. The policeman was on top of him trying to get in a body blow, but the plucky little man was threshing his arms and body so violently that the policeman was barely able to hold him. I stood ten feet away, horribly fascinated by this desperate struggle which I knew could have only one outcome.

Blue-suited reinforcements piled out of the station and half-carried the man inside. Before the door closed, I heard him crying again and again: "What'd I do?"

I was out of breath as though I had run a long distance. Quietly I slipped into the traffic court.

Some of the loneliness I felt while sitting in the restaurant left me when I was once more settled beside the kids. Their presence comforted me even as they slept.

The gas heater which was thermostatically controlled came on with its whirlwind roar. I jumped involuntarily. I couldn't get rid of the fight I witnessed. The prisoner's tragic "What'd I do?" kept ringing in my ears. I dozed off. Every few minutes the roar of the heater would break through my sleep. It seemed to chant the words over and over: "What'd I do? . . . What'd I do? . . ."

At seven o'clock we arose and at 7:45 we left for the telegraph office.

Ice had formed on the streets. Vaughn and Christie shivered but did not complain.

The fear that there wouldn't be any money hounded us all the way to the long marble counter of the telegraph office.

The clerk thumbed through a sheaf of telegrams, flipped one to the counter, and there it was! Ten dollars! It was amazing how bright the world became. My heart fairly sang.

"We'll get a good breakfast," I said. Two blocks away we stopped at the Mill, that being the only restaurant in sight that appealed to me.

We ate well and later used the telephone to locate a room in the Armor Hotel on El Paso st. It took seven calls. I made each call so quickly on the heels of the preceding one that I used only one nickel.

We picked up our bags at the bus station and took a cab to the hotel. The Armor was a fifth-rate hotel, but situated in the heart of the poor Mexican quarter, it assumed some of the dignity of an exclusive manor.

Our room contained an iron bedstead, dresser, washstand, rusty gas heater and two straight chairs. A light dangled from the ceiling. A lone window overlooked a roof and beyond to the windows of another hotel.

"We have the best rooms," said the bulging landlady, "so you'll have to be clean and keep the kids out of the halls because I have night workers."

I paid three days' rent. I hoped that would see the end of the cold snap that had gripped West Texas for 23 days. Meanwhile we had a chance to wash a few clothes. I wanted to see the city and with money in my pocket again could do so with a lighter heart and a more objective eye.

I went forth alone since the children could not weather the cold in their thin clothes.

I checked General Delivery at the post office and then went to the telegraph office.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Mrs. Bass:

I enjoy so much reading your hard fights with our enemies. Great credit is due you.

I truly rejoiced to see the notice of Bilbo's death. So perish all our enemies. I thought it was too late to send in anything against him, but J. W. Franklin's poem last week prompts me to send the enclosed.

Respectfully yours,
MAE ANDERSON,
Monrovia, Calif.

HE THAT IS FILTHY, LET HIM BE FILTHY STILL

By Mae Anderson

T. Bilbo thought his way was bought
More dirty work to do,
But his time was up. August passed.
He will never have another chance
To rest his well remembered pants
Upon a congress seat again,
While belching forth his poison words
Against the Negro race.

Darwin must have had in mind
A face like his when he opined
That man from monkey did descend.
No, not the rest of human race,
Just Bilbo,
With his old ugly monkey face
He had a heart to match,
A narrow mind and hellish ways
That lasted him throughout his days.

I know not what the preacher said
To comfort those that mourned,
But I rejoiced with hundreds more
To know he's on some other shore
Among his kind that's gone before
Where zero weather never comes
To cool their lying, burning tongues.

BOOKS and AUTHORS

Drums of Destiny," by Peter Bourne, is the story of two men and the women who shaped their destiny and at the same time a sweeping panorama of the rise and fall of Henry Christophe, Haitian revolutionary leader. Duncan Stewart, of humble Scot parentage, a brilliant medical student, because of a rash act seeks refuge in Haiti. There he saves the life of Christophe, a young Negro who becomes one of the greatest generals and statesman of his era. The lives of the two men are interwoven and Duncan doctors Christophe's army. Touissant l'Overture and Dessalines play a prominent part in the story also. There is much of struggle and suffering and a mixture of tenderness and humor in this powerful novel which must be read to be appreciated. The love story is incidental.

Michael Valbeck's Headlong from Heaven is a brooding, suspense-charged tale of the disintegration of a marriage. Branken accidentally kills his secretary in his home and his wife helps him to cover up. When being blackmailed by a witness she shoots him, making it appear to be self-defense. She is secretly in love with a former fellow-actor who tires of her. She arranges a mountain climbing trip during which he is "accidentally" killed and her husband suspects foul play. Arica is the background against which this vivid tale is set.

Woman of Property by Mabel Seeley is a merciless dissection of the character of a woman who makes money her God. From a poor home with a brutal father she fights her way to wealth and position by lying, cheating and seducing. She estaablishes an exclusive dressmaking business and becomes wealthy only to find it meaningless. Her children are selfish and her life empty.

Leon Feuchtwanger, a German exile, came to the U. S. in 1940 and now lives in California. His latest book, Proud Destiny, is his 12th novel and is a Literary Guild selection.

It is a great historical novel giving a detailed portrait of the colorful and enchanting court of Louis XVI of France and Marie Antoinette just before the Revolution. The brilliant Beaumarchais, author of The Barber of Seville and The Marriage of Figaro, uses his plays to prove that brains are better than blood and Benjamin Franklin works patiently and wisely to win French recognition of the new republic. Though approaching the problem from different angles both are working for the same cause, liberty, equality and fraternity.

The author's European background and studies as well as his years in this country have helped him to make this enthralling reading. The book has already been purchased for a major screen production.

A Man Died Here," by Gina Dessart, tells of a returned soldier and his pretty wife who buy a New England farm and roll up their sleeves and begin working. The former owner had died in the house and is buried across the road. Had they been willing to leave the past alone all might have gone well, but as they ferret out the details of his death his shadow seems to fall on everything. It is as full of suspense and horror as a real mystery story.

In Bright Promise Richard Sherman, a magazine story writer, depicts the Roosevelt era. It is also the story of love and marriage and is packed with excitement. Centered in one woman's life are the storm and strife as well as the quiet backwaters of those 12 dramatic, violent and critical years of American life.

The new book, Father And The Angels, by William Manners, is "the first authentic and sympathetic portrayal in American literature of the life and character of an orthodox rabbi in the American community," Milton A. Senn, director of the Southern California Regional Office of the Anti-Defamation League, observes.

This heart-warming story of a boy and his father is intelligent, tender and full of fun; an exciting and memorable addition to the American saga, and a real contribution to better understanding between Christians and Jews. "The O'Malley episode will live in American literature as a rare literary scene, that of the Yiddish-speaking Irishman enjoying Passover delicacies brought to him by the tender-hearted rabbi."

Father And The Angels should enjoy the most widespread reading, and every American home should have a copy of it in its library. Every Jew should present copies to his Christian neighbors and friends," Senn says.

Father And The Angels is available through the Anti-Defamation League, 727 W. 7th street, Los Angeles 14, Calif., at the special price of $1.80 per copy.

Then write to Governor James Folsom, State Capitol, Montgomery, Ala., reminding him that he was elected as a liberal candidate and not as a chain gang candidate. Ask him to cancel those papers and call back his deputies like he would his dogs. Personally, I'll take dogs to deputies.

But time is short. A hearing on the claims of Alabama for its pound of flesh and its years of slavery from James B. Hines will be held in a Boston court on October 29.

Write these letters for the sake of James B. Hines and for the sake of the new South that wants to live. And if you have time, drop me a card in care of the Boston Chronicle, 794 Tremont street, Boston, Mass., letting me know that you've taken this action. For I'm telling Hines that you are doing this for him, his wife, and his babies.

Will the Marshall Plan Work?

press felt the need of restraint.

Because, when these wise men of 16 nations, carefully guided by three top rank American "statesmen" presented their precious "plan," that plan called for the USA to loan them "only" $16,000,000,000 (B) during a period of four years, while "other countries of the Western Hemisphere" were to loan them $3,330,000,000 (B) especially to "buy capital equipment"—meaning machinery to rebuild industry.

"Thus matters stood," sadly wrote the already sad Polyzoides of the L.A. Times on Sept. 25, "until the World Bank informed all concerned that it did not have the money (in fact it had only a measley half billion—PF), and furthermore no one had consulted it before allotting it the amount; and, no sooner had the bank spoken, than observers close to the American republics and Canada reported that they, too, were so short of dollars that they would have to be counted out when it came to contributing any to Europe's "recovery."

Indeed, the Latin American countries then gathered in Brazil, were practically mobbing Secretary Marshall demanding a "Marshall Plan for Latin America," because, they too, needed loans. (And here I see that another column will be needed to tell if the Marshal Plan will work.)

Trail Blazers: Dr. Harold M. Kingsley

By PHYLLIS SCOTT

When one speaks of Pilgrim House he automatically thinks of its director, Dr. Harold M. Kingsley. Yet his name is associated with over a dozen institutions of a socially constructive nature all over the country. A Chicago dean said of him, "With his round face, bald head, and athletic body he reminds one immediately of the well-fed preachers of middle-class America rather than of the prophet of a disadvantaged minority group."

Dr. Harold M. Kingsley

In Mobile, (Alabama) Detroit, Boston, Cleveland, Bridgeport, (Connecticut) and Chicago, Kingsley has championed the rights of minorities as a clergyman, community leader, and private citizen. Not in bellowing, bombastic phrases to the background of packed audiences but in a strong and effective voice that could be heard. His sincere and honest love of his work has endeared the people to him, for Kingsley has always chosen that which kept him in touch with the masses, the under privileged.

Kingsley loves children, so it was only natural that he was chosen as the director of Pilgrim House, at its inception in 1943. The district around 1st and San Pedro, commonly known as "Little Tokyo" was badly overcrowded with whole families living in one room. There weren't even conveniences for cooking or sanitary facilities in many instances, much less a possibility of building a home-like atmosphere. Children of working parents became problems at home so Pilgrim House developed a program for the leisure hours of the community, particularly the youngsters.

After the war many Japanese-Americans found their way back to the place once inhabited by them. The Hearst papers and hate-mongers predicted racial flare-ups between these people and Negro migrants. But they were wrong. A strong bond of kinship was mutually felt between the two discriminated against groups and they willingly shared their crowded quarters. Much credit for the adjustment was recognized to be the work of Dr. Harold Kingsley and the work at Pilgrim House. The Negro Press, too, was praised for its states manlike leadership in a difficult situation.

Kingsley, who was born in Mobile, Alabama, received his education at Talladega college and Yale University Divinity school, class of 1911. That same year he married Mattie Jackson, who is the mother of their three children: Anna Marie, Harold, and Roy Edward. He was ordained to the ministry in the Congregational church, having pastored in many churches throughout the country.

However, his most conspicuous accomplishment, prior to coming to Los Angeles, was made in Chicago. There he organized the first decent community center for unprivileged children of the Congregation church. Ie became well known for its wide range of program, variety of interests, and community needs. He pastored the Church of the Good Shepard and was one of the co-founders of the Good Shepard Camp for underprivileged children at Idlewield, Michigan, a popular Midwestern resort.

In Los Angeles, Dr. Kingsley pastors the Church of Christian Fellowship, whose congregation is made up of all races. He is a member of the Negro Committee of Federal Council Churches of Christ in America, Race Relations Committee, Home Mission Council, American Academy of Political and Social Science, Council for Civic Unity, Community Welfare Committee, Human Relations Committee, Japanese American Civil Liberties Committee, State Advisory Rent Control board, Sigma Pi Phi fraternity, Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity, and Republican club.

Thirty-two of the 159 Red Feather agencies devote themselves solely to the youngsters' care and protection, provide homes for the orphaned, day nurseries, etc. Left: children of working mothers at a Salvation Army Day nursery. Above: Officer Walter Goodlow, juvenile division of the Newton street police station, airs appeal for Chest on a recent "Salute to Volunteers" radio show. Goodlow is shown with True Boardman, top ranking radio writer and producer. He was introduced by comedian Jack Benny.

Bob Crane Killing Murder, Says Jury

A coroner's jury on Monday returned a verdict that Robert Crane, 36, of Seattle, Washington, and Los Angeles, who was shot to death last week in the home of Rainey Shaw, 421 Hooper ave., was murdered by "persons unknown." It urged the police to make every effort to apprehend his murderer.

Crane was shot through the chest by an unidentified holdup man who posed as a delivery man to win admittance to the Shaw home. Mrs. Shaw, who admitted him, said the man appeared to be white. She took him to the kitchen where Crane and his wife, Jean, were seated. The man then announced "This is a holdup" and told Mrs. Shaw and the Cranes to lie on the floor.

Neither Mrs. Shaw nor Mrs. Crane knows why the holdup man subsequently shot Crane. Police believe Crane may have made some move which alarmed the bandit.

Sen. Taylor Indicts U. S. Foreign Policy As Aid to Reaction

BOISE, Idaho—Os United Nations officials in New York warned that the cold war between the United States and Russia will probably wreck the UN, Senator Glen H. Taylor, Idaho Democrat, opened a crusade here against America's foreign policy and said that in a war between the United States and Russia, the latter country probably would have most of the people of the world on her side."

Taylor charged that America's policy of sponsoring reactionary, semi-feudal regimes abroad "has lost us every friend we have in the world among the common people." He pointed out that the United States has thrown up frontiers in Greece, Germany and Japan "closer to Russia than their iron curtain is to us." He added that Russia was "justified in her suspicions of us."

He said the foreign policy should be changed so that "we furnish the peoples of Europe with more food and less guns."

He scored American aid to European powers seeking to re-enlave the peoples of Asia, and included as "enemies" of the United States:

The Phillippines because "we gave them a phoney independence;" China where we are hated by the Communists and Nationalists alike; Japan "where we failed to break the power of the big families;" Indo-China where the French are using lend-lease arms against the natives; Indonesia where the Dutch "are enslaving the people again" with U. S. surplus arms; Greece where "we gave more guns than bread, and interfered;" Germany where a policy of rebuilding German heavy industry and war potential "is causing bitter reaction among other peoples overrun by Hitler's hordes;" Britain where we now are known as "Uncle Shylock;" South America where we "are known as Yankee imperialists and are furnishing arms to dictators."

Johnson reported that the total investment in Savings Bonds in Southern California since the inauguration of the peacetime Savings Bond program January 1, 1946, is now over 476 million dollars, of which the investment by individuals in E Bonds has now exceeded the 300 million dollar mark.

Robinson Retires, Young Hill Heads Angelus Firm

turning the business of Angelus Funeral Home over to a younger man, I feel that young blood is necessary in a growing business. In doing so, all of my experience and influence stand behind young Hill to help him over any rough spots, should there be any.

"Thinking of the worth of his father to the Angelus, I am confident that the son will display much of the ability of the elder Hill.

It has been my belief for many years that much of Negro business has failed because the elders are unwilling to relinquish anything to the younger group."

When Robinson added the duties of manager to his position as president of the Angelus, following the elder Hill's death, he brought with him to the institution that same spirit of friendly helpfulness which has continuously increased his popularity as a "friend" in the community during the more than 40 years that he has held two responsible positions in Los Angeles.

During the five years he has just completed as manager, the annual business of the Angelus Funeral Home has grown until today it is ranked with the leading mortuaries of the race in the nation.

Associated with Robinson and Hill in the establishment of the Angelus were the late E. G. Hill, retired realtor and Lorenzo Bowdoin, retired postal clerk, who is now secretary-treasurer of the company.

The new president, who is probably the youngest in the country ever chosen to head such a large Negro business, is a graduate of Foshay Junior High school. He continued his studies at Iolani school in Honolulu, T.H., later returned to the states, graduated from Manual Arts High school and attended the University of Southern California. He holds an embalmer's license from the California College of Mortuary Science.

Young Hill served three years in War II in both the European and Asiatic-Pacific Theatres, commanding the 524th car company with the rank of first lieutenant.

He is married to the former Athenaise Houston of Santa Monica and they are the parents of two daughters. Hill is a member of Upsilon Chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity and the Town Club.

Negro Congress States Tea Marks First Anniversary Of Local Chapter

Over 500 people treked to the spacious grounds of 1918 S. Harvard boulevard last Sunday to take part in the festivities of the All State Tea given in celebration of the first anniversary of the Los Angeles Chapter National Negro Congress.

Leaders and members of church, civic, labor and youth organizations throughout the city were among the hundreds of guests who acclaimed the tea as one of the most successful affairs of the season.

An enthusiastic welcome was given to celebrities of stage, screen and radio and their performances received the hearty approval of those in attendance. Among the galaxy of stars who won the applause of the audience were Benny Carter, Mabel Scott, Karen Morley, Lloyd Goff, Charley Brown and The Three Blazes and Byron and Beau.

Another outstanding feature of the glittering all-star program was the presentation of Chuck Boswell, Alice Dale and Phil Pine in a one act skit, "Talk in Darkness." The performance given by these young members of the Actor's Lab is indicative of their rise to stardom.

The skit, written by Malvin Wald and directed by Ralph Norman, was presented through the courtesy of Actor's Lab.

Georgia and Texas were voted as the most popular states of the evening. Miss Gussie Newson of Second Baptist church and Anita Rostodha of People's Independent Church of Christ, captains of the respective states, were awarded prizes of a white portable radio and a lovely modernistic ceramic lamp made by Tony Hill.

The beautiful black and red plastic 1947 portable radio was won by Miss Elsie Tree.

Richard West, radio technician, served as disc jockey; Joel Fluellen, chairman; Lloyd Goff, master of seremonies; and members of the Benevolent Variety Artists and students of the Actor's Lab as hostesses.

"We want to thank all our friends for their inspiring support," Helen Samuels, executive secretary of the National Negro Congress, stated. "And we are especially grateful to the members of the arrangements committee who helped make this tea an outstanding success," she added.

Members of the committee include Jeol Fluellen, chairman; Anita Rostodha, co-chairman; Virginia Alexander, secretary; Frances Williams, chairman of hostesses and finances; and Gussie Newson, chairman of tickets.

Proceeds from the tea will be used by the National Negro Congress in its militant struggle against increasing discrimination in employment, lynch terror and police brutality, and against restrictive covenants.

when they tangled on the front lawn and later in the dining room. Only the Dabneys had been drinking, they testified.

Officers Hale and Gore had testified that they found Dabney lying on the floor, with Brashear shouldering his way, knife in hand, through a group surrounding Dabney. Hale asserted he ordered Brashear to drop the knife, that the veteran lifted it "menacingly" and advanced "one or two steps" toward him, that he then fired at Brashear.

Defense Attorney R. O. Stainforth in his cross examination of Hale asked why the knife had not been examined for fingerprints. Myra Price, sister of Dabney and a prosecution witness, had testified that she saw the knife in Officer Gore's hand, denied seeing it in Brashear's possession. She also contradicted police claims that there was noise and confusion at the time Brashear was shot.

Dabney repudiated a written statement he had signed in which he declared that "the police shot the man with the knife," that the police "had saved his life." Dabney testified under cross examination that he signed the statement while still in a drunken stupor.

The jury is composed of nine women and three men, all white and of middle class or wealthy backgrounds, with no Negro, Mexican or trade union members.

Judge Joseph Shell's court, No. 4 in the County Court House, was packed during the entire trial, which opened last Wednesday, by white and Negro citizens interested in the case.

Indigent neighbors and friends of the Newlins came to Los Angeles and testified that Elijah Newlins had a clean record. He had never caused any trouble. He did not drink.

Upon motion of Attorney Thomas Griffith, who represented the Newlins, Judge Boyle dismissed the case.

There was no apology to Newlins, however, for the inconvenience, the humiliation, and the expense of returning to Los Angeles for the hearing. But the many friends of the Newlins are considering a suit against the Los Angeles police department, to compensate for the humiliation and the expense they were subjected to.

Vitamin Value Easy To Lose

When straining citrus juices or tomatoes, never use copper or brass strainers, nutritionists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture caution. Copper is very destructive of vitamin C and brass is an alloy of copper. When these juices come in contact with this metal, they lose much of their most important vitamin value.

Jury last week returned indictments against the prison guards.

In its hearing, the Georgia grand jury refused to call a high Glynn county official who had denounced the killings as "deliberate and outright murder," and offered to testify against Warden H. G. Worthy and the prison guards.

The official was Sam A. Levine, Glynn county commissioner and leading white Brunswick merchant. Levine appeared in the court room where the grand jury was sitting, and demanded to be called to testify as a spokesman for the people of Glynn county. His demand was ignored by the grand jury.

The massacre occurred after a group of prisoners refused to work in and around swampy water without boots in a territory infested with rattlesnakes. They were taken back to camp, lined up against a barbed wire fence and shot down by machine guns. Eight men were killed, seven wounded.

In offering Clark the cooperation of the NAACP, Thurgood Marshall, NAACP chief counsel, wrote that the NAACP had made every effort to secure affirmative action from the Georgia authorities, but that it had become apparent that the only possible avenue of redress was through the federal government.

Baha'i News

Task of God is the subject to be discussed by Florence Mayberry at the Los Angeles headquarters of Baha'i World Faith, 331 South New Hampshire avenue, on Sunday, October 12, at 3 o'clock.

Abdu'l-Baha has said: "Unity in the political realm . . . Unity of thought in world undertakings . . . Unity in freedom . . . Unity in religion . . . Unity of nations . . . Unity of races . . . Unity of language . . . Each and every one of these will inevitably come to pass, inasmuch as the power of the Kingdom of God will aid and assist in their realization."

Dan Marshall Leads Assault on Nazi-like Law

shift from "democratic" America to Nazi Germany as Marshall sat down and Deputy County Counsel Charles C. Stanley proceeded to justify the racist statute. Stanley argued that the legislature was justified in passing the law because "it reflects the customs, values and manners of the people o fthe state."

He declared the state legislature had held "the white race has been decided to be superior, both mentally and physically to the black race," and was within its constitutional rights in basing a state marriage law on that belief. In his argument, Stanley took no account of modern scientific views which reject the theory of race superiority and inferority.

The case was taken under advisement by the supreme court.

How women and girls may get wanted relief from functional periodic pain

Cardui is a liquid medicine which many women say has brought relief from the cramp-like agony and nervous strain of functional periodic distress. Here's how it may help:

1- Taken like a tonic, it should stimulate appetite, aid digestion,* thus help build resistance for the "time" to come.

2- Started 3 days before "your time", it should help relieve pain due to purely functional periodic causes.

Try Cardui. If it helps, you'll be glad you did.

PHYS-ART-LIT-MOR club women had a very interesting time at their opening meeting of the year. Many were the charming guests in attendance, as may be seen in the top photo, as they gathered in the garden of the Sojourner Truth Home, Saturday morning following the club's annual opening breakfast. Photos in lower part of layout show Charter members of the club and founder Mrs. Betty Hill. Left to right they are: Dr. Bailey Robinson, Georgia McCullough, Fannie Alexander and Mrs. Betty Hill. Other photo shows club president, Mrs. Belle Perdu, shaking the hand of feature speaker of the morning, Mr. Turpin. Also participating on program, left to right, were: Bessie Burke, principal of Ascot school; Charlotta A. Bass, mistress of ceremonies; Estelle Saunders, chairman of music; Mrs. A. Hailstock; Mrs. Grace White, cor. secty.; Mrs. Belle Perdu, president (holding hat); Mrs Artisha Jordan, 1st vice. 2nd vice, Mrs. Mary Robinson, not pictured. Phys-Art-Lit-Mor Club Opens Years Work at Annual Breakfast

Saturday morning found one of the oldest women's clubs of the city resuming its activities for the fall term. The Phys Art Lt Mor club, now more than 20 years an organization held its annual Saturday morning breakfast, with many distinguished personalities in attendance. The president of the incoming year, Mrs. Belle Perdue gaveled the meeting to order and presented Mrs. Essie Roberts Saunders, who introduced the mistress of ceremonies of the morning, Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass, editor, publisher of the California EAGLE.

A program, bringing out the finer points of the club's aims, "better physical, artistic and literary development followed." Featured speaker of the morning was the very distinguished Mr. Richard Turpin, who gave a very concise but thrilling story of 50 years of his life spent in the 'deep' as a deep sea diver. The winsome Mrs. Nida Blackwell spoke on physical culture and moral philosophy. Mrs. Bessie Brewington Burke, principal in the city's public school system spoke on the assets of art and literature. These fine addresses were interspersed by several musical selections including the renditions of Mr. Olie McDonald, who is studying to sing "Orthello" as well as other operetic parts. His performance was supurb. The entire guests who included a representative group joined in singing "Lift Every Voice and Sing" the National Negro Anthem.

At the close of the program, Mrs. E. W. Rakestraw, introduced the officers of the club: president, Mrs. Belle Perdue; 1st vice, Mrs. Artesia Jordon; 2nd vice, Mrs. Mary Robinson; rec. secretary, Mrs. Bessie Davis; cor. secty., Mrs. Grace White; treasurer, Mrs. Catherine Williams; financial secretary, Mrs. Wilma Chapman; treasure chest, Mrs. Katherine Reeves; chairman of music, Mrs. Estelle Saunders; dept. chairman, Dr. Batie Robinson; chaplain, Mrs. Sarah Jonhson.

The Phys-Art-Lit-Mor club is divided into three departments that take up the work of the activities the name of the club implies. The entire membership of the club is composed of some of the pioneer women of the city, who have seen to a steady but gradual physical, literary, and artistic development in the city. This club has had a moulding influence in Los Angeles for many years.

The new fall program, that will put the women back to work is one of many duties for all connected. The sojourner Truth home, 1119 E. Adams blvd., was the setting for the breakfast that is held annually. Club members and invited guests took part in this entertainment. The success of this year's opening program has served as a great inspiration for the Phys Art Lit Mor women to strive for greater heights this year.

WHAT'S DOING IN THE SOCIAL SET

By JESSIE MAE BROWN

THE INITIAL MEETING of the Metropolitan branch of the National Council of Negro Women will be Saturday afternoon at Crystal Center. Key speakers will be two women of national note. Mrs. Bertha McKanlass, National Grand Directoress of Shrine of the Daughter Elks of the World, who is visiting the city on Elk business; and Mrs. Lou Swartz, nationally known actress and member of the fourth estate. Mrs. Swartz is organizer of the Metropolitan Council of St. Louis. She will discuss the work programmed for the council this year. Chairing this program will be first vice president, Mrs. Ferrol Bobo Connor. The luncheon meeting will start promptly at 1:30. President, Mrs. Frederick Jordan, is expecting all members to attend . . .

Jessie Mae Brown

Striking another national note of interest is the coming regional meeting of the Medical Dental Pharmaceutical Auxiliary. The setting for the meeting this year will be very picturesque and those in position to attend are busily engaged at this early date making plans to attend. Guess you're wondering at this point just where the meeting will be held—New Orleans is the place and the time is properly scheduled around the opening of the Marde Gras. Local Auxiliary women, with a definite gleam in their eyes, one of preparing smart outfits to wear back, as well as a set of good ideas for improving the Auxiliary are: Mrs. Edith Bailey, local president, and Mrs. Emily Portwig, who holds membership in both the Association and Auxiliary . . .

POT POURRI

Just watching the cancellation of standard dates finds ye scribe wondering why the sudden change from tradition. Now the AKA's have decided to move their annual Holiday formal up to the Spring of the year. Charming Ann Gordon will head it as chairman again this year. Reason for the sudden change is the Sorority's Carol Brice Concert that is also set for December. In fact, December 7. All of the Sorors will be concentrating on making it one of the season's best concerts, not just on a community scale, but metropolitan . . . Still haven't heard anything definite about the Black and White. Some of the gents say it will be, while others say it won't . . .

The members of the Gamma Xi chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Frat. have completed plans for their "Scholarship Aid Fund Drive." While talking with Morris Hampton last week, learned that the drive will climax with a gay "Street Carnival." Masquerade will be the order of the evening, and Oct. 31 is the date. The whole fund drive sounds very interesting; we'll all learn more about it after Friday's press conference . . .

Oct. 31 will be another much used date this year. The Scroller pledge club has planned a "Home Coming Dance" following the UCLA-UC game.

While mentioning the Greeks, ye scribe was among the invited guests at the AKA Rush Party given by Sigma chapter on the USC campus. The girls were invited to entertain the new students at the home of Dean Moreland, who addressed the group and urged them to play an active part in the student activities on the USC campus. To date the sorority is recognized on the campus and is free to take part in any of the activities. Doloris Bell, president of the chapter, will encourage the group to include campus activities on the agenda this semester. The student body officers were also present at the affair. Dorothy Redd, an honor graduate of USC, gave a very inspiring speech, bringing out some of the high points of the Boule held last summer in Ohio . . .

On Sunday morning, the Rush Coffee, given by the Alpha Gamma chapter of AKA was held at the home of Dr. Veda Somerville, and was indeed a very fashionable affair. While taking note of participants on the program I held a lasting impression of the smartness of Albertenna Robinson's fall gray suit. Also the alligator bag that completed Catherine Graham's smart costume, as she bowed to the mention of the two books she has written and her position in the public school system. Vivian Wilson, of the Police Women, was all out for Fall in a brown suide top coat with matching 'Tam.' Violet Aldridge Thomas, as full of vim, vigor and vitality as ever, made a very good Mistress of Ceremonies to hear, and look at, as she gave the different highpoints of the organization to which she has given some of the good years of her life. Vi is just about ready to open her ceremics business again, now that Jr. is three months old. Zenobia Allen, always the last word in charm, answered questions on the Boule, as did Audrey Jones, Regional Director. Dr. Veda Somerville made an early departure, but welcomed all the new girls in her grand way before doing so. Christine Allen, whom we hadn't seen since way last summer, was there with FAMED CAROL BRICE, who will thrill Los Angeles music lovers with her wonderful voice when she appears at the Philahrmonic Auditorium in concert on Dec. 7, is shown the Leonard Bernsteen and Serge Koussevitsky, conductor of the Boston Symphony, at the close of a recital. The local concert is being sponsored by Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority. Tickets are available from any sorority member. Reservations may be made by calling CE. 2-8883.

Famed Carol Brice to Thrill L. A. Audience in Concert Highlighting Dec. Events

The music lovers of Los Angeles, eagerly awaiting the opening of the opera series, and the array of musical concerts that are scheduled to follow, have red lettered the December 7, date set for the Carol Brice Concert at Philharmonic Auditorium. Those who have heard her sing before are eagerly awaiting another chance, others who know the grand singer through her wonderful reputation as one of the nation's finest, can hardly await the scheduled date.

Miss Brice, who began her career as a member of the Seladia Singers of North Carolina at the age of three, received her degree in music at Talladega, studied for five years at the Juilliard School of Music. She was the first of her race ever to win the coveted Naumberg Foundation Award (1944) and since that time has sung with the Pittsburgh Symphony under Fritz Reiner; the Kansas City Symphony under Efram Kurtz; in recital at Carnegie Hall, Town Hall and at Chicagos Orchestra Hall and as soloist with the Yale University Glee Club.

After a Carol Brice recital under his auspices in March, 1946, Serge Koussevitsky, famed conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, exclaimed, "Her voice is like a cello." Miss Brice, 28 year old contralto, was invited by Mr. Koussevitsky to sing at a concert for the Friends of the Boston Symphony. Her program including songs of Handel, Leider and an exciting Hall Johnson spiritual, had been sung to an audience accustomed to the great of the music world. Their acclaim of her glorious performance was reflected in the enthusiastic and wholehearted praise of Mr. Koussevitsky. Himself a cellist, he likened her voice to the rich tones of that beautiful instrument, and spoke of the perfection of her diction.

Miss Brice is being presented by the Alpha Gamma Omega chapter of Alpha Kappa sorority. This group has been responsible for presenting noted race singers for a goodly number of years. General chairman is Mrs. Ursula Pruitt Murrell. She is being ably assisted by Lucille Bonnett, ticket chairman and Dorothea Fearonce. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Bonnett at CE-28883, or Mrs. Murrell at RO-6052.

Two new members were added to the roster, including Mr. Reed and Mrs. Margrett. The next meeting will be held Oct. 26, at 1263 E. 20th St.

Mothers' Club Of Wadsworth In Meeting

The Mothers' Club of Wadsworth street school held it first meeting of the season Oct. 1, at 1 o'clock in the school cafeteria with old and new members in nice attendance. Though new in organization, the spirit of cooperation is high and many plans are scheduled for this school year.

Mrs. Gladys Knight, vice president, appointed the following chairmen of the executive committees: Mesdames Evelyn Yeager, Welfare; Marie Griffin, Membership; Carrie Jones, Program; Mabel Sims, Decorations; Ida Collier, Juvenile Delinquency; LaVerne Cyror, Publicity; Roberta Scott, Room Mothers, and Alice Mashack heading the Ways and Means.

The parents and guardians are urged to attend the meetings each first and third Wednesday at 1 o'clock and a cordial invitation to anyone desirous of working with this group. Mrs. Doris Austin, Pres. Mrs. LaVerne Cryor, Acting Reporter.

PHRATERIE PREXY — Winsome Gloria Crouch is the new president of the Alpha Phraterie club on the Los Angeles City College campus. She succeeds Joyce Maynard in office. The Phrateries will hold a rush party Friday night, taking in 10 new members. This is the interest group to AKA sorority.

RETURNS TO WASHINGTON—Mrs. Alice B. Cabell, former Los Angeles resident, now the wife of Sherman Cabell, D.C. businessman, returned to the nation's capital recently. She was a former Institutional Dietician for the State of Maryland. (See story.)

Prominent Washington Matron Ends Business Trip in L. A.

A recent departure for Washington, D.C., was made by Mrs. Alice B. Cabell, wife of Sherman Cabell, properous Washington business man. Mrs. Cabell had been in Los Angeles to wind up several business matters that needed her attention.

A former institutional dietician for the state of Maryland and later connected with the Bureau of Statistics for the Department of Labor at Washington, Mrs. Cabell, has decided to retire from the latter and devote her time to caring for her home in the nation's capital.

Part of her business in Los Angeles was to secure final adoption paper for Sylvia Ann Cabell, now 5½ years old. The child starts school in Washington this fall. Mrs. Cabell has a son Arthur West, by a former marriage, who will graduate in June of 1948, receiving his degree in medicine at Howard university.

Prior to coming to California 10 years ago, Mrs. Cabell was the former Alice West, owner of West's Park Row Salon, one of Washington's finest catering establishments owned and operated by a Negro. She left Los Angeles 2 years ago due to the illness of her mother.

Mrs. Cabell is the former wife of Robert F. Gilmore, Thrift Drug Store employe, whom she married here in December 1939.

20th Century Girls Set Bazaar for October 25

The 20th Century Girls met Sunday, Oct. 5, with Mrs. Bea Smith, who is a very charming hostess, and always succeeds in making one welcome. The meeting was held in the lovely home of Mrs. Erma Bowles, whose graciousness made the day most enjoyable.

The president called the meeting to order and plans were outlined for the coming bazaar which will be held Saturday night, Oct. 25.

Mrs. Smith served a delicious turkey dinner. Guests were Mrs. Grace Scott and Mrs. Elnore James. It was indeed a pleasure meeting these lovely ladies and we do hope you had a good time.

Last week in reporting our trip to San Diego, I made a mistake in calling Mr. Oscar Best head chef. Mr. Best is the steward and is to be commended on doing a fine job. We tip our hats to the Santa Fe for recognizing a Negro's ability. Please accept my apology, Mr. Best, and thanks again.

Mrs. Amanda Elliott wishes to thank her friends for the many cards she has received. Your thoughtfulness has been a big factor in helping her to get well. She is still in bed, but improving.

The bazaar will be held Saturday night, October 25, so keep that date in mind.

Phillips Temple made a perfect setting for the beautiful wedding ceremony uniting Bertha Jonathan Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Harris, and Taylor Wendell Handy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Tyees. Rev. L. C. Cleaves officiated the ceremony that was witnessed by a throng of the couple's friends.

The wedding procession was unique in that three little girls acted as junior bridesmaids. They wore white formal gowns and carried miniature bridal bouquets. The bridal party was complete with Mary Jackson, serving as matron of honor, and Misses Imogene Bean and Catherine Miller, bridesmaids. The matron of honor wore a gown of pink taffeta with a matching picture hat, she carried a bouquet of pink roses. The maids wore matching gowns of blue taffeta, slight veils were worn on their heads and their buoquets were of pink roses.

The bride was very lovely as she marched with her father, Mr. James Harris. She chose a gown of traditional white satin with flowing train, and full length veil held in place by a pearl coronet. She carried a white prayer book with orchids and gardenias.

Carl Primas served as best man, little Sonny Dixon was ring bearer, wearing a white birdal suit. Ushers included James Parker and Alfred Johnson.

Immediately following the ceremony, the reception was held at Ralphe Porter's Casa Rafa. More than 200 guests were in attendance felicitating the young couple, and showering them with many useful gifts. At the appointed time, the newly wedded Mr. and Mrs. Handy slipped away on a Northern California honeymoaon. At the present time, they are 'at home' to their many friends.

much to talk about, and Gwen Duseau did a fine job of holding a very interesting program together. Naida McCullough received recognition for her recent music award. A bit conspicuous in her absence from the affair, was Atty. Martha Malone Jefferson, president of the grad chapter. Due to the fact that she is a very new bride, all was forgiven. By the way, Judge Edwin Jefferson presided at the ceremony that united his brother Atty. Bernard Jefferson and the former Atty. Martha Williams last Thursday night . . . And while mentioning the work of Dan Cupid, pledge Mattie Cook will be passing the candy on Sunday. Artis Grant has presented her with a very beautiful engagement ring . . .

Short Skirt Club Press Conference

Mrs. Warren J. Woodard, president of the Little Below the Knee Club of Dallas, Texas, and Mrs. Martha Gaddis, president of the United Skirts of America, met last Thursday in Hollywood to unify the purpose and efforts of the two organizations in a nationwide fight against the medieval trend in fashions towards drooping skirts, sagging shoulders, and hide-bound corsets.

The presidents of the two groups joined together in saying that "American woman are refusing and will continue to refuse to submit to foreign dictates."

Mrs. Gaddis vigorously denounced the forcing of impractical and outmoded fashions as definitely NOT AMERICAN. And added, "American women have always prided themselves in the chicness and practicability of their clothes, whether it be for the home, work, or recreation."

"The styles now being forced upon American women are utterly fantastic, and we stand as a group of thousands of women who will not revert to the era of the horse and buggy," she said.

Mrs. Woodard stated, "The women of Texas, true to the tradition of the Lone Star State, join with the rest of the women of America in their determination to carry on the battle against the stylocrats. As far as we are concerned, this is the modern 'Battle of the Alamo'."

Good Tips for the Housewife

A new raspberry, named September because it bears a second crop in early autumn as well as a first crop in summer, has been originated by the New York State Experiment Station. Horticulturists of the U. S. Deparment of Agriculture report it as "very promising" after a two year study of experimental plantings at the Plant Industry Station, Beltsville, Md.

September berries are medium to large in size, firm and bright red, and so far have shown no tendency to crumble. The quality of the fall crop is especially good. The plants are vigorous and increase rapidly. They are especially suited to growing in the North from New England to Northern New Jersey and across to eastern Iowa. If grown farther south, spraying against leaf spot is necessary.

The berries, especially those of the summer crop, tend to cling to the bushes rather too tightly for speedy picking. This may be a disadvantage for commercial growing but not for home use. A few bushes planted on the home grounds should provide the family with a rare fruit treat—fresh red raspberries for autumn breakfasts or deserts.

Fremont Council Slates Plans

At the September executive board meeting of Fremont Council, resignations of Mrs. H. E. Mithild, press chairman, and Mrs. James Arnold, record book, were accepted with regrets.

On motion of Mrs. J. L. Kierstead the president may fill these vacancies. Mrs. Lohrman asked for volunteers but these chairmanships are still open.

Local Roommother Chairmen met at the home of Mrs. George Ownbey, 1707 E. 67th St., at 1:30 October 3.

There were many questions answered and suggestions offered over coffee and dessert.

Mrs. Ownbey was assisted by Mrs. Clarence Sandvvig, Mrs. Paul Shanks, Council Motion Picture Chairman and Mrs. G. A. Lohrman.

Mrs. Elias King represented Florence Ave., P.T.A.—Mrs. J. D. Peal — 118 St. Mrs. G. C. Baker — Holmes Ave. Mrs. Robert Gooden—Trinity. Mabel S. Walton and Mrs. C. M. Young — Nevin Ave P.T.A.

SHOPPING WITH DORIS

By DORIS AUSTIN

Hello There:

Tomorrow, Oct. 10, marks a year since I brought to you an introductory write-up, the official beginning of this shopping service with its many small conveniences for you. You have been quite generous in your response and I wish to sincerely thank you and to promise competent, reliable service in the future for you and your shopping needs and I'd like you to remember this promise and the shopping service in the coming yuletide season. Special rates and extras offered during the holiday period, so plan to do your shopping early; there are still nice bargains in spite of the present high cost.

We were to chat about restyling suits this week to meet the present new lengths but before we do, I would like to remind you that one of the most difficult tasks you have is to avoid a "made-over" look in any of the garments you fashion. If you are just fair as a modiste and cannot afford to pay alteration fees, then it is far better to wear the dress or suit as is, rather than look hastily thrown together—not that it is a matter of time procedure but a unique bit of intricate handlings that makes last year's model look like a copy of this season's Vogue. Next be sure the material will warrant the change because it might be best to save all you can toward a new outfit rather than plunge on a spree of remodeling. You can be lovely with one smart suit and a set of accessories that are flexible for dress or casual wear. Think it over and we'll tear those suits apart later. Call CE. 2-0819 for Doris, your personal shopper.

Each of us is building a house for himself, one in which health, sorrow and happiness are expedienced. We have our own choice of materials, and workmen. They consist of our thoughts, habits, actions and everything we think and say.

By using the proper tools to construct this home, we have a chance to build a firm foundation—and this haven will outlast other dwellings where no time and effort were used to construct them.

Thus we build the character of our lives. We cannot dream ourself into it. One must use good mortar and clay, good stone and substantial materials, not substitutes . . . if they wish their castle to withstand the storms of life. Acquire an education and try to elevate your thoughts and actions so that they will be constructive—not destructive for the house you live in!

6500 Eastsiders Took Free Chest X-Rays

More than 6500 persons were given free chest x-rays during the six-week East Los Angeles survey just concluded, it was revealed yesterday by officials of the City Health Department and the Los Angeles County Tuberculosis and Health Association, co-sponsors of the project.

From late July, when the mobile x-ray unit of the Association was located at the Evergreen Playground, until last Friday, when the unit concluded a week-long session at Wabash Playground, an average of 176 residents of this area visited the truck each day to receive a free examination. Other locations visited by the truck included Pecan Playground, William Mead Homes, Lafayette Jr. High school and the Plaza Community Center.

While tabulations have not yet been completed, it was indicated that a number of cases of tuberculosis and heart disease were discovered as a result of the survey.

Praise for the efforts of such community groups as the Boyle Heights Health Council, the William Mead Residence Council, the Lafayette Health Council and other organizations which helped in the project came from a health department official, who declared that "without their help, our task would have been a great deal more difficult." Both the health department and the tuberculosis association also extended congratulations to the residents of the area who visited the mobile unit.

Santa Monica Notes

By LOWELL EVANS

By LOWELL EVANS

This week is clean-up week in Santa Monica and everyone is expected to demonstrate that civic pride. The city is improving many streets and business places are making improvements in the form of repairs and painting up in general.

I have been informed that race relations at the Broadway school in Venice have improved since younger teachers have been employed.

The Oakwood playground has been a source of friction between races for some time, such as minor scraps between colored and white boys. After a change was made in the supervisor, conditions improved until last week a big fight broke out between the Mexican and white children to the extent that the police had to be called to stop the fight. All of this could have been averted if the white students had been taught to respect fellow Americans as human beings and on equal terms with them instead of race supremacy.

At the Broadway school the principal takes pride in informing his students that his ancestors had slaves back in Alabama instead of telling them about the accomplishments of Dr. Carver and Booker T. Washington and other Negroes.

Texas Visitor Returns

SANTA MONICA — Visiting here from Longview, Texas, was Mrs. Lucy Jane Hopkin in the home of her sister and brother-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Archie Jones, 1740 19th st. Her stay was quite enjoyable. While here she worshipped at Calvary Baptist church. After a month's visit she has returned to her home in Longview, Texas.

HOMECOMING DAY was observed by the members and frinds of Lincoln Memorial Congregational church, 4415 Hooper avenue, last Sunday. Part of the crowd was caught by EAGLE writer-photographer, Johnny Delgardo.

St. James Pastor To Return After Lengthy Vacation

M. J. Gipson, B.Th., B.D., pastor of the St. James Baptist church, who has been absent from his pulpit for the past five weeks on a rest from the tremendous strain, will return Sunday and desires to see all members and friends.

While away, Rev. and Mrs. Gipson visited friends in Nevada, Utah, Denver, Colo., and Kansas. He attended the National Baptist Convention, stopping off in Oklahoma City, where he conducted a revival for the New Hope Baptist church, pastored by Rev. J. D. Provo, D.D. He also attended the New Singing Convention in Sapulpa, Okla., Deacon A. L. Weaver, president. The pastor will speak at both services.

Smith Calls For All Out Fight On Taft-Hartley Act

Ferdinand C. Smith, secretary of the National Maritime Union, charged before the Union's Sixth Convention that the Taft-Hartley law is part of "an overall plot to intensify the stronghold of monopoly on our national life" and called for an all out fight "by all means possible" to prevent the law from destroying the NMU. Measures proposed in Smith's report included mass pressure and demonstrations, job actions, and united action with all maritime unions and the labor movement generally.

The report reommended numerous measures to improve conditions in the maritime industry. Among them are:

A 4-watch system, 3 months annual leave with pay, increased manning scales, increased wages, adjustment of unfair classification differentials, health and welfare plan, and the guaranteed annual wage.

Also, abolition of the present system of voyage articles, outlawing of the "feudal practice" which permits employers to fine workers—a condition that "exists only in the maritime industry," return of the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation to a civilian agency and removal of coast guard control; drastic reduction of federal shipping laws to wipe out archaic provisions which "hamstring and enslave seamen."

Also recommended were adoption of legislation to benefit seamen, including seamen's bill of rights, citizenship for foreign born seamen, full coverage of seamen by all federal social legislation, such as a wage-hour law, and political equality for seamen on a par with workers ashore.

FERDINAND SMITH

The report charged that distressed seamen overseas "are shunted around" by consular officials and demanded that seamen be repatriated "as decent human beings" and not as workaways or on government charity. In this respect, Smith called for steps to be taken to assure that the State Department transmits "affirmative instructions" to all consular officials "directing them to give full assistance to seamen and penalizing foreign service employes guilty of racist or anti-Union attacks."

The report declared that "foreign policy directly determine the level of jobs and employment" in the maritime industry, and sharply denounced present U. S. foreign policy as "aggressive, imperialist, and leading in the direction of war rather than peace."

"The Truman Doctrine is a bold attempt to intensify American imperialist exploitation of the world's resources," Smith declared. He also hit out at the Marshall Plan as designed to deny the right of the people of England and Europe "for progressive nationalization and socialization."

The report repudiated shipowner propaganda that American maritime standards must be lowered in order to prevent unemployment and cited the sharp rise of productivity and efficiency of American seamen over prewar levels.

Belts Already Tightened, New Yorkers' Health Seen Menaced by Rising Prices

NEW YORK—As President Truman and his advisers called upon the nation to tighten its belts, five New York City officials reported that large sections of this city's population face malnutrition and serious illness unless food costs are brought down to reasonable levels.

The warning came in a joint report submitted to Mayor O'Dwyer by the commissioners of the departments of education, health, hospitals, welfare and markets.

Most ominous report came from Hospital Commissioner Edward M. Bernecker, who warned: "If the present trend of living costs continues there is grave danger that the health of large segments of the population will deteriorate."

Particularly hard hit, he said, are patients suffering from diabetes and other serious illness which require special foods. "So sharp has been the impact of present rising food cost," he told the mayor, "that it is causing the deepest concern among the doctors, nurses and social workers dealing with them."

His findings were underscored by Health Commissioner Israel Weinstein. Pointing outh that a third of the city's children are treated at child health stations, Weinstein reported that in a "steadily rising crescendo" mothers who bring their children for treatment "have complained that they simply cannot afford to buy proper food for their youngsters."

Mothers "simply" shrugged their shoulders" when advised by doctors to feed their children three eggs a week, he said.

The rising cost of milk is making that essential food a luxury for lower income families, Weinstein said.

Rising prices also threaten to add $1,000,000 to the cost of the city lunch program before the school year ends, Education Commissioner Andrew G. Clauson informed the mayor.

The number of low-cost free meals provided in the schools has gone up 18.6 percent since June, 1946, he said, indicating that an increasing number of families cannot afford to buy their children a noon-day meal.

Families on home relief are among the worst sufferers, Welfare Commissioner Edward E. Rhatigan said, pointing out that they "can only buy 75 percent of the food they actually need at prevailing prices."

Final evidence of the need for a rollback in prices was presented by Markets Commissioner Eugene Schultz, who said his department's indices show that a moderate food budget for a family of four has gone up from $23.63 a week in January 1946 to $30.07 this September, a 27 percent increase.

Raisin' Cain

By CARL L. CAIN

The southern school system, as I saw it, was second to none. Second to none, that is, in failing in the attempt to educate the Negro students who so badly need education. There are, in the beginning, too few schools, rural schools too poorly equipped, and teachers too poorly paid. In sharp contrast to the neighboring white schools, the Negro schools are often crowded, and therefore the schedule that must be carried is almost impossible to maintain. The course of study has been drawn up more by tradition than by careful planning and consideration.

The fact that both Negro and Caucasian school systems are under the same auspices, having the same board of education and officials, is almost a hindrance to progress. The white system might easily be compared with northern and western schools; but the Negro school cannot, for they would look terribly precarious—salaries of rural schools, before the war, dipping to $30 per month in some factual cases. Presently the Negro rural teachers are being allowed a little more chance to live, due to the war, and an increase in the standards of living.

Southern schools, when compared to western or northern, show a radical difference. There are no junior high schools in the south. All too often, in the Negro schools, elementary, junior and senior high grades are facilitated in the same buildings. This makes a three fold job for the principal. Therefore, the need of hiring other principals for the junior and senior high, or for the elementary department, is eliminated, and more money can be appropriated to other schools.

In the large rooms, the average number of pupils per teacher ranges from 60 to 75. When 80 students enroll, the class is "crowded."

By this time you are probably wondering what courses are taken, what the students study —they study their lessons. All students, in many of the schools, are given academic subjects from start to finish. Few schools have shops and trades for students who do not plan to enter college. Girls learn quite a bit from their sideline home economic classes . . . just in case.

Due to the fact that education in many of the rural schools only extends to the eighth grade, many young boys and girls are never able to go beyond there; for then their help is needed by their parents on the farms. The same circumstance exists higher up the ladder, on the completion of the high school course. In many of the small towns there are colleges for white students only, and Negro students find it necessary to go away to other cities to attend school. Since many of the parents are unable to support the student while he or she attends college, education beyond high school is considered a luxury.

There is a sharp line between white and colored people in the southern school system. The high schools and colleges refuse to compete, athletically, against one another, because one high school is for Negro students, the other for white students, the same applying to colleges. There was an incident that caused much debate last year. A college in Mississippi refused to play a northern team because there was a Negro on this northern team.

For the good that it does, sympathy should be extended to the youth of the south who live in the towns and cities. After school closes for the summer vacation, or even for the day, there is practically no activity for the boys and girls. During the summer the heat waves cannot be ignored by diving into the sanitary waters of a pool. They seldom have youth canteens, skating rinks, or any other sports that provide spare time interests. To the best of their ability, the boys put their time to valuable use, working, or on some other useful project. But there are many cases in which their ability is not enough, and trouble comes too easy. The girls sometimes become mothers at an early age, boys are sentenced to penal institutions for the slightest offenses.

And yet, in the midst of it all, there is something to be admired. It is the spirit of the youth, something deep, and calm, and courageous. Cooperation between teachers and students is the least difficulty in their toil for better conditions. Nothing is stronger than the determination put forth by some of the young men, and women, when they decide to gain for themselves, the fruits of success.

In winding up this series of reports on the south, I think it only fair that I should mention the death of Sen. Bilbo, I, being fortunate enough to be present in the capital city of Mississippi that memorable day. The key to his long life is believed to have been found. It was said that "the man" was so hated by everyone, even death, that he was steered clear of. Finally old Kill Joy Death decided to get the job over with.

THREE UCLA STUDENTS, Marguerita Duran, Ernie May Maxey, and Jeane Burke, help Mayor Fletcher Bowron following his proclamation of Civic Unity Week for Los Angeles. The girls, who were part of the Panel of Americans, recently returned from a nationwide tour in the interest of racial and religious tolerance.

What's Happening

By JOHNNY DELGARDO

Well, everybody seems to be seeking an education these days. There are scores of new faces on the campi about Los Angeles this year. Over on the South Vermont campus of fast-growing George Pepperdine college can be seen these days, Geraldine Barnum, former City college co-ed. Kappa Scrollers, Gabriel Randolph and Tommy Kyser, who also deserted L.A.C.C. in favor of Pepperdine. The "Waves" may boast their first colored basketball player, when sharp shooting "Gabe" reports for practice. Come spring the high-stepping Kyser will be picking 'em up and layin' 'em down over the high and low sticks. (That's hurdles to you.)

Out Westwood Village way, home of the UCLA Bruins, the Co-op, Extension, and Carl Wills, (he's been there long enough to be the dean) such new faces as Oliver S. Brown, City college's ex-wolf taking up where he left off on the North Vermont campus, Haywood Thompson, also formerly of City college, Harold Garrison, who just graduated from Polytechnic High school with high scholastic honors and now a Kappa Scroller. Another new face getting to be a big wheel at Bruinville, is Sphinxman Harry Thompson, tackle on the 1947 edition of the "Westwood Wonders." Pretty Kathleen Mason, who has an eye for Yell Leaders, has made her debut upon the land north of Wilshire blvd. Old students getting back into the groove are, Wilda Clark, Joyce Maynard, Van Thompson, Ray Kelly, Charlane and Charlotte Derick. As we leave Bruinville and head back toward civilization, we see Kenneth and Hugo Hill changing another flat tire.

Brousing around the Ivy colored walls of LACC, we run into the professor himself, Scott Gilbert. It seems the good kid isn't having any book trouble, but lots of female trouble. Ole stand-by Robert Hicks is still deciding whether he should go to class or not. Osie Jones is getting back to his books after a hitch with Uncle; pretty boy Stanley Robertson, telling us that he pub UCLA down, Audrey Cloyd has deserted the Student Union for a bench out in front of it. Can't get away from it, can you Audrey? Pat Brown, Ann Smith, and Jackie Regarde are getting to be big girls now. What's the matter Herbert Howard, can't you take it because the Dodgers lost? John Waller, whose been burning the midnight oil already, because of his tough courses in Pre-Pharmacy. Go to it, John. Edward Beize has been nominated for Campus Playboy. Golbert McBeth is still on the ball with his studies, so is Carrol Hithe and her running buddie Margie King. Frank Rasberry has stopped carrying that paddle around. Betty Linley and Sally Jones seem to have solved the transportation problem. Watch out for those back wheels girls!

Working hard at his Pre-Med studies at Chapman college, is Andrew Wallace, formerly of Lincoln university. Morris Hampton, local Alpha frat man is now attending Chapman also. It seems that Luke House too ka walk across the street to attend Chapman instead of LACC this semester.

Over at University Park, the home of the once mighty Trojans, we still find a few familiar faces, such as Betty Price, Hortense Stevens, and Julius Boyd.

Jumping over to the social side of the collegiate world, the Delta Sigma Theta sorority welcomed the new girls on the various campi with an afternoon of bowling and a dance in the evening. The West 27th street home of Soror Faye Hopkins was the scene of the Saturday night dance. Seen having a good time were Martha Grimes and Gordon Lightner, Lorraine Tennette and Lucas Harris, Jeanne Brown, "The Rip" Gridley, Jean Holmes, Dorothy McLaughlin, Pyromm Taylor, Jean Arnold, Tanis Fortier ,and Evelyn Strickland.

Hear Ye! Hear Ye! The Scroller Pledge Club of Kappa Alpha Psi, are taking steps to present to the collegiate world another night of fine entertainment. This time its a Halloween Ball, to be given on Oct. 31. With their past reputation for fine affair, the Ball is bound to be a success.

Well! Well! We have another new club in town. This one is sponsored by the West View Hospital. First in line to hold office are. Pres. David Reed, Vice Pres. Jean Harris, Sec. Renee Hatcher, Treas. Eugene Blackley, Boy Adviser, Dennis Jackson, and supervisor is Mrs. Mary Lou Goode. The first step in their plans for raising funds for Westview, will be the raffle of a box of groceries. Don't forget to buy a ticket for this worthy cause.

There will be fun for all Monday, October 13, at 7:30 p. m., which is family Church Sports Night at Foshay Junior High school (37th at Western ave.) Ruth L. Redd, social field worker of the Los Angeles Youth Project and Church Welfare Bureau, states movies featuring sports activities. This will be one of the main events of the evening. Parents are requested to come and bring their children and represent their community and church on this evening of evenings.

Sunday night, members of P.F. were entertained with an evening of recreation at the home of Geraldine Barnum on Gramercy place. Having a good time were, Jackie Lewis, Arthur Lewis, Clayton Moore, Horace Griffin, Jane Johnson, and all the ole P.F. gang.

We're glad to see that Robert Thompson has been released from the AAF and is back in good ole L.A. to begin where he left off. He is planning on entering LACC in the Spring semester. We're glad to have you home again Robert.

Well, it's time to say goodbye until next week, when I will again return to let you know WHAT'S HAPPENIN'.

Enrollment Increase Noted in Low Grades At Hooper Ave. Schl.

Clarence L. Axtell, principal of Hooper avenue school, reports an enrollment this year of 862 pupils which is an increase of 33 over last year's enrollment. The increase has been in the lower grades which has necessitated the adding of a first grade teacher making a faculty of 25 teachers. Eight new teachers have been assigned to take the place of teachers who have resigned or have been transferred to other schools nearer to their homes.

Our P.T.A. is observing October 6-11 as membership week, which is being held throughout Los Angeles city schools. The Hooper P.T.A. is under the capable leadership of Myrthene Foreman, president, and Mrs. Margaret Dickerson, membership chairman. Last year's membership was 454 and a goal of 600 has been set for this year.

The first Paper Drive of the year will be held on October 15. Parents are being asked to save their papers for this date.

In line with the theme "School Today the American Way" which has been adopted by the entire school system as its slogan for the current year, Hooper avenue school will emphasize through learning, vigorous work and faithful service.

Former UCLA Circle Players Open Season With Saroyan Play

In the summer of 1945, a group of University of California at Los Angeles drama students with high ideals and great hopes, but with little mnoey, banded together to help alleviate the lack of good theatre in Los Angeles. With youthful enthusiasm and fiery zest, they presented to Los Angeles audiences the West Coast premieres of Thornton Wilder's "Skin of Our Teeth" and Clifford Odets' "Awake and Sing." Audiences enjoyed the energy and vitality that went into the shows and were amazed at the realism created.

Today the organization, known as the Circle Players, has grown in public favor and support and will present William Saroyan's newest play, "Sam Ego's House" or "Angels Aghast" to be premiered at the Circle Theatre in mid-October. Saroyan gave his newest and most provocative script to the Circle Players as a result of their production of his play, "The Time of Your Life."

Many people have questioned the enthusiasm and unceasing devotion to the theatre in an apathetic theatre town, but the Circle Players feel that Los Angeles, as a growing city, must grow culturally and their theatre can contribute some good to the metropolis.

Jefferson Alumni Assn. Designates November 21 As Homecoming Day

The first general meeting of the Jefferson High school Alumni Association was held this week at the school. The program, policy, and plans of the organization were carefully outlined by Dr. Paul Fisher, principal of Jefferson, Mr. Cosgrive, Albert Jones, president of the association, and other members of the group.

In an address before the Alumni Dr. Fisher expressed hope of building a sound organization with good, strong leadership and small active committees who will work on well organized programs. With renewed vigor and enthusiasm the former graduates showed tremendous concern for the plans being mapped out for the Homecoming Week of Jefferson High school.

The main event of Homecoming Week on Friday, November 21, will be the football game to be played by both A and B teams. Preceeding the game the Alumni of Jefferson will probably gather the night before for a gigantic Pep Rally. On Friday night the Association has planned a Homecoming dance for the victorious team.

The overall chairman for Homecoming week is Oscar Little. Working with him will be David Butler Jr., who is chairman of the Pep Rally; Mattie Wiley, chairman of the Homecoming dance; and Samuel McGruder, game chairman. Albert Jones, Oscar Little, and Mr. Cosgrove invite the participation of former graduates who can serve on any of the Homecoming committees.

PROMINENT VISITOR

Prominent among the group was the Honorable Augustus Hawkins, assemblyman from the 62nd district, who was a graduate from Jefferson High in the class of '26. When introduced to the group he said, "I'm glad to see an organization of this kind get underway. It seems to me that it can be a very important link between the students of Jefferson High and the community at large."

The officers of the organization are Albert Jones, president; Oscar Little, vice-president; Blanche Wiley Jones and Iona Brown Armstrong, co-chairmen of the membership committee.

'Never Let Desire for New Truth Grow Dull,' Fisk Prexy Tells Student Body

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—"Remember that the first approach to knowledge is knowledge of yourself, and that to understand something is to cease to be afraid of it," was the advice given by Dr. Charles S. Johnson, president of Fisk university, to the student body of the 81st Convocation Program in the chapel on the opening day of school.

Dr. Davis submitted a number of questions to the assembly, among the most challenging was: "Shouldn't we continue to fight for greater opportunities, but at the same time fight to take fuller advantage of those opportunities now open?"

In his speech Dr. Johnson outlined the responsibilities of the college to the students and their responsibilities toward the college. He explained that the special function of college in relation to the educational process of life should be to help the young person understand and exercise intelligent control over the rest of the process.

To provide its students with the tools to make themselves effective both in solving their own problems of living and in serving the society of which they are a part, is the goal of Fisk university, the eminent sociologist pointed out.

In speaking of the students' responsibility, Dr. Johnson urged each one, "Never let your desire for new truth grow dull." In conclusion he added, "You should form an intelligent conception of the highest interests of the society of which you are a part, and should learn to make intelligent use of the techniques by which those interests can be served.

"This means the techniques of good citizenship . . . of vocational excellence in any useful pursuit, and of an unflagging determination to make equal opportunity for everyone a living reality."

Famous French Films To Be Shown and Discussed Under Joint Educational Auspices

A series of eight famous French films begins Monday, October 20, at the Hollywood Masonic Temple, under the joint auspices of American Gallery Films and the Peoples Educational Center. These films survey 50 years of development of the motion picture industry in France.

Titles include: Rien Que Les Heures; A Nous La Liberte; La Maternelle; The Lower Depths; Generals Without Buttons; L'Atalante and Marie-Louise. There will be short subjects on every program. In addition, discussions will be held at each session, explaining the origin of the particular film, its place in the historical development of the cinema and the contributions each made in its way to motion pictures.

Discussion leader is Harold Salemson, who has been correspondent for a number of French newspapers and film magazines for a period of ten years. Further information about the series may be obtained by writing or phoning the People's Educational Center.

3 UCLA Girls Called On to Spark Unity Week Observance

When Mayor Fletcher Bowron proclaimed this Civic Unity week three UCLA girls were invited to help put the program over. The students recently returned from a nationwide tour in the interests of racial and religious understanding. Representing three racial groups, they made up the Panel of Americans of the University Religious Conference on their journey.

Because Americans are seriously threatened with discrimination due to race, religion or national origin and the Los Angeles metropolitan area is one of the best testing grounds, the mayor called on the public to join with the Los Angeles Council for Civic Unity in a rededication to the principles of American democracy of equality.

THE REALM OF RELIGION

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. IKE EVANS, D.D.

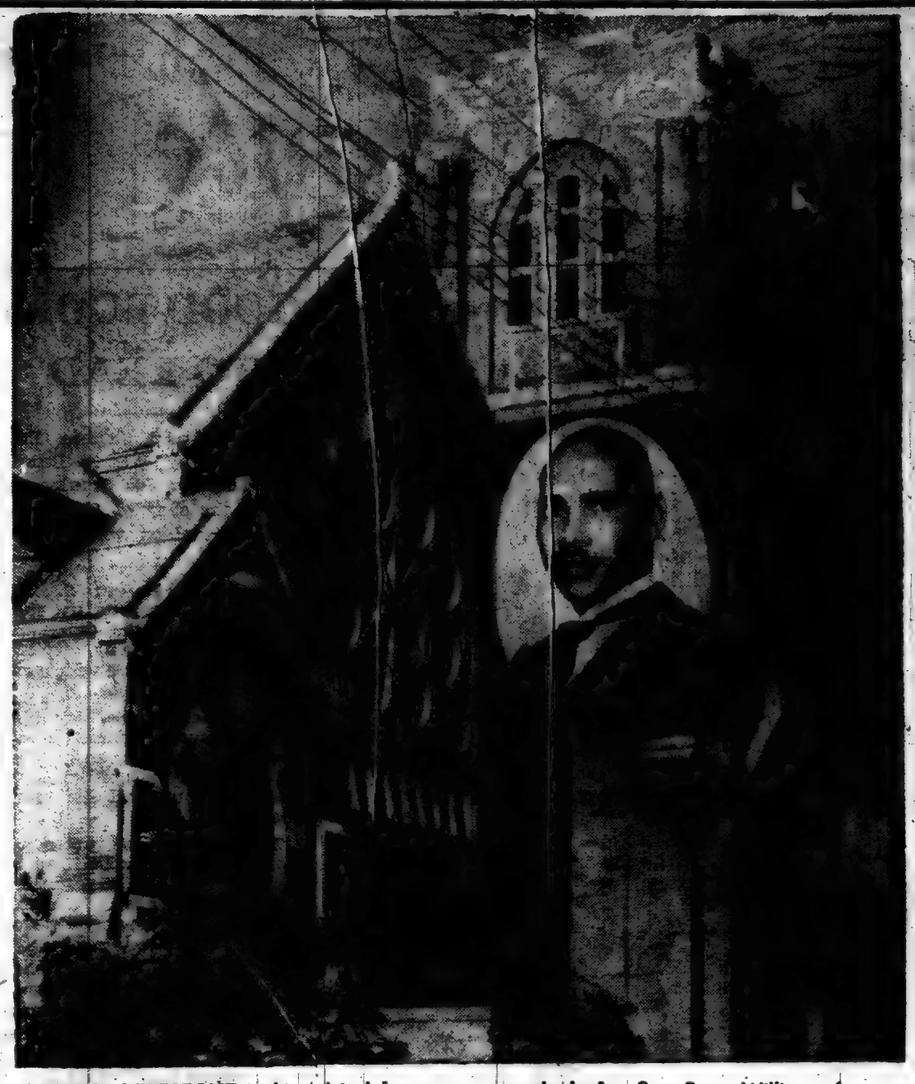
ubject: Christ The Minister Better Things, Lesson Text Outline: Hebrews 4:14-16; -27; 9:24-28; 10:11-14. Motto t Hebrews 7:25.

Introduction

hrist is presented in eight pters of Hebrews as the min- of better things: Son of who offers eternal rest to e who believe boldly to the ne of grace, the Saviour who tes everybody to come, the h priest who is the author of nal salvation unto all them obey him, the prophet of ope we have as an anchor he soul, the intercessor who liveth to make intercession all that come unto God by the mediator of a better enant than graciously given ormer days, the antitype who red himself without spot to and was once offered to the sins of many. Christ Lord who after he had of- one sacrifice for sins for , sat down on the right hand God and who shall judge his ple.

Comments

Christ is a great high priest, h greater than Aaron, or any he priests of his order. The priests under the law were unted great and venerable ons, but they were but faint es and shadows of Christ. The tness of our high priest is forth, first, by his having ed into the heavens. The priest under the law, once ear, went out of the people's t within the veil, into the est of all, where were the ed signals of the presence God; but Christ once for all sed into the heavens, to take government of all upon him, end the Spirit to prepare e for his people, and to e intercession for them.



Our cases, as sinners, need- a high priest to make satis- ion and intercession for us. priest could be suitable or ficient for our reconciliation God but one who was per- ly righteous in his own per- ; he must be righteous in self, or he could not be a pitiation for our sin, or our cate with the Father. The Lord Jesus was exactly such a high priest as wanted, for he has a personal holiness, absolutely perfect.

3. Christ's sacrifice, though offered upon earth, was by himself carried up into heaven, and is there presented in a way of daily intercession; for he appears in the presence of God for us. He has gone to heaven, not only to enjoy the rest and receive the honor due him, but to appear in the presence of God for us, to present our persons and our performances, to answer and rebuke our adversary and accuser, to secure our interest, to perfect all our affairs, and to prepare a place for us.

4. Christ came to do the will of God in two instances. First, in taking away the first priesthood, which God had no pleasure in; not only taking away the curse of the covenant of works, and canceling the sentence denounced against us as sinners, but taking away the insufficient typical priesthood, and blotting out the handwriting of ceremonial ordinances and nailing it to his cross. Christ has delivered and will perfectly deliver those that are brought over to him, from all the guilt, power, and punishment of sin, and will put them into the sure possession of perfect holiness and felicity. This is what the Levitical priesthood could never do; and, if we indeed are aiming at a perfect state, we must receive the Lord Jesus as the only high priest that can bring us to that state. Christ is assured, this he is expecting, and his people should rejoice in the enemies shall be subdued, their enemies, that are so for his sake, shall be subdued also.

Comment on Motto Text

There can be no vacancy in this priesthood, no hour nor moment in which the people are without a priest to negotiate their spiritual concerns in heaven. Such a vacancy might be very dangerous and prejudicial to them; but this is their safety and happiness, that this ever-living high priest is able to save to the utmost, in all times, in all cases, in every juncture, all who come to God by him.

ANOTHER MILESTONE in his ministerial career was marked when Rev. Percy Williams, formerly of Los Angeles, went to pastor the historic First Baptist Church of Chattanooga, Tennessee. This Sunday the members, officers, and friends of the church will celebrate 81 years of its existence.

Rev. J. R. Henderson Returns From N.Y. For Homecoming Service

A grand affair is promised when Women's Day will be observed Sunday, October 26. The membership is urged to keep this date in mind.

Young Alfred Luke Receives Honorary Mention as Pastor

Alfred T. Luke, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Luke of 1805 East Imperial Highway, preached his second trial sermon at the Belmont Baptist church, Rev. J. D. Gordon, pastor. Those present were not surprised at the profound delivery of Alfred Luke.

The pastor, Rev. Gordon, described him as being an unusually brilliant young man and a devout Christian, worthy of ordination. The Uturpian club were partially responsible in making this one of the most outstanding events of the season. Harolette Garrison is their president.

Most of the musicians that compose the Uturpian club have been the recipients of scholarship awards. Mr. D. Valentine pleased the audience with his vocal selections while J. W. Sanford acted as master of ceremonies. Climaxing the occasion was the presentation of a license by the pastor to Alfred Luke to act in ministerial capacity.

A love offering was taken by the club and presented to young Luke, who returned to the University of California at Berkeley to complete his major in philosophy.

'Must Fight Race Hate,' Georgia Pastor Declares

Rev. Joseph A. Rubin, pastor of the race-baiting Gene Talmadge, in Georgia, openly declared from his pulpit recenty, "We must fight race hate with all our power."

The state of Georgia is actually taking the lead in the fight in the South against racial bigotry, declares John H. Marion, director of the Christian Relations Committee in an article in the October Negro Digest.

"Rubin's fiery challenge to his fellow Baptists has since been echoed from scores of white clergymen below the Mason-Dixon line," Marion continues. "Even the Ku Klux Klan has felt the impact of this fight."

The recently vetoed white primary bill in Georgia by Governor Melvin Thompson is another triumph for liberalism. But the most hopeful sign, according to Mr. Marion, is the fact that so many white laymen are entering the fight for better racial understanding and co-operation in the South.

There is only one real failure in life that is possible, and that is, not to be true to the best one knows.—Farrar.

World-Wide Christian Assembly Attended by Dr. J. J. Seabrook

ORANGEBURG, S. C.—A signal nor was given Dr. J. J. Seaok when he received an invion to be one of the few 500 egates attending the Seventh menical Methodist Confere, a world-wide Christian assembly which convened in ingfield, Massachusetts, Sepber 24 through October 2.

Representatives from five conents, three independent Negro thodist denominations, the thodist churches of Great tain, of Brazil and Mexico, of rope and the Philippine Isds, The Free, Primitive and eleyan Methodist church as ll as the United church of nada were included in this ique fellowship.

More than 50 formal addresses were given during the nine-day conference by the world's foremost Methodist church historians, theologians and sociologists, in addition to numerous services of worship and afternoon discussion groups. Meetings were held in the magnificent edifice of Trinity Methodist church and in the Municipal Auditorium.

The Methodist Ecumenical Conference was concerned with the complex problems now forced upon the attention of the world-wide Church of Christ, and made earnest commitments for sharing with all other branches of the Church of Christ the task of bringing the Christian gospel throughout the world.

Friendship Sun. at Lincoln Memorial for Newcomers Of Church-Community Life

Lincoln Memorial will observe Friendship Sunday October 12 at the 11 a. m. service. All members of Lincoln Memorial were given cards last Sunday by the deacon board to mail a special invitation to all friends of the church.

In this observance attention will be called to the need for some definite way by the churches to extend welcome to the many new citizens. The moral and spiritual conditions of our community could be greatly improved as new members are taken into the churches, not simply by increasing the number of members or the collection but by making a newcomer know that churches want to be their friends and help them find a place in our whole community life. This will be the theme of the pastor for Friendship Sunday. A big pot luck dinner will be served by the members at the close of the service.

Last Sunday was Homecoming Day. Thomas Mitchell, chairman of the deacon board, spoke on the history of "Congregationalism." It was a very able address describing the fact that church membership was a requirement for political and social workers of the community in the New England states, thereby putting a big premium on moral character.

Weldena Heflin spoke on "Youth in the Church." She described how youth of Pilgrim Fellowship not only sought the social activities of the church but look for a deepening of religious experience and the giving of Christian service to the local community and the world needs.

Rev. Pettigrew, the founder of the church in 1912, described the fine development of the Negro community in the fact of economic and racial hardships because of the importance the church held in the life of the community. Lincoln Memorial is striving for a sincere evangelism to the community.

Gilbert Allen Adds To Wings Over Jordan A Rich Background Of Musical Experience

When Rev. Glynn T. Settle, originator and director of the Wings Over Jordan Choir, recently uttered the significant statement, "God and Glynn T. Settle still run Wings Over Jordan," perhaps little importance was attached, by many, to his words. This statement was made in answer to questions regarding the present status of the Columbia Broadcasting System's great feature choir and is currently backed up by the finest singing organization in the career of Wings Over Jordan.

One needs only to travel with this vibrant new organization, composed of the highest type young Negro manhood and womanhood, to sense the greatness of their abilities. Within the last five weeks, this inspired aggregation of Christian youth has moved one audience after another with a vitality and sincerity greater than any evident in the past to followers of Wings Over Jordan during its ten year history.

Gilbert Allen, conductor of Wings Over Jordan, adds to the organization the most excellent background of musical training and experience ever possessed by any individual in the choir. A graduate of the University of California at Los Angeles, he studied at Julliard School of Music and was most recently a member of the faculty of Samuel Houston college. He conducted the choir of Samuel Houston college during its tour of Mexico as guests of the Mexican government. This concert tour was the first accomplishment of its kind for any Negro organization. He has also appeared with his own choirs on commercial radio programs and with several symphony orchestras, including the Los Angeles Philharmonic Symphony orchestra.

B'way Federal Savings Hits Half Million Mark; President Cites Unselfish Aid of Press

At the monthly board of directors' meeting, H. A. Howard, president and general manager of the Broadway Federal Savings and Loan Association, reported that this institution has reached assets of over half million dollars.

Howard's report showed assets totaled $528,966.69; cash on hand and in the bank amounted to $82,789.46; first mortgages had a cash value of $429,476.94. It further revealed that loans have been made in districts, such as Beverly Hills, Wilshire, Southeast, Southwest, Watts, Inglewood, and Boyle Heights. This comprises a large segment of metropolitan Los Angeles.

"The phenominal growth of this association is astonishing," said Howard, "and the various newspapers are to be congratulated for their efforts accorded us."

"More specifically," continued Howard, "I want to express on behalf of the Board of Directors our deep appreciation to the California EAGLE, Los Angeles Tribune, Los Angeles Sentinel, Pittsburg Courier, and Neighborhood News for showing their tremendous interest by allowing us free space to acquaint the public with what the Broadway Federal Savings and Loan Association means to the community.

"Meanwhile, the public has been very cooperative to help make this institution what it is today. It is my feeling that the majority of people realize that this institution has come at an opportune time, because home ownership develops stability, pride, and unity in well-rounded citizens.

"Such spirit as herein described is encouraging evidence of progress and future public welfare."

State-wide Public Hearing on Hospital Facilities Called for October 23 in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO—Representatives of communities throughout California today were invited to attend a public hearing Thursday, October 23, to present their suggestions on a plan for statewide expansion of public and other non-profit hospital facilities. The meeting will be held in the San Francisco Department auditorium, 101 Grove street, at 1:30 p.m.

Almost two years in preparation, the hospital plan has been developed by the State Department of Public Health and the Governor's Advisory Council on Hospital Facilities, with the cooperation of local hospital, medical and community representatives.

Its acceptance by the U.S. Public Health Service will make nearly $2,000,000 in federal funds available to localities for hospital construction this fiscal year.

California has already appropriated a "matching" fund, earmarked for tax-supported institutions. The total $4,000,000 will be allocated among various localities by the State Department of Public Health.

Dr. Wilton L. Halverson, state director of public health, said the funds available this fiscal year "can only scratch the surface of actual requirements."

"Our two year survey indicates this state needs a 58,000 bed increase in hospitals of specific types, properly equipped and located in strategic areas, so that adequate hospital facilities will be available to all the people anywhere in California," said Dr. Halverson.

Announces Plans for Observance Of Booker T. Memorial Week

ROCKY MOUNT, Virginia — S. J. Phillips, president of the Booker T. Washington Birthplace Memorial, Rocky Mount, Virginia, announced yesterday that plans have been completed for the observance of the Second Annual Booker T. Washington Week November 9 to 15.

Phillips announced at the same time that he had been advised by J. S. Walden, first vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, Virginia, that the Booker T. Washington Memorial half dollar will be made available to all members banks and trust companies throughout the country.

This cooperation on the part of the Federal Reserve Banking System will make it easier for organizations working with the Booker T. Washington Birthplace Memorial on a premium sharing or Scholarship Fund Plan, said Phillips. Under this plan organizations helping in the distribution of the memorial coins are permitted to keep for educational or uplift purposes 20 cents on each half dollar sold by them.

Non-Profit Clinic Brings Medical Care Within Reach of All Groups

There would probably be a long line in front of 5501 S. Broadway if more Eastside citizens knew that within those premises they could get the finest medical attention at an amazingly low cost.

Located at that address is the Community Medical Center staffed by a group of 20 specialists, all leaders in their fields, who believe that extravagant medical fees must not interfere with the good health of the people. The Center is interracial, both in staff and in patients.

There is no longer any question that the quality of group medicine is superior to that practiced by almost any single practitioner regardless of his training. Medicine and surgery have so developed during the past several decades that it requires a large number of specialists to master its many ramifications. Only group medicine as practiced at the CMC can meet that problem with minimum expense to the patient.

Group medicine solves another problem, too: it eliminates the necessity of physicians duplicating expensive equipment and personnel, thus reduces substantially the cost to the patient.

CMC is not a charity institution. It has a fee for clinical service, but that fee is held within the reach of lower income groups.

CMC is a non-profit organization. It was organized by a group of socially minded physicians and laymen. Money to start the project was raised by loans from many of the physicians on the staff and from several interested laymen. It was opened to the public Nov. 11, 1946.

The Center has a well-equipped laboratory and X-ray room, a minor surgery and eye room and a psychiatric conference room, among many facilities.

Dr. A. M. Riskin, clinical director, and the staff of the Center have outlined a program not only for the treatment and cure of diseases, but even more important, disease prevention. Stressing the point that good health need not be expensive to the people, Dr. Riskin says, "It is cheaper for a person to prevent the breakdown of his health than it would be for him to be cured, even at the Community Medical Center."

There are no long waits at the CMC. Patients are given appointments and taken care of at the appointed time. This is made possible by the large staff of doctors, two on full time, the others on part time duty.

Ann Petry Featured In Special Issue Of Opportunity Magazine

What happens to race relations when a Negro and a white woman, both dead and buried in 1902, emerge from an exclusive Boston graveyard 45 years later?

Ann Petry, celebrated writer whose first novel, The Street, a best seller, continues to merit wide discussion, gives an unusual answer to this question in a short story, The Bones of Louella Brown, appearing in the 25th anniversary issue of Opportunity just off the press. This magazine is the official publication of the National Urban League, 1133 Broadway, New York 10, N. Y.

The Bones of Louella Brown is one of the most singular pieces of creative writing to come to Opportunity's attention, for a long time, the editors state. The completely unexpected twist which Miss Petry gives her story adds to the suspense; and tension is broken with an ending which catches the reader unaware. The Bones of Louella Brown adds a welcomed comical note to the otherwise serious business of the work to wipe out racial prejudices.

To produce this story for the anniversary issue of Opportunity, Miss Petry took time out from work on her latest novel, Country Place, which has just been published by Houghton Mifflin.

Alberta Thomas, well-known Seattle, Wash., writer, shares honors with Ann Petry with a compelling true story, Gold Is Where You Find It.

14 Prominent Medics Purchase Blocs of Stock in Carver Life

Fourteen prominent Southern California medical men this week had purchased large blocs of stock in the Carver National Life Insurance Company as that company pushed its drive to get into operation by June 30, 1948. Dr. Daniel A. Collins of San Francisco is in charge of stock sales to professional men and women.

Those purchasing stock this week were Dr. Carlton Goodlet, San Francisco; Dr. Herman J. Lewis, DDS; Dr. F. E. Younge, M.D.; Dr. LeGrande Coleman, M.D.; Dr. D. A. Buckingham, M.D.; Dr. Balfour Bovelle, M.D.; Dr. Elwood Johnson, DDS.; Dr. C. C. Rhodes, chiropractor of Oakland; Dr. Wm. E. Pittman, DDS.; Dr. Pearl Williams, M.D.; Dr. Bryon Rumford, phar. of Berkeley; Dr. Claude Hudson, Dr. Charles Ennis, DDS.; of Los Angeles; Dr. R. N. DIAMOND UP, GRID DOWN

It seems as though no sooner than baseball makes its bowing exit after an exciting season ended by the World Series than stadiums throughout the country erase the diamonds and lay out the gridiron. Wrigley Field, Saturday, will pack in the pigskin fans to watch East Los Angeles Jr. college and its gridiron machine play host to the tiny El Centro Jr. college for the first ELA home game.

TAPOR NEVADA BOUND

Al Tapor, the boy who had been getting pushed around out at U.C.L.A., is now at the University of Nevada. The story goes—as I am told—that Tapor, a former star quraterback at Tuskegee Institute, came to Los Angeles to play football for the Bruins, but was been pushed around and not given the deserved opportunity to show his ability. Results were that Tapor packed bags to play for U .of N. Tapor should easily get a first string backfield position with the U. of N.

TWO BALL

51,123 witnessed the Cards carve the Bears 31-7, Sunday, in Chicago at Comiskey Park. This adds up to two wins for the Cards, they having walloped the Detroit Lions, 45-21, last week on the same grid. This means that the Cards stature will increase while Bears will have to really hussle not to be left behind in the pro windup.

The Los Angeles Dons lost to the Buffalo Bills the same day when Georgie Ratterman shows his tissing ability and displays a bit of brain work. In the last quarter with a lead of 27-21, Ratterman took two safeties against him for a total of four points in favor of the Dons in order to waste time and in doing so break up a Don threat of another T.D. and victory.

The L.A. Rams were clipped by the Green Bay Packers for a 7 to 14 loss. Boy Waterfield, Ram sensational quarterback, tried everything in the books to engineer his team to another badly needed T.D. in the final quarter but failed. Waterfield's attempt to tie the game up by a field goal fell a few inches short.

MAX SCHMELING TRIES COMEBACK

In Frankfurt, Germany, 42 year old Max Schmeling, an erstwhile holder of the world's heavyweight championship who distinguished himself as the only fighter to KO Joe Louis, tried successfully this week to hit the comeback trail. With 26 year old Werner Vellmer as opponent, Schmeling shrewdly picked him off in the seventh round of a scheduled ten round bout. Though weary and at times showing his age, Schmeling handled himself well, hitting hard and proving himself still a crafty boxer before a strangely quiet crowd of 30,000. I am also told that Schmeling, jubilant over the outcome of his first fight since 1939, predicted coming to the U. S. soon.

GOLFER IN THE MAKING

Clayton Moore, local student playground director, majoring in physical education at UCLA, scored his first big hole in one recently at the Rio Hondo Golf Course and has been improving at the game rapidly and well. The sensational shot was made from the 130 yard par 3 second hole. Moore should make the UCLA spring golf team this coming season.

POLYTECHNIC

It looks like another lean winter for the already thin Poly Parott. Things just don't point toward a consistently winning team over on the Washington street campus. True the Mechanics have a new coach in "Tex" Chasson, but if he can mend the losing ways of the Parotts, who haven't had a anywhere good team since Bobby Cantrell, Fred Watkins, and Earl Patterson led the '41 team to the Silk Bowl, Coach Chasson should apply for a job with the Ringling Brothers Circus as head yogi.

Don't get fooled though and believe the Poly boys will be pushed around by anybody's team. They have a fighting team with plenty of "guts" but lacking depth and experience. In Joe Delgardo, Wilbur Webb, and Wendell Grear, they have a good trio of backs as you could find anywhere.

In "Joltin' Joe" Delgardo, a husky lad up from last year's B team, they have the finest running back to appear upon the Poly campus since "jet propelled" Jim Burton took off his blue and gold jersey for the last time at the end of the '45 season. Other boys to keep your eyes on are Thomas Irvine at fullback and Mervin Beasly at right end.

Up front where football games are won and lost, the Mechanics are very weak, probably the weakest in their league. In the recent scrimmage with Fremont, the Poly forward wall looked like sun worshippers they were on their backs so much.

Yet, it's a sad year ahead for PHS rooters. With a strong, fast, hard driving backfield and no line to speak of, Poly can do no better than a possible third, or lower, in the always weak Northern League.

On The Turf

As I See It . . .
—Geo. A. Ramsey

CALIENTE, Old Mexico—Youth gave way to two veterans of the turf last Sunday at the world's greatest Sunday race course when Bonnie Sea, the 12 year old son of Messenger-Bonnie May, scored a handy victory in the mile and five eighths marathon. Made favorite by the public, the veteran Bonnie Sea rated off the early pace move up after the first mile passed his opposition to win going away. The winner paid $4.40.

In the feature attraction another ten year old came through with a winning effort. It was Soup and Fish, who had won four straight races at the border course. The race was at one mile. Foot Loose broke in the lead and held his position to the head of the stretch where F. Rodriguez called on the 10 year old son of Saxon-Gladrags, who won under wraps to pay in the mutuels $4.80.

A rare feat was established by owner-trainer Judelcampo when he put over a triple—Broad Grin in the second, Hi-Willow in the third and Soup and Fish in the tenth. The Daily-Double of Broad Grin and Hi-Willow paid $37.20. Four longshots brought joy to the hunch players. Stubby Martin in the first paid $14.00; Hi-Willow $16.40, Alelad $18.40 and Tank Club $16.80.

While the form players had five winning choices, the nitecap called the Quiniela paid one of the largest prices in many

28th St. YMCA Plans Gala Basketball Season

For the first time since the war, the 28th street YMCA will field a varsity basketball team. This team will be entered in the Southern California "Y" League and also will play independent teams in and around Los Angeles. All basketball players interested are being interviewed by C. V. Horne, director at the "Y."

For the second year in succession, the Physical Department is sponsoring a basketball league. It is the plan at this writing, that the league will start on October 27. Managers interested in entering their teams in this league should see the director of Physical Education at once so that they will be assured of their teams being properly entered as only a limited number of teams may enter. Many of the players who were in the league last year are already getting ready for the opening whistle of this year's league.

Bob Feller'S All-Stars Set For K.C. Royals October 15

Bob Feller and his world series and major league all-stars will arrive in Los Angeles Oct. 8 for their series with the Kansas City Royals. Ralph Kiner, National league home run king, along with Johnny Mize, having hit 51 round trippers, during the season will be in left field. At press time the exact lineup is not known but several stars on the Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers have signed to make the trip.

JESSE WILLIAMS

The Kansas City Royals arrived last Friday, played in Long Beach Saturday and moved into San Diego the next day to tune up for their engagement with Feller's crew at Wrigley field on Wednesday night, Oct. 15.

King Tut, one of the funniest men in baseball and a partner of Goose Tatum, loose-jointed first baseman, joined the team en route as did Jesse Williams, star infielder with the Kansas City Monarchs. Othello Renfro, who cavorted here several seasons back, also returned. The Royals will be strengthened by the addition of Dan Bankhead, who will fly to the coast at the conclusion of the world series.

The two teams will meet on Wednesday night, Oct. 15, and conclude the series with a doubleheader Sunday afternoon, Oct. 19. All games will be played at Wrigley field, 42nd Place and Avalon boulevard.

Olivera Fights Jackson Friday

Two outstanding club-fighting crowd pleasers, Bobby Jackson of Los Angeles and Tony Olivera of San Francisco, headline Charley MacDonald's 10-round main event Friday night at Hollywood Legion Stadium.

The two will fight as featherweights.

Olivera is the former State bantamweight champ. His record shows a win over Manuel Ortiz before the El Centro Mexican became world's champion.

Jackson is best remembered for his two stirring battles Fabela Chavez. In these he lost and got a draw.

Turk Thompson Defeats Godoy

Turkey Thompson, 216, moved another notch nearer the top of the heavyweight ladder when he scored a unanimous 10-round decision over Arturo Godoy, 198½, the clutching man from Chile, who did little but attempt to stay the full ten heats last Tuesday night.

Thompson, in great condition, battered Godoy from pillar to post whenever he got an opening, which was seldom. The visitor showed a remarkable knowledge of wrestling holds and used all of them on the Turk. However, the decision was unanimous in the local boy's favor.

Harrison Dillard To Represent U.S. In '48 Olympics

CLEVELAND, Ohio—Harrison Dillard, ace Negro hurdler, will represent the United States in the 1948 Olympics, and by doing so will be following closely in the footsteps of Jesse Owens, the original "Buckeye Bullet."

An article in The Negro Digest, October, compares the two trackmen. Both come from Cleveland, both are from the Eastside, both attended the East Tech High, and both are as fast as lightning. Owens actually helped Dillard to his start by giving him a pair of spiked track shoes and encouraging him in his efforts.

Jackie Robinson Plays Fine Ball During All 7 Games

(Special to the California EAGLE)

NEW YORK—Well, the zaniest world series ever played marched into history last Monday with the New York Yankees shading the Brooklyn Dodgers four games out of seven with the ultimate result decided in the last game when each team took to the field with 3 games won apiece. The Yankees world champs again for the eleventh time took the finale, 5-2.

The Yankees victory was a double bitter pill for those gorgeous Bums to take. First the boys had dreams of becoming world champion and then again the victors split a cool sum of $70,000.

Jackie Robinson, Dodger first baseman, acquitted himself well both on the bag and as a batsman. Jackie scored three times, got 7 hits, two of them doubles and stole two bags. Pitcher Bankhead, Brooklyn's other Sepian, got into the game by being sent in to run for Bragan in the sixth inning of the sixth game. He scored a run.

Jackie participated in six Brooklyn double plays. The personable Robinson is now on a theatre circuit tour which will eventually bring him to his home town Los Angeles in November.

A new record for a world series in attendance and box-office receipts was set in this hard-fought series. 389,763 fans saw the seven games and with radio and television rights the sum total was $2,021,348, the first two million dollar series.

Trigo Snatches Technical Nod

Mario Trigo, 133, received a technical decision over Chuey Figueroa, 135, after 50s. of fighting in the fourth round of the scheduled 10-round main event at Hollywood Legion stadium last Friday night. In the aforesaid round Figueroa suffered a deep cut above the ridge of his nose and Referee Johnny Indrisan raised Trigo's arm in token of victory. Trigo was ahead on points at the sudden finish.

Richard Jones, 140, and Fr[illegible]y Garcia, 144, stole the show by staging a terrific battle in the 6-round semi-windup. The bout was called a draw.

Trojans Play Ohio At Columbus Sat.

Rivalry with the Big Nine Conference, represented once again by Ohio State, is renewed by the University of Southern California football team this week when the Trojans take on the Buckeyes at Columbus, Saturday.

Coach Jeff Cravath will take a squad of about 44 players on the midwestern junket, entraining from Los Angeles on a special streamliner of the Southern Pacific on Wednesday. Two stopovers for workout will be made—probably at El Paso and St. Louis.

The Trojans, blanked last year by the Bucks, 21-0, hope to win their first game from a Big Nine team, since 1940. Despite this losing streak, S.C. still holds a 6-4 margin over Western Conference foes.

S.C. defeated Iowa back in 1925, won from Illinois in 1936, 1939 and 1940, and also defeated Ohio State in 1937 and 1938. Illinois won from S.C. in 1935 and Ohio conquered S.C. in 1941 and 1942 as well as last season.

This is the third trip for S.C. to Columbus. In 1938 the Trojans won by a 14-7 score, with Grenny Lansdell returning a punt for the game-winning touchdown. That S.C. team went on to the Rose Bowl. In 1942, Cravath's first season as head coach, the Trojans managed to score first on a pass from Mickey McCardle to Jack Trout, but then fell before the Ohio onslaught, 28-12.

Midget Car Racing

Thirty-two cars are eligible for the Grand Prix, that number passing the deadline last Thursday night. Distance for the Grand Prix has been set back at the pre-war distance of 150 sizzling laps. The late Roy Russing set the 150-lap record of 39:52.50 back in 1940.

MIXED ORCHESTRA OF 60 PIECES WILL PLAY FOR CANCER BENEFIT

NO FOOLING

By EDDIE BURBRIDGE

THIS IS NEWS—Probably for the first time, due most likely to box-office reaction in the South, MGM has given a role to a Sepian and tacked the title Mrs. onto her name. The actress is JESSIE GRAYSON, who as "Mrs. Higby" in Sinclair Lewis' "Cass Timberlane," portrays SPENCER TRACY'S housekeeper. Co-starred with Tracy is LANA TURNER but Mrs. Grayson's part is excellent. "Cass Timberlane" is the story of a bachelor judge who marries a Minnesota girl from the "wrong side of the tracks." As written by Lewis, "Mrs. Higby" is the judge's intelligent, resourceful housekeeper. According to EBONY (November issue) MGM has screened her exactly as she appears in the book. GEORGE SIDNEY director of the pic, tested 10 women for the part before he found Jessie Grayson. Said Sidney, "We didn't want a Mammy or comedy character. We wanted a normal intelligent character actress." He continued, "I think 6 years ago we would have cast a comedy performer in it. But the war has made us more conscious — more aware that Negro comic and Mammy roles, like Jewish comics and Italian pushcart peddlers, have become unfair, dangerous symbols. So we're changing for the better." . . . In this writers opinion Mrs. Grayson is a fine actress, showing refinement and fitting well into any part that embraces true dignity. A better present day actress could not have been picked for the part of "Mrs. Higby." Jessie Grayson does not depend on facial contortions to put herself over to the public, nor does she explode into loud "he-haw" laughter and shake her stomach in merriment to gain laughs from the feeble-brained. Rather she exudes a charm and understanding of her recent roles that endear her more to the intelligent Negro . . . and the clodhoppers at the intersection, Tom deduced are disappearing fast. Another evidence of Hollywood awakening at long last is in a role given ROBERT DAVIS, a Sepian, who is currently appearing in the RKO flicker, "The Long Night." Davis is cast as a worker and one of HENRY FONDA'S friends in a dignified role. The young actor, a student of the Actors' Lab, recently finished a long run in "The Skin of Our Teeth" at the Coronet and Las Palmas theatres . . . We don't leap to the conclusion that this is a complete turn in the trend of roles for Negroes but we can safely say that it is an encouraging begining and we hope greatly that other studios will follow the trail being pioneered by MGM and RKO . . . LUIS RUSSELL, his orchestra, and vocalist LEE RICHARDSON, currently at the EL CINO Club at Detroit. Russell, a pianist of real ability, has just inked a new song hit titled "I've Been a Fool Again." The flipover is "Gloomy Sunday" and both feature the warbling of Richardson on the vocal . . . Set for an early release by Screen Guild Productions is "Miracle In Harlem" with STEPIN FETCHIT heading the all-star cast. SAVANNAH CHURCHILL does a specialty in the pic . . . JOHNNY HODGES, a great saxman, assembled an orchestra to cut "Jeep's Blues" and "Rendezvous With Rhythm" for Columbia. Johnny collaborated with DUKE ELLINGTON on the two numbers . . . MICHELL AYRES directs the BUDDY CLARK orchestra in doing "Don't You Love Me Anymore" and "The Little Old Mill" on the Columbia label . . . LIONEL HAMPTON, having driven scores of fans swing crazy at the Million Dollar theatre, in a stage show that closed Monday night, is set to head into the middle west on a concert and theatre tour for 14 weeks . . . Advance notices indicate that New York did not like the film "Foxes of Harrow" . . . JACKIE ROBINSON, with energy to burn, now heading his own stage show on a tour of the nation, since the world series is over. He'll hit the Million Dollar theatre here early in November . . . JOHNNY MOORE'S Three Blazers, heading a great stage show at the Lincoln theatre. IRVING ASHBY, a great guitar player from our town, replacement for OSCAR MOORE with the King Cole Trio, is traveling with the threesome learning "the book" from Oscar, who will join Johnny's group. Yours Truly has heard Irving play a recording session with NELLIE LUTCHER and you can believe it when I say he'll fit right in with the KING COLE TRIO. That guy plays a lot of guitar . . . Incidentally Ashby is considered a great technician at the job of guitar playing and is said to have better timing than any other player in L.A. . . . ERSKINE HAWKINS received the "Sinatra" treatment when he played an engagement last Saturday at Seattle. The bobby sockers got to him. Result—one torn shirt . . . ELLA FITZGERALD has engagements lined up at Boston's RKO theatre, Detroit's Paradise, New York's Apollo and Chicago's Regal during the next few weeks . . .

Tickets selling already for SIR LANCELOT'S "Calypso Song and Dance Carnival" at the Philharmonic, Thursday, October 30 . . . DINAH SHORE torches "St. Louis Blues" and "Bill" on a new Columbia wax work . . . We've heard of people getting tired when working at night but they changed our friend TEDDY NICHOLSON from night to day at the post office and it's about to get him . . . JOE LOUIS and SUGAR ROBINSON may get roles in Republic's "Ringside."

News Pics This Week in Theatre

OH, YOU KID—Tim Moore, popular comedian, plays the title role in "Boy! What a Girl," feature length comedy with an all-Sepian cast of 75 from stage, night club, radio and screen.

'IN "THE DARK WOOD"—Ethel Waters, personable actress, gets the role of Octavia, strictly dramatic with no singing, in Tyrone Power's next pic for 20th Century-Fox, titled "The Dark Wood."

HADDA BROOKS, who brought a gorgeous wardrobe from Hollywood to New York, is wowing the bald-headed row with her playing and singing in Gotham.

'The Snake Pit'

The long search for an actor to play Olivia de Havilland's fiance, "Gordon," in the flashback sequences of 20th Century-Fox's "The Snake Pit," ended this week when co-producers Robert Bassler and Anatole Litvak signed Leif Erikson for the important role.

Phil Moore Preps Jazz Symphony

A New and exciting symphonic jazz form will be introduced for the first time in American music history by a 60-piece orchestra composed of leading Negro and white musicians at Phil Moore's "The Symphony of Jazz" concert, Oct. 14 at 8:15 P.M. in the Pasadena Civic Auditorium. The Damon Runyon Cancer Fund will receive the entire proceeds.

PHIL MOORE

Four compositions written especially for the event by the nation's foremost Negro jazz composer, Phil Moore, will be performed by the all-star orchestra, which includes among others: Woody Herman, Calvin Jackson, Johnny Mercer, and Murray McEachren.

Moore has written a trombone concerto for McEachren, former famed Benny Goodman instrumentalist; a piano concerto for Calvin Jackson; and a solo for clarinet and orchestra for Woody Herman. In addition, the 60 piece group will play variations on traditional jazz themes.

The orchestra consists of a full string section plus a harp, a double rhythm section, and 19 brass and reeds. Woody Herman and Moore will share the bandstand, with the latter conducting the premiere of his own compositions.

Moore, who has composed and arranged for many of the country's top singers and orchestras, is presently musical director of a recording company. He formerly composed motion picture scores for MGM, and radio music for the Columbia Broadcasting System. In recent years he has devoted much of his time to realizing his greatest ambition, the formation of a symphonic jazz orchestra that will elevate modern American music to higher levels.

The white and Negro musical team chose the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund to receive the entire proceeds of the concert, because, as their two conductors expressed it, "Cancer knows no race."

Prices are from 90c for students to $2.40, including tax.

Muriel Rahn Believes Stage And Concert Should Combine

Muriel Rahn, who is now on a triumphant concert tour of the country following her thrilling appearance at Carnegie Hall last week as star of the opera, "The Martyr," believes that stage and concertising should be combined.

En route to Los Angeles, where she will be heard in concert October 26, at Philaharmonic auditorium, the sensational young artist stated in an interview today that "the stage develops a personality and keeps it alive for concert."

"A concert is an individual complete show. If a singer is too inhibited, too cold and austere, it detracts from the program. You have to give a concert audience today distinctive personality as well as good music," she declared. "Singers should develop a more dynamic personality for the correct dedication of music, for through personality you can project the story of what you are singing, especially if it is in a foreign language."

Evidently Muriel Rahn practices what she preaches, for Virgil Thompson, leading New York critic, wrote recently that "vocal schooling and good musicianship marked all her work and there were additional graces of a pleasant personality and of easy dramatic projection."

Tickets for the local appearance of the dynamic young singer may be reserved by calling RO. 4286. Delta Sigma Theta sorority sponsors the event.

ANOTHER FIRST—Probably for the first time a Sepian is called "Mrs." in a motion picture and this title was used throughout "Cass of Timberlane" when Mrs. Jessie Grayson (above), was cast in the intelligent role of "Mrs. Higby," Spencer Tracy's housekeeper in the movie. (See column "No Fooling.")

Frederic Rey Is Creator of 'Rhythms of Spain' Costumes

The eye-catching costumes of "Rhythms of Spain," intimate dance revue coming to the Wilshire-Ebell theatre, Los Angeles, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, November 6, 7 and 8, at 8:30 p.m., under Mary Bran's sponsorship, are almost all the creation of Federico Rey, principal dancer of this fascinating cross-section of Spanish dance styles.

A well-known scene and costume designer in this country and in Europe, Federico Rey first made his mark as a theatrical artist in Brussels, when he was only 12. Since then, he has intertwined his twin loves of art and dancing, save for three years during the war when he was a medical corpsman with the U. S. Army.

Encore Club Formed Here

A group of top-flight musicians, actors, entertainers and movie stars have combined to form a corporation to establish a swanky professional club in Los Angeles. The club is to be known as the Encore Club.

According to Curtis C. Taylor, attorney for the group, the West Coast has long been in need of a representative club composed of outstanding actors, musicians and entertainers which would reflect the true artistic and cultural level of our numerous artists. The Encore Club, he said, is especially designed to meet this long felt need.

Among the big names listed as charter members of the new organization are: Lionel Hampton, Willie and Florence Covan, Madeline Green, 'Nias Berry, Mantan Moreland, Dotty Seamon and many others.

Shangri-La Nitery In Formal Opening

Formal opening of the Eastside's newest cosmopolitan night club was announced this week by Archie Bardin, Max Winsberg and Sam Friedman, operators of the Shangri-La Club, 1010 East Slauson Avenue.

The spacious air-conditioned club will feature dining and dancing and three floor-shows nightly. Efforts to bring only top artists to the club has become a policy of the management. Edward Christian and His Seven Gents of Rhythm, who have successfully played local and Hollywood clubs, will dish out the music, sweet and hot.

Making up the personnel are: Edward Christian, piano; Arthur Dennis, alto sax; Allen Durham, trombone, and Clifford McTyer, bass.

A no minimum, no cover charge, policy will be observed and the kitchen will feature fancy Kansas City top sirloin steaks at one dollar. Cocktails mixed with prewar spirits will also be available at popular prices. There is plenty of free parking space in the rear of the club.

As soon as Melvyn Douglas completes his co-staring role with Cary Grant and Myrna Loy in "Mr. Blandings Builds His Dream House," he will step into one of the starring roles in "Mortgage on Life" at RKO Radio.

Esvan Mosby New Down Beat Manager

The controlling owners, Shapiro & Jacobsen, of the Down Beat Nitery, 4201 So. Central ave., are proud to announce this week that they have secured the services of Esvan Mosby, popular ex-dancer, who headed the "Chocolateers," internationally famous dance team, and originated the "peckin," dance craze of several years back.

Mosby, in extensive travels practically around the world with his famous dance act, garnered for himself a wealth of experience, both, in meeting people and making friends. In theatrical circles and otherwise, Esvan is popularly known for his perpetual smile, and his genuinely warm welcome to strangers and friends alike, make him a "natural" for his new post.

Esvan, as he is popularly known by his friends, just recently relinquished the post of assistant manager of the "Last Word Club", so it can be said that the Last Word had him, but the Down Beat got him. The Down Beat owners are so sold on Mosby's ability that they have put him in complete charge. So to all of his friends and strangers, et, al, Esvan wishes you to come down to the Down Beat, where he will see to it that your evening of fun and top-flight entertainment will be greatly enjoyed.

Rinoside Club Will Re-Open

Henry Musin and Sid Fair, coowners of the Ringside club, located on Washington at Western avenue, announced last week that a brand new policy will be invoked when the club re-opens after a thorough remodeling and redecorating. Name attractions will be featured and continuous entertainment will be on tap from 9 p. m. until 2 a. m.

In one of the most liberal gestures ever tendered by a night club owner the management of the Ringside invites the women's clubs of Los Angeles to use their new night spot as a meeting place without charge during the day. In addition each club using the premises will be allowed one day a week in rotation in which to invite a group of veterans using crutches (the club is not equipped to handle wheel chairs) with all food and entertainment absolutely free. Thus many veterans who have been denied the privilege of attending a night club may do so at the expense of the management.

Watch for the announcement of the opening date of the new Ringside club in this paper.

Samuel Houston Dragons Eye Tilt With Southern

AUSTIN, Texas—There is no monkey business in the Sam Huston camp this week as Coach Henry Carroll and his lieutenants plot their moves against the powerful Southern Jaguars in the game here Saturday.

In fact, it's serious business with the Dragons, who are mad. They are tired of losing. They are tired of being booted around by every team in the Southwest Conference. In 1945 they failed to register a single victory in their conference tilts. In 1946 history repeated itself. They did, however, succeed in tying Prairie View and Bishop and in winning over Paul Quinn and Tillotson, non-conference foes.

Last year the Jaguars gave the Dragons a 65-0 shellacking, and 18 lettermen remember that humiliation too well.

Clark Gets New Request to Act On Covenants

NEW YORK—The NAACP this week had joined the American Jewish Congress in asking Atty. Gen. Tom Clark to file briefs amicus curiae (friend of the court) in the two restrictive covenant cases which will be heard before the U. S. supreme court this November. The NAACP request followed on the heels of a similar request by the Jewish Congress.

The first case is McGhee vs. Sipes, which is a writ of certiorari to the supreme court of Michigan, which upheld an injunction enforcing an agreement among white property owners which reads: "This property shall not be used or occupied by any person except those of the Caucasion race."

The second case is Shelly vs. Kraemer, which is a writ of certiorari to the Missouri supreme court to review the affirmance of a restrictive agreement which was interpreted by the court as barring not only occupancy by non-Caucasions, but also ownership of the property by non-Caucasians.

In a letter to the attorney general, Walter White, executive secretary of the NAACP, declared: "The Department of Justice owes . . . minorities a deep responsibility to help the court to understand the issues involved and to arrive at a decision which will not set up in America legalized ghetto life for Negroes, Jews and any other group which may have the temporary disapproval of a dominant majority."

NMU Delegates Acclaim Robeson

NEW YORK—The recent convention of the CIO National Maritime Union saw a significant demonstration of labor-Negro unity when convention delegates stood up and cheered Paul Robeson's call for a fight to preserve American civil liberties. When men like himself and Henry Wallace are stopped from speaking because of "labels," he declared, then "this is not the house I live in."

The reference was to the song by Earl Robinson, which Robeson had sung earlier. An honorary member of the NMU, Robeson said the struggle for freedom today goes beyond the Taft-Hartley Act. He warned that the drive against labor, the Negro people and democratic rights is a counterpart of "what happened in the Spain that I saw."

Robeson sang five songs, then spoke. As an artist, he declared "I am no safer than the Negro boy down in Alabama—no safer than any worker fighting for security. As long as one person can be touched here at home or any place in the world, I can be touched."

Roden Denied Place on Ballot

John R. Roden, progressive and former city councilman, yesterday was eliminated as a possible candidate for state assemblyman from the 56th district.

Superior Judge Frank G. Swain sustained a demurrer to a petition filed by Roden for a writ of mandate to force Secretary of State Frank Jordan to certify his nomination. Jordan asserted that Roden failed to file his affidavit of candidacy before the 5 p.m. deadline on Sept. 30. Roden had filed shortly before midnight.

S. C. Farmer Nets $1000 From 2 Acres Tomatoes

A report on truck farming in Beaufort county, S. C., indicates that many of the colored farmers of the county received excellent returns from their tomatoes this year.

State Extension Supervisor E. N. Williams points out that although the tomato crops of a few farmers did not reach expectations, most of the crops turned out well. For example, he reports that William Simmons received a labor return of $1000 from two acres of tomatoes, while his brother, Robert, received $800 from a similar plot.

Williams says that a good many of the tomatoes were delivered to the Negro cooperative cannery which operated at full capacity all summer. Cannery products are sold in the co-op store.

Over 800 Exhibits at Fair

More than 200 exhibits of tobacco, corn, green vegetables, canned foods, poultry, livestock, baked foods, sewing, and handicraft were displayed by colored farm families at the Mitchellville, Md., community fair last week, reports County Agent James R. Taylor. Prizes went to six families.

Two Negroes on U. S. War Crimes Boards in Japan

WITH THE EIGHTH ARMY IN YOKOHAMA, Japan—Captain Clifford Allen, of 732 East 27th street, Los Angeles, California, recently assumed duties as the first Negro judge of a War Crimes Commission in Japan.

On temporary duty status from his post as commanding officer of headquarters company, first battalion, 24th infantry regiment, at Gifu, Japan, Captain Allen is a former commander of headquarters company, 555th parachute infantry battalion, now at Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

Captain Allen's panel, meeting in the Yokohama Court House, has concluded two trials. The first one involved one Hichiro Tsuhiro who was accused of beating, mistreating and abusing prisoners of war at Hanawa Prison No. 6, at Sendai, Japan. Tsuhiro was found guilty and received 15 years' confinement at hard labor.

In the second case, Takayasu Nisai, accused of inhumane practices at the prisoner of war stockade at Hiroshima, was also found guilty, and received 8 years' confinement at hard labor. All judgments are subject to review by higher authority.

Members of Captain Allen's present board include Colonel Norman P. Groff of Laredo, Texas, president, and Majors John T. Tracey of Waltham, Massachusetts, and Juan Dalipe, of Dingle, Iloilo, Philippine Islands.

Another Negro officer, Captain Francis W. Potter of 5634 Vine street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, has since been appointed to serve as a member of an Eighth Army War Crimes Board. He is permanently assigned as commanding officer of headquarters battery, 933rd anti-aircraft artillery battalion, Yokohama.

Jackie's Wife Comments on Famous Hubby

NEW YORK—Rachael Robinson, wife of the Brooklyn Dodgers' star first baseman, Jackie Robinson, said in an article in the People's Voice this week, that the two baseball seasons have been a great strain on her famous husband.

"Everyone asks me how it feels to be the wife of the first Negro major leaguer of modern times; how I feel about Jackie's playing in this year's World Series," she wrote.

"Frankly, I can't think of any questions more difficult for me to answer. To say I am proud is an understatement and to say I am happy and thrilled does not adequately express my feelings.

"When I think of Jackie's fine record this season and all the nice things that have been said of him, I don't merely think of what it means to us

On The Sidewalk

By C. A. B.

A TRIP to Indio last Sunday was of a triangular experience in that it consisted of three distinct impressions between Los Angeles and Indio to make up the day's experience.

Now I must say "we," because my nephew, Earl Carter, was at the wheel, while I kept my eyes glued on the road watching for curves.

It is needless to say that the natural scenery between Los Angeles and Indio is beautiful, especially the section of the country that claims Palm Springs.

For nearly two hours heavy black clouds and gusts of wind bringing intermittent showers, threatened to mar the journey. But when we approached Palm Springs, as if by mutual understanding in the firmament, the heavy black clouds carrying with them the wind and the rain, receded to the right of the road, while an outburst of golden sunshine with purple blue lining lighted the left, making our silent welcome to Indio perfect.

But here and now is where our story begins.

OUR visit to Indio was not a sight-seeing trip. It was in response to an invitation to speak at a mass meeting at the First A.M.E. church. The meeting was called for 3:30 p.m. We reached Indio at 2 o'clock, hence had about an hour and a half on our hands.

I was interested in what has become a tradition in American life—the Negro settlement. We drove through the center of the city to the outskirts. Observing a group of workmen stading near the curbing, I stopped and asked to be directed to the colored settlement. In a chorus, they answered, "Just keep going in the same direction and in about a mile you will see it (pointing) to the right side of the street."

We drove slowly what we calculated to be a mile. Observing what I took to be the city's dump for old cars and other junk, I again inquired for the colored section.

"Right here," was the answer.

AS I looked on the scene, my thoughts shifted from this my native land to Europe. I know that there are homeless, starving people in all the countries ravaged by Hitler's Fascist hoards in World War II. For these I have sympathy. I realize that even though they have the desire and the will power to produce what they need, their shops and factories have been destroyed and the life has been licked out of their farm lands by the flaming tongues of cannon and bombs. They are left naked to the mercy of their enemies as well as their friends.

The United States is the Big Sister to these helpless nations. When the President of the United States tells us to observe meatless Tuesdays and fowlless Thursdays in order that our brothers and sisters in those other lands may be fed, we gladly obey.

BUT here is my question, to which I invite an answer. What about these human beings who are forced to live and multiply like rats under such conditions as I saw in Indio?

From Los Angeles to Indio there are long stretches of farm land and sunkissed spots where beautiful homes furnish shelter and limitless comfort for curly haired, rosy cheeked American children.

But looming on the other side, scarcely more than a stone's throw from the heart of the city, you find this cluster of shacks, decorated with worn-out parts of automobiles and rubbish. There are no trees, no shrubbery. No running water. The lavatories are after the fashion and design of the early period of our country. They are outhouses set away back in the rear of the shacks, but easily seen and smelled from the street.

If you have any imagination, you surely can complete the picture, for this in reality is a poor description of the Indio colored section where the majority of the 500 Negro people live.

However, as is the case in all American cities, this dump as a home for human beings is accepted complacently, indifferently.

WHY? I ask passionately. Why are these American citizens, some of whose families gave their husbands, their sons, their fathers, in a war supposed to bring about a world where such conditions could not exist—why are they condemned to live in "homes" such as the pet dogs of those other American families whom we saw along the way, would walk away from in disgust?

The gorgeous outburst of sunshine. The beautiful homes and happy children of some Americans. And this. That is the three-fold picture that unfolded itself before us in our trip to Indio last Sunday.

6 Kids Among Victims; Woman Killed in Jump

CHICAGO.—Chicago's slum housing took a fearful toll of human lives this week as ten persons, including six children and four women were killed and more than a dozen others injured in a fire which swept through a crowded four-story tenement in the city's northwest side.

All of the victims were Negroes. Thirteen were hospitalized. Police and fire officials said the blaze appeared to have been of incendiary origin.

Nearly 100 persons were reported to have been in the small four-story building when the blaze broke out under a stairway on the first floor and spread rapidly through the roof. Fire Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan said a charred can that smelled strongly of kerosene was found in the stairwell. He believed the fire had been deliberately started.

Panic gripped the tenants as the flames mounted quickly up the stairs. One woman was killed and four other persons were injured as they plunged out of windows.

Five leaped into the firemen's landing net before a part of it was torn by the impact of a heavy man. A minute later a woman jumped into the torn net and was killed.

Local civic organizations are demanding an all-out investigation of the tragedy to run down the person or persons who set fire to the building.

Victim Started Fight, Police Probers Report

Death struck swiftly amid a group of Saturday night merrymakers outside the Zanzibar cafe, So. San Pedro and E. Vernon, when an alleged trouble-maker was shot and killed by a special peace officer about 12:05 a.m. Leroy Alexander Harston, 35, of 1731½ So. Berendo street, was the victim. He was fatally shot by Special Officer Floyd England, 1196 E. 47th place, of the Paramount Detective Agency, when Officer England said he fired in self defense as the man advanced upon him with a brick in one hand and the officer's club in the other.

According to Detective C. A. Ograin, who with Detective J. L. Dykes both of University Police station, headed the investigation, Harston had been making a nuiance of himself in the cafe by using strong profane language and the proprietor, a man named Silver, had asked him to stop. Harston is then said to have struck Silver in the

Griffith Tells Solons Need of Price Controls

Resumption of some price controls is absolutely necessary, Dr. Philip Neff, Pomona college economist, yesterday told a joint senate-house committee which opened hearings here into Southland high prices.

"Increases in prices have not been offset by increased wages," Neff, who appeared at the first day's hearing armed with a flock of charts, told the committee.

Two housewives added point to the college professor's words with a couple of market baskets filled with food bearing price tags of before and after OPA was abolished.

Butter has risen 37 cents since 1946, for example, they said; oleomargine, 18 cents; bacon, 47 cents, to cite just a few items.

In turn the housewives were backed up by figures recently released by the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, showing:

- Los Angeles housewives today pay $20.75 for an armful of groceries that cost $10 before World War II.
- Food prices have soared 27.2 percent since June, 1946.
- They've jumped 1 percent in

Two Angelenos Ask High Court Ban Covenants

Two heavily decorated World War II veterans today had asked the U.S. supreme court to uphold their right to live in homes they own. They are Tom Amer, American-born citizen of Chinese ancestry who served in and was decorated by the U.S. army overseas, and Dr. Yin Kim, American-born citizen of Korean ancestry who likewise served his country in the army and was decorated overseas.

Through their attorneys, A. L. Wirin, Fred Okrand, and Loren Miller, the two veterans asked the high court to declare that court enforcement of restrictive covenants is unconstitutional.

Both Amer and Kim, after returning from service overseas, sought homes for their families. They found the areas open to them overcrowded and with nothing available. They were finally able to purchase homes in what turned out to be "white" neighborhoods. They are now defending in court their right to live in their own homes.

DAYTON, Ohio—PCA-backed C. Chico School Board Bans Robeson Book, Blacklists Atty. Crum

CHICO, Calif.—Thought control took another big stride forward on the American scene this week as the Community Forum cancelled a talk by Bartley Crum, San Francisco lawyer and a member of the UN Commission on Palestine, and the Board of Education banned use of a book by Paul Robeson in school libraries.

A local service club committee sponsoring the forum denied approval of Crum as a speaker after the local Board of Education refused to authorize him as an adult education program speaker.

Opposition to Crum was based on the Tenney Committee report on Un-American activities which lists the liberal lawyer as member of two allegedly Communist front organizations. The Tenney committee also listed Robeson as a member of Communist front organizations. The committee's report cited as "Communist" or "Communist front organizations" all groups which supported the 1946 campaign for a California state fair employment practices law.

NNC To Hold Second Annual Parley Nov. 9

The Los Angeles chapter of the National Negro Congress will hold its second annual conference on Sunday, Nov. 9 from 10 to 4 p.m. at the Masonic Temple, Helen Samuels, executive secretary announced yesterday.

The business of the conference will be conducted by four panels, the first taking up legislative questions, including the Taft-Hartley Act, the third party and FEPC.

The second panel will consider Means and Methods of rolling back prices; the third will consider measures to combat lynch terrorism and police brutality; the fourth will deal with housing and restrictive covenant problems.

Panel leaders will include Sidney Moore, international representative of the United Public Workers, CIO; Attorney Leo Gallagher, Ike Adams and Assemblyman Gus Hawkins.

The local NNC chapter held a successful membership meeting last Monday night at which Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass, editor-publisher of the EAGLE and president of the local, spoke on the Third Party movement. Sidney Moore gave a report on the price this country pays for discrimination in dollars and cents.

Fight on Covenants Must Involve Entire Area, Meeting Told

A meeting oposing restrictive covenants called by the Westside Property Owners Association was held last Monday evening in the Foshay High school.

Attorneys Loren Miller and John McTernan urged unity of action in fighting this unconstitutional practice.

Miller said that when the Negro property owners first moved into the Westside area, white supremacists declared the area would be "ruined."

"But this hasn't happened," he said. "On the contrary the coming of the Negroes probably has resulted instead in stabilizing and improving property values."

McTernan, attorney for the Dr. Alonzo Wilkins family which is facing a restrictive covenant suit, told the Negro property owners that "this battle will never be won until every member of the community helps ersae the blot of restrictive covenants."

Mrs. Rosseu, president and chairman of the Westside Property Owners Protective Association, said the Association was trying to induce more churches to enter the fight against restrictive covenants.

"Let's get these restrictive covenants fought to a finish," she urged.

Hi-Y Clubs Work in 'Y' Membership Drive

On October 15 the 28th street YMCA launched its first annual privilege membership enrollment in an effort to bring a larger group of men and boys into active enjoyment of its program and facilities. The enrollment goal is 1500 members for the branch with the Hi-Y clubs accepting responsibility for a third of this number.

Three clubs and their advisors participated in the effort They are the Breakers Hi-Y, Jefferson Alpha Hi-Y and Manual Arts Hi-Y. HiY advisors of these clubs are Harold La Pisarde, Charles McArthur and Richard L. Adams (acting.)

Competition for top honors in the enrollment effort will be quite keen between these clubs, involving over 50 boys.

It will be their desire to convince parents of the community that it is a wise parent who will see that his son becomes a participant in the "Y's" program of building Christian Citizenship through wholesome activities. And that the cost of an annual membership is small indeed to the net returns in character and health.

ASTHMA
BRONCHIAL — CATARRH - SINUS

Don't be discouraged: Read what this famous doctor says:

"Difficulty in breathing is the most characteristic symptom of asthma. Inhaling and exhaling the necessary air for the body's use are accomplished mainly by the action of the diaphragm, which is a flat muscle separating the lungs from the stomach and intestines. When the diaphragm is contracted the patient exhales the air and poisonous gases, and when it is expanded, air is drawn into the lungs. If stomach or intestinal gases are pressing the diaphragm upward, the patient will have difficulty in forcing the pressure down sufficiently to inhale. A weak diaphragm will be unable to do its work properly under this condition and there will be a struggle to draw enough air into the lungs resulting in the peculiar wheeze of the asthmatic when attempting to inhale. Of course, there are contributing causes such as irritating dust and pollen of plants, also a deranged condition of the nervous system. The patient usually wheezes along to a good age, with the misery of seeing every proposed remedy fail until he dies from the effect of drugs taken in an attempt to relieve his symptoms. It may be truly said that at first he is afraid of dying and then afraid he will not."

This Doctor further states. "A permanent cure depends entirely upon the following:

"First: The development of a strong diaphragm, so the patient can inhale and exhale to the extreme with perfect freedom of movement.

"Second: Avoiding those foods which produce an excess of stomach and intestinal gas, until digestion is improved to the point where properly proportioned meals may be taken. Certain foods produce enough flatulence to bring on an asthmatic attack and must be entirely eliminated for a considerable period and then used with great caution.

"If much bronchial mucus is present in the lungs the cure will be slower but none the less sure. Advanced cases seem to yield as readily as those just beginning, so do not think you are an exception because you have tried everything from climate to vaccines, as I do not know of a single case coming under my observation where the cure was not complete and permanent if the patient followed instructions carefully. Probably the reason the old cases respond to this method of treatment as easily as the mild ones, is because the patient who has suffered so long will follow a strict regime without deviating in a single degree whereas the patient whose symptoms are just beginning has hopes for a remedy which will relieve, and allow him to live without diet regulations. Do not waste time looking for an easier method; there is no other way.

Daniel C. Munro, M. D., says: "If I were to write the story of all the cases in which colonic irrigations seem to lift the patient from the very jaws of death, it would fill volumes."

Dr. Chas. A. Tyrell, M.D., eminent physician, says: "If the colon is clogged, the penned-up acid permeations of the stomach and duodenum will have to seek other outlets.

"The most rational and practical manner of dealing with this breeding place of disease is to wash it out.

"With me, it has passed beyond the theoretical stage, for I have in my office fully 15,000 letters from grateful patients who have used this process, under my direction, with the most astounding results; scarcely a disease known to humanity, but has been relieved, and in ninety-five per cent of the cases, cures effected, while tens of thousands of gratifying messages have reached me from time to time; nor is the testimony in its favor confined to the laity, for hundreds of physicians (including some of the most prominent authorities) testify to the wonderful beneficial results achieved by its use."

"Constipation is one of the greatest causes of disease, misery, inefficiency and premature senility, and should be most earnestly combatted," says Dr. Kellogg of Battle Creek Sanitarium fame.

"Every case of constipation is curable, but not by means of any panacea.

"A coated tongue, a sallow complexion, dark circles around the eyes, appearance of brown spots upon the hands or other parts (the so called liver spots), offensive breath and perspiration . . . a thin inelastic, parchment-like skin, dullness of mind, mental irritability or depression without cause, cold hands and feet, chronic headache, arthritis, neuritis, rheumatism, asthma, pains around the heart — these and a score of other symptoms which might be mentioned are certain indications of chronic poisoning.

"A thorough cleansing of the colon, removing the cause, may prevent more serious conditions."

New Yorker specializes in thoroughly cleansing and eliminating from the colon all waste matter causing toxic poisons. Rid yourself of toxic poisons. If suffering, come to our office at once. ORGANIZERS OF NEW COMMUNITY—A new housing program for persons with limited means, which was envisioned by Mrs. Z. M. Demar, and named Demarville, came into existence last Sunday when the above purchasers of land near Lake Elsinore and their families gathered for the purpose of organization. (See story.)

Round Steak Up 30 Cents in Year

The price of round steak has risen an average of 30 cents a pound in the year since price controls were removed, a United Press survey in representative cities showed yesterday.

The average increase on four selected cuts of meat — round steak, rolled rib steak, leg of lamb — was about 22 cents a pound, the survey showed.

Price ceilings were removed from meat Oct. 15, 1946, with the assurance of the meat packers that prices would rise "slightly" then level off.

County Sets Up New Smog Control Group

An Air Pollution Control District was created at a public meeting of the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors last Tuesday, the purpose of which is to clear the skies of irritating fumes and smoke. Dr. Louis C. McCabe was appointed director. An appeal board will be set up, and the smog laws in city and county alike will be rigidly enforced.

New Homes Project Launched in Eucalyptis Grove, Near Elsinore

A new community came into existence last Sunday, October 12, when the pruchases of land in Eucalyptus Grove near beautiful Lake Elsinore, organized and adopted a name. This community will be known hereafter as Demarville, of the Elsinore Lake Grove tract. It is approximately three miles from the city limits of Elsinore.

LAUNCHES COMMUNITY PROJECT—Mrs. Zeatu Marquis Demar, after which Demarville is named, is shown with one of the associates in the new community project located about three miles from the city limits of Elsinore in the Elsinore Lake Grove tract. (See story.)

This project was started through the vision of Mrs. Zeatu Marquis Demar, in whose honor it was named. The land was purchased by people of limited means, who nevertheless had the desire to own their own homes. In the plans for development, a 2½ acre tract was set aside for church, school, hospital, and park.

Officers of the group owning the community are: Leon Shorter, president; Mrs. Allie Jones, vice-president; George W. Halloway, secretary; Miss Frances Haynes, assistant secretary; and Mrs. Demar, treasurer.

Others present at the organizational meeting were: Mrs. Cordy Boseman, Mrs. Mary Scroggins, Mrs. Marietta Buster, Mrs. Marther Shorter, Mrs. Polly Simmons, Robert Jones, Eugene Demar, Curtis Amy, William Gaston, John Boseman, J. Franklin, little Kay and Don Simmons, little Cookie and James Buster, and little Loyola Green.

Mrs. Zeatu Marquis Demar, in whose honor the new community has been named, was born in Tuskegee, Alabama, of very humble parentage. She begged and worked her way through Tuskegee institute under Dr. Robert R. Moton. Her specialty was agriculture. She graduated with the Spartan class of 1925, as an honor student. Her theme for her commencement address was "Making Country Life More Attractive."

In college Mrs. Demar majored in dietetics and biology. She has served as Home Demonstration agent in Louisiana, supervisor in Cheyenne, Wyo., and also state organizer in Wyoming for the Federation of Colored Women's Clubs; dietitian at the Veterans Administration faculty at Tuskegee, and Farm Security supervisor in Louisiana.

The new community at Lake Elsinore is but one of her many interests in life. Best wishes for the success of this enterprising project are pouring in from everywhere.

Solons Probing Housing to Hear Of Covenants

WASHINGTON—Civic organizations in 17 cities will have an opportunity to appear before congressional subcommittees to urge the federal government to put an end to restrictive housing practices that keep Negroes bottled up in slums. NAACP branches have been asked by the Washington bureau of that organization to send witnesses to testify before subcommittees of the house-senate Joint Committee on Housing headed by Congressman Ralph Gamble (R., N.Y.). The committee is scheduled to open hearings on the housing problem on Oct. 20.

The Republican-dominated 80th congress, which did nothing on the housing crisis while in session, set up the joint committees with authorization to conduct "a thorough study and investigation of the entire field of housing. The investigation purportedly will include:

- The extent of the need for housing in the United States as a whole and in all areas thereof.
- The reasons for existing high cost of building materials and housing, and the action that may be taken to reduce such costs.
- The extent to which archaic building codes and zoning laws contribute to the existing shortage and excessive cost.
- Administration and operation of existing federal laws relating to slum clearance, insurance of mortgages on housing, home loans and rent controls.

Popular Interest in Third Party Rising, Meeting Here Told

Captains and coordinators collecting signatures for the Independent Progressive Party met in the Embassy auditorium last Tuesday evening, and discussed plans for furthering the work.

Elinor Kahn, state director of the new party, gave an inspiring talk, and urged everyone to get out and ring doorbells. The great educational value of bringing directly to the people the failure of both the major political parties to function for the people was stressed.

Enough petitions already have been distributed to assure 100,000 signatures by November 15. Los Angeles is expected to fill its quota, and go over the top easily. The collectors reported a lively interest among the people in the organization of a new party.

Angeleno Chooses Career in U.S. Army

Penderton High graduate Lincoln E. Liles, 21, found life as a butcher pretty dull compared to the wartime experience he had serving on Guam, so yesterday he rejoined the army air forces for another three-year "hitch" at local recruiting headquarters, 610 S. Main street.

Prior to returning to the service Lincoln made his home with his father, Albert Liles Sr., 2216½ Hooper avenue. During the first part of the war he served at the air forces largest experimental station at Wright Field near Dayton, Ohio.

Liles plans on making the army air forces his lifetime career and is looking forward to playing a lot of army football and tennis, two sports in which he excels.

City to Step Up Fight on Diphtheria as Deaths Mount

One of the most intensive campaigns in the city's history will be opened Monday, October 20, against diphtheria, Dr. H. C. Pulley, chief assistant city health officer, reported yesterday.

Parent-Teachers Association, clubs, schools and health agencies will combine to curb the rising incidence of the disease, which has taken the lives of 19 children and stricken more than 180 victims here since January 1, Dr. Pulley said.

The 1947 death toll is more than double that of last year, while the number of cases is running about 75 percent above those of 1946, he said.

Free immunizatons will be given to all children between the ages of 6 months and 10 years in the city schools and district health offices. Doctor-nurse teams are scheduled to visit Los Angeles grammar schools beginning Monday, giving the inoculation to all neighborhood children—including those not old enough to attend school—who have their parent's signed consent.

Parents who have no older children in school were invited to bring their under-age youngsters to the "classroom clinics."

Margaret O'Brien, moppet star of "The Unfinished Dance," writes a nationally syndicated newspaper column, "Growing Up."

Plan Fight on Covenanters' Drive in Valley

The San Fernando Valley Council on Race Relations yesterday called for immediate mobiliation of valley organizations to battle a powerful and swiftly-moving outfit invited to the valley by several San Fernando valley chambers of commerce.

The restrictive covenant outfit is the notorious M. C. Friel company, which intends to restrict "the whole west side of the valley and eventually all of North Hollywood and Pasadena," according to a company spokesman.

Miss Alice Smith, who said she "ran" the San Fernando office of the Friel outfit, spilled the strategy of the covenanteers in a telephone conversation witn Helen Taylor, staff writer of the Daily People's World, while under the impression she was talking to a valley property-owner.

Miss Smith told the Daily People's World writer that the Friel company had the "best of references" from valley chambers of commerce which, she said, had been after the company to come to the section "for more than a year" because "we are the only firm which specializes in this particular type of work."

Miss Smith was reluctant to give the exact location of Friel operations just now, but valley residents say the company now is concentrating near the Reseday area in a section bounded by Sherman way, Saticoy, White Oak and Reseda.

Valley residents said that the Friel company is asking $20 each from property owners for Friel services in restricting properties. This represents a fat profit, since it costs exactly $1 to record a covenant in the county recorder's office and about $2 for the necessary "quick check" to a title, according to lawyers expert in covenant work.

'Storybook' Series Offer Relief From Radio Horrors

Giving Los Angeles children interesting and educational human interest stories about famous Americans to counterbalance their radio diet larded with lone gunmen, superflashes, and horror-thrillers, the City Recreation and Park Department is offering a new "American Storybook" series on Station KLAC every Saturday at 1:15 p. m., it was announced yesterday.

The stories, written and narrated by Laura C. Swartz, have not only captured the interest of a growing circle of juvenile listeners but have also won the relieved approval of parents, school teachers, and recreation leaders.

Little known but character-revealing incidents in the lives of America's noteworthy men and women are told on the programs in a manner appealing to children and youth and also adults.

Handy Publishes Hughes' Song on Freedom Train

NEW YORK—The Freedom Train, a great traveling museum is now touring America bearing the precious documents of our American heritage—the springboards of democracy—but for Negro Americans this democracy has not yet been fully realized. In some sections where the Freedom Train will tour, unless local conditions are changed, Negro Americans must view the Declaration of Independence and the Emancipation Proclamation under undemocratic conditions.

"Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty," said Wendel Phillips. With this thought in mind the famous Negro poet, Langston Hughes, and the distinguished folk musician, Sammy Heyward, have written in the idiom of the Negro spirituals, a stirring song, "Checkin' On The Freedom Train," published by Handy Brothers Music Co., Inc.

The song is a rousing call for the support of the great dreams embedded in the documents which the Freedom Train carries. The Freedom Train itself is a symbol of a great, free democracy. Checkin' on the Freedom Train is a musical affirmation of the equality and decency which our democratic heritage foretells, and a song which all true Americans can sing. Its infectious rhythm and simple words carry a message for every democratic heart. Its final line is a call to "Get on board our Freedom Train."

If you are towing a trailer or vehicle so constructed or loaded that your view rearward from the driver's seat is obstructed, don't fail to equip your towing vehicle with a mirror. It must be located to give you a view of at least 200 feet to the rear.

Fraternity To Establish Fund to Aid Struggling Students Here

A campaign to establish a Fund to aid struggling young students with a "slight financial push" was under way today, initiated by Gamma Xi chapter (UCLA campus) of the Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity, oldest Negro fraternity in the nation.

Fraternity leaders point to the current shortage of doctors, lawyers, ministers and other professionals, attribute it to the fact that during the last depression many young men were forced out of school because of lack of funds." Today, with the cost of living steadily soaring, many students, they declare, are finding it difficult to meet the cost of an education.

The proposed Fund would:

- Give scholarships to outstanding high school students;
- Give scholarships to college students who have made outstanding records in college;
- Allow worthy needy students an opportunity to borrow funds to continue their education.

Support for the project has been expressed by many sections of the population, with the churches leading off with a pledge for a public pulpit appeal on Sunday, Oct. 26, throughout the city. Contributions will be accepted at these services.

Also slated is a Hallowe'en Street Fiesta Oct. 31 on West 36th place, just east of Cimarron. Tickets are now on sale for 25 cents each. Prices will be given for the best costumes.

Morris D. Hampton is chairman of the Scholarship and Aid Fund Committee. Albert W. James is president of Gamma Xi chapter of the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc.

Chest Quotas Announced For Two Local Districts

Community Chest campaign leaders here this week received their quotas of the $7,322,240 that must be raised in Los Angeles to assure the continued services of the 159 Red Feather Agencies, and thus began the 1947 campaign.

In this area two district chairmen this week began this year's campaign by announcing the amounts they would be asked to contribute to the city-wide appeal. They are Adams-Central's Bernard F. Jefferson and Mrs. J. S. Peach of South Park.

Jefferson's district quota is $7720; Mrs. Peach's district quota is $2689.

Determined on the basis of population, industrial development of the district, and the relative wealth of its people, the district quotas were carefully prepared by the Welfare Council's research department with the help of chairmen.

The researchers pointed out that district quotas represent amounts "far below the actual cost of individual services multiplied by the number of people." Low costs come about by utilizing large scale financing methods and by the pooling of individual and corporate resources.

Second half of the 1947 campaign report was devoted to a listing of the actual services to the people of this city and its 35 associated cities and towns. The report lists the services and the number of people served in some 65 areas of the city.

Schwellenbach Backs 75-Cent Minimum Pay

SCHWELLENBACH

BOSTON—Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach yesterday put the Administration on record in favor of an immediate increase in the federal minimum wage to 75 cents per hour.

The Labor Secretary made his recommendation in a speech before the ninth annual CIO convention here.

The convention heard CIO President Philip Murray and other delegates denounce the Taft-Hartley bill. The more than 600 Negro and white delegates rose as one in a unanimous standing vote approving a resolution pledging the CIO to fight for repeal of the anti-Labor act.

To Renovate, Expand Duarte Sanitarium

The United States government has requested the use of the sanitorium of the Outdoor Life and Health Association, located in Duarte, California, to house veterans who are afflicted with tuberculosis.

But since there are no housing facilities available at present in hat free, non-profit organization sanitorium, the executive committee for the building fund together with a group of interested citizens have formed a committee and have planned to launch a renovation and building campaign to construct suitable housing.

A meeting of this committee was held last Tuesday evening in the YMCA, 28th and Paloma, at which the above mentioned plans took definite form.

Sixty percent of eligible workers on the Pacific Coast belong to unions, a University of California report shows.

Chinese Paper Denounces U.S.

SAN FRANCISCO — Ta Kung Pao, a conservative newspaper published in Nanking, China, has expressed grave concern over the "MacArthur policy" of rearming Japan, it was learned here this week.

The charge that Japan was being developed as "a big base against the Soviet Union" was contained in an "open letter to the people of the United States," which also said that the American people are "losing much of the friendship of their wartime allies."

"In Japan," the open letter says, "American authorities have been busy pampering Japanese feudalistic influences, encouraging Japanese industries, exonerating the war-mongering elements, repairing military harbors and establishing new bases and secretly building up Japanese military power."

Similar charges were made recently in the United Nations general assembly by Soviet Delegate A. A. Aratiunian, who charged that in Asia the U. S. is working to rebuild Japan's war potential while in Europe U. S. policy seeks to build up Germany.

Byrnes, Earle Urge A-Bomb War on Russia

WASHINGTON.—Two American diplomats competed this week to confirm Russian charges of warmongering in this country.

George H. Earle, former ambassador to Moscow, listed among U. S. war-mongers by Soviet UN delegate Andrei Vishinsky, called for the "dropping of an atomic bomb on the Kremlin" in a "Meet the Press" radio interview.

Former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes of South Carolina proposed that this country concentrate on the manufacture of "better and more" atomic bombs and a decision to drive the Red army out of the Russian zone of occupied Germany.

Byrnes' proposal was contained in his memoirs, Speaking Frankly, published today by Harper Brothers.

Author of the present "cold war" against Russia, Byrnes retails in detail back-of-the-scenes negotiations with the Russians, blasts them for not accepting U. U. proposals in toto.

GOP Solon Would Earmark Steak for Rich People Only

SALT LAKE CITY.—Failure of low-income groups to regard steak as food for wealthy people only was blamed for the high price of living by Rep. Norris Poulson (R., Calif) yesterday.

Interrupting a witness at a congressional price subcommittee hearing here, Poulson declared that "If we could get away from the idea that we all have to eat steak and buy some of the cheaper meat cuts, the tremendous price rise will be halted."

U.S. Balks on Russ Plea Both Leave Korea

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y.—The U. S. yesterday placed the question of Korean independence before the UN general assembly, after failing to answer a Russian proposal for the simultaneous withdrawal of Russian and American forces from Korea.

U. S. delegates to the UN indicated that this country desires to set up an acceptable government in Korea before withdrawing its troops from that Asiatic country.

Palestian Troubles Settled?

An 11-nation special committee on Palestine has given its proposal for the solution of the vexing Palestine problem to the United Nations Assembly. Although not granting all that either side wishes, it proposes a fair settlement and it is hoped a final solution will be eventually worked out and that all sides will agree to this.

Palestine, the Holy Land, the promised land of the Jews for centuries, is the shrine of three great world religions — Judaism, Islam, and Christianity. Wars were fought by the Christian crusaders of the Middle Ages to wrest the holy places from the hands of the Islams or Mohammedans. But without avail. Islam still rules.

At present there are some 1,203,000 Arabs and 608,000 Jews living in this patch of about 10,000 square miles in area, part of it under cultivation but about half of it still desert. Shortly after World War I the British government was given the mandate over Palestine, and Lord Balfour, then Foreign Secretary of the United Kingdom, declared: "the British Government view with favor the establishment in Palestine of a National Home for the Jewish people."

But Jewish immigration was restricted in 1939. Not more than 7,000 Jews were to be permitted to enter in the following five years, and there was great dissatisfaction.

Despite the sale of property to the Jews, the Arabs still own most of the cultivated land, and boast an ownership extending back 1000 years. The Jews by their industry have made the desert wastes which they purchased to blossom as the rose. And because of this desirable fruit of hard work, and because of the discovery of oil and the formation of the Anglo-American Oil Co., the Arab chiefs, perhaps moved by jealousy, no longer wish to sell any land to the Jews.

There has been controversy and bloodshed among Jews and British and Arabians. But now at last the problem has been placed before the United Nations Assembly, and it is believed that body will solve it with a fair degree of satisfaction to all.

The Committee on Palestine has proposed that Palestine be partitioned into an Arab country, a Jewish country, and a free City of Jerusalem under U.N. trusteeship, and that steps be taken to relieve the plight of Jewish displaced persons in Europe.

This proposed settlement may not be all that either side had hoped for, but it seems fair enough.

Now then if the Committee on African Affairs can get an equally fair hearing before the United Nations Assembly, and if the Committee on Indonesia can make its story known too, some of the world's worst trouble spots may be cleared up. It surely takes time, and patience, and persistence. But we believe submitting ones' problem to the United Nations will in the end prove more effectual than by passing that body, and trying to solve them ourselves.

A Reason for the Ban

The banning of "The Burning Cross" by the Virginia State Board of Censors was charged as a subterfuge last week, to keep the people of Virginia from seeing a picture exposing the Ku Klux Klan, when a complaint was filed against the Board of Censors by the Screen Guild Productions.

The complaint states that in banning the picture the censors were acting against the best interests of the citizens of Virginia and were discriminating against the picture because of its frank and daring treatment of the KKK.

That board of censors should know that the surest way of arousing a person's interest in anything, is to prohibit his seeing it. That is true of adults, as well as of children and teen-agers.

So, naturally, dozens of organizations of just human beings are demanding that the ban be removed, and that they be permitted to see "just why the censor board does not want the people of Virginia to see the picture."

This is a healthy sign which proves the Virginians are really adult. That they will not submit to the regimentation of their thinking by a small group in power. It is making those Virginians take note, too, as to the reason of the ban. And, given a chance to see the KKK as it really is, they will no doubt do all in their power to destroy it and remove from Virginia this blot on its escutcheon.

Yes, of course there is a reason for the ban. Good reason, by the friends of the KKK. But it will not work, and a greater interest than ever is assured by this undemocratic and un-American procedure.

Keeping America Free

Like a dark cloud on the horizon, much bigger than a man's hand, looms the threat of Fascism for America.

We, the people of America, who wrote a Declaration of Independence and a Bill of Rights in our Constitution, declaring that there shall be no law that will prohibit the free assembling of the people; that freedom of speech, of the press, and of religion shall be recognized everywhere as the fundamental principle of American democracy, are trmebling now in fear.

In fear of what? In fear of being called on the carpet for daring to think for ourselves. In fear of losing our jobs because we dared attend some meeting which did not meet the approval of those self-appointed dictators of thought in supposedly free America. In fear of bread lines, of being turned out into the streets from the meager shelter we have managed to secure for our families; in fear of sickness and disease without the care of a physician—in short, the fear of a worse form of Fascism than that which destroyed Germany.

For the Fascism which seems to be taking shape in America is more subtle than that propagated by Adolph Hitler. It is a Fascism which controls the minds and hearts of the American people, which is making mental slaves of us. It is nothing so tangible that we can fight as the burning of those we love in gas ovens, or turning their bodies into soap. Although, Heaven knows, we may even reach that stage.

Fighting it is like fighting smog. Like fighting fog. It is more difficult than fighting rain or fire or flood.

But that we are fighting it, fighting to keep America free, the enthusiastic meeting held in the Shrine auditorium last Wednesday evening gave ample evidence.

No less than 18 members of the Hollywood film industry have been ordered to appear in Washington, D.C., before the ill-smelling un-American Committee, to answer for the high crimes and misdemeanors of daring to promote through motion pictures the information and the desire to improve human relationss in America and in the world. To prevent war. To establish a real peace in all the world. To create a new world where hunger and suffering shall be at a minimum.

These 18 martyrs and heroes were cynosure of all hearts and hopes at the meeting held in their honor in the Shrine auditorium. They were applauded to the echo at every opportunity—even the mere mention of a name. The American citizens gathered there were determined the world should know and recognize the fact that Los Angeles, at least, is aroused and is opposing the danger of a police state and of police control of thought that is threatenening our nation.

And deep within every soul in that audience, and of those who feared to attend but who nevertheless were present in spirit, was the determination to fight harder than ever to make America and to keep America free. Fight by holding protest meetings, by writing protest letters, by telling our friends and neighbors the truth.

But most of all, everyone there registered a profound vow that those dictators of thought shall be banished from our government. In Washington and in Sacramento. We must, above all else, vote to keep America free. Not one official, not one individual who has had anything to do even in the most remote manner, to bring tihs threat of Fascism to America, shall receive our vote in 1948.

That is a vow we must keep, to the very letter. Or America can not be kept free.

False and Malicious

Many persons who sent Town Meeting of the Air ten cents for a copy of the debate, "Is Communism a Threat to Hollywood", are having their dimes returned to them.

The pretext under which the Sept. 2 broadcast is being entirely suppressed is because of the libel suit filed by Emmet Lavery, playwright, and Martin Gosch, Broadway producer against Mrs. Lela Rogers, mother of Ginger Rogers.

The suit charges that Mrs. Rogers remarks were "scandalous, false and malicious." Jack Tenney debated on the same side as Mrs. Rogers, and at one point Albert Dekker, actor, on the negative side, called Tenney a liar.

Reason enough for suppressing the transcript of this meeting.

Inform the People

"There is a growing grass-root progressivism in the South. President Roosevelt gave it new life and vigor. It is reflected in Congress, too, in quite a number of southern members who were able to rally enough of the people over the heads of the economic bosses. Labor union organization has helped to build it up by informing the people and giving them the stamina which comes from organized strength.

HENRY WALLACE.

THINGS I SEE

By Marian Inglewood

They're back again—the hitch-hikers, the bums, restlessly thumbing a ride from east to west or from west to east, just as in the days of '29 and the early thirties. Looking for jobs today as they did in those former years.

But the wanderers today, reminisces a former hobo in a recent copy of The New Republic, are tougher and much wiser than the beaten hopeless ones of the thirties. The pangs of hunger have not yet reduced them to being afraid whenever a uniform shows up, although they tell stories of how the cops arrest them and beat them, the same as they did then.

"I rode freights and hitch-hiked for several years in those days," confesses this former bum. "There were thousands like me, oily-faced, dirty, ragged and beaten: a whole dangerous army of useless men with power enough in our arms, had the government chosen to spend no more than the cost of one day's fighting in the recent war, to build a dike that would have prevented Mississippi floods forever.

"We were generally docile, disunited and scared of established authority. There wasn't even the protest of lawlessness. We were not politically conscious and, among the thousands of men with whom I traveled, I never found a political agitator. We simply blamed everything on Hoover and the GOP and vowed if we ever settled down long enough to establish residence, we would vote Democratic."

Wonder how many of those former hoboes remembered their resolution last November! Or think of it now when conditions apparently are returning to those earlier days, under the guidance of that same Hoover and the meek submission to "the mandate of the people" by our nice little weathervane in the White House.

"If we just stick together," they used to tell each other in the '30's, and dream wild dreams of what they could do to those "bulls" if they united. But they never stuck together, and as a consequence two "bulls" could chase a score of them.

Today, however, it's different. "The kids I picked up this winter," says the former hobo, "would get themselves killed fighting back against the bulls—or kill them in turn. The boys tramping the roads today in their still good uniforms are in some ways much better trained for the road than we were. They aren't so squeamish. They know how to form their ranks, accept leadership, and do some damage to the enemy. We knew nothing of that. We had no confidence in each other. These new wanderers know how to steal and make it look legal. We knew nothing of that, either. We were just a little hungrier, a lot more hopeless, and much more numerous."

"The young men of the road today are a different breed of cat," continues the erstwhile wanderer. "It is not a breakdown of morals that makes them more dangerous. They are just better trained and much more conscious of themselves as citizens who have a right to jobs. They don't blame themselves for not having jobs, as we did. They blame the government and the system.

"You don't follow an army across continents, and a navy across all the seas of the world without growing up some. The boys today know their own strength, and because they know it, they move with more confidence. They know the material things they want out of life and they intend to get them. My companions and I in the tthirties wanted the same things, but we never really expected to get them. Still we were called 'wild.'

"If ever another depression hits, this new brotherhood of the road with its sense of sertngth, its feeling of equality, its knowledge of leadership, will be called otherwise. The boys will be called bandits and threats to society, for so society feels about the evils it creates."

Yes, and not only the bums of the highways but American men and women all over the country have become more conscious of their strength. We are beginning to unite, to disregard the trivial things and to concentrate on the realities.

We know, too, our sick private-profit system is wrong. And if another depression hits and we lose our jobs, we won't submit so meekly to the indignities of the SRA and WPA as we did before. We will know and we will act upon that knowledge, that it won't be our fault if we are unemployed. It will be the fault of the system.

If our self-appointed nurses of this decadent private-profit system want to save the world from Communism, instead of sending $400,000,000 to Greece and Turkey and perhaps millions more to other foreign countries, they would, if they had any sense, use that money right here in America to pump a little more oxygen into their beloved but dying system by providing employment for those who soon will have no jobs.

555th 'Chuters at Fort Benning For Demonstration Jumps

FORT BENNING, Georgia—Three companies of the 555th parachute infantry battalion are now at this post where they will remain for six weeks to participate in demonstration jumps for "Exercise Combine," a follow-up program to the Air Indoctrination Course held here last Spring.

The 555th is the only Negro unit of its kind in the army and is attached to the 82nd "All American" Airborne Division stationed at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. Among its enlisted personnel are some of the hardiest, keenest and best trained troops in the army.

The Outmoded Atom Bomb

The atom bomb, upon which we are spending billions of dollars and guarding it with the utmost secrecy, is already dated, according to a report made by eminent scientists. It is being superceded by biological warfare.

A bomb which spreads a poison known as botulinus toxin can be manufactured at a comparatively small cost by any small nation which has "as much as a brewery and the skill to operate it."

One ounce of this deadly poison could kill every inhabitant in the United States and Canada, according to Dr. Gerald Wendt, of Science Illustrated.

"If World War III comes," says Dr. Wendt, "it will be a war in which most people may die from silent, insiduous, antihuman weapons that make no sound, give no warning, destroy no forts or ships or cities, but can wipe out human beings by the million."

The mere idea of manufacturing such a weapon of death is symbolic of the fear and hate which seem to envelope the earth, and which seems to be taking possession of human beings.

Why should we hate each other so? Why should the Dutch of The Netherlands wish to wipe out the natives of Indonesia? Why should not the people of South Africa be granted the freedom they desire? Why should there be any feeling but that of friendliness between the United States and Russia?

Why should we have atom bombs? And biological warfare bombs? When all we need is just a little horse sense, a little tolerance, a little of the supreme virtue of minding our own business and letting the other fellow mind his.

If we human beings don't soon make up our minds to live at peace with our neighbors, there won't be any human beings alive within a few years. Or any other living thing.

Of course it's the governments of the world which are manufacturing these weapons of poison. We here in America are directly responsible for our government And we'd better see to it that the officials and members of Congress we have today are replaced by those more friendly with the world in general in the election in 1948—or there won't be any U.S.A. left for another election.

Thank God we have a system of labor where there can be a strike. Whatever the pressure, there is a point when the workman may quit.—Abraham Lincoln.

Room 121—Washington, D. C.

Room 121 is a room in the Federal Trade Commission Building, Washington, D. C. It looks like any other room to the ordinary visitor. But to those who know its history, the barbed wire of a Hitler concentration camp lurks in the background.

Eight government employees work in this room. They are all Negroes—Negroes who were shoved from pillar to post, and finally given this place as a kind of last resort for persons whom the supervisors could not get rid of.

These eight Negroes originally were employed by the OPA, and when that was killed by the reactionaries in Congress, it was generally agreed that all OPA employees should lose their jobs unless some other department needed them.

But the OPA employees were members of a Labor Union, the United Public Workers of America, CIO, and they refused to be put off so easily. After much wrangling the employees of the OPA's Financial Reporting Division, including the 8 Negroes, were transferred to the Federal Trade Commission.

Other employees were given jobs in certain offices, but the 8 Negroes were shoved into Room 121, then vacant, and left to their own devices. They were given no work to do. For three weeks they merely sat there. Then little dribs came in — like stuffing envelopes, filing index cards, etc. This for expert statisticians and accountants whose rating had always been Good, Very Good, and Excellent!

The United Public Workers have taken the case to the Civil Service Commission. It finally decided that the Federal Trade Commission should find real jobs for them, and that they should no longer be cooped up in one room.

This decision is good. But we remember how it takes an awful lot of pushing and shoving to get anything done in Washington, even after a decision has been made.

This is letter writing week. How about writing to President Truman, and calling his attention to Room 121? Ask him if he doesnt' think that is a clear case of racial discrimination, and urge him to do something about it.

President Truman could, if he would, create a Fair Employment Practices Committee for government jobs, as President Roosevelt did. A permanent FEPC, with teeth in it, is the only solution for such flagrant violations of the Constitution as Room 121.

W. J. Wheaton Says

The campaign for municipal offices is in full bloom and never before has San Francisco been so civic minded. Candidates for the several offices are backslapping and handshaking as never before. Candidates for mayor, municipal judgeships, and whatnots are doing everything but kissing babies, and that is against health ordinance seven hundred, or maybe steen thous. At any rate, we have not seen any baby kissing. For the mayor's toga, McPhee says he has the best chance; Judge Robinson says that he can't be beat and Franck Havenner has the labor support but none of the big dailies, aside from the People's Daily World ever mention his name, unless it is to couple it with Harry Bridges, and Harry is branded as a Red, and that is supposed to be detrimental to Havenner's success.

F. D. Haynes who is seeking the office of supervisor stands a very good chance of being among the top eleven. Two years ago he made a very fine showing. Rev. Haynes is a man of splendid intellect and has the ability to fill the position sought with dignity and honor.

Employment for Negroes is on the upgrade. We notice that hundreds are employed in construction work and are seen driving garbage trucks; a job herefore held only by Italians, who are sole owners of the companies. We notice, also, that they are retaining their jobs as motormen and conductors on the street cars and busses. But there is another element, an element that is a disgrace to any community. They are ne'erdowells who take liberty for license; who delight in doing acts, and creating scenes for which the community as a whole suffers.

We are sorry that it was impossible for us to keep the appointment promised our friend and philosopher, Mary Ann? It was with regret that we phoned our regrets but made another which will surely be kept. We want to acquaint our public . . . Unbeknown to our Philosopher Friend . . . to one of the most unique characters and one of that essential thing . . . Horse Sense that ever came to San Francisco. She knows and has shared in many things we have heard, but we think by a little diplomatic conversation, we can learn more. The AFL Convention had many highlights. There were any number of noted speakers. Secretary of Labor Schwelenbach was one of the number. They propose raising a fund for the defeat of congressmen who supported the Taft-Hartley Labor Bill.

The End Result of The Marshall Plan

By PAUL FRENCH

(Fifth and Last of a Series)

Last week's column explained that, while it is physically possible for the Marshall Plan to "work" so far as carrying out its professed (as distinct from its real) aims, is concerned, of "feeding" Europe and "reconstructing" its industries it remains politically impossible to do this, unless the whole darned world "goes Communist" and adopts socialism. And that is just what the Marshall Plan was aimed to prevent.

Briefly reviewing matters: Eastern European nations are feeding themselves and rebuilding their industries by virtually adopting socialism and abolishing "free enterprise." The 16 Western European nations could do the same; but won't. Firstly, they don't want to. Secondly, through the Marshall Plan, American imperialism is trying to "help" them avoid it.

But, if American imperialism really should rebuild Europe's industry, it would thus make competitors for the world trade that it, itself, must have to avoid economic collapse, and — who knows?—going Communist itself. It will, therefore, not lend Europe enough money to really rebuild industry, but only enough for coffee-and," — enough to eat on.

Yet, if those 16 nations get only enough to keep their peoples from starving (and they're likely to not get that much, or get it soon enough!) they are going to face the same fix at the end of such temporary relief; and, with the examples of a thriving Eastern European socialism under their noses, they are surely going to "go Communist" later, if not sooner.

However, unless American imperialism does send enough food to keep the peoples of those 16 countries from starving right away, they will not only "go Communist" that much quicker, but in taking over the stocks and bonds in American corporations which are owned by their capitalists, they will dump these billions of stocks and bonds for sale at any price onto the New York Stock Exchange, and thus (as happened in 1929) knock the bottom out of American "prosperity" so badly that in the unprecedented economic crisis thus precipitated (not "caused" —as there are other basic factors working in the same direction), a political crisis can arise so profound that, even here, the people may "go Communist."

The tragic alternative which confront American capitalists is that any real and adequate help that American imperialism can possibly give to European capitalism to "prevent" European capitalist countries from "going Communist," must require American imperialism ceasing to be imperialistic and, itself, risking the chance that the American people may "go Communist."

Or, conversely, if American imperialism does not give such real and adequate help, then European capitalism is done for, and all Europe will "go Communist." Then, to make matters quite impossible, if all Europe should "go Communist," every thinking person agrees that America, will, and very soon, have to "go Communist," too. Since one single capitalist country in a world where all important countries are thriving under a socialist economy, is not only very lonesome ideologically, but impossible economically.

There just doesn't seem to be any way out for our worried "free enterprisers," no matter where they turn, or how they squirm. A ludicrous example of the fact that capitalism, in order to prevent" socialism, must adopt it, is Bevin's recent and desperate suggestion that the United States really ought to simply give the vast store of gold it has buried at Fort Knox, to other nations, so they can "buy" American goods they need. What idea could be more "socialistic?" And to come from such an anti-Communist as Bevin! U. S. bankers were shocked.

Yet, with gold, which is the only real international money, all concentrated in the United States, what else can even the most anti-Communist European be expected to suggest? That the money given Europe be really given and not "loaned?" Or that the goods which that money bought be really given Europe, without the folderol of "loaning money" at all, and simply because hungry people must eat? What's the difference, since the "loans" cannot be repaid anyhow? But either arrangement adds up to anything but respectable capitalist business. It simply isn't the same old capitalism any more.

But the fiction is preserved that the "loans" will be repaid. Not with gold, but with goods. However, the fact is that if America were repaid for all it has "loaned" other nations, in the goods they produce (except for some few things like bananas and cocoa and diamonds), a large part of U. S. industry would have to close down. Indeed, they are almost certain to close down soon, anyway, for lack of a market for their "surplus" production. And then what? To keep American workers from "going Communist." American capitalists vill have to feed them, and permanently, without requiring them to work at all producing anything whatever aside from "raking leaves." Which also is bad, because it merely would stimulate their appetite for food.

Such arrangement isn't socialism or communism. But neither is it capitalism, for capitalism, when it works, requires that the workers feed the capitalists for doing nothing, and now it appears that the capitalists must feed the workers, or, alternatively, be overthrown by them and put to work under socialism. No wonder that Harold Ickes, recently, said that compared to the prospects of the future given him by reading the papers, reading the Book of Job is "enjoyable reading." To the capitalist mind, the future is pretty sad.

However, would the giving, without hope of repayment, of $22,440,000,000 to Europe, during the next four years, be enough to keep them from "going Communist?" Those 16 nations have a population about equal to the USA, and even 22 billion is gone quickly. Indeed, America has already given an equal sum in relief in the two years since World War II ended, and look how pressing the problem is today. Indeed, our "wise statesmen" headed by Marshall, were thinking, only three months ago, that Europe could get along till next Spring, so Truman went to Brazil to pick orchids, and Marshall to woo fascist Argentina, but before they could get back, Europe went bust and now we are told to "eat more garbage" to save Europe, even before Marshall's plan can get going.

The truth is, the capitalists can no longer control capitalism, or even be sure to maintain it. The dark thought ever rises in their mind, that they may be

A LAYMAN'S VIEW

By Leon W. Steward

A THREE MILLION DOLLAR BUSINESS ALL OUR OWN

"It's the biggest Negro business west of Chicago" said one of the officers of the Golden State Mutual Life Insurance Company to an assembly of some 250 of their approximately 570 officers and workers Saturday morning at a breakfast launching their annual "football" contest or year-end drive for new business.

Leon Steward

"It's a three million dollar business" said another. "Behold the brochure of our future home office building at your plates" declared still another. Had you been present you would have been thrilled by such documentary evidences of real progress.

MONUMENT OF NEGRO ACHIEVEMENT

The brochure, a folder giving various views of a scale model of the future home office, portrayed an ultra modern and beautiful six story building on which work will begin "within a few months" on that picturesque and very busy corner of Adams blvd. and Western ave. (north-east corner). It reveals that the site was purchased in the fall of 1945 without any idea as to how soon the building could be started. But the overcrowded condition of the present home office building and the "continued growth and development of the company, made possible by the loyalty and hard work of its employes and agents; and the cooperation of its policyholders . . . resolved its dream into a plan."

Thus, Los Angeles now has within it a business achievement which, born on Central avenue and despite the opposition of its competitors and other community factors, in less than a quarter of a century has outgrown its state borders in its outreaches, won city, state, and nation-wide acclaim for its achievements and promises to erect a monument to the vision of its founder, the hard work and devotion of its ever growing staff and to the cooperation of Negroes who have at last grown faith enough in their own, at busy Adams blvd. and Western ave. where the races of men go by and may behold its significance. A monument to Negro achievement.

ARE WE GROWING UP?

Having previously extolled the greatness of William Nickerson Jr., its departed founder, and those who have so well carried the ball of achievement since his death, it appears proper at this time to give unstinted praise to those without whom the enterprise could not have begun nor continued growing—we refer to those people who first expressed their faith in a California insurance company owned and controlled by Negroes.

Sixty-one of them had 20 payment life and 20 year endowment policies to mature on the 20th anniversary of the Golden State Mutual in 1945. Many have overcome their doubts and fears to join the company every year since those first pioneers blazed the trail until now people in Texas and Illinois join the company without questioning its security. And "it is rare to find a person in Los Angeles," says one of its agents, "who has been here a reasonable time who does not respect this Negro-owned and operated company." All of which goes to show that we are growing up as a people and we shall continue to do so as long as we see evidences of real business success in our midst.

The success of the Golden State Mutual Life Insurance is a story every Negro should tell to his children. It is a symbol of Negro cooperative achievement in a land where few, 23 years ago, believed it possible. It tells our youth that there is opportunity for those who—having faith—would launch out.

It tells the growing numbers of us in this new land to look up and hope. It tells us to trust our own people with our business. It gives us a new experience when an agent who knows our struggle and understands our problems comes into our home in the interest of the security of our family.

Let us bring this discourse to a close with a statement which was given a Golden State agent only recently. When the agent handed the man a Golden State calendar, with the bright brown faces of two Negro youth upon it, he declared "Mister, I have prayed for the day when I could put my children into a million dollar Negro business that thought their faces were pretty enough to go on their calendar. I'm awful proud to join them in your company." To men like this one the calendars from the Golden State, like its policies, are badges of honor which every thoughtful member of the race should be proud to own.

Room 121

By LAWRENCE EMMET

A CALL FOR ACTION

The enclosed story of Room 121 is one of the most shocking examples of discrimination within the government service that has yet come to our attention. We are sending it to you for publication, and for dissemination among the members of your organization.

It is our firm opinion that the story of discrimination told in "Room 121" will only be ended when we have a Fair Employment Practices Committee—with teeth in it—for government jobs. Such an FEPC can be created immediately by Executive Order by President Truman. We urge you to enlist the support of your readers and the members of your organization in petitioning President Truman for the creation of an FEPC for government.

Signed: Thomas Richardson, International Vice President United Public Workers of America, CIO.

Room 121 is an ordinary room in an office building occupied by an agency of the government of the United States.

Room 121 contains eight desks, about a dozen straight backed chairs and a framed picture reproduction of the Declaration of Independence hanging on the wall. The glass frame is dusty.

To the uninitiated visitor, Room 121 looks exactly like any other of the unending rows of office cubicles which make up the building of the Federal Trade Commission in Washington, D. C.

But Room 121 IS different. Very different. Though the visitor cannot see these things, Room 121 also contains the steel shackles of the Georgia chain gang and the barbed wire of the Hitler concentration camps.

To the eight employes of the Federal Trade Commission assigned to Room 121 the barbed wire and the chain shackles are every bit as real as the sturdy walnut desks with the Grand Rapids labels.

The eight workers are Negroes. This is their story.

INVISIBLE BARBED WIRE

It is the story of eight Negro Americans in the career service of the federal government and how they fared as employes of one agency of government, the Federal Trade Commission.

The story goes back a long time and includes the years of training and effort by members of a minority group to find places for themselves in government service.

Among the eight who spent nearly nine months in the invisible barbed wire enclosure of Room 121, were some who had been employed in other government agencies as long as 12 years. Most of them started originally in so-called "New Deal" agencies such as the Social Security Board, etc.

In 1944 one of these "New Deal" agencies, the Office of Price Administration, in a search for qualified employes, hired many career service people from other governmental departments,—without regard for race, color or creed. In setting up a Financial Reporting Division the OPA chose, among others, these eight Negro workers. One is an accountant. The others are accounting clerks. Thus, by accident, they first began to work together in OPA.

By November, 1946, the message of the National Association of Manufacturers that "OPA was ruining the country" was pretty widely accepted by the lawmakers. The OPA went out of existence. Many career service employes were out, and according to law, places had to be found for them in other government agencies in preference to temporary, or war service, employes.

LILY-WHITE FTC

However, the functions of the OPA's Financial Reporting Division were to be transferred to the Federal Trade Commission. Theoretically this meant that the employes would be transferred also.

When officials of the FTC learned that the staff in this Division included Negroes, women and Jews they consulted with officials of the Civil Service Commission to ascertain whether they could bypass these employes.

OPA employes were members of a union, the United Public Workers of America, CIO. When the union heard of this, sharp protests were made to the FTC, the Civil Service Commission and the Office of the President.

FTC officials, after much argument and debate, some of which appeared in the press in Washington, agreed to take all of the OPA employes from the transferred Accounting Division.

Motives became all too apparent, however when, after the transfer was accomplished, all of the employes received dismissal notices. FTC officials then began to call in each employe for individual interviews to determine who would be rehired. So flagrant was this violation of Civil Service rules that when the union filed appeals the Civil Service Commission ordered FTC to take back this OPA group in strict observance of federal regulations. FTC was forced to take back 32 employes. Included among them were the eight Negro workers in this story.

OSTRACIZED

All of the wrangling with FTC occurred between November 1946 and January 1947. The eight Negroes began their assignments with FTC during the second week in January.

Although other transferred employes were assigned to various offices, these eight Negroes were all assigned to Room 121. No one else used that room. Room 121 was theirs.

When visiting the FTC building one notices name plates on the doors of all offices. Some doors have one name—for important persons, others are occupied by two or three workers. From the top brass to the lowest paid clerical worker—all have their names on the door of their offices.

Room 121, however, was an

Trail Blazers:

Sidney Moore

By PHYLLIS SCOTT

The effective manner by which the government has been practicing job discrimination against minority groups has become very serious. Its subtle, widespread practice and its inclination to deny the existence of racial discrimination permits the prejudiced in federal agencies to work with additional freedom. Because of this, thousands of Negroes suffer serious economic setbacks; and bitterness and disillusionment on the part of Negroes grows. The feeling of unity between Negro and white achieved during the war is gradually waning.

In the midst of the bitter struggle to reclaim and extend the rights gained in government employment during the war is Sidney Moore, international CIO representative of the Post Office workers. Because certain weaknesses existed in the post office unions, in 1945 Moore and 15 others organized a branch of the CIO in the post office. Today the branch numbers approximately 1000.

Before the CIO had been organized in the post office there were 20 post office unions throughout the nation and 10 in Los Angeles. None of these organizations could take in members from the other. So they remained small, weak, specialized groups made up separately of carriers, clerks, special delivery men, mail handlers, custodians, and others.

The decision by these 15 men to organize the post office employes into one big powerful union rather than specialized crafts was the most important move in post office employes' struggles to date. For the CIO combines public workers on a national scale into one big union known as the United Public Workers—CIO. Last year 76,000 public workers were taken into the union.

The United Public Workers is organizing in government service to improve the working conditions and get much needed salary raises for workers throughout the service. "We believe," says Moore, "that government should be a model employer. It is most difficult for the government to bring democratic methods of employment in private industry when the government, itself, is guilty of unfair and discriminatory practices."

President Truman said at the NAACP National Conference that "We must make the federal government a friendly and vigorous defender of the rights and equalities of all Americans—and I mean all Americans. Our National Government must show the way." But 10 government agencies openly discriminate.

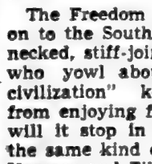
Moore says that the CIO is working to get President Truman to issue an Executive Order against discrimination in government service, pending adequate legislation.

Although the post office as a whole discriminates, conditions in Los Angeles have been greatly improved. Since Michael Fanning has become postmaster general of the Los Angeles area, nine Negro supervisors have been appointed, making a total of 12.

Moore, who entered the post office 23 years ago, retired because of defective disability. Upon his retirement he went to work for the CIO during the early part of this summer. A native of Dallas, he received his high school education at Langston university. After coming to California in 1923 he continued his education at UCLA and USC, majoring in commerce.

He is married to the former Jewel Odessa Hoffman and is the father of two sons, Strother and Sidney Jr., and two daughters, Jewel and Zelline. Among the organizations of which he is a member are the National Negro Congress, NAACP, YMCA. He is an active member of People's Independent Church of Christ.

Although union activity consumes most of Moore's time, he is actively connected with the National Negro Congress and religiously accepts the responsibility of his position. As chairman of the Labor Committee, much concentration is now being given to combatting job discrimination both in public and private service. Moore's efforts and the activities of the CIO should have the support of the people in reopening minority group job gains so creditably filled during the war.



THE LIVING SOUTH

THE FREEDOM LIMITED

Now I reckon that the Freedom Train which is being sent all over the nation ought to stand for Freedom Unlimited from the spruce pines up in Maine to the sand hills out in California.

I reckon that every American in every country store hamlet and in the big towns where you don't know your next-door neighbor's name ought to see the historical documents that they've got on that train, and memorize them like we used to memorize Bible verses in Sunday school.

I figure that Freedom Train ought to be parked for a long time in the Southern hamlets where the old South is still too strong and in the cities where it's showing signs of traveling on stiff joints. But I guess that its own sponsors, including Attorney General Tom Clark from Texas and Winthrop Aldrich, president of Rockefeller's Chase National Bank, will chalk "Freedom Limited" on it when it slows down to a dead stop at the Mason-Dixon line.

I guess that the stiff-necked, stiff-jointed old bosses of that old dying South don't want freedom rolling in on a train in the shape of a copy of the Declaration of Independence whose author was that great Southerner and great champion of human equality, Thomas Jefferson. I reckon they don't want it to come rolling in on the broad shoulders of a white man and a black man walking together to a union meeting and knowing that neither is free till both are free.

The Freedom Train won't roll on to the South where the stiff-necked, stiff-jointed old tomcats who yowl about "Anglo-Saxon civilization" keeping Negroes from enjoying freedom. Neither will it stop in the West where the same kind of varmints keep Negroes and Filipinos and Puerto Ricans and Dust Bowl whites from Oklahoma from enjoying what Tom Jefferson, the Southerner, called "Life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

'NO SEGREGATION'

The American Heritage Foundation which sponsors the Freedom Train issued a public statement through Banker Aldrich on September 28 declaring that "no segregation of any individuals or groups of any kind on the basis of race or religion (shall) be allowed at any exhibition of the Freedom Train held anywhere."

Which is mighty fine and good, and I'm quoting from the second paragraph of a story on the Freedom Train sent out by the Associated Press. But the payoff is in the last paragraph, telling us that:

". . . So far the tour has been mapped only through the northeastern states."

Read that again, friends, and start rubbing your eyes before the cusswords come rolling off your lips.

Why isn't the Freedom Train being turned into a Freedom Limited rushing down the tracks in the North and East but not even stopping at a cowpath in the South and West?

Are we trying to attain one standard of freedom in one half of the country and another standard of freedom, which is nothing but a standard of slavery, in the South and the West?

Are the main sponsors of the Freedom Train, the gentlemen holding vast investments in the economic enslavement of the South and West, afraid that men will start talking and acting about Freedom if they see with their own eyes the Declaration of Independence and its blazing words of a Southern white man that "all men are created free and equal?"

Does Texas oil drip in oily hypocrisy from the mouth of my old acquaintance, Tom Clark, when he comes to Boston to make great speeches about the launching of that Freedom Train which won't be seen in his home town of Dallas or my home town of Austin?

HITCHHIKING TO FREEDOM

Does Tom Clark think my homeland and his should hitchhike its way to freedom?

Or must we go on forever with the God-forsaken notion that nothing must be done to offend the slavemasters and slavecatchers? That the oppressed, suffering people of Georgia and Texas and Alabama must be given no ticket to freedom through enactment of bills outlawing lynching and the poll tax?

Are there to be no freedom trains and no freedom tickets in Dixie?

The trains of the Underground Railroad ran through Dixie and better men than Tom Clark and Winthrop Aldrich were the conductors. A man like Tom Clark, then attorney general of the United States, prosecuted one of the master conductors, John Brown, and sent him off to the gallows. But the trains went rolling along the Underground Railroad and they were Dixie's freedom trains.

These trains didn't fear to stop at any plantation where passengers waited. But must we always have to fight underground in Dixie?

Blood was the fare that we paid for freedom on those two Freedom Trains that were the Revolutionary War and the Civil War. And the documents being shown on that train were written in the blood of brave men and women of all races and all sections of our America.

When will America build freedom tracks for freedom trains that will span the South's hills and rivers with equality and fraternity and brotherhood?

Shall we derail freedom in Dixie only to derail it in the rest of our country which claims us all as its children?

The South waits in its calico and gingham, waits at the creeks and the crossroads, for the kind of a freedom train that won't have Jim Crow cars holding it back as it goes down the tracks.

And the train is long, long overdue for the people who're waiting.

wasting their money. As Ernest Lindley said (Newsweek, Sept. 22) . . . "pour more of our wealth down the drainpipe" and have Europe "go Communist" anyhow. Another capitalist, quoted by the New Republic, Sept. 15, said, "They take our money, curse us for fools and trouble-makers, and look more than ever to the Soviet Union for guidance."

The only other "solution" American imperialism can imagine for its dilemma, is war against the Soviet Union. That, indeed, it is preparing for, in part through the Marshall Plan of getting Western Europe into an anti-Soviet bloc.

But would an American-led anti-Soviet war really destroy this "specter that is haunting Europe, the specter of Communism?" Hitler tried that, with notable lack of success. Karl von Wiegand, no friend of the USSR, figured out that there are more people, hence more power, in the "Soviet bloc" than in the "western bloc."

Can the atomic bomb guarantee victory to imperialism? Dorothy Thompson laments that it wouldn't. Tito defies the atom. Stalin says atom bombs scare only cowards. Maybe the Soviet Union has atom bombs, too; or, something worse. Indeed, the British hint they think so. And Britain's leading atomic scientist, Prof. N. E. Mott, was reported by United Press on Sept. 17, as insisting that, if America and the Soviet Union go to war, Britain "must remain neutral" or be destroyed utterly.

More, Senator Taft declares that America can't whip Russia on its own soil, even if it turned America into an armed camp. And Henry Wallace, at Boston on Sept. 22, stated "The United States, with all its great wealth, with our arsenal of atom bombs and with the great moral principles of our people, will never win a third world war."

This horrible certainty, which nobody seems to want people to find out, should shock the American people as to what is being prepared for them in having them slaughtered by millions, under a war plan disguised as sweet charity. Besides defeat, or a victory as deadly, nothing is more certain than that another war will end with such a universal revolution as will put an end to the system of wage slavery that is known as capitalism. But, war or no war, capitalism is dying, as it was born, in blood and violence. It must be destroyed so that people may live. No Marshall Plan can save it.

'The Birth of the Blues'

By Helen Hirsch

History has proven that many a time a song lives where history itself is buried in the stormy events of time. Who would know of all the heroic efforts perpetuated in the building of America unless taught by folksongs such as "John Brown's Body" and others?

"Many of the world's greatest composers have written beautiful songs that have made the world a better place to live in, yet for themselves received very little encouragement and small remuneration. Some barely missed the pauper's grave," says William C. Handy in his autobiography Father of the Blues, "our Handy," as they call him in the South, where they never get tired of singing:

"Way back in Nineteen Ten—
Down in the Southern town of Memphis,
Early one morn—the first blues were born . . .
Handy brought renown—
down to Memphis town . . ."

Handy's great genius has created a new kind of music, the "Blues," which ever since have become American music; for, in their sad rhythm, they not only personify a stoical, yet impressive philosophy of a great race, but also of every human being that suffers. The blues are a melancholy type of music, full of plaintiveness, subdued sadness and yet of an undying sparkling naivete that appeals to all men alike. Enduring popularity is therefore theirs. In this respect, Negro music considerably resembles the melancholy Jewish folksong, singing of the worries and troubles of a harassed minority. Like the Negro spirituals, they have come from those groups of poverty-stricken people whose lives were the hardest. Out of slavery and duress, out of incredible hardships, the finest Negro and Jewish music was born, and out of an endless history of sacrifice, oppression and persecution, the most beautiful songs have sprung.

As a young man, Handy had wearily tramped the streets of the South and had gone North to St. Louis in search of work. Attentively he had listened to the songs of the stevedores while loading their boats; and when he heard their melodies, he felt that there was something in them, something even more important than money and fame. He listened again and again until the melodies reverberated in his heart and he felt ready to write them down—not just the way he had heard them, but—true genius that he is—he added new sparks to the lyrics and the music; he introduced the subtle three-line stanza, making a 12-bar strain—something entirely new—and put the songs in the major mode with a sudden change to minor, thus creating tthe famous "Blue Note" so well fit to the sad, plaintive character of these true folksongs, that come from the heart and go straight to the heart.

This was the time when young Handy played at the Alaskan Roof Garden in Memphis, Tenn., for $3 a night. He had to summon all his courage to order 1000 copies of his first "blues" at the cost of $50. When the sheets arrives, Kress, Woolworth and other Ten Cent Stores sold them for 10 cents apiece, and an elated Handy pocketed his first profit, the tidy sum of $400. And what an incentive it was to continue!

From 1912, beginning with his "Memphis Blues" over the St. Louis, the Joe Turner, Sundown, Beale Street Blues, down to his symphony "Blue Destiny," the Scherzo of which was first performed by the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Rudolf Ringwall, Handy's fertile brain evolved undying melodies. Today, sitting comfortably in his spacious offices on upper Broadway, Handy likes to show his visitors a letter dated some 30 years back. It states dryly that the St. Louis Blues could not be recorded "since the blues are only a fad and will soon be dying out." Today, Victor's world-famous recording of Handy's numerous blues prove that his songs are very much alive indeed, and that they talk too universal a human language to die; for they embody something that is in folkmusic from the beat of the tom-tom to the syncopation of ragtime. In his library, there is a record found in the caves of Iwo Jima, the "St. Louis Blues" sung in Japanese and recorded by Victor in Japan.

Why this universal appeal? There is an unconscious philosophy between the lines, there is laughter instead of tears when you feel "blue." As typical folksongs, born out of the very soul of the singer, like the worksongs, the lovesongs and the spirituals, the blues* are woven out of the same, immortal stuff.

They are ballads, not for just one race, but for all America, and therefore they are sung and danced to not only all over the Americas, but all over a song-and-music-hungry world. They are "lasting footprints on the sands of time," for their origin lies in deep suffering, which is not the privilege of one minority, but of all.

The following, heart-rending verses symbolize their soul:

"Take all the pain which the world has known,
It's bitterness and care,
Then add to it that of your own,
And you'll have the Negro's share.
Take all the light from the golden sun;
Each little ray apart;
The laugh of the stream; the song of the bird,
And you'll have the Negro's heart."

The Singing Measure

Mam'zelle Brunette

(A Rondeau)

By C. L. TUCKER

Mam'zelle Brunette, it seems you're everywhere.
Your skin, a silk in lovely shades, is browned.
You've risen high through strife and life to wear
Your worth so nations great have seen and found
It shines as diamonds set in raven hair.
It's true they called your hair
"a tameless pound
Of wool"; but 'neath your net, it
gleams this dare;
Can it be called so now? A problem's bound
To give for minds like yours,
Mam'zelle Brunette.
You're millions strong . . . a host of brown. Begowned,
Like fairy queens, you grace the stages fair.
You doctor, nurse and write
all 'round this mound
Of dirt called earth. The laboratories tear,
And schools demand you from your homes so sound.
The hearts of men see you,
Mam'zelle Brunette.

Books and Authors

The story of a recent journey through eight European countries—some of them behind the so-called Iron Curtain—will become available on October 22 with the publication of Continent in Limbo by Edith Sulkin.

For 15 months after the war—from January, 1946 to March, 1947—Edith Sulkin, who was born in Russia and lived for extended periods in several European countries, revisited Britain, Sweden, Norway, Finland, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Germany, and the Netherlands. Her mission was to learn how the people of Europe are living today; what they're doing and thinking; whether, and how effectively, they are recovering from the war.

Continent in Limbo is Edith Sulkin's firsthand report—written in terms of people, not governments—of a continent suspended between the ideologies of the East and West.

Cuban Assails U. S. Policies in Island

HAVANA, Cuba—Pointing out that United States spokesmen have denounced as "a maneuver" the Soviet Union's proposal that both U. S. and Soviet troops be withdrawn from Korea, a Cuban radio commentator had this to add:

"Would to God that the U. S., by conducting 'maneuvers' of this kind, would return to Cuba the naval base it has established at Guantanamo on Cuban soil. Would to God that by using these 'maneuvers' they would remove the offensive clauses in the sugar law and guarantee clauses for the benefit of our people."

mouth. Bleeding from his mouth, Silver then called Officer England, who is detailed to the place to keep order.

England asked Harston to get out of the place, according to Detective Ograin, but Harston is said to have stepped up to the officer and to have taken his night stick. An unidentified friend is then said to have taken Harston out of the cafe. However, Harston is alleged to have returned a short time later and to again have become abusive. Teh same friend then led him out again, according to police. They are said to have walked about 75 to 100 feet down the sidewalk. At that point, Officer England told an EAGLE reporter he stepped to the door of the cafe and looked out, as it was his job to keep the peace around the place and he wanted to be certain that no more trouble would occur.

At the end of the building, Harston, who was 5 feet 11½ inches and weighed about 217 pounds, is said to have picked up a brick in one hand and holding the officer's club in the other turned upon England and started advancing. England stated that he told Harston to halt but when he continued advancing he shot him through the right shoulder. Despite his wound Harston is alleged to have continued to advance and England shot again, the bullet striking Harston either in the chest or the stomach, killing him. England was not held by the police.

As the EAGLE went to press the date of the inquest had not yet been announced.

hired Negroes as janitors and maids only, and has consistently refused to discuss this matter with the NAACP, Barnes said.

Other groups which have tried unsuccessfully to contact the manager concerning the discriminatory policy are the Civic Action Committee, the American Veterans Committee, and the Santa Monica-Bay Area Committee on Human Relations.

"We have been very patient," Barnes said. "We have the names of competent and experienced clerks and sales persons who have applied for positions at Sears. The store is patronized by Negroes. We have attempted for three months to discuss objections to the insulting policy of the store. If our attempts at negotiations fail, we have only one last resort in the absence of fair employment practice legislation—economic action."

Rental Racket Lands Eastside Man in Prison

One rental racket was busted today as its operator took up his abode in the County Jail.

Fred H. Clark, 55, of 1522 E. 53rd st., was arrested on suspicion of grand theft after one of the 18 persons to whom he assertedly rented the same house complained to police.

According to Officers E. L. Newton and E. M. Hood, Clark admitted keeping a "For Rent" sign on his home for months and collecting $1900 in rental deposits and advances. He said he had returned $800.

Clark's arrest was made on complaint of Willie B. Dawson, 1551½ E. 52nd st., that he had given him a total of $195 in rental advances since last August 4, but that Clark had failed to vacate. Finally, Dawson said, Clark returned the money by check—but the check bounced.

● Film Executive

Schary declared that Negro artists will be given better parts in future productions. Mrs. Bilbrew had raised the question of what would happen if the South continues to ban pictures presenting the Negro as a normal human being, while Negro artists continue to refuse stereotyped parts.

Schary also answered in the affirmative a question by Charles D. Wherry whether he thought the industry would film the lives of Dr. Booker T. Washington, educator, and Dr. George W. Carver, scientist. Wherry has been conferring with film executives on that question. Schary mentioned that several years ago MGM made a short of the life of Dr. Carver. He said he understood it was well received everywhere it was shown, and was a box office success.

Suggestions were also made from the audience for the filming of the life of Frederick Douglass, rated by many the greatest Negro leader produced in the United States.

In a statement to the press, Wherry yesterday urged all citizens to plug for the abolition of sterotypes, and for the production of pictures of Dr. Washington, Dr. Carver and other great Negro leaders. He urged that letters and telegrams be sent to Dore Schary, RKO Studios, 780 No. Gover street, Hollywood. California, assuring him of public interest in such films. Wherry quoted former Vice President Henry Wallace as stating that this type of films would do much to wipe out race hatred.

Wherry started his campaign to have the life of Washington filmed as early as 1931. He has received words of encouragement from many noted persons, including Charles Edison, son of the inventor Thomas Edison; Chief Justice James H. Wolfe, Utah supreme court; Steve Brody, president Monogram Pictures Corp.; Fancis S. Harmon, vice president Motion Picture Assn., Mrs. Lucy Herman, Ruddersfield, England; Mrs. Helen D. Longstreet of Marieta, Georgia; Mrs. Kay Johnson, formerly of Oakland, Miss.; Mrs. J. Smith of Paris, France, and others from around the world, all wishing success for his campaign.

Beta Pi Sigma's Fashion Premier Date Draws Near

This affair will be held Monday night, the night before Armistice Day, Nov. 10, at the Meadowbrook. A prominent motion picture production designer will design and execute the show, and top designers are combining their talents to bring to the audience the trend-setting fashions of the future.

Reservations for the show can be made by calling the president, Miss Thelma Lee Wallace, CE 2-9513; Mrs. Jane Neely, RE 2-1540; Mrs. Bernice Nance, DR 5425, or the Meadowbrook.

court, Amer and Kim point out that it is not only they who are suffering but that all minority racial groups are. They remind the court that they do not believe "they fought in nor that World War II was fought for the purpose of extending the ugly head of racism in this country. Rather do they believe that the war was waged to eradicate this cancer." They "speak as two of the little people of this country. They plead for a simple right which they apprehend is inherent in the constitutional way of life: the right to own and live in the home of one's choice."

The American Civil Liberties Union and the Japanese American Citizens League are cooperating in the cases.

just the past two months.

● An all-time rise of 57.8 percent from the 1939 level, with food standing 95.4 percent over that norm, apparel 78.4 percent and house furnishings 76.7 percent.

Thomas L. Griffith Jr., president of the local branch of the NAACP, told the committee the dominant attitude of the Negro community here was in favor of rolling back prices on food, clothing and other basic commodities to where they stood in June, 1946, under the OPA.

He testified that overcrowded conditions in an area now accommodating 200,000 persons as against approximately 44,000 in 1940, had led to exorbitant rentals which, together with present spiralling food prices, have cut the food budget of many to a point dangerous to health.

Figuring the average medium monthly income in the area at $145, Griffith declared that from this amount a single individual must pay about $43 a month for rent, $75 for food, leaving only $27 for taxes, clothing, medical care, transportation and other necessary expenses.

The problem of high prices is further aggravated for the Negro, he declared, by reason of the disproportionate large number of Negroes unemployed. He pointed out that fully 10 percent of unemployed insurance claimants were Negroes "who were honest people wanting jobs and not unemployment compensation." As war industries are eliminated, the Negro finds it difficult to secure worthwhile employment, he said, adding, "Many industries refuse to have them referred to any kind of job in the plant."

Appearing as an observer in these Far Western hearings, Sen. Ralph Flanders of Vermont, chairman of the eastern inquiry body, related the findings of that group.

There, he said, the committee learned that "lower income groups" are paying as much as 60 percent of their weekly pay check for food alone. Other commodity merchants, he added, are complaining because "there isn't much left over for their wares."

Idaho Senator Plans Paul Revere Ride in Fight on War Mongers

Senator Glen H. Taylor, (D., Idaho) the singing cowboy senator, is planning to ride horseback, ala Paul Revere, from Los Angeles to Washington, D. C. to arouse the people along the way to the dangers threatening America from the administration's foreign policy.

Taylor feels the American people haven't been given the whole truth about our difficulties with Russia, and that if they knew the truth they would know it is not too hard to get along today with our former war ally. He plans to ride about 50 miles per day, stop off en route in cities and towns, and expects to get to Washington in January, just in time for the opening of congress.

Taylor will take his guitar, his 10-gallon cowboy hat, an extra horse, and an automobile trailer to haul food and equipment, and to tow the extra mount.

Senator Taylor is spending several days in Los Angeles before leaving on his tour.

Alan Hale Jr. isn't content with just working before a camera. He works behind one, too, on occasions.

How women and girls may get wanted relief from functional periodic pain

Cardui is a liquid medicine which many women say has brought relief from the cramp-like agony and nervous strain of functional periodic distress. Here's how it may help:

1- Taken like a tonic, it should stimulate appetite, aid digestion,* thus help build resistance for the "time" to come.

2- Started 3 days before "your time", it should help relieve pain due to purely functional periodic causes.

Try Cardui. If it helps, you'll be glad you did.

WHAT'S DOING IN THE SOCIAL SET

THE LEAGUE OF ALLIED ARTS, under the presidency of Dorothy Johnson, launched its 1947-48 club season, with Marjorie McPherson opening her home for the occasion and Ursula Murrell playing co-hostess. T'was a morning meeting Sunday and the smartly garbed femme membership was out en masse for the occasion. Not wasting a bit of the precious fall season, that is fast giving way to winter, plans were completed for sponsoring the Jacob Lawrence Exhibit of the "Life of John Brown" on Saturday evening, Oct. 18, at 7:30 sharp in the lecture room at the Main Branch of the public library.

Jessie Mae Brown

The exhibit is being circulated country-wide by the American Federation of Arts. Eula Long, artist-author, will be guest chairman, and Edward Biberman will be featured as guest speaker. The leaguers have invited a host of their friends through the mails, and the public at large through the press. Any way, they are almost certain the lecture room will hold its capacity when the special program takes place on Saturday night . . .

George Van Saake, internationally noted artist, was on the entertaining end when he honored Mr. Ali Vaughn, talented Negro sculptor from New York, with a cocktail party at his studio last week. Vaughn, who has done busts of eminent personalities all over the country, recently completed a bust of Van Saake while here in the city. Among the guests attending the cocktail party were: Leonard Vaughn, Mawdelle Bass, Dr. Alexander Arkatoff, Phyllis Scott, Thomas O'Malley and Mr. and Mrs. Woodall . . . Before giving the artistic realm its "30" for the week, must mention that short story writer, George Jefferson, will have that added bit of encouragement that tends to make men great. That's right, the young author two weeks ago joined the realm of brides and grooms. The charming Mrs. Jefferson is the former . . . of St. Louis, Mo.

POINTS OF INTEREST

Gwen Davis, very lovely registered nurse at the General Hospital, is shying clear of a big to do over her recent promotion. In fact we never would have found it out if her sorors in the local branch of the Nurses Sorority hadn't bared the facts that for the past three months Gwen has held the title of Superintendent Davis, marking the second race nurse to attain this goal at the General. Congratulations are in order, but definitely. . . . The local sorors of Iota Phi Lambda Sorority (business) will be experiencing the first regional conference to be held on the coast since its organization. Already the local president, Marion Jackson, has returned to the city and will give her conference report at Saturday's regular meeting. Arriving on Sunday will be Far Western regional directress, Thelma S. Freeman from Denver, Colo. She will be staying at the Watkins Hotel. By the way, work and more work, will rightly describe the order of the confab. . . . Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass, our editor, who was unable to attend the National meeting of Iota in Pittsburgh last month, will receive the honor of national honorary member at the close of the regional . . .

The Sigma's pre-Thanksgiving super dance at Meadowbrook is the main point of interest in frat circles. So happens that the gents are making special, I should say extra special, plans for the '48 National meeting here in L. A. According to the president, C. W. Hill, reservations are continuing to pour in for the gala affair.

Vye Aldreidge makes the news again this week, and the co-eds at LACC know the reason why. Am quite sure some of you recall a few years back when Vye organized the Alpha Phrateries over on the C. C. Campus, and that when the war rolled around she gave up the work to do her part with the USO, then as a ceremic creator and last but by far not least, a grand little mother. Enough of that, anyway, she has found time to advise the Phrateries again this year. Last Friday evening found ye scribe looking in on the activities of the Phraterie Group, that is chaired this year by Gloria Crouch. The program seemed interesting enough and the girls taking part were as cute as could be. Guests, in whose honor the affair was given, were: Ann Smith, Pat Brown, Rosalie King, Laverne Weaver, Chiquita Adams, Hilda Burns, Jackie Regard, Lady Mark Williams, Lonnie Duke, Wilma Ellis and Betty Aldridge. The all-femme affair was given at Audrey Cloyd's strictly Californian home on Gramercy. Among Phrateries taking special part were Sally Jones and Betty Linely, who gave UCLA up for the City College campus. Also noted Phyllis Golden and (Dossie) Townes in the group. Out of the group of girls entertained ten were accepted as members in the Phraterie club. Vye Thomas has a very interesting job on her hands this year.

HERE AND THERE

The arts seem to have the day, the chatter that has been monopolized by the Carol Brice and Muriel Rhan concerts now have a bit of added spice, the scheduled performance of Hazel Scott at Philharmonic this month. Her congressman husband is set for a lecture or two, and the social gatherings are already being planned in their honor. . . . Dr. Omar Stratton and bride Vernell (Gauthier) will only be in New York as long as necessary. Soon as interning is over they will head for Sunny Cal.

Sunshine Unit of Outdoor Life and Health Association to Finance Moving Buildings

Since the donation of three new buildings from Mr. Samuel Galter, Supt. in charge of buildings at the Los Angeles Jewish Sanitarium, all persons connected with the Duarte Outdoor Life and Health Association have been as busy as could be, making plans for the moving of the buildings and setting up tentative plans for the swelling of a fund to help renovate, stucco and furnish them.

The new buildings will house 14 patients comfortably. To put them in good working condition it will take a fund of around $3,000. This will include the roofing, fireproofing, stucco requirements of the government, plumbing, interior decorating and moving.

SUNSHINE UNIT

The Sunshine Unit of the Outdoor Life and Health Association is among the first of the many organizations that have pledged support to the Duarte Sanitarium, to take steps toward raising the needed money. To date the budget of the group is insufficient to meet the increases in operational coasts of the sanitarium, so on Friday night, Oct. 24, between the hours of 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. the Unit is sponsoring a dance. Sammy Franklyn's orchestra will furnish the music and talent from some of the city's leading professionals will make up the program. To date such names as Peg Leg Bates, Bobby Pittman, Trinier Twins, Henry Armstrong, Helen 5x5 Andrews, Eddie Green, Mantan Moreland, Haywood Jones, Martina D'arcy and many others have been added. Tickets for the mammoth benefit affair are on scale at the West Coast Public Service Bureau, 4233 S. Central Ave. and 1107½ E. Vernon Ave.

The Sunshine Unit was organized three years ago by Mrs. T. Ella Livi. Since that time, the members have pledged themselves to the support of the hospital by giving various affairs to raise money. To date this unit has contributed about $3,000 since organized.

This unit owes a special thanks to Al Jarvis for his contribution and aid in raising $2,000 of the money that has already been turned over to the hospital. The present officers of this fine organization are: Mrs. Rosa Bufford, president; Mrs. M. London, secretary; Miss Celestine Shambrey, corr. secy.; Mrs. Kathryn Johns, treasurer and Miss Alice DeCuir, program chairman.

The Sunshine unit has set a good example for other club's to follow. The Duarte Outdoor life and health is one organization that needs the support of the people of the community. If your club has not planned its philantropic work for the holidays why not center your attention on the Duarte Outdoor Life and Health.

Bernice Barnum Announces Nevin School's Program

Mrs. Bernice W. Barnum, principal of Nevin Avenue School, reports that the enrollment is 862 for the first month of school with 21 pupils on the kindergarten waiting list. Seven new additions have been made to the faculty which include Mrs. Mary Gardner Power, office teacher, Miss Mary A. Cianciola, 1st grade teacher, Mrs. Ruth A. Kenner, 1st grade teacher, Mrs. June T. Hunt, 4th grade teacher, Mrs. Genevieve Scott, 4th grade teacher, Mrs. Madeline Parker, 5th grade teacher, and Mrs. Burritt Jones, B6 teacher. These new teachers were guests of the other faculty members in the school cafeteria after school on October 4, when entertainment and refreshments were enjoyed. The new teachers are enthusiastic about the friendly cooperative spirit of the Nevin Avenue faculty.

Nevin Avenue is being used by the University of Southern California as one of its training centers in the preparation of teachers in the field of education. Five student teachers have been assigned here to observe the teaching done in the 4th, 5th and 6th grades by Mrs. Hunt, Mrs. Parker, Mrs. Moses, Miss Johnson and Mr. DeBose.

Parents who attended the first Parent-Teacher Association meeting for the new year in the Nevin Avenue School auditorium had an opportunity to meet the new teachers and to renew acquaintances with the others at a get-together tea following the meeting. At this meeting, Mrs. Barnum discussed plans for bringing about a closer relationship between the home and school. Mrs. Barnum is always ready to greet parents, explain the school and to answer any questions which parents have about the school and their children.

Miss Janice Brooks, the new school nurse, helps to further the friendly relations between the school and home. She is at the school on Mondays and Fridays and will gladly consult with parents about their children's health.

Charm School to Answer Need Of Young Women in Community

With fashions and charm taking the spotlight of activities the newly organized School of Charm is a definite answer to a prayer of the young women of the community.

On Monday night at Alpha Bowling Club, Miss June O'Neal assisted Miss Marjorie Elliot in organizing the first class. The school, boasting the earmarks of a first class finishing school, offers: Correct speech; performing before members; entering room properly; poise; correct and graceful movements of hands; how to walk, sit and get in and out of vehicles, etc.

The instruction will be private for one session and alternate with classroom work. The lessons will be given twice weekly. According to the Misses O'Neal and Elliot, the smart Negro women spend too much money for the wrong items, in other words, things they can very well do without. The two instructors plan to work with the girls and plan a co-ordinated wardrobe, suited to each girl and planned according to the budget of the individual. The school emphasizes that women of all types and ages who wish to enhance their personal charm and graciousness will benefit by this charm school.

Miss June O'Neal, instructor and head of the school, is active in modeling. She has modeled high fashions for top Hollywood names. Her work in fashion has appeared in Fashion Photography as Yee Thomas, O'Neil, and Paul Hesse. Recently she appeared in the Californian Magazine.

Miss Marjorie Elliot, majoring in psychology at UCLA, has studied for her position several years, under such well known instructors as Elinor King of "Glorify Yourself" fame. At present she is working with June O'Neal as co-instructor. Miss Elliot is also studying privately in Hollywood. It's Miss Elliot's hope that the charm school will soon have permanent location. Classes are being held at Alpha Bowling club. For further information call RE 2-4060.

Bethune Advises NCNW To Become Integrated Into Activities of Americans

Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune spoke to a capacity audience of Long Island Council members and friends Tuesday evening, Oct. 7 at the Merrick Community Center in Jamaica. Dr. Bethune said: "Women this is your hour. Become integrated into the activities of (American) women. Take your place beside other women of the world. Get acquainted with them—they do not know you. You have a part in making democracy work here."

About the N.C.N.W. she said: "Nno one of our National organizations can gain proper recognition alone. It takes all our National organizations working together as one, and with unity of purpose to face the tide of unrest and uncertainity today." She further stated that women who choose to stay out of the council and criticise may continue to do so, but that the council will not fail. "I put my trust in God and He does not fail."

Dr. Bethune is founder and president emeritus of the Bethune-Cookman college in Daytona Beach, Fla. At the Sept. convention of the International Council of Women which met in Philadelphia this year ten women in the United States had voting power. Dr. Bethune was one of the ten women.

The mistress of ceremony for the occasion was Mrs. Fred Norman of St. Albans, L. I., organizer and president of the Long Island Council. She is the wife of the noted Broadway arranger-composer, Fred Norman.

Mrs. Eunice Kirton, accompanied by Mrs. Grace Seiver, rendered a vocal solo. Mrs. Ruth DeFossette of Corona, L. I., chairman of the entertainment committee, and her committee were in charge of the beautiful reception for Dr. Bethune after her address.

WHAT'S DOING IN THE SOCIAL SET

By JESSIE MAE BROWN

Omar will set up practice somewhere in the land of sunshine. Whether it will be north or south has not been decided. . . . On Sunday afternoon, Yvonne Bean will be receiving guests at a miscellaneous bridal shower she is giving in honor of Odessa James' coming marriage to Vance Jones. . . . On last Saturday night the big surprise was on Libby Clark's mother. She birthday celebrated and in extra grand style, for Libby had invited a good number of her friends in for the occasion. C. and Lillian Fentress, Phyllis Scott, Rudy Henderson, LaTayna and Earl Griffin; LeRoy Beavers, Mrs. A. C. Bilbrew (Foxes of Harrow), and many another. Libby Clark is one of the Fourth Estaters of L. A. . . .

WELL! WELL! WELL!

Ruth Kenner is now teaching at Nevin Avenue school, under Principal Bernice Barhum, and she is finding the L. A. system to be quite a bit like Detroit's. . . . Clori Ann Young, with a grand New York vacation behind her, is finding time to squeeze in a little night study along with working. . . . Gloria Bunch and her sis leave Saturday for a two weeks vacation at Catalina Island. . . . Theodore Lumpkin is busy doing social work in a neighboring town. . . . Mrs. Josephine Brown was among the Red Cross workers at tthe Kick Off affair at the Ambassador Wednesday. . . . October 19 West View Day In Churches

Many of the leading churches throughout the city will sponsor "West View Tag Day" Sunday, October 19. The "West View Committee" in each church will give tags to all persons who contribute to the building fund of West View Hospital, to help give to Los Angeles its first interracial, non-sectarian, non-profit hospital.

Dozens of civic-minded ministers are active in promoting the participation of churches in fund raising for West View. This Tag Day opens a month of intensive effort in the churches to raise funds for the hospital. The drive will culminate in a "West View Emphasis Week", to be held during the latter part of November.

The "West View Ministers Committee," headed by Rev. H. Mansfield Collins, chairman, and Rev. J. L. Caston, secretary, has divided the city into the following four zones: No. 1, Eastside, north of Vernon ave.; No. 2, Eastside, south of Vernon avenue; No. 3, South Los Angeles; and No. 4, Westside-Temple. SOBRIETY

When we speak of a man as being sober, the general impression is that he is not a drunkard. Another popular conception is that he uses his thinking faculties for other things than a hat-rack. What with these uncertain times in which we live, one needs to possess and control his thoughts and actions in all sobriety.

"To think soberly," means to be temperate or moderate in thought, self-controlled and calm. A sober man is one who thinks before he acts. Without much serious thought there is little chance for success.

We must make an effort to gain that intelligent alertness, that sobriety of outlook which will make our actions correspond with our thinking.

R. E.—Dear Prof. Herman: Hearing of you through your friends and customers, I decided to write you for help. My wife and I do not get along. Do you think we will be able to reach an understanding soon?

Ans.—Probing into the matter I find that your arguments are based on trivial matters and can easily be avoided if you both try to do so. I would be glad to advise you further regarding your difficulty if you will write in for a private reply.

M. D.—Does this man really care for me?

Ans.—A careful analysis of your question indicates that your fiend is very fond of you. As long as he gives you no cause to doubt his sincerity I suggest you put your suspicions and distrust out of your mind.

DISGUSTED—I am worried and upset, my home affairs are in bad condition. Will things ever brighten up for us?

Ans.—It appears to me that you and your husband are unemployed, hence the dissatisfaction and financial trouble. I feel however, that your husband will son find a job which will eliminate some of the headaches and since you are also interested in finding work, you may be successful in getting some part-time employment.

L. M. H.—Dear sir: Would you advise me to marry again, in order to give my baby a name?

Ans.—Your Lucky Stars and Guiding Planet indicate many changes in the near future. One of these changes will in all probability be your marriage to the father of your child. If you did not love him, I would not suggest it but under the circumstances, it seems to be the best thing you can do for all concerned.

S. J. M. H.—Should I try to make the best of this situation, or make a change?

Ans.—My Psycho-Mentalist Crystal reveals many things, that are causing you unhappiness. Your husband is a habitual drunkard and mistreats you when he is under the influence of drinks. He keeps you constantly upset because he goes out every night . . . and comes back in this condition. When he says he loves you, he means it, but seems to have no control when it comes to drinking. If he persists in this, and doesn't try to break himself of the habit, I see no reason why you and your younger daughter should suffer. A change would definitely be in order.

Mrs. M. P. G.—What does the future hold for me?

Ans.—According to your Zodiacal Sign, you are destined to meet some new friends and your financial conditions are going to improve. Many things are revealed to me, but I am unable to relate them because of the limited amount of space. Why not write for your Personal Horoscope today, and learn what the future holds for you.

Santa Monica Notes

By LOWELL EVANS

By LOWELL EVANS

It is interesting to note the President's request for volunteer rationing of food is getting enthusiastic support from the housewives and hostelries in general. I am hoping that this will cause food prices to go down. One thing that the people of the Bay cities can be thankful the is the opportunity of fishing and substituting same for meat. Somebody please page Chester Bowles and tell him that the 80th congress is on the spot. Had we retained price controls, conditions would be much better.

Aside from the fact the cost of living has exceeded income for the laboring people the economical picture has been further complicated by layoffs. According to Dun & Bradstreet retail sales for 1947 have exceeded those of 1946 by 34 per cent. You can write your own report of this by noticing the large crowds down town in Los Angeles and Santa Monica shopping.

It might be well for you to wait until next year for that new car. According to predictions car prices will tumble in the summer of 1948; this is based on the rate of production and the expectation that the supply will exceed the demand and that surplus dollars will not be as plentiful. On the other hand real estate is not expected to have an appreciable drop in prices.

Contrary to rumors that gasoline would have to be rationed due to a shortage. It has been recently announced that there is plenty of gasoline, but there will be a shortage of a special type of gas with the army and navy asking for additional allotments. You can understand the prospective shortage.

The food conservation program has been met with a protest by the distillers' employes union. They are threatening to sue the distillers if there is a shutdown in according with the proposed program for the distillers to shut down for a period of time to save grain. The union is taking the position that the shutdown would work a hardship on the employes, and that is the industrial picture as I see it today.

The Alphas have received permission to block off the street for this special affair. There will be dancing, refreshments, prizes for the best costumes, kissing booths, etc., so don't miss this night of fun.

Since changing their minds about giving a Halloween Ball, the Kappa Scrollers are now planning to give a dance on November 22, after the UCLA-USC football game. This will prove to be a fine after-game treat for all collegiates of L. A.

The Pyramid Pledge Club of Delta Sigma Theta are now making plans for a bright future. Sunday, October 12, saw many new members being accepted intot the Pledge Club, including Bette McDonald, Janez Lawson, Evelyn Strickland, Tanis Fortier, Lucille Wilson, Margaret Moncada, Willie Avery, Chanie Bujol, Marcelyn Johnson, and Ann Smith. Congratulations, girls, on becoming part of a great organization that seeks to better the social welfare of this city.

Browsing around the campi again this week, we find students like Louise Beadle, Audrey Bledsoe, William McCoy, Berdell Forest, Louie Robinson, June Wilson, Charles Reed, and Ona Ross, studying hard at their books. Milford James seems to spend most of his time trying to find the right girl. He must have missed a lot while he was in Japan. Looking around the campus, it seems kind of lonesome not to find such familiar faces as those of Vivian Towns, Georgette Shores, Ernie Spearman, Henrey Balow, Bernice Rigard, Joyce Finney, and Marjorie Garrott.

Out Bruinville way, all the talk centers around the planned trip tot Palo Alto for the UCLA-Stanford football game. Planning to make the long trek north to cheer the Bruins on in second defense of their Pacific Coast Conference Crown, are Harry Jones, Walter Young, Weldena Hefflin, Vernon "Butch" Randall, Teresa Richards, Janis Epps, Jean Arnold, Vernon "Kappa Dan" Dancey, and Faye Hopkins. Here's hoping you bring back the "cigars" from the Stanford Indian.

The past weekend seemed to be pretty dull, so let's hope there will be more for next week. 'Til then—so long.

Raisin' Cain

By CARL L. CAIN

Russia, Russia, and more Russia. There is nothing so bitterly intriguing than to hear the news reporters, commentators, and newspaper daily blasting away at the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. They are talking Russia when they should be talking bread. We have been drawn word pictures of a kind Russia and a mean Russia; a crazy Russia, and a sane Russia. We have heard some critisize, and none with a thoughful word on behalf of Russia—not here in America, for they dare not take a chance on being put on the spot by a certain "un-American Activities Committee."

Today, when the only problems should be peace and bread, there are those who find all the time in the world to criticize a way of life that is not American. And that way of life is communism. The very word draws pain to the ears of some, and you should know who I tend to implicate. I do not refer to the critics in Washington, though they are a part of it, or to the backyard washwomen. I refer to the people who live within and about our neighborhoods, working and living with you and me. I am refering to the man who goes down the street with his lunch box at six in the morning, to the business manager who snugs in his briefcase under his arm. I refer to you, and to me; to all those who have been intoxicated with the millions of tons of propaganda that we have heard about Russia and its' Communism.

I refer to the people who would destroy a government which is trying to give its' people something that capitalism has never before sufficiently offered—food and shelter, and the common necessities of life.

A hungry world is never a peaceful world—when a man is hungry, do you think for a moment that he's inclined to worry about peace? Do you think that his mind is on a document that promises more than it is ever possible to grant? It couldn't be clearer that he is willing to fight for food, and forget about the documents.

Have we forgotten, in these few, few months, the part Russia played in winning the second World War? Let us remember that Russia too has some cross-lined cemeteries, veterans recovering in hospitals, and broken hearted mothers. We must not forget that had it not been for the aid of Russia, the war might have lasted years longer, meaning that thousands, and multiplied thousands of young, innocent boys would not have been able to return to their beloved America.

In the unrest, bitterness and confusion that follows the Second World War, let us not be swept up in moments of frustration—into believing that we are about to be wiped off the face of the earth by Russia. I know that you are familar with the expression, "gagging at a gnat and swallowing a camel." It is exactly what the American people are doing today. We are going across the ocean to attack someone else, when we have plenty of greed, prejudice, hate, and other problems to cop awith here.

And when the work of American leaders gets too liberal, the way to stop it is by ordering an investigation by the House un-American Activities Committee. Then, naturally, the man or woman is humiliated by being branded "a Communist."

But let me not be too severe in discussing this problem. For if it were not Russia behind the eight ball, it would be some other nation, someone to be kicked around in the world of greed, scheming, and political differences. There just is no rest for the nations of the world, regardless of the remedy we try to use, or the foreign policies that are set up. Newspapers are ready to set up type and print casualty lists of the dead and wounded of this or that area, city, or town. They are again, after a short rest, ready to supply their hungry headlines with bitter tales of battle and conflict.

This business about the representatives of Russia at the UN conferences—I do not understand. It seems that the only thing that the nations want is signatures on documents. Documents, promises, which can and will be broken at any necessitated time. Due to the fact that Russia does not agree, for the sake of agreeing, she is bolstering the efforts put forth by the world to maintain peace for a hungry and battle torn world. Actually what most of the representatives want is a signature on a document and boatfare back to their respective plots of land, in some far corner of the earth. Sure, they are willing to sign, but when the test comes, when the world gets hungry and ragged, ready to go to war for bread, what good is a signature on a document! This 'veto' business—which nation was it that dreamed it up? Let no one tell you that it was Russia, never . . .

Now, because Russia offers the people, the common folks, just old hard working foggies like you and me, something for their welfare, pot-gutted politicians are getting worried. They fear that type of government—it might spread, and get the poor men and women of this country, their stepping stones, aroused, and then a hell of a fix they'd be in.

In closing, let me offer a word of advice; a bee's sting is painful, but a rattlesnake's bite is poisonous.

Joe E. Browns Donate Bldg. to UCLA Camp for Underpriveleged Kiddies

In memory of their late son, Don, comedian Joe E. Brown and Mrs. Brown donated funds to build a headquarters lodge completed last week at University Camp, UCLA students summer camp for underprivileged children.

Young Brown, an army air corps officer, was killed in the crash of an Army plane near Palm Springs during the war. At UCLA Brown served a term as president of the student body, starred in football and hockey and led activities of the University Religious Conference, off-campus inter-faith organization.

He served for two summers on the staff of University Camp, sponsored by the Conference, and was head councilor at the camp the year before he entered the Army. Don helped campaign on the UCLA campus for money to send underprivileged children to the camp, located near Seven Oaks in the San Bernardino mountains. He visited hundreds of homes during the year he was head councilor to enroll deserving children for a free stay at camp.

Last spring Mr. and Mrs. Brown offered to provide University Camp with a building to be called the Don E. Brown Memorial Lodge. Workmen began on the structure when the camp closed, six weeks ago. The lodge was completed Saturday and is to be dedicated next spring.

The building is a stone-walled structure with a steep-sloped roof. It has 2,400 square feet of floor space and incorporates a recreation hall, snack bar, handicraft rooms and a storage loft. A group of UCLA and LACC students left their studies Saturday and Sunday, October 4 and 5, to go to camp to put the finishing touches on the lodge and close camp for the winter.

Noted Educator Warns Students to Beware of Becoming Satisfied

"Education should be designed to create in youth a discontent for anything less than the best," President Benjamin E. Mays of Morehouse college told the students and faculty on Tuesday in the last of a series of chapel talks discussing "Education for What?" Continuing, he stated, that "satisfaction in any area means ultimately death and stagnation, and he warned his listeners to beware of becoming satisfied.

Five other points were stressed by the noted educator. (1) That education ought to be designed to provide a student with skills so that he might be able to be at home in the world and be an asset rather than a liability to society; (2) that education should increase one's capacity to appreciate living and get the maximum enjoyment out of life; (3) that education is designed to discover or awaken the average or exceptional mind and stimulate that mind to its greatest power; (4) that the end of education is to find a specific task and to do it; and (5) that education should be designed to make men better.

President Mays frankly admitted taking issue with Harvard, Yale and Princeton university reports for concentrating on the perfection of skills as the ultimate goal of education, when, as he sees it, education should be designed to make men honest, good and true. The development of skills, he pointed out, should be secondary.

The speaker believes that if Russia in a generation could make Communists, if Hitler could turn every youth in Germany into a Nazi, and that if Japan could develop the Fascists, then colleges and universities in America, in one generation, could make the country democratic if they got at the heart of the educational system.

Exploitation in economics and prejudices should not be possible to the real university-trained man, Dr. Mays averred.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. IKE EVANS, D.D.

Subject: The Creative Power of Faith. Lesson Text and Outline. Hebrews 11:1-10, 39-40; 12:1-2. Motto Text Hebrews 11.1.

Introduction

In a Scripture classic the creative power of faith is tersely defined, abundantly illustrated, and strikingly applied to life today.

Comments

1. True faith is an old grace, and has the best plea to antiquity: it is not a new invention, a modern fancy; it is a grace that has been planted in the soul of man ever since the covenant of grace was published in the world; and it has been practised from the beginning of the revelation.

2. The apostle insists upon to render their faith more illustrious, and to provoke Christians to a holy jealousy and emulation; that they should not suffer themselves to be outdone in the exercise of faith by those who came so short of them in all the helps and advantages for believing. Paul tells the Hebrews that God had provided some better things for them, and therefore they might be assured that he expected at least as good things from them; and that since the gospel is the end and perfection of the Old Testament, which had no excellency but in its reference to Christ and the gospel, it was expected that their faith should be as much more perfect than the faith of the Old Testament saints; for their state and dispensation were more perfect than the former, and were indeed the perfection and completion of the former, for without the gospel church the Jewish church must have remained in an incomplete and imperfect state. This reasoning is strong, and should be effectually prevalent with us all.

3. We should lay aside every weight and sin. Every weight, that is, all inordinate affection and concern for the body, and the present life and world. Inordinate care for the present life, or fondness for it, is a dead weight upon the soul, that pulls it down when it should ascend upwards, and pulls it back when it should press forward; it makes duty and difficulties harder and heavier than they would be. The sin that doth so easily beset us; the sin that has the greatest advantage against us, by the circumstances we are in, our constitution, our company.

Comment on the Motto Text

Faith and hope go together and the same things that are the object of our hope are the object of our faith. It is a firm persuasion and expectation that God will perform all that he has promised to us in Christ; and this persuasion is so strong that it gives the soul a kind of possession and present fruition of those things, gives them a subsistence in the soul, by the first-fruits and foretastes of them: so that believers in the exercise of faith are filled with joy unspeakable and full of glory. Christ dwells in the soul by faith, and the soul is filled with the fulness of God, as far as his present measure will admit; he experiences a substantial reality in the objects of faith.

Haralded Prophet Opens Fresno Meet

Dr. James F. Jones, widely heralded modern day prophet, is temporarily sojourning in Fresno, Cal. He is accompanied by his mother, Rev. Lady C. L. Jones, and his staff of assistants.

According to Dr. Jones, he is not the leader of any "cult", sect, or denomination, but is the spiritual head of an ecclesiastical corporation known as Universal Triumph and Dominion of God. This organization is described as universal in scope, is incorporated and recognized in the Unitede States, its territories and possessions, and all major countries of the world, their territories and possessions. It teaches clean living, spiritual and physical preparation for coming of the kingdom of God to the earth, and continued life in the body. Dr. Jones' title is "Dominion Ruler" and he is addressed as "Your Holiness or His Holiness", and his mother's title is "First Dominion Lady" and she is addressed as "Your or Her Grace".

Dr. Jones established a Thankful Center in Los Angeles last June. This center has purchased property at 5329 So. Main st., where meetings are held each Sunday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings at 8 p.m. and at 1 p.m. on Sunday.

The growth of the organization has been phenominal, having spread from an humble beginning in Chatanooga, Tennessee, into most of the states. Many "disseminators" (ministers) were ordained during the general assembly held last August in Detroit, Michigan, and many appointments to new fields were made. This year will see thankful centers established in 44 states. In California centers are being established in Pasadena, Bakersfield, Fresno, Sacramento, Berkeley, Oakland and San Francisco.

A modest, well dressed man, with a charming personality, Dr. Jones is reputed as establishing himself a prophet sent from God, through his miraculous works. He is one of Detroit's most famous citizens, and is greatly loved and highly respected there. He declares that just as God directed him to leave Chattanooga and go to Detroit, he has directed him to come to California.

While Dr. Jones will spend much time in Los Angeles in a home soon to be purchased, he will retain fully furnished, his beautiful French castle in Detroit, because it was his first headquarters.

On Sunday October 19, a caravan of dominion citizens will journey to Fresno to be present at the opening of a series of meetings which he will conduct in that city.

The dominion citizens of California hail the coming of their leader to this state, because they feel that his coming will mean much to California.

Responsible Leadership of McCoy Memorial Usher Bd. Cited in Sun. Anniversary

The usher board of McCoy Memorial has made rapid strides during the past four years. It was in August, 1943, that our pastor, Rev. E. A. Anderson, assumed the pastorate of the McCoy Memorial Baptist Church, 802 E. 46th Street.

At that time, there was a very small usher board. Rev. Anderson proceeded to reorganize the board, and with the help of our former president, Mr. W. M. Moore, the board grew rapidly. Great success has been achieved under the leadership of our past and present presidents.

The Usher Board, under the capable leadership of Roy E. Hammock, celebrates its fourth anniversary. Our pastor, the president, the Usher Board and the entire membership of the McCoy Memorial Baptist Church, invites one and all to come and worship with them Sunday, Oct. 19, 3 p.m. Hear some of the best artists of various churches and of the union usher board of Southern California.

Dr. Geo. W. Harvey Succeeds Dr. Brown as Editor of Bapt. Sunday School Commentary

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—The 27th annual Sunday School Commentary, published by the Sunday School Publishing Board of the National Baptist Convention, U.S.A., Inc., will soon be off the press. It has been written and edited by Dr. George W. Harvey, editor-in-chief, successor to the late Dr. J. T. Brown, who was a celebrated writer, theologian and editor for Baptists for more than 45 years.

Dr. Harvey has received many commendations on his writings, editorials and biblical interpretations since July 1945, when he began his duties at the Sunday School Publishing Board, here at the Publishing House of the National Baptist Convention, Inc., U.S.A., of which Dr. A. M. Townsend is secretary.

In a recent interview, Dr. Harvey said: "The 1948 Commentary will more than meet the general expectations of our great denomination. Even though this is my first book on the entire Sunday school lessons for the year, I feel that every user of the 1948 Commentary will find it helpful in every way."

On Tuesday, November 4, at 8 p.m. the third program will feature several choirs as guests, representing various churches of the city.

Under the capable direction of Mrs. Minnie Albritton-Hampton this service promises not only enjoyment of exquisite musical artistry, but a heart-warming exhibition of church fellowship of deep and vast portent.

Fifty Groups to Map Program on Race Relations

SAN FRANCISCO—Representatives of nearly 50 community organizations concerned in the State of California's race relations are preparing this week for the annual meeting of the California Council for Civic Unity, scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 18-19, at Asilomar.

More than two score California committees, ranging from tiny Belltown, near Riverside, through Los Angeles and San Francisco, will be represented at the meeting when President Ruth Kingman gavels the opening session to order.

High on the annual meeting's agenda will be plans for launching the California Council on a full-scale, full-time program, necessitated by the withdrawal from the West Coast field of the American Council on Race Relations.

Delegates from 43 affiliated organizations, along with observers and visitors from many similar groups, will discuss changes in the structure of the California Council and develop a program of action dedicated to the betterment of race relations throughout the state.

Some part of the sessions will be devoted to panel discussions of the major problems confronting agencies who are working in the group relations field. These will include employment, housing, civil rights, and community education.

Speaker at the principal night session on Saturday will be Col. Fred Herzberg, now the executive director of the community relations committee of the Los Angeles Jewish Community Council, formerly the director of the Army's School for Personnel Services, Division of Information and Education.

The meeting will also elect officers and board of directors to govern the Council through the following year.

Puerto Rican Group Seeks Labor Unity Ban on Race Bias

SAN JUAN—A federation to reunite the long-divided Puerto Rican labor movement was formed as the result of a 2-day conference here.

The new body, called the General Workers Union, has pledged itself to fight for complete labor unity, for the industrialization and independence of Puerto Rico, against the Taft Hartley law which applies to U. S. possessions as well as to the U. S. proper, and against American-fostered racial discrimination in the island.

High Court To Hear Mississippi Youth's Appeal

NEW YORK—Briefs in the case of Eddie (Buster) tton vs. State of Mississippi were filed by the NAACP orneys on Monday in the U. S. supreme court. Hearing fore the court will probably be held during the week of vember 17. The high court granted a writ of certiorari the case on June 24 last, act- upon a petition filed by the ACP on June 12, 1947.

Patton, a Lauderdale county, Mississippi, youth, was indicted in February 1946 for the alleged murder of Jim Mecows, a white resident of the unty. He was tried in the cuit court of Lauderdale on b. 28 and was convicted the me day. He was represented the trial by local appointed hite counsel. Sentenced to be electrocuted, his case was appealed by the NAACP.

The NAACP briefs filed with U. S. supreme court raise arguments that constitutional guarantees were violated Patton's trial because Negroes Lauderdale county were systematically excluded from jury vice, that portions of an alged confession which were admitted at the trial constituted ersible error because they e obtained by force, threats intimidation.

The briefs point out that ugh the population of Laudale county as between Nees and whites is approxitely 50-50, the facts show that at least 30 years prior to ton's trial, no Negro had ved on the grand or petit jury he county; that it was a matof common knowledge that re were many Negroes in the nty qualified for jury service, that Negroes were consistly being selected to serve on es in the federal courts loed in the county.

Planning Body Warns Weakening Of Density Controls Invites Slums

An urgent plea that Los Angeles be protected against tenement districts similar to New York and Chicago was made yesterday in a letter from the City Planning commission to members of the city council.

The council currently has before it several proposals, which if approved, will greatly relax density requirements in present multiple housing zones. Planning commissioners contend sufficient area has been zoned for multiple housing without the necessity of amending the present ordinance to permit more families per lot. Present density controls, they point out, are acapable of accomodating a population of six million persons, slightly more than three times the present population.

In the letter, the planners stressed the growing trend throughout the nation toward some type of density control. Without it, they said, growing cities are subject to overcrowding which is already well demonstrated in eastern cities.

Commissioners admitted that individual owners can build up pretty good cases for specific lots which are limited in the number of multiple units allowed, but they disagreed with recent charges that multiple housing has been curtailed because of zoning. Since January, 350 apartment building permits have been issued under the new zoning ordinance, they said. They cited Baldwin Hills Village, Park LaBrea and Wyvernwood as examples of multiple housing projects built to present restrictions, yet far under present density requirements.

It is more imoprtant, they said, to consider the welfare of the community than that of the individual who desires to develop his property for investment purposes. The commission, they added, cannot ignore the interests of those who will have to live with the conditions created by those who build.

In closing, the planners emphasized the great potentialities of Los Angeles, which is, they said, one large city where light, air and privacy are not, as yet, at a premium as they are in over congested eastern cities.

"It would be deplorable," they said, "if building regulations were relaxed to a degree where these potentialities would be squandered for the sake of a few to the detriment of the many."

Betty Hill, Della Bell Head Xmas Seal Drive

Mrs. Betty Hill, of 1655 West 37th place, and Mrs. Della Bell, of 3108 Gleason, have been named general chairman and chairman, respectively, for the special areas in the forthcoming Christmas Seal sale, which is to open Nov. 24, Sherman Asche, president of the Combined Christmas Seal Fund of the Los Angeles County Tuberculosis and Health Association, announced yesterday.

The two chairmen will work particularly in the Watts, Central avenue and Boyle Heights sections, and will name their committees soon.

Urges AFL Parley Fight Segregation

NEW YORK—In a wire to President William Green at the convention of the American Federation of Labor in San Francisco, Walter White of the NAACP yesterday called on the AFL for an all-out war against segregation "in all of the communities of the nation." The telegram read:

"As you meet in this historic year, may the delegates have a new determination to war against segregation and discrimination in all of the communities of the nation. The do-nothing attitude of congress on anti-lynching bills, fair employment practice legislation, and other matters in which we have a vital and mutual interest is the unwholesome twin of the drive to shackle the labor movement with the Taft-Hartley Act. Our organization recognizes that we have a common fight for justice. We join with you in a pledge to keep the torch of freedom held high and brightly burning."

L AMERICAN BOUND

When the history of American football for 1947 is put into int, the names of six Negroes should be found under the chapter All Americans, Len Ford, fast Michigan end who seems to be le to snatch a pass whether covered by one man or eleven; eorge Talliaferro, Indian back named one of the Big Nine's best '45; Levi Jackson, undoubtedly the best backfieldman Yale has d in years; Earl Banks, hard hitting Iowa guard; Paul Patterson, med Illinois halfback; and Ike Owens, Illinois end.

E BROWN BOMBER AND JOE

Brown Bomber Joe Louis, World's Heavyweight champion will fend his title at Madison Square Garden, December 5, when he eets Jersey Joe Walcott, the boy who showed that he deserved crack at the title by defeating Joe Maxim. Louis will report for eliminary training the latter part of this month at French Lick rings, Indiana.

VO MORE WOULD MAKE A TEAM

Pro football seems to be getting a bigger rating among the ns this year, and who knows why? Negro support can be underood by the fact that nine Negroes are playing the game pro. ddy Young was responsible for a 89,000 attendance at the New rk Yankee-Los Angeles Don game here at the Coliseum about ur weeks back; Kenny Washington is still a darwing card and good ball carrier for the L. A. Rams although the only Negro the Ram squad since Woody Strode has been released, and ce Washington is still suffering an injured knee; Bert Piggot, A. Don halfback who quit the Illinois squad; John Brown, best nter last year that the CIAA had, now playing for the L. A. ns; Ez Anderson, former Kentucky star and now a reserved end the Dons; Marion Motley, 237 pound fullback for the Cleveland owns; Bill Willis, Cleveland Brown star holding down an end sition; Bill Bass, halfback for the Chicago Rockets, who won't let pass get by him on the defense; and Horace Gillom, former vada star, now holding down an end position on the Cleveland own third string.

D, NOT PRO BALL

Don Barksdale, UCLA star basketball center and valuable pha Frat basketball man on last season teams left Los Angeles cently for Oakland, California, where he will join the Oakland ttners, amateur basketball team. The question that most Barksle admirers are asking is whether or not Don is going to play o ball. The answer is no, not soon anyway.

Sports of All Sorts

By STANLEY ROBERTSON

It's been a long, long, drought er on the Green and Gold mpus, a drought that has sted all of six lean years, but is may be the year that the reat Drought will end and a range band of Jefferson Demoats will climb once more upon e "Hooper Express," and roll to the Promised Land of Vicry.

Not since way back in 1940 hen Tommy Pollard and Joe ack led the Green Knights own Victory Lane, has there ppeared upon Fulton Field a am that shows as much promse as this year's. In halfback yer, Jefferson may boast its rst All-City candidate since illie Lightsey departed after e '45 season. Young Dyer, who oasts a 9.7 century to his credit, minds your Thursday Morning uarterback of Claude "Buddy" oung when he begins to ramble ownfield. Dyer is not only fast ut rugged!

Up front in the forward wall, efferson, with a lot of concenation on fundamentals, could evelop into one of the best lines the always tough Southern eague. In last week's Jordan ame, the Democrat tackles and nds were missing too many locks on plays around their pposition ends. In the center of he line, the local lads could lso stand some more polish on heir blocking and tackling, but he Green Wave forward wall vill improve as the season goes long for very rarely has a team ome along that likes to play nd hates to lose as much as the 947 edition of the Jefferson varity.

Don't go rushing out and limb upon the Jefferson bandwagon right away though. They ave a fighting ball club, but ince way back in June, the Vashington Generals have been onceded the Dixie loop flag. rom the scores of practice ames, it looks as though the xperts were right in tabbing he Generals thusly. The Los Anseles Romans, the Roosevelt Rough Riders, and the Democrats' arch rival the Fremont Pathfinder, must also be counted in the run for the roses.

Taking all facts into consideration, we are going out on a limb and pickng the Jeffersoni boys to lose only one game, and that to the power-laden Washington club, and end up their most successful season in six years by playing in the "Milk Bowl" game at the Coliseum in November.

Yes! things are looking up on Fulton Field. This may be the year that will bring forth from the heavens, a "flood" of victories that will end the Great Drought for the land east of Hooper and south of 41st street.

ROBBY'S RAMBLINGS

Our nomination for "Little All-American" end goes to Bob Boyd of Loyola university. Although playing on a losing team, "Bib Bob" has displayed great offensive and defensive ability. He is specially effective on snagging "jump" passes over the center of the opposing line. In last Saturday's game with the Honolulu All-Stars, Boyd was all over the field making tackles right and left. If coach Bill Sargent would have played Boyd

Rams Down Detroit Lions Before 65,267 Rabid Fans

Tom Harmon, former Michigan All-American back, scored two touchdowns Sunday at Briggs Stadium as 45,747 saw the L. A. Rams win over the Detroit Lions by a score of 27 to 13, in the Lions' own stomping grounds.

Working with the true football spirit, Bob Waterfield, teammate to Harmon, hurled a 32 yard pass to his protege. During the same period, Waterfield intercepted Ram Zimmerman passes to go 35 yards before being brought down. From here, Harmon and Magnani, plunged the 26 yard line and then Waterfield passed to Jim Benton for six points.

In the second half with the score 13-0, Harmon ran the kick back 22 yards from where Magnani carried it for enough yardage to put it on the Lion 41 yard line. Waterfield's pass to Red Hickley clinched another T.D. from here.

In the fourth quarter, a pass from Zimmerman to Kmetovic and a run of 55 yards put seven points to the Lions' six earned in the second part.

One minute and 24 seconds before the sound of the final gun, Harmon ran for the last touchdown for the Rams at a distance of 32 yards, making the final score 27-13.

Ex-Football Star to Spark Banquet of Y's Men's Club Monday

Brice Taylor, former All-American football star at USC, will "carry the ball" for the Ladies' Night Banquet at the 23rd street Y's Men's Club next Monday at 6:30 p.m.

Meeting Chairman Beacher Zebbs promises a full array of musical talent to accompany Speaker Taylor.

The affair promises to rival last week's meet out in Eagle Rock where the Los Angeles club returned Eagle Rock's recent visit and was asked to take charge of the program. Gifted contralto Amenda Haynes, local teacher and graduate student at USC, won a great ovation from both clubs for her fine artistry, and Canadian-born Art Jackson of the Burbank YMCA scored second high with an interest-packed talk on Youth work.

The end of summer marked the closing of Los Angeles municipal swimming pools after their most successful season in history. In addition to general recreational swimming and aquatic events which attracted huge crowds, thousands of boys and girls were taught to swim for their future enjoyment and protection.

Huskies Tackle Corsairs Sat. At Wrigley

With two contests tucked under their belts the ELAC Huskies venture forth for a third straight win when they lock jaws with the winless but strong Santa Monica Junior College Corsairs Saturday night at Wrigley Field. Kick-off is slated for 8 p.m. sharp.

Coach Al Hunt and his horde of Green and White men go into the fracas on even-steven terms with the Santa Monica footballers. Corsairs mento. Curt Youel brings a squad that has suffered three straight losses to the Wrigley Field oval. The losses were inflicted by the Chaffey Panthers, 33-6, Santa Ana 20-12, and the benchmen were soundly thrashed 33-21 by the UCLA frosh last week at the Colesium.

Ten Corsair lettermen will be on hand to help the determined, do or die mentor Youel in their league clash with the local Huskie aggregations who will be playing their first mentro conference tilt.

The Hunt-Krause tutored disciples last week ran roughshod over a helpless El Centro J. C. grid squad, 30-0, at Wrigley Field. A week previous the Huskies ran circles over the San Bernardino Valley College gridders 8-7.

Field Goal Is Life-Saver for Dons in Game

CLEVELAND, Ohio—Ben Agajaman saved the day for the L. A. Dons by kicking a 17 yard goal Sunday in the final three minutes of the game here to make the Dons winner of the day.

At the half time the score read 10-7, favor of the Browns, and in the third quarter Agajaman kicked another field goal to tie the score.

In the second quarter Donman Motley fumbled a ball only to have it caught on the fly by teammate Chuck Fenenbock, who scored for a T.D. Agajaman made the extra point.

The thing which seems so amazing about Agajaman is that he is a reserve man strictly for his punting ability, and he is one ball player who comes through with his job well done.

Twin Bill Sunday At Wrigley Field

Ralph Kiner, sensational young outfielder for the Pittsburgh Pirates, who tied with Johnny Mize of the Giants for the major league homerun title with 51 round trippers each, joined the all-star baseball team headed by Bob Feller, ace fireballer of the Cleveland Indians. Feller's team arrived in Los Angeles Saturday for their series with the Kansas City Royals, recruited this year from every club in major colored league baseball.

The series started Wednesday and concludes this Sunday, Oct. 22, with a big doubleheader at Wrigley field.

The fans will not lack for comedy as Jackie Price and Mac Patkin, noted baseball comedians with the Indians the past season, will perform. To give plenty of competition, the Royals are bringing King Tut, one of the funniest men in baseball, to team with Goose Tatum, first baseman and reputed the comedy sensation of the country. Tatum plays regular first base and so his brand of comedy will go on during the games.

The lineups and probable batting order follows: Fellers's all-stars — Jerry Priddy, Washington, 2nd base; Eddie Miller, Cincinnati, shortstop; Jeff Heath, Browns, left field; Ralph Kiner, Pittsburgh, right field; Andy Pafko, Cubs, centerfield; Ken Keltner, Indians, third base; Ferris Fain, Athletics, first base; Mac Battas, Boston Red Sox, catcher; and Bob Feller, Cleveland Indians, pitcher. Bill McCann, who pitched a no-hit, no-run game for the Athletics; Jim Hegan, same team, and Phil Barchildon, are the other twirlers.

Estimates revealed to Red Cross officials disclose that the number of living veterans and members of their families will reach a peak of 43 percent of the nation's population within the next five years.

On The Turf

As I See It . . . — Geo. A. Ramsey

CALIENTE, Old Mexico—About five thousand fans enjoyed the sport of kings last Sunday at the world's greatest racing course. And in the feature event of the day, Murcielago who was bred in San Diego County, scored a handy victory over some of the best sprinters at the border course. Murcielago has started three times against the South American wonder horse Sobregiro, only to finish back of the Chilean wonder. Came from fifth place in the stretch to overhaul the fast leading Thrillaway-To-Win-Going-Away in the good time of 1:11 2/5 for the six furlongs to pay as the public favorite $3.80.

In the secondary attraction, Alamo Boy, who was best in a photo finish two weeks ago, came right back to beat nearly the same field to pay the over looked price in the mutuels of $14.20.

The son of ever Bubbling-Ruth-Asprin ran the six furlongs in 1:11 3/5 to score by two lengths.

Form players had a great day when seven of the choices won out of the eleven race program. Alamo Boy and Classy Flip were the longest shots of the day. Both paying a little over $14.00 for a two dollar mutuel. The Daily-double payoff on Chick Jackson, winner of the second race and Classey victor of the third paid $50.40 while the popular Quiniela backers of Kiev Lee and Paujuan, who finished in that order, paid $21.00

By EDDIE BURBRIDGE

Plenty controversy surrounded the movie "Foxes of Harrow" since its release and this writer agrees with some and condemns others. After seeing the picture we must admit we cannot find it epoch making but then again we do not think the author intended it as such. Frankly we do not like any bringing up of the Civil War in movies, books or otherwise. It was a foolish war and many of the people then living in the south were newer to America than they are now. We are in accord with a reviewer in a local daily who suggests that REX HARRISON, an English importation, is perhaps miscast. Harrison has earned a reputation as a gentleman of the first water and despite the desperate efforts of typical Hollywood direction he just doesn't fit into my conception of a southerner of that particular era. Most of them were uncouth and thousands of them still remain so. The picture has its points, both good and bad, with some of our Sepia actors getting better than average parts. KENNY WASHINGTON is especially to be complimented on the way he handles his part as the plantation's head slave, and our other actors in the film give good performances. Of more import is the fact that FRANK YERBY, a Negro, wrote the book and had it filmed by 20th Century-Fox. After all, then, in fashion, it is a progressive step for the race in the field of writing.

HAVE YOU HEARD? — The fast-climbing JOHNNY MOORE'S Three Blazers may soon hit the Last Word, the one Central avenue playspot that leads in booking topnotch acts. Just now T-BONE WALKER, his electric guitar and his equally electric blues voice is electrifying patrons at the popular club, ably supported by PATTERSON and JACKSON, heavy song, dance and comedy team. . . . AL ALEXANDER, the wizard of the 88's, has thrown his hat into the Halloween dance ring and will run dancers mad with his Basin Street Band on that night. Guest artist will be BOBBY PITTMAN, gaining fame as a vocalist via Supreme Records. . . . Columbia Records has recorded "Hey Hey Big Mama," a swing blues by JOHNNY MORTON, and "No, No Baby," another swing opus by SUGARMAN PENIGAR. Both are played by the Chicago All Stars.

JACK McVEA and ork held over at Blackshear's in Frisco. The folks like 'em there. . . . ROY MILTON and band doing one-nighter dance dates in the South, aided and abetted by CAMILLE HOWARD, who knows what to do with a piano and her voice. Milton vocalizes from behind his drums. . . . GINGER SMOCK, who is slated to draw the bow across her violin soon at the Last Word, winding up an engagement at Mike's Waikiki Inn Oct. 19.

The GOLDEN GATE QUARTET has done a set of spirituals for Columbia, namely: "No Restricted Signs (Up in Heaven)"; "I Will Be Home Again," "Joshua Fit De Battle of Jericho," "Swing Down, Chariot," "Blind Barnabus," "God's Gonna Cut You Down" and "Jezebel." . . . EDITH J. R. ISAACS, author of "The Negro in the American Theatre," a well illustrated volume just published by Theatre Arts, Inc., has decided to turn over a part of the first year's royalties on the book to Negro organizations. 10% will go to the Negro College Fund, 10% to Forest Settlement House in the Bronx, New York, and 10% to Karamu House in Cleveland, Ohio.

SAUNDERS KING and musical combo open at the Savoy Club in Portland tonight (Thursday). . . . The HUNTER GRAY TRIO leave the Last Word to fulfill their fourth return engagement at the Zanzibar Club in Sacramento) beginning a two weeks' stint Oct. 28. From there they go to Blackshear's in San Francisco to open Nov. 13. . . . JAY McSHANN and band play their first date in Frisco on Oct. 31 (Halloween night). . . . A sweet one from the Crescent City (New Orleans to you) is GLORIA FRANCOIS, now residing in San Diego and a recent participant in a beauty contest in that town. . . . All the sportsminded going to Wrigley Field Sunday when the Kansas City Royals take on BOB FELLER'S Major League All-Stars in a doubleheader. . . . Our good friend DYNAMITE JACKSON back in town after a sojourn in San Francisco. The way that guy had been working he needed whatever rest he managed to get in the Bay City. However he's popular in that part of the state, too, so we doubt if he got much shut eye. . . . LEONARD McCLAIN, who hangs his shingle as a bailbondsman out next to WALTER L. GORDON JR. at 41st and the avenue, is a wizard at making friends and holding them. In his biz this is a real asset. He's often seen at Dynamite's Cocktail Lounge, mixing with the boys, including his next door friend, BUDDY GARCIA.

Vic Dickerson Will Cut Discs For Supreme

Rare Film Treat Looms

Audience response at two previews of Walter Wanger's new film production, "The Lost Moment," has prompted Universal-International executives to plan an all-out promotional and advertising campaign aimed at the national release date.

Big City Shown in Drama

In U-I's "The Naked City," fans will see more of the world's greatest city, on the screen, than could be seen in a week's sightseeing trip. For two and a half months Director Jules Dassin filmed scenes with Barry Fitzgerald, Howard Duff, Dorothy Hart and Don Taylor on the sidewalks of New York.

Million $ Theatre Scene of Triumph

Lionel Hampton and his orchestra in jive vernacular "blew their wigs" (were excited with enthusiasm) as they broke all existing records at Los Angeles' Million Dollar theatre.

It was a jam session unlike anything this reviewer has witnessed on the local vaudeville front. As a closing number Hampton played his "Flying Home," the composition which first skyrocketed him to the Nation's Number I showman.

Leaving the stage with his trumpeter and clarinet player, the maestro jived up the aisles of the theatre. He even invited a lady in the audience for a jitterbug twirl. When last seen Hampton was out at the box office beating rhythm against the cashier's window.

The show was 20 minutes over schedule and the shrieks and yelps for encores were still coming strong. The Million Dollar management, incidentally, said the last time Hampton hit his "licks" (hot musical phrases) at the local theatre, they had to tighten the seats in the first 10 rows.

Hampton loves to play and when he starts it is difficult for him to stop. It is reported in musicdom that to play with the maestro, you have to have stamina. That isn't difficult to believe, but if his boys work hard, Hampton himself puts on a terrific show.

On "Airmail Special" and Hampton's own compositions, "Hamp's Boogie," "Tempo's Boogie," and "Hey Ba Ba Re-bop" the beat is solid. "Play Boy," an instrumental pice, featured Britt Woodman on trombone; Kenny Durham, trumpet, and Jack Nelson, clarinet.

A topnotch rhythm number was Hampton's "Tom Tom Speciality." Hampton beats the drums and plays the bass, then with his trumpet man and last, but not least, he whirls into a fast beat with his drummer.

At the vibes, Hampton is a specialist. He produces wonderful tone quality with impromptu melodies. He proved his musicianship by giving out "hot" and "sweet" with superb technique.

In the vocal department Wini Brown did justice to the plaintive ditty, "Almost Like Being in Love," and Roland Burton offered sugar-coated phrasing to Hampton's latest Decca recordings "I Want To Be Loved" and "I Miss You So."

Mara Kim, billed as the "boogie woogie China doll," performed an unusual mixture of ballet, oriental gesticulating and jive. "Red and Curley," a novelty dancing team, were first rate entertainers and Leonard Barr and Helen Estes supplied the comedy angles.

Hampton despite heavy demand for him in the East, Middlewest and South is remaining on the coast to reopen the Meadowbrook on a full six day inter-racial policy.

'Our Lan'' Praised By Gotham Critic

Writing in the Oct. 4 issue of the People's Voice, a New York publication, Lance Jeffers says that "Our Lan'" is a play every American should see. The drama is rich, moving and acted with dignity he continues.

Jeffers in part writes: "Negro Americans who see it will feel an especial thrill of pride. First of all it was written by a Negro—Theodore Ward—and it has been several years since a Negro-authored play has been on Broadway. Secondly, it tells the truth about a phase of American history that the history books we read in school have either lied about or kept mum about. It tells the story of the newly-freed Negro's fight for land in the South after the Civil War. And "Our Lan'" portrays these former slaves as we know they really were, but as they are rarely represented—as human beings whose basic dignity, courage and intelligence slavery was unable to touch. Finally, "Our Lan'" is an emotionally-moving, expertly-written and competently-directed play. From every point of view, it is a satisfying theatre experience."

Every gal in "Forever Amber" dyed her hair.

THE DISC
By I. Spinum

Erskine Hawkins, the "Twentieth Century Gabriel" will celebrate one of his most significant achievements come November 1. That date will mark the conclusion of twelve consecutive years of recording for the RCA-Victor organization. This is a record seldom equalled in the band business. It is a rare instance indeed when a major band continues for an unbroken spell of more than six to ten years with the same recording company.

Early in 1935 Hawkins' manager, Moe Gale, the most successful operator in the field of Negro management, began negotiations for record connections for the then young musical organization, that was fast gaining favor and recognition. After considering a number of possible agreements, Gale elected the one offered by Victor as the best. His judgment has been vindicated a dozen times over as the tieup has proved highly luerative to both Hawkins and the recording company.

Beginning with the classicial "Tuxedo Junction" Hawkins has turned out a steady stream of hits, so rated by the quantities and grosses registered. There has been no year since he started in which Hawkins has failed to ring the bell with at least four hits. That would mean a hit score of nearly eighty perecent of the records made over the twelve year span. That is a record of consistency hardly ever approached by any "namo" band in modern times to say nothing of being surpassed.

Merle "Cowhide" Adams, who never has seen Hollywood, played his 25th movie role when 20th Century-Fox cast him as Vic Mature's buddy in "The Ballad of Furnace Creek."

from the beginning instead of letting him cool his heels on the bench the first half, it might have been a different story? Your Quarterback doubts this, though! Even with the services of the man who won All-Southern California honors last year, the Lions couldn't have won. They just don't have the makings of a first rate ball club out Del Rey way this year. Talking with Mr. and Mrs. Boyd (Bob's parents), after the game, Boyd senior, who is an avid football fan, told of the fine showing that young Mel Streeter is making on this year's Riverside High school team. Streeter plays end, and according to Boyd Senior, is just about the hottest thing on the team. Note to Mel; if you're half as good as Bob Boyd, I know about two dozen schools that would like to see you! Hugh Pinney of the L. A. Herald, thinks that Compton's John Finney is the greatest all around halfback developed in Southern California since the days of the "Old Kingfish" himself, Kenny Washington. Note to Pinney: will have to climb on part of that bandwagon, too, but Pinney, have you seen Woody Lewis of LACC? Last week against Phoenix Junion college, Lewis averaged 17.9 yards a try! He also scored a touchdown. It should be a real battle when Finney meets Lewis when Compton and City college hook up in November in the game that will probably decide the Western States championship.

We wish some of the so-called "boys in the know" would quit spreading rumors around about a certain basketball player and his dealings with a certain AAU basketball team. It's just certain unfounded, untrue rumors that could make a fine amateur athlete ineligible for future amateur contests. The '48 Olympics are coming up, too! Duane White of Jefferson High school, although having one more year of baseball to play in high school, has already been offered a tempting contract by a National League team! Duane is a fine infielder and can really "hit 'em where they ain't."

Davis' 7th Season With Globetrotters

CHICAGO, Ill.—Latest to approve his 1947-48 contract for action with the famed Harlem Glovetrotters basketball team is Lorenza (Piper) Davis, the wonder athlete who also stars in baseball with the Birmingham Black Barons. Before leaving his home in Birmingham for several weeks of barnstorming baseball in California, Davis telephoned Owner-Coach A. M. Saperstein in Chicago to advise him that he would be on deck for his seventh season with the Globetrotters.

Standing six feet, three inches in his stocking feet and weighing 195, Piper (so nicknamed after the town of his birth—Piper, Ala.) is at the height of his basketball and baseball career. On the diamond, he has been with the Black Barons for six seasons, including two champion andt wo runner-up mines and is rated by many as the best all-around player in Negro baseball. He batted .361 this past season, starred in the past two Eastwest games and was selected on option by the St. Louis Browns this summer.

In basketball, he has been an outstanding floor man for six years with the Trotters. One of the grandest fellows in the game, he is being groomed for big things in the Globetrotters' organization. Piper is a college man, having attende Alabama State Teachers College at Montgomery, Ala. He is married and is the father of two children.

Besides Davis, other vteerans back in the Globetrotters' fold, which includes the two Trotter units and the Kansas City Stars, are Ermer Robinson, Marquis Haynes, Bernie Price, Sam Wheeler, John Scott, and others.

Star's Versatility Told

"Ride the Pink Horse" is Robert Montgomery's second picture as director and star, the first being the subjective camera production, "Lady in the Lake," which won not only enthusiastic critical acclaim but proved a boxoffice sensation both here and abroad.

Real Pink Horse Filmed

The pink horse in U-I's film, "Ride the Pink Horse," is attached to a merry-go-round and the merry-go-round is a key prop in the picture as well as a civic institution in Taos, N. M., where it is affectionately known as "Tio Vivo" (Uncle Lively).

Pirates Defeat A. & T. College

GREENSBORO, N. C.—After being held scoreless for 55 action-packed minutes, Hampton Institute's power-laden Pirates took advantage of two timely pass interceptions in the waning moments of the contest to down a gallant but outclassed A. and T. College eleven by the score of 7-0 here last Saturday night.

The only touchdown of the game, played before an estimated 7,000 spectators who braved a drizzling rain to witness the affair, resulted from one of the two pass interceptions. Raymond Stiles, alert Hampton andw ho ironically enough hails from Morehead City, N. C., leaped into the air to grab a pass recklessly tossed by A. and T. Quarterback Kelly on the A and T. 20-yard marker and romped across to pay territory. Jimmy Dillard converted and Hampton moved out front 7-0.

Tenn. Dragons To Meet Wiley

MARSHALL, Tex.—The Lane Dragons of Jackson, Tennessee, will be the opponents of the Wiley Wildcats in the first night game in the history of Wiley Field here on Saturday, October 25. Newly installed arcs will probably hog the spot light with many of the crowd, but Lane will be the center of attraction as far as Coach Fred Long is concerned. Lane was ranked around fourth in the national ratings last fall, and suffered practically no losses due to graduation, from the powerful 1946 entry.

Coach Ox Clemons, veteran Lane mentor, has a score to settle with the Wiley eleven, and it is expected that the Tennessee entry will be at their best when they come to town next week. In 1932 when Wiley had one of her perfect seasons and was concede mythical national champs, Clemons was coaching at Rust College and put the little Mississippi college on the Wiley schedule. Clemons had a good little team but they were no match for the Wildcats that year and "Tip" O'Dell, Pat Patterson, "Pack" Adams and Farley Lewis tore Clemons' boys to shreds in racking up a 56-0 slaughter. Clemons was mad and vowed vengeance and next Saturday the former Paul Quinn star, a product of the deceased Coach Harry Long, comes back to his home harboring a grudge against Fred Long and the Wiley Wildcats.

Poland, India Blast Dutch War on Indies

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y.—Representatives of India and Poland, as well as of the Republic of Indonesia loudly denounced the Dutch this week for deliberately flouting the cease-fire order of the United Nations Security Council issued August 1 and 25 and continuing warfare against Indonesia.

Dr. Elco N. Van Kloffens, the Netherlands' representative, remained silent throughout the denunciation as the three states pleaded for a new UN order directing a return to military lines held before the beginning of hostilities.

Said Dr. L. N. Polar, representing Indonesia, "Weeks after the cease fire order was issued, Dutch troops and planes and flame throwers were operating full blast against Indonesian towns. Moreover," accused Dr. Polar, "the Dutch, while ignoring the wishes of the Security Council expanded their holdings tremendously in the Indies.

"The Dutch army has become so powerful," he continued, "that it has ceased to be only an instrument of its government and decides largely what the Dutch government should do."

India's Dr. P. P. Pillai declared, "Every day that passes takes its toll of death and destruction in Indonesia. As long as the Netherlands government insists on retaining its present demarcation line, as long as there is no withdrawal of the combatants to their antebellum positions, there can be no peace in Indonesia."

Parley Votes to Step Up Campaign to Aid Indonesian Republic

SAN FRANCISCO—Plans to intensify the campaign in support of the Indonesian republic, which is under armed attack by the Dutch, were adopted by a conference of progressives at the Fairmont hotel Wednesday.

The meeting also elected a new executive board of the San Francisco chapter of the American Committee for Indonesian Independence and adopted a resolution "calling upon the U. S. State Department to condemn the Dutch use of American arms and loans to destroy the Indonesian republic."

Canada Lee Praises Treatment of Negro In 'Body and Soul'

NEW YORK—For the first time, a movie is treating an American Negro "like any other human being," Canada Lee, noted Negro stage and screen star, declared in a recent interview.

The picture he referred to was Enterprise Studios' "Body and Soul," a United Artists release which will have its world premiere at the Globe Theatre in New York soon.

"I am welterweight champ of the world when it opens," Lee said. "When I can't fight any more, I become John Garfield's trainer and confidant.

There's a good, man-to-man relationship between us. It's remarkable—in the whole picture you never hear the word 'Negro.' There is no diffenentiation made. I am just accepted as a character in a story."

CANADA LEE

Then Lee quoted Bob Rossen, who directed "Body and Soul," as saying on the Enterprise Studios set while the film was being produced:

"This picture will probably be banned in the South."

When Lee asked Rossen why he thought the picture might be barred from showings in the South, the latter replied:

"Well, you don't say yassuh, boss, anywhere in the film. When you talk to Garfield, you talk on the same level. He calls you Ben, you call him Charlie."

Lee spoke enthusiastically of John Garfield, who stars in "Body and Soul." He said:

"You rarely find as unassuming a guy as Garfield, and this is not the old line. He constantly wanted to help me. We had scenes together that he could have turned around for himself—after all, he's the star—but he insisted they were my scenes."

Lee wound up his interview by expressing his happiness over "Body and Soul," and declaring:

"This picture, I think, will do an awful lot towards getting me the kind of break I want in Hollywood. More imoprtant, if its a success it'll prove you can treat a Negro as a human being and still have a picture that'll sell. And if that is so, then were on the way to something tremendous."

Shortly after completing "Body and Soul," Canada Leo was called upon to do part of the narration for "The Roosevelt Story," a heart-warming, true-to-life film story of our late President which is also being released through United Artists.

Born Lionel Canegaya of Puerto Rican parents, Canada Lee has enjoyed a career which has included hitches as a jockey, a musician, a boxer and finally an actor. He came by his professional name through the inability of a stuttering Madison Square Garden fight announcer to pronounce his original name properly. When the fight official came up with something which sounded like "Lionel Canadalee," the youngster took a fancy to the coined word and adopted it as his ring and stage name.

In his late 20s, he realized that he dadn't really found himself either as a jockey or a prize fighter, and decided to do something about shaping a new career. He dropped in at a New York YMCA one day in the hope of having a talk with the vocational counselor.

As Canada awaited his turn for an interview, he heard voices coming through a nearby open door. He wandered into the room from whence came the voices and found a band of [illegible] at the next meeting.

theatre players rehearsing a new play. He sat down to watch. Before long someone came down fromt he stage and asked whether he wouldn't like a small role in the show. That was the start of his career before the footlights.

Canada found that the production was one labeled "Brother Mose," something being done in connection with the federal government's Negro theatre project. His salary was $26.86 a week. He remained with the "Brother Mose" troupe for more than a year.

One day Canada heard that Rex Ingram was leaving the cast of "Stevedore," an all-Negro stage production. Max Gordon, the producer, gave him the role. When that show closed in Chicago he came back to New York and briefly returned to his role in "Brother Mose." Then George Abbott picked him for a part in "Brown Sugar."

Big Little Sister Theme of AKA-Ivy Leaf Meeting

Gay Party Follows Favorette Club's Installation

The Favorette Social and Civic club held its installation part on Saturday, Oct. 2, at the home of the club secretary, Miss Lillie Hill, 4250 S. Hooper Ave. It was one of the most unique affairs of the fall season. Officers were installed by the charming Mrs. Faustina Johnson, who depected the sturday wagon wheel. The club president Mrs. Dorothy Byrd, was compared with the hub of the wheel, each succeeding officer and the club membership represented the spokes of the wheel. The girls were uniformly garbed in black dresses with matching gardenia corsages.

Other officers installed were: Rosie King Talbert, vice president; Lillie Hill, secretary; Queen Ester Jackson, financial secretary; Ernestine Porter, rec. secretary; Eula Faye Greer business manager; Florence King Crowley, reporter; Vernell Williams, critic; Leda Belle Sparks, historian. Geneva Mass Moore, treasurer; Gladys Doyle, Assistant Bus. Manager.

Byrd.

exception. No name plates were made for the Negro occupants of that "office." No names appeared on the door. Room 121 was a blank.

One of the room's occupants, an accountant named Herman E. Cramer, tells the union he spent his first three weeks in 121 trying to find out what he was supposed to do. He was given no work. After three weeks of searching and protesting he was finally given some chores. Eacn time he finished a job he would be forced to ask for more work. No assignment was ever forthcoming in due course. Some of the jobs given him included stuffing envelopes, filing index cards, copying reports made by other employes, etc.

All of the others experienced the same difficulty. All had to beg for work. Cramer began his employment in the government in June 1941, as an employe of the Social Security Board. His work rating there was "Very Good." Subsequently he was transferred to the Bureau of the Census where he worked for three years with a "Very Good" rating. In July 1945 he joined the OPA Staff and served until dissolution of the agency in December 1946. His rating for work in OPA was "Excellent."

The other seven had equally good work records in other agencies of the government.

On September 5, 1947, all of the occupants of 121 received notices of dismissal. Instead of the 30-day notice as required they were given only two weeks.

Reason given for the dismissals? FTC said that the work of one was "unsatisfactory." The others could not be retained because of "lack of funds." However, their last efficiency ratings were purposely made so low that they were sure to be the first fired.

'NOT PREJUDICED'

When Cramer protested his rating to his supervisor, D'Allessandro, pointing to previous ratings received in other agencies, the official blandly stated that he probably got a good rating when compared with other Negroes but that his work is only "fair" when compared with white employes. The official also denied that he was prejudiced but added that, in his opinion, "Negroes are not dependable because they take more sick leave than the average white person."

When the union heard this shocking story—none of the employes complained until they received dismissal notices—it demanded hearings to appeal these dismissals. It was supported in this demand by the NAACP.

Farcical machinery was set up and hearings were held during the last week in September. All of the top brass appeared. Two special attorneys assigned by the FTC came to represent the agency. Nearly ten days were spent on "evidence" attended by officials whose total salaries exceeded $500 per day. All this to get eight occupants of Room 121!

But—no one would listen to the union's charge that prejudice and discrimination were factors in the dismissals. In spite of the story of 121, the officials insisted on discussing "work loads," statistics on production, etc. Evidence on discrimination was ruled irrelevant.

Taking a delegation to the Civil Service Commission, the union demanded that the Commission again force the FTC to obey the laws of the land. The union warned that the Civil Service Commission would bear final responsibility if FTC succeeded in its lily white personnel practice.

On September 30 the Civil Service Commission announced that it had revoked the dismissal notices of three of the eight employes and had ordered FTC to find jobs for them—even if it resulted in the dismissal of war service employes.

That is something. But far from enough.

The union asks, what about the others?

The union is urging the Civil Service Commission to order the immediate reinstatement of all eight pending a full investigation. The union is asking for public hearings on the hiring policies of the Federal Trade Commission.

In a letter to all locals, 475 throughout the country, the union has asked all members to take action on the "Case of Room 121." All members have been asked to write and urge the Civil, Service Commission to undertake a full scale investigation of FTC and to order reinstatement of the eight who have been fired.

All members of the union have also been called upon to intensify community-wide drives to petition President Truman to establish a Fair Employment Practices Committee for government jobs by Executive Order.

The case of Room 121—though flagrant is not unusual in the Federal government.

Ten other government agencies have established policies refusing to hire Negroes. The personnel officer of a liquidtting war agency was told that there were openings for white clerical workers but none for Negroes. Evidence on this has been presented by UPW-CIO to the White House.

'O.K. EXCEPT FOR COLOR'

Recently one Agriculture Department official sent a memorandum to another official which was accidentally mailed to the employe along with her Form 57. The attached memo said, "except for color these girls seem o.k."

At this very moment, the Federal Bureau of Investigation is violating a long standing Civil Service Commission principle by requiring photographs from job applicants for the loyalty investigations. Use of photographs on federal applications was outlawed long ago by the Civil Service Commission because they were used to determine the color of the applicant, and in most cases to discriminate against him if he were Negro. In spite of protests from the union, the FBI is continuing to hire in this way.

Room 121 is not the only barbed wire enclosure in the government service. The federal government itself is rapidly becoming one of the worst of the prejudiced employers.

Unless there is an FEPC for government jobs—with teeth in it and with penalties against prejudiced personnel officials—Room 121 will continue to serve the whims of race-hating public officials. And there will be other Room 121's.

President Truman has the power to estaablish an FEPC in government by Executive Order. No special legislation is necessary to handle this critical situation at once.

Much lip service has been given recently by our very highest government officials to the notion that government should "point the way" and "take leadership" in protecting the rights of all Americans.

The time is long past for fine words. Action — not words — is needed now.

2 White Couples Lead Fight on Biased Housing

Details of a gigantic plot to cover all of Pasadena with restrictive covenants were bared yesterday following filing of a $60,000 damage suit against two white real estate men and an attorney for attempting to interfere with sale of property to a Negro American family.

Evidence that the plot is sponsored by a covenant organization, which hides behind the familiar "property owners association" title, is out to "have things done in our city the way we, as an organization want them," is down in black and white letters sent out by Lawrence Ter Maat, white real estate man at 235 North Hill ave., in Pasadena.

Meantime, Pasadena covenant groups had lined up behind biased city officials and property owners who are combatting a suit against the city which charges the city acted unconstitutionally by inserting racial restrictions in deeds executed by city officials.

The suit was filed by Ernest Chamberlain and his wife, Ethel, a white family at 1335 Indiana st., who said they purchased property in South Pasadena which the city had ac-

U. S. Blocks UN Action to Halt muts' Land Grab

NEW YORK—The Council on African Affairs in New charged yesterday that the United States delegation ke Success was "lending aid and comfort to the nously anti-democratic regime of the Union of South a by attempting to block effective measures by the United Nations to secure that government's compliance with the Charter's requirement and the Assembly's request that the former mandate territory of South West Africa, now under the Union's administration, be brought within the U.N. Trusteeship system."

Throughout the Assembly's debate on this question, the Council stated, the American representative on Trusteeship Committee, John Foster Dulles, has played a leading role in advocating a "soft verdict" against the Smuts' government for its "arbitrary claim to exclusive control of South West Africa."

It was pointed out that in the Trusteeship Committee's vote on this question, October 15, the U. S. delegation opposed a resolution proposed by India, even after it had been drastically revised to meet the point of view of the "soft verdict" supporters.

DAY spent at Indio, as I afore stated, was an experience I shall not soon forget. After viewing the housituation under which Negroes live in that section e state, I enjoyed a delicious fried chicken dinner my old friends, the Bill Battles. The Battles live all white community at Coachilla, about a mile beIndio.

The afternoon meeting at the church was an assurthat the Negro people who had gone into the diswith the hope of bettering their lot were not at all ed with present conditions.

After we had discussed the housing shortage, police lity, and high food prices, we exchanged questions. ed them what was the exact Negro population, and business was being promoted by Negroes.

THESE questions the answers were: population, 500. ive churches and no business. On the question of ation my comment was that there was no difference tax assessment made against properties whether d by Negroes or other Americans, and that it was ous matter on both sides of the ledger to allow some icans—the ruling class—to make laws that force Americans to live in slums and dives where crime isease flourish.

n the case of Indio, the main section occupied by egroes, I learned, was a deserted Indian reservation. ndians had moved into better sections and quarters. There was no report on an excessive crime record. I observed was that the settlers in most part were omers—a sturdy working class willing to shoulder portion of the responsibility of making their coune ideal in democratic governments.

ULY "Third Ward" is thought-provoking. As you ead it you can't help but think how close the scene, so y described, is to New York City where the UN in session, and dominated by the United States of ica, is attempting to set up what it calls "democratic nments" in Greece, in China, in Palestine, in Indo- where the common people of those countries are ng back desperately to gain and maintain that full which is the inalienable right of everyone on God's

'Eagle' Editor Speaks Sat. Nite In Long Beach

Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass, editor-publisher of the California EAGLE, will speak at the mass meeting of the Long Beach Chapter of the National Negro Congress to be held Saturday evening.

Mrs. Bass was one of the delegates to the conference on Thought Control held recently under the auspices of the Progressive Citizens of America in the Roosevelt Hotel. She will have much to discuss concerning the trend in America towards the domination of the thinking of the American people by a few in power, and the camouflaging of their real purpose by arousing a "Red Scare."

WASHINGTON—Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) yesterday denounced the House Un-American Committee's current quiz of Hollywood luminaries, counselled them to refuse to answer questions aimed at censoring thinking or speech.

Pepper termed the committee's hearings "underhanded" and "an affront to the dignity of citizenship."

"This may be the Stalingrad in the attack upon civil liberties in this country," he said.

At the same time, Senator Glen H. Taylor (D., Idaho) characterized the committee as "fascist-minded" and said its activities were "parallel with those of pre-war leaders in Germany, Italy and Japan."

The committee is devoting this week to hearing "friendly" witnesses tell tehir story of alleged Communist influence in Hollywood studios. Neither the stars "suspected" of Communist sympathies nor their attorneys are permitted to cross-examine the committee's friendly witnesses. Atty. Charles J. Katz of Los Angeles was evicted from the hearing when he insisted on questioning a witness.

Most of the committee's attack thus far has been against screen writers who are suspected of smuggling progressive ideas into Hollywood scripts, including ideas hostile to stereotypes of Negro and other minority groups.

Paul Robeson, noted artist, figured in absentia in Tuesday's hearing when Adolphe Menjou, aged actor, characterized as "Communist" anyone who attends Robeson's concerts. Menjou described as "un-American" the songs Robeson sings.

The national office of the NAACP protested in a wire to the committee the branding as Communists of many film stars and writers who have "worked to change the dangerous stereo-

Wife of Month Stabs Husband In Argument

What was to have been a quiet dinner at home ended in stark tragedy Saturday evening for two newly-weds. Today, the man lies dead on a slab in the City Morgue while his widow faces a murder charge. The couple were married on September 10, a little more than a month ago.

At approximately 6:30 p.m. Saturday, Mrs. Gertrude Johnson, 1407 East 56th street, was arrested by Officers J. W. Alston and L. S. Hayes of the Newton street station as she stood in the kitchen of her home, holding a knife still dripping with the blood of her husband, Alex, who lay lifeless at her feet.

According to the woman, she and her husband had an argument as they were about to sit down to dinner.

During the height of the argument, Mrs. Johnson took a kitchen knife from a nearby drawer and stabbed her husband six or seven times about the head and body. She would not say what the argument was about.

Mrs. Johnson is being held in Lincoln Heights jail, pending the holding of a coroner's inquest into the death of her husband.

White Neighbors' Talk of Smoking Out Tenants Told

CHICAGO—(CNS)—Racist threats by white neighbors were raised as possible explanation of the disastrous slum tenement fire which took the lives of six children and four women on Friday, October 10.

In a bitter statement, Miss Willie Mae Williams, who lost two nephews, two sisters and two nieces in the fire, totalling six of the ten victims, testified at the inquest this week that her mother had warned her and her dead sisters that she had overheard white neighbors threatening to "smoke out the Negroes" if they did not move from the area.

When real estate operator Samuel Homan, identified as the owner of the burned tenement, was questioned as to threats, he refused to testify and remained silent throughout the inquest. The six investigating jurors, whose foreman is noted sociologist Horace Cayton, thereupon ordered to produce his books and records.

Miss Williams also testified that Negroes were paying from

County Acts On Racist Brief In Davis-Perez Case

The Los Angeles board of supervisors yesterday repudiated the racist content of county counsel's argument in opposing before the state supreme court a petition for a writ of mandate ordering county clerk J. F. Moroney to issue a marriage license which he denied last August 1 to a Negro youth and his Mexican fiancee.

In opposing the petition, County Deputy Counsel Charles C. Stanley Jr., justified a 50 year old California master race law forbidding intermarriage of whites with Negroes and Orientals on the racist argument that Negroes were "inferior, both mentally and physically" to whites, added that it is only the "lower type of each race" which enters into mixed marriages. Decent whites, he contended, may "enter into illicit arrangements but won't come out in the open." He further asserted that light Negroes were close to the very dregs of society, apt to be afflicted with some of the most repulative diseases known to society.

Following vigorous protests by the EAGLE and other community papers, Negro groups and white progressive organizations, the matter was raised in the board of supervisors by Supervisor Leonard J. Roach, who successfully argued that the county should not foster any statements that would lead to discord.

Unanimously supporting Roach, the board ordered the county counsel to submit a written report on the brief and on all oral arguments by county counsel in the case.

The attack on the racist law was led by Attorney Daniel C. Marshall, representing Sylvester S. Davis Jr., 28, as a graduate of Los Angeles City college, and his fiancee Miss Andrea D. Perez. The case, the first constitutionality test of the Nazi-like statute, was sponsored by the Catholic Interracial Council, of which Marshall is chairman.

Dry Peyton, Back From Brazil With Family, Finds Fine Race Relations In Southern Country

Dr. Thomas Roy Payton, noted specialist in rectal diseases, his wife and two children, Roy Junior and Joyce this week returned to Los Angeles after spending almost a year in Brazil.

Dr. Payton was an invited member of the first Inter-American Medical Congress which was held in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, in September, 1946. He delivered his paper on cancer of the rectum in French before the South American doctors and also lectured at the Gamboa Hospital, operated at the Polyclinic of Rio and lectured on rectal diseases at the Hospital das Clinicas of Sao Paulo, a new and modern clinic recently established in that southern Brazilian city.

Dr. Payton spent considerable time with Brazil's most prominent proctologist, Dr. Pittiga Santos of Rio. He was given a cordial welcome by the friendly Brazilian doctors.

He and his wife, Gladys, attended all of the lavish social functions at the Park Cidade, Copocabana and the Quitandinia Hotel of Petropolis where Brazil's most exclusive society were hosts to the Congress.

Dr. Payton told the EAGLE he was greatly impressed with the interracial amity displayed in Brazil, which he described as "the country of the future."

The family lived in Tijuca, a suburban area near Rio and enjoyed the comradeship of neighboring Brazilian families, their customs and their foods.

Returning by ship to the United States, Dr. Payton stopped off at Philadelphia where he held a five-month clinic and contacted many of his former patients and friends before returning to Los Angeles. He expressed himself as extremely happy to greet his many friends in the Angel City, said he would soon reopen his private clinic for the treatment of diseases of the rectum.

Dr. Payton graduated from the Long Island College of Medicine, Brooklyn, N. Y. with the Ford prize for the best dissection, and after ten years of general practice specialized in proctology, spending the past 14 years in this special work. He had post-graduate instruction in Paris and London as well as in Stockholm.

He was clinician at the Harlem Hospital clinic for rectal diseases, proctologist at the Mercy and Douglas Hospital of Philadelphia, and instructor in proctology at Howard University, Washington, D. C. He practised in Los Angeles from 1944-46 as a specialist before leaving to attend the Medical Congress in Rio.

Wallace Bares Wall St. Grip On Government

BALTIMORE — On the eve of his departure for Palestine, Henry A. Wallace, former vice-president of the United States, described Defense Secretary Forrestal, Secretary of Commerce Harriman and Acting Secretary of State Lovett as "a holding company for Wall street bankers" who "think and act as though dollars were the be-all and end-all of civilization."

Their "offensive against the mass of American people," he said, "has been well planned and brilliantly executed." He pledged himself to try to "get them out of Washington before they get us into war."

Wallace spoke at a Progressive Citizens of America rally.

L.A. Public Promised New Improvements In Transit System

The Los Angeles Transit Lines yesterday had pledged continued improvements in the local transportation system despite shortages of vital material and resultant slow-down in the turnout of buses and street cars.

Improvements already are under way, the company said, which will bring the public transit system closer to the mark of efficiency which has been set. As proof that the company is working toward this end, it was pointed out for the past several years, the pattern set by the nation's greatest transportation advisers has been followed religiously.

The local transit system is headed by men whose experience extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific; men who know transit operation from A to Z, men who have proved their worth and efficiency as transit engineers and managers for many years and can command the capital with which to carry on proper operations.

These men promise Los Angeles the best local transportation in the country, given the necessary, time and opportunity to overcome material shortages, catch up with the phenomenal growth of the city.

GALL STONES
ULCERS, CONSTIPATION, GAS PAINS

Don't be discouraged. Read what this famous doctor says:

"Gallstones are alkaline concretions which form in the gall ducts or gall bladder, from the stagnation of thickened bile. It frequently takes years for their formation, during which time the alkaline accumulations pack harder and harder together, allowing the softer part of the bile to flow out, and leaving behind these hardened, calcareous substances. The blocking of the gall ducts leading to the intestines will produce symptoms often mistaken for other diseases.

"Fully one-half of the patients who come to me believing they have stomach ulcers or gastritis, are really affected with some form of gall bladder disorder. I have found a very large number of cases, improperly diagnosed as stomach ulcer by other physicians, which have responded so rapidly to treatment as gall bladder derangements, as to lose all symptoms in a day or two.

"Where there is a stoppage of bile in the gall bladder, either by thickened bile or by gallstone formation, there will always be a tender spot halfway between the navel and the ribs on the right side of the abdomen. The color of the skin usually changes every few days, becoming a yellow, sallow hue at irregular intervals. The tongue will be coated, there will be loss of appetite and there may or may not be sharp, colicky pains felt on the right side.

"I have had many cases where large gallstones have been removed by my treatment, where not typical gallstone colic had been experienced at all. If the sharp pains and contractions of the gallstone colic are present in their worst form, the patient will be unable to stand or even sit up straight, but will be forced to lie down with knees drawn up to the chest. Even this position does not relieve the pain. I am convinced that these colicky symptoms are not present in most cases, and that a serious stoppage of bile or a blocking up of the bile ducts with a gallstone may be present without any of such symptoms being in evidence at all."

Daniel C. Munro, M. D., says: "If I were to write the story of all the cases in which colonic irrigations seem to lift the patient from the very jaws of death, it would fill volumes."

Dr. Chas. A. Tyrell, M.D., eminent physician, says: "If the colon is clogged, the penned-up acid permeations of the stomach and duodenum will have to seek other outlets.

"The most rational and practical manner of dealing with this . . . breeding place of disease is to wash it out.

"With me, it has passed beyond the theoretical stage, for I have in my office fully 15,000 letters from grateful patients who have used this process, under my direction, with the most astounding results; scarcely a disease known to humanity, but has been relieved, and in ninety-five per cent of the cases, cures effected, while tens of thousands of gratifying messages have reached me from time to time; nor is the testimony in its favor confined to the laity, for hundreds of physicians (including some of the most prominent authorities) testify to the wonderful beneficial results achieved by its use."

"Constipation is one of the greatest causes of disease, misery, inefficiency and premature senility, and should be most earnestly combatted," says Dr. Kellogg of Battle Creek Sanitarium fame.

"Every case of constipation is curable, but not by means of any panacea.

"A coated tongue, a sallow complexion, dark circle around the eyes, appearance of brown spots upon the hands or other parts (the so-called liver spots), offensive breath and perspiration . . . a thin, inelastic parchment-like skin, dullness of mind, mental irritability or depression without cause, cold hands and feet, chronic headache, arthritis, neuritis, rheumatism, asthma, pains around the heart—these and a score of other symptoms which might be mentioned are certain indications of chronic poisoning.

"A thorough cleansing of the colon, removing the cause, may prevent more serious conditions."

Residents of Los Angeles are fortunate in having the New Yorker, a haven for those who suffer, where the cause may be removed. New Yorker specializes in thoroughly cleansing and eliminating from the colon all waste matter causing toxic poisons. Rid yourself of toxic poisons. If suffering, come to our office at once. Get relief from constipation. Go to the New Yorker for a thorough cleansing of the large intestine or colon. Trial treatment, $3.00. Treatments at office only. No medicines or drugs. Funeral Services Held for Phoenix Veteran of Two Wars

Funeral services were held last week for Sgt. Luther T. Snow, of 1418 East Madison street, Phoenix, in the C.M.E. church, with Rev. W. M. Thomas officiating. Sgt. Snow died in the Veteran's Hospital at Papago Park on Monday.

Sgt. Snow had been in bad health for several years, but was active until a few months ago when he was hospitalized.

Sgt. Snow was a native of Alabama, but came to Phoenix 28 years ago after being discharged from the army. He was a sergeant in Company H of the 25th infantry, where he served for many years. During World War I he served in many foreign countries, including the Philippines and the Hawaiian Islands, and earlier in China where he took part in the Boxer Rebellion.

After coming to Phoenix he became active in church, fraternal, and community betterment work. He was a faithful member of the Phillips Temple church, where he served as steward and trustee, and in other capacities. He was a member and an officer serving with distinction in Salt Valley Lodge, No. 4 F. & A. M., Doric Masonic Club, Moslem Temple No. 79 Shriners, Pride of Arizona No. 2 Knights of Tabor, Phoenix Civic Welfare League, the Tilden White Post No. 40 American Legion, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Sgt. Snow is survived by his widow, Clemenza; a daughter, Mrs. Jessie Rowland; two nephews, Carlton M. Snow, of Philadelphia, and Emmett L. Ashford of Los Angeles; and a cousin, Mrs. Hazel Brown, also of Los Angeles; and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Ethel Fowler, of San Francisco.

At his bedside when he passed were his wife, daughter, and his nephew of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Ethel Fowler, of San Francisco, was among those from a distance who attended the funeral services.

Mr. Ira Junkins, of Los Angeles, a friend of Sgt Snow of many years' standing, also attended the services.

Hall of Arts Opens Exhibit, Free Classes Tuesday, October 28

The Hall of Art which was scheduled to open October 15 has been forced to change its opening date to the general public to October 28. Delay in the opening was caused by the tremendous number of paintings received, according to Lorser Feitleson, one of the five distinguished artists who are serving as a jury to pass on all paintings accepted by the Hall of Art for exhibit.

One of the features of the opening will be an exhibit of the work of over 100 noted Los Angeles artists as well as the juried paintings.

In addition to this fine exhibit of paintings the Hall of Art will conduct art classes for children on Saturdays; evening classes for adults who wish to pursue art as a hobby; free lectures on art appreciation by a group of distinguished artists and teachers and will be available at all times to California schools and civic groups for tours.

Covering 8000 feet of exhibit space, the Hall of Art, located at 9717 Wilshire blvd., Beverly Hills, will be admission free to the general public.

Seek Chest Funds For Watts Center

Funds for continuation of the present Watts community recreational program after December 26, when the USO will go out of existence, were sought by a committee of ten representatives of Watts community agencies in a conference last Wednesday with H. A. R. Carleton, budget director of the Los Angeles Chest Welfare Fund. The conference was held in the Community Chest headquarters at 729 S. Figueroa.

The Watts committee was headed by Principal J. C. Mann of Jordan High school, and Ralph Shaw, administrative assistant.

The USO building at 102 and Beach is the only available adequate place for recreational activities in Watts and is currently being used by all the area's community agencies for that purpose. When the USO closes its doors, it must dispose of this building and all its furnishings.

The conference dealt with Chest allocation of funds to the three organizations most active in Watts community welfare work, the YWCA, YMCA, and the CYO. These agencies have agreed to work together as sponsors for continuation of the building as a community center if the Chest will finance the program.

Chest representatives told the committee they would have to agree to have one of the groups responsible for administering funds in order to comply with Chest requirements. Another meeting has been scheduled this week with the administrative heads of the YWCA, YMCA and CYO decide which of the three agencies will assume that responsibility.

'Freedom Road' Author Speaks Here Sun., Nov. 9

Angelenos who have been thrilled by Howard Fast's outspoken championship of social justice for the Negro people in Freedom Road and other Fast books will have an opportunity on November 9 to see and hear their favorite author in person.

On that date, Fast will share the platform with O. John Rogge, former assistant U. S. attorney general, at a community rally on the theme, "Stop Operation Witchhunt," in the Shrine Auditorium.

Purpose of the rally will be to mobilize community support behind the current local and national campaign to halt the Los Angeles county and federal "Loyalty Tests," and to gain widespread backing for HR 46, the Sabbath resolution to abolish the House Un-American Activities Committee, spearhead of the witchhunt.

Approximately 20,000 county employees, and 2,000,000 federal employees, are affected by the "Loyalty Tests."

In addition to the two main speakers, Hollywood personalities will appear in dramatic sketches written especially for the occasion.

Sponsors of the rally are the Mobilization for Democracy, the CIO United Public Workers and the AFL State, County and Municipal Workers Local 558.

☆ DR. and MRS. NELSON PURCHASE HOME ☆

This beautiful residence, the new home of Dr. and Mrs. Richard T. Nelson, was recently purchased through the Travis T. Lott Real Estate Co.

The Nelsons are newcomers to the city. They are valuable additions to Los Angeles growing population.

Flanked on the right by Mrs. Victoria Nelson, his charming wife, Dr. Richard T. Nelson is seen signing papers that made him owner of the palatial mansion in the upper left- hand corner.

Standing by, watching the transaction, is the popular West Side realtor, Travis T. Lott, and his chief salesman, Cecil M. Parks. Mr. Lott handled the transaction.

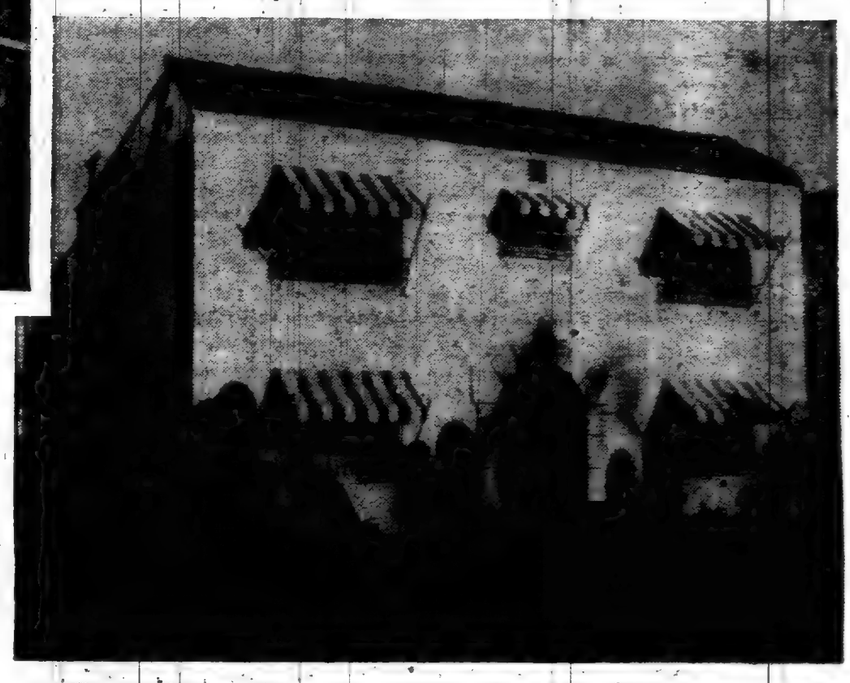
Dr. and Mrs. Richard T. Nelson, newcomers to the city of Los Angeles, from Shreveport, La. have recently purchased the beautiful Florentine styled residence at 1217 South St. Andrews Place, as their home. It is near the Country Club Drive, one of the most beautiful sections of the city.

The Nelsons also purchased the 16-room apartment, two-story stucco building, located at 2650 So. Manhattan Place in the exclusive West Adams District.

In purchasing both a home and the apartment house, the Nelsons are following what seems to be a significant new trend among professional men coming to California—that of purchasing a beautiful palatial home and in addition a separate high-producing income property.

The purchase was made after consulting with Travis T. Lott Realty Co., brokers to the finer type of homes and income properties in the Los Angeles area. The Nelsons have expressed themselves as being highly pleased with their new home, and with Los Angeles in general.



The Victoria Arms, named in honor of Mrs. Victoria Nelson, is located at 2650 South Manhattan Place, and is part of the Nelson's real estate holdings in Los Angeles.

Both the Nelsons' residence and their apartment building are desirably located. The residence site is near the Country Club Drive, while the apartment house is centrally located.

Dr. Nelson, physician and surgeon has his business offices at 1670 East 103rd street. Before coming to Los Angeles Dr. Nelson practiced medicine in Shreveport, La. for 24 years. He owned and operated a 20-bed hospital in that city.

The Nelson's are members of the African Methodist Church. Dr. Nelson is also a member of the Masons, order of the Alpha Kappa Alpha fraternity, and has always been identified with the problems for civic betterment, in every community in which he and his family resided.

EDITORIALS AND COMMENTS

Race Discrimination or Ex-Communication

Members of the Roman Catholic Church in St. Louis, Mo., are facing a decision of whether or not to be Christians and sensible and permit Negro students in their schools, or to be excommunicated for disobeying their bishop.

The furor has been going on in that city for more than a month. There have been a few Negro students among the 58,000 Catholic pupils during the past ten years, but because there were so few and these in the parochial elementary schools, nothing was done about it.

Last summer, however, St. Louis University, a Jesuit school founded in 1818, opened its doors to Negroes. Also Archbishop Ritter, who came to St. Louis last year, knowing that the late Pope Pius XI termed racism as practiced by the Nazis a heresy, moved to make the policy of the church one of non-discrimination, and with the opening of the school term this year, said Negroes should be admitted to all schools.

This was putting the rat in the fire. A group of white parents organized to oppose the admission of Negroes to the schools of the church. They wrote to the Archbishop, but he paid no attention to them. Then they threatened to take legal action. Upon this Archbishop Ritter prepared a letter to be read in all the churches reminding their members of "their filial obligation as Catholics to cooperate with their bishops and clergy and their fellow Catholics." The letter also reminded them that these obligations included "not only the equality of every soul before Almighty God, but also obedience to ecclesiastical authority."

Then the Archbishop warned them in no uncertain terms that the penalty of such disobedience is excommunication. This is the severest penalty that can be visited upon a Catholic, and one which every devout Catholic would do almost anything to avoid.

Undeterred by this threat, however, the Catholic parents are continuing to meet, hoping to break down the position of their Archbishop. As a salve to the Negro Catholic population, they voted to contribute the munificent sum of twenty-five dollars to a charity of a Negro Catholic church. The gift was returned.

The battle is still raging. The "pure white" Catholics are circulating petitions with blanks for 100,000 names, expressing the desire for "Catholic education for Negroes" but in separate schools.

The whole affair is but part of the great struggle for democracy in very truth that is taking place not only in St. Louis, but also in America and in all the world. Those whose thinking still hovers in the regions of the Dark Ages are exerting all their powers to prevent any progress. Just as their ancestors did in those same Dark Ages, in the days of the American Revolution, of the attempts to rid America of the curse of slavery.

They lost the battle then. They will lose today. But will it be necessary to have more bloodshed, to have another revolution, another civil war before these benighted conservatives (to use a very polite term) can be induced to see the light? Their blood will be upon their own heads, if they cannot be made to see in any other way.

Robeson Honored

Paul Robeson and Charles Chaplin, names known the world over as leaders in the cause of democracy, were honored last Saturday in Bucharest, Romania, by being elected to the Honorary Presididium of the Annual Congress of Artists, Writers, and Printing Workers which opened there October 18.

This is good news to liberal-minded folks everywhere. Chaplin by his pictures, especially that of The Great Dictator, has made his position known unequivocally as being opposed to every form of Hitler tactics.

And Paul Robeson! No one who knows music need to be told of the great singer. No one who knows the stage need be told of the great actor. And greatest of all, no one who is interested in the downtrodden, in the underdog in any and every race and creed, who is struggling desperately for all races, creeds and nationalities of men to come together and live together in peace, need be told of Paul Robeson. His name is a pass-word to every individual and organiaztion working for the cause of humanity.

It is good to know these two great humanitarians were thus honored in that far away country of Romania. They have not been honored in their own home. And it makes us think of another Great Humanitarian, unhonored among his own people, who said: "A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country."

Painting the Country Red

What do you mean, subversive activity? What is a Communist? What's your definition for Communism? What's so terribly wrong and un-American in believing that everyone should have a chance to work, regardless of race or color or creed? That he should be allowed to live wherever he chooses in free America?

What's wrong with motion pictures showing the struggle working people have to make ends meet? With the terrible job they have to find a home? With showing up the stupidity and narrow bigotry of some of our politicians?

Does the shoe pinch? Is that why we're having this investigation of our motion picture industry to see if perchance there might be a word here or there that would lead the American public to believe the stuff some of our politicians tell us is not all the gospel truth?

"If it is subversive," said radio commentator Cecil Brown, "to portray only some of the incidents in Russian life, as the producers of "The Song of Russia" are accused of doing, then it is equally subversive to show only select portions of American life.

"Would you say it was un-American to show a lynch scene? Lynchings happen in America, you know. Is it un-American to show the horrors of war? We have had many wars. Is is un-American to speak of the independent thinking of Jefferson and Lincoln? If they were here today, they too, no doubt, would be haled before this committee in Washington to have their thinking examined."

Those 18 writers, producers, and actors now on trial before the Thomas-Rankin un-American Activities Committee in Washington are not there because they helped in creating any of the rotten shows that aid so much in demoralizing our young folk. None of the pictures, ministers and heads of morality groups decry. Not at all. The pictures in which they had a part are tops on the screen's list, not so much because of their entertainment value, but because they have something which might make the American people think. And when any people really begin to think—it's good-bye to any form of Fascism or dictatorship.

Robert Rossen who suggested in the prize fight film, "Body and Soul," that Negroes have the same rights in a democracy as white men, was called to Washington for this.

Irving Pichel directed a film, "A Medal for Benny," a satire on the desperate attempts of a small-town chamber of commerce to go to all lengths to keep up appearances.

Larry Parks impersonated Al Jolson in "The Jolson Story." Perhaps he did it too well, for he, too, must answer for his sins to the un-American Committee.

And so it goes all the way through the list. Not the actors and producers of the lousy kind of pictures, but the creators of our very best films were the ones accused of subverting the American way of life.

The utter stupidity of this investigation will doubtless backfire, and will make intelligent Americans become really interested in what Communism is, and in what Soviet Russia is doing. One witness testifying against "The Song of Russia," objected to it because in the picture the people of Russia looked happy.

"The people of Russia are not happy," she declared. "I've lived in Russia, and I know."

Asked when she had left Russia, she replied, "Twenty-one years ago."

And the American people are forced to give thousands of dollars in taxes to pay for such utter idiocy as that. An utterly absurb attempt to paint our country "red," when all that is really happening is the real America forging to the front.

"Here unquestionably is the most fundamental argument of all for a statutory FEPC. It starts from the premise that a man has certain rights that his Creator has placed in him; that among these rights is his inviolable right to live by honest work; and that no other man may in conscience shut him off from exercising any one of these rights . . . is it not more honorable and much more in keeping with Christian faith to start from the premise that the worker's right to a job and his right to self-improvement are his rights because God gave them to him? To the Christian, all of the links of the chain fit together. To him, the Negro, or the member of any "minority" is just as precious as any one else in the sight of God, and therefore no one else has the right to exclude him from exercising his God-given rights. Rather everyone has a duty before God to help him as a brother, and to help him in every lawful way. Is this anything less than genuine Americanism? Is this anything less than authentic Christianity?"—Bishop Francis J. Haas of Grand Rapids, Mich.

The Same Old Tune

The State Republicans of California set the tune. And the little Republicans all over the State, dance to the tune the fiddler is playing. It is the same old tune that has always been played, the same old familiar strains. But we are wondering if the little Republicans will dance as naively and unsuspectingly as they have before.

Here is what happened in Riverside, California, where the Republican State Committee met this week.

McIntyre Faries, who has been chosen National Committeeman, and Arthur W. Carlson, of Oakland, chairman of the State Central Committee, presented Governor Earl Warren, on a silver tray, the nomination for the 1948 presidency.

It is stated that the applause was thunderous, and that many Republican "biggies" seconded the motion.

There was just one dissenting voice. And we quote: "Carl Johnson, Los Angeles Negro, said he didn't think Warren had been fair to the Negroes, but he was shown the light in private conversation later."

What we want to learn from Mr. Johnson is what color of light was he shown?

Was it the green light?—a few hundred dollars to open a Jim Crow headquarters in Negro sections, and a little cash over to employ a few bosses to hand out the sheckles to a few other small fry who sit in the offices and fuss straight through the campaign about who is the head?

Most of the visitors to such headquarters are in search of a handout rather than info on how to vote.

Mr. Johnson has had experience with both of the major parties, and he knows that this is a true analysis of the case.

What Mr. Johnson rose to object to, was Governor Warren's failure to appoint a Negro to any of the judgeships at his disposal or to any other important position.

Judge Edwin Jefferson, appointed by a Democratic administration, is a shinnig example for the Negro prepared to take his place with dignity in city, state, and national positions, to help shape and fashion the laws by which he, too, is governed.

It does seem to take us, the little people, a long time to find out who are our enemies.

If we would serve our God with half the zeal we serve our political bosses, we would not be the targets of hate and deception that keep us at the mercy of our enemies who run the Republican show at Riverside this week.

They've Done It Again

Liberals have had the reputation for years of being wholly incapable of uniting. At least the liberals of America. Given a cause that you'd think would call forth the energy of every liberal-minded individual in the community, in a united effort to win—and what do we do? We divide. We split up into little groups. Like useless hunting dogs, we lose the scent of the fox we're supposed to catch, and go howling and yipping after a chipmunk.

The liberal forces of the 63rd Assembly District have done just that again. Just when everyone of progressive inclinations had settled upon Joseph T. De Silva as the candidate everyone should vote for for the Legislature, along comes another of liberal bent—and presto! the real goal is lost sight of, and the divided forces go stalking through the underbrush sniffing out the scent of something that has just crossed their path.

Does anyone except the reactionary candidate expect to win by such a procedure? People are constantly accusing liberals in America of "getting money from Moscow." We wouldn't mean to suggest for the world that anyone did get any such inducement to divide the strength of the progressive army, but wouldn't it be the most logical thing in the world if Moscow really intended to spread confusion and chaos—as its enemies say it does—to do just that by bribing some of our "liberal" candidates to split the vote and see that a reactionary is elected?

That course would suggest Hitler rather than Moscow, of course. And maybe Hitler isn't dead after all.

No Loans to Chiang Kai Shek

Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang, second in military command to Generlissimo Chiang himself, came out unconditionally against loaning any more more money or sending any more military supplies to Chiang, in an interview with the U. S. press in New York on October 10, China's national day.

Marshal Feng said exactly what others have been saying for a long time. The money and material that is sent to Chiang is being used to fight the Chinese patriots, and that is like pouring it down a bottomless pit, opined Feng.

"The Chinese people want American help in reconstruction," said the 67-year old Marshall. "They do not ask for ammunition with which to kill each other. They want peace and democracy, not the dictatorship of a second Hitler."

Answering the question of why he himself did not speak personally to Chiang, Marshall Feng answered, "I have spoken to him. I have also written him long letters. My words went unheeded, and it has become absolutely necessary for me to appeal to my fellow-countrymen and to the people of the world."

Marshall Feng's attitude towards the government of China is very similar to that of Henry Wallace's toward our government here in the United States. There are conditions in both governments of which the people themselves are ignorant, and if the real leaders of those people cannot make themsleves heard in their own countries, they will have to go perforce where they can speak.

Marshall Feng is not a Communist. Neither is Henry Wallace. Both, however, have been accused of being Communistic simply because they advocate the cause of the Common Man.

The threat that is being held over the heads of Americans that if Chiang isn't given more money and supplies, China will turn to Russia for aid, is virtual blackmail, Feng said, and is part of the "shameless attitude of some Chinese officials."

Chiang himself, according to Marshall Feng, is "the head of a factory manufacturing Communists." He gets his soldiers by impressment. "Local officials go to the homes of the peasants, break down the door, and tie up the recruits despite the appeals of their wives, mothers, and children. Can you expect Chiang Kai-shek to win a single battle with such soldiers, let alone final victory?" asks Marshall Feng.

The troops thus forced to join the army are ill fed and ill clothed. "They do not have enough to eat. So whole divisions go over to the Communists," said Feng. "It is 99% hopeless for Chiang to win a military victory."

Yet we keep on sending money to China to keep its government from becoming Communistic, just as we stupidly are sending money to the countries in Western Europe to bribe the people there to avoid electing those terrible Communists to office. And in each case it is like Marshall Feng said, pouring it down a bottomless pit.

Instead of saving Europe from Communism, we are quite likely heading a factory manufacturing more and more Communists, just as Chiang is doing. And although Henry Wallace and scores of others have spoken out against this idiotic conduct, we insist upon keeping on making Communists by the hundreds.

Wonder if our reactionaries are getting "money from Moscow" for their efforts? They should.

W. J. Wheaton Says

The campaign for the electoral offices in San Francisco is really boiling. Charges and counter charges, of one nature or another, are as numerous as the sands of the dunes in the Beach district. Havenner accuses Judge Robinson, who also is a candidate for the mayor's toga, of catering to the underworld with the promise—if elected—of a wide open city. Robinson says that Havenner is painted red and consorts with and is sponsored by Reds and Fellow Travelers headed by Harry Bridges who, they claim to be a Communist.

The Goody Goody element of the electorate, has crowned the handsome dome of Chester McPhee, who is also a candidate for the seat at present occupied by a gentleman named Lapham. McPhee is considered to represent the better elements, whatever the means, he is at present on the board of supervisors. Well! the majority have the opinion that they are pretty good citizens, even if they do not see eye to eye with Chester. The halo surrounding the dome of Chester has been somewhat dimmed by having been endorsed by the present mayor, who is none too popular with the electorate. All-in-all it is a very interesting contest to watch.

There are other contests, such as for sheriff, municipal judgeships, board of supervisors, and other municipal offices, but they are completely overshadowed by the contest for mayor. We did not learn 'til lately that there are more than one Negro candidate running for the supervisorial board. It's too bad. Haynes is the logical candidate and probably will receive the support of the thinking voters who want a representative who can represent the entire people.

Though we may differ as to the advisability of active participation of Ministers in politics—that has been my stand for years—we deem that the Rev. F. D. Haynes is the best qualified candidate; knows more of the city's needs than his opponents. We know his ability and have faith in his sincerity of purpose. It is our prayer that his ministerial robe will not be smirched by contact with the smear that sometimes follows in the wake of active politics. His moral influence in the city has been for good and it is the hope and prayer of friends that his influence will not be lessened, but enhanced, by his entrance in public life. He is the logical candidate for the people.

Our deferred visit to my new acquaintance was made on an evening of the present week. It was the beginning of an acquaintance which we hope will ripen into a friendship, beneficial to both. It is our candid belief that the philosophy which, unknowingly, and without seeming effort comes from her words, may have an effective result on our way of thinking. We would not for the world have her think for one instant that we were using her for an example of curious thought; we found that we had to be very diplomatic in our approach to conversation, but after the supper—which, by the way, will linger in our memory for many days—we settled back for a talk. First we will tell you that the apartment consists of three rooms, bedroom, living room and kitchen. All showing meticulous care and good taste. By an approach, which we thought appropriate, we learned something of the background of the family, and the reason for its migration from its former home.

We learned that there are three Mary Anns in the family. She, Mary Ann, the daughter, married to a son-in-law, named Josh, and Mary Ann, the granddaughter aged 11 and who resides with her—while her son-in-law and daughter went back home to straighten out some matters. We talked about their migration from the southland and of conditions affecting the Negroes in that section of the country, of the living conditions and the results of being obliged to accept that standard of life. All of which was related in a manner that in its philosophical idiom was enlightening and entertaining. We hope to present our readers with one of the most unique and fascinating characters that determined to make San Francisco their home, and realize the benefits accruing therefrom.

On leaving we expressed our pleasure and promised faithfully to visit the coming week. In the meantime Mary Ann 3rd just came in from some "Teen" girls meeting and before she noticed our presence, began a vivacious rehearsal of the proceedings of the evening's meeting to her grandmother, who had to check her enthusiasm for an introduction. We have chronicled our primary visit and in the next week will give Mary Ann 1st's version of conditions as they developed during our conversations. We don't want her to think that we are using her as a guinea-pig to gain first hand information, nor as a Tom Pry in the affairs of her family. Perhaps, after a while we will let her know that our conversations have been of material and spiritual benefit to the community. We tell her motive for coming "North" in this column next week.

A Plan for Plunder

By PAUL FRENCH

Bearing in mind that one of the chief aspects of capitalist-imperialism, as distinct from merchantile-imperialisms of the past, is its surplus of capital, and the pressure of this capital surplus upon foreign policy to get the protection and guarantee by the imperialist government for the investment in other countries of this surplus capital; some interesting developments in the so-called Marshall Plan are recently showing up.

American banks are bursting with surplus capital. There are no less than $139,000,000,000. That hundreds of millions of this is merely "money of account," or book money, rather than gold or even green-back paper money, does not alter the fact that, to capitalists, it is "money." So much of it that you, as a worker, who might have a couple of hundred dollars in a "savings" bank, had the "interest" which the bank paid you for that deposit reduced in recent years from four to one per cent. Of course, if you want to borrow money, the banker will charge you the old high rate of not less than six per cent. That's "normal" robbery. The "American way of life."

But, we're talking about the big money of the Big Boys, finance capitalists, who deal in money itself, not goods. Some of them, until lately, were rather cool toward the Marshall plan, but now things are getting different. The Plan's "loans" are about as likely to be repaid as loans to the Man in the Moon. So they backed off and said: "Nothing doing on loans from us. Let the government loan its money from public funds. So include us out."

However, as things are developing, they see the real chance in the Marshall Plan. New ideas are coming forth. Just as Herbert Hoover, when President, cancelled the debt Britain owed to America's government, so Britain could afford to pay back Morgan's bank for the loans it made to Britain; just as Hoover also "forgave" Germany what it owed "our" government, so that Germany could pay "our" bankers, and also re-arm to fight us; so, today, American financiers are getting set to do the same thing over again, on a grander scale.

Public funds, to be loaned by "our" government are to be used to finance only that part of the Marshall Plan in which there is little or no profit or hope of repayment. But, since the present governments of France and Italy have shown themselves loyal bootlickers, and since America is hogging control of western Germany, even squeezing Britain out, "our" bankers and big corporations controlled by our bankers, see a chance of practically taking over western European industry, and the bankerse are smelling blood.

That goes literally, too. For the financial journal Barron's Weekly of Sept. 15, came out cheering for a "re-armament boom, in which the procurement of military weapons would not be limited to those usable in this country, but would take in whatever might be profitable (yea "profitably") be deployed in Western Europe and the Pacific." (Is somebody really "war-mongers" as Vishinsky charged?)

Anyhow, the Big Shots of Big Business are now speaking out for a chance to grab the industries of western Europe (and eastern Asia!), through loans to "reconstruct" them, to take a mortgage on them, control them and make profits from them—and that "our" government guarantees their investments with its military power—including its power to conscript you for the next war. How do you like that?

Nelson A. Rockefeller, whom Roosevelt put into "our" State Department, in speaking to the Iowa Bankers Convention on Oct. 7, argued that "private enterprise" should "take over the job" om much of Europe's reconstruction. He said:

"It is very difficult, if not impossible, for a government to actually try to help by participating directly in the internal development and production of the economy of another country. However, it is entirely different for a private citizen and private corporations of one country, to work in another country."

The magazine Newsweek of Oct. 13, reported that the same thing was being said by Rockefeller's relative, and chairman of the Chase National Bank, at the 73rd convention of the

A LAYMAN'S VIEW

By Leon W. Steward

TOWARDS IMPROVEMENTS ON CENTRAL AVENUE

Several weeks ago we wrote about a report we had seen in the California EAGLE which promised Christmas decorations for Central avenue. At this time we wish to express our delight that a well established social agency with offices on the avenue is also concerned about its improvement. We also wish to answer one of the letters written us by one of the business men on this well publicized street.

OUR URBAN LEAGUE ACTS

Since writing the previous piece regarding Central avenue, which apparently was read with considerable concern by several of the non-resident operators on the street, we have received a monthly activity report of the Los Angeles Urban League, as has just about every other member of the league. The report contained two paragraphs which we are taking the liberty to quote in full in further evidence of the claim which we made previously as to the need of unified effort on the part of shops and offices if indeed Central avenue is to be cleaned up and otherwise improved. The paragraphs referred to are entitled "Central Avenue Project" and read:

"Over a period of years problems have existed in the community that are badly in need of correction. There is need for a regular cleaning of the streets, sidewalks, alleys, and vacant lots. There is need for a control of street loitering and loud jukebox playing and the accompanying evils of drinking and the use of vulgar language. There is need for greater safety for pedestrians by securing more stop signals and pedestrian walks, and a stricter enforcement of traffic regulations. These needs continue to exist mainly because there has been no unified effort to correct them."

The emphasis of the final sentence was given by us because it expresses the very idea which we hold to be the basic cause of the general neglect of the avenue. The second paragraph continues:

"The Department Committee and staff, in an effort to solve these problems, interviewed 25 business men and women and held a luncheon meeting of these persons at the Clark Hotel. Representatives from the Golden Drug Co., Coca-Cola Bottling Co., City Health Department, Golden State Mutual Life Insurance Co., Florence Mills Theatre, Anti-Defamation League, Evans and Wynn Advertising Agency, Paradise Lounge, Western Department Store, and the city council office attended the meeting.

"The meeting voted to become a permanent committee to work on all of the problems mentioned above."

Thus we see that a very proper agency with a highly trained staff has made a proper survey of conditions on the avenue and some of the 25 business people who were approached by them have already met and organized with the view of doing more for the famous street than many of the individuals have been able to do, namely: to give Central avenue a better atmosphere, look and smell. They said nothing of Christmas decorations. Others will evidently carry the ball for that project, if indeed the neighborhood business streets of the city do not follow the lead of downtown stores, who have decided to put all of their Christmas displays in their store windows.

IN REPLY

In closing we wish to assure the gentleman of the Jewelry and Loan shop (we regret that his letter was misplaced) that this column hopes it will never hurt any good cause. It is dedicated to constructive purposes. Its author spends many of his waking hours on Central avenue. He also knows that the very name "Central avenue" signifies "Negro" wherever it is heard in the city, state, nation and in many parts of the world. Are not these observations sufficient to motivate such as has been written and as is being written at this time in this column and in the hope that the avenue's business men and women may be brought to some sense of responsibility for transforming it into something we can be proud of?

Surely do we not feel that others are not equally responsible in this situation. However, since you raise the question of our sincerity, rest assured that we are quite sincere when we put special emphasis upon the responsibility of those who do not live in the district, use the avenue solely for business purposes.

EDITOR'S NOTE: In addition to the efforts initiated by the Urban League for Central avenue improvement, similar efforts were inaugurated at about the same time by a group of white and Negro business people who have organized under the name of the Central Avenue Chamber of Commerce. This is the group which, holding its initial meetings at the Last Word Cafe, voted in favor of Christmas decorations for the avenue this year, in addition to other proposals for cleaning up and improving the avenue.

A Travelog

By VAUGHN G. PROCTOR

IN JIMCROW POLLTAX TEXAS

I couldn't understand the fact that El Paso, which is located at the junction of Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and Chihauhua, Mexico, was covered with ice. It disturbed me that all my careful plans had gone wrong.

Geography and my own miscalculations conspired to place us in a continual round of bad situations. I realized fully that the original purpose of the trip—namely to find a home and in the process learn what was happening to people in this atmoic age—was lost. It became a supreme effort to pay attention to anything not vitally connected with our physical needs. Life reduced to the raw level of bare survival was a cold, ugly affair that required a great deal of patience.

There were no messages at the telegraph office and I expected none at General Delivery.

I walked across San Jacinto Plaza. Throngs of people waited at the curbs for transportation. Bulking large on one side was the imposing structure of Hotel Cortez. There was an exclusiveness about it that shed the glances of the poor dark-skinned passers-by like a duck sheds water.

In the center of the Plaza was a huge billboard which attracted my attention. It said:

BE PATRIOTIC PAY YOUR POLLTAX BY JAN. 31.
(Signed) El Paso Chamber of Commerce.

I looked to the right; I looked to the left. I gazed swiftly at the dark Latin faces. I swung about and circled the Plaza with my eyes. No, I didn't see long lines of slaves marching before their masters. I didn't see grotesque bodies dangling from the weather-whipped trees lining the Plaza. No, I guess you'd say there was no oppression in El Paso.

But the seeds of oppression and eventual murder are difficult to overlook for one who has heard a southern bus driver say on a trip from Reno, Nevada, to Salt Lake City, that the "funniest sight" he ever saw was "a nigger with his testicles nailed to his cabin floor."

The sad truth is that in El Paso I did see discrimination and the servile attitude that bows to it. It shouted from the polltax billboard and from the swank hotels. It was in the air and on the ground and in the eyes of those I met. It spread out like a film, keeping each being in its isolated place. It was a subtle, almost incomprehensible "Thing" that pervaded the fabric and the bone and core of life. It entered into each interview for a job, each visit to the polls, each purchase of a home site, each school and institution.

I reminded myself that prisons in Texas still use an instrument called the "Bat" (a lash with a leather strap and a wooden handle) to mete out floggings for minor violations of prison rules. Also, I was aware that Texas banned the "closed shop" in 1945, thereby taking an anti-labor stand that was to be the forerunner of the current union-busting drive.

These were the thoughts I had as I walked about San Jacinto Plaza that chilly day in January, 1946.

I went a few blocks further and came upon another plaza with a building identified by passers-by as the public library. Diagonally opposite to the north was a Safeway store. I walked past the familiar turnstile, picked up a loaf of bread, some oranges and a can of potted meat. At the rear I located a refrigerator. I was removing a quart of milk when a woman at my elbow suggested I buy a bottle put out by another firm.

"My husband works for it," she said. "I know it's best." I agreed that it must be and exchanged the bottle in my hand for one made by her husband.

With the groceries under my arm I retraced my steps, walking gingerly over the icy streets. When I reached the hotel, I found the kids playing quietly. After lunch I prepared to go out again. I instructed Vaughn not to leave the room in my absence, and so concerned was I that I had them use a bucket for a toilet rather than seek out the washroom down, the hall. With a final caution about the gas heater, I left the room.

At the telegraph office I found a check for 15. I was overjoyed. I walked back to El Paso street and had a cup of coffee at the Payless Drug Store. I bought three plastic cups for our milk and some salve for the inside of Christie's chafed legs.

It was the middle of the afternoon when I returned to the hotel. With the maps and weather reports clipped from the newspapers, I sat down to figure our next steps. Snow and cold throughout the mountains to the north ruled out that route. Cold weather likewise made it impossible to go east through Carlsbad, which is located in western central Texas. In fact, reports from the newspapers and from people newly arrived from East indicated that the coldest winter in many years had settled over Texas. Prospects were gloomy. There was only one route that seemed at all possible. That was the one south along the Gulf and east to Austin, Houston and New Orleans. I mulled this over as we ate and

Trail Blazers:

Fannie E. Benjamin

By PHYLLIS SCOTT

One of the great common denominators that binds the people of the world together is music. For generations it has served to express the hopes, desires and aspirations of mankind. It has been known to spur men on to their highest endeavors.

More than 20 years ago a talented girl of marked musical ability was recommended by Professor William T. Wilkins to accompany the Chautauqua Chorus. In pigtails and barely in her teens, the young girl surprised the audience by the manner in which she handled the difficult accompaniment. She had already been playing for funerals but her greater talent had been relatively unknown to the public. It was upon this foundation that the weaving of her musical and professional career was built.

FANNIE E. BENJAMIN

Fannie E. Benjamin today is the secretary and assistant manager of the Connor-Johnson Company, one of the largest and wealthiest business concerns in the community. She has been with the firm for 19 years and is one of its stockholders. Recognized as one of the main stems of the company's functioning, she and her associates have created the atmosphere that invites success. Simply and easily she performs her daily tasks, attracting respect because of her ability. She seems to express her strength in gentle ways and without hidden meaning.

But her success goes back to her music, which was responsible for her present position at Connor-Johnson Co. Having come here at the age of nine, she was educated in the public schools of Los Angeles and completed her work in piano, organ, theory, and teaching at the University of Southern California School of Music. Upon graduation she was presented by her organ teacher, Professor Roy Hastens, in an organ and piano recital at the Philharmonic Auditorium.

In character and application, the organ is essentially a church instrument, serving to express the solemn, the divine. Fannie Benjamin has been the church organist at People's Independent church since she was 14 years of age. And with the growth of the church from Rev. N. P. Greggs days to the present, her name has been synonymous with People's Independent church. She has adapted to the organ ideas drawn from her vast musical wealth. So long as audiences continue to applaud the touching and inspiring music of the organ, so long will the majority of its artists perform it.

She is the director of the N. P. Greggs Gospel Choir, and the advisor of the Art and Organ Guild, the largest club in the church with an active membership of 75. As chairman of the church's 32nd anniversary committee, many elaborate plans have been completed to make it one of the finest in the history of the church.

Among the many civic and fraternal organizations which she is affiliated with are Sigma Gamma Rho sorority, honorary member of Beta Pi Sigma Professional and Businesswomen's sorority, American Guild of Organists, NAACP, Outdoor Life and Health association, YWCA, and Friendly Twelve Charity club.

She is married to Arvant M. Benjamin, owner of a cleaning and laundry plant on Central avenue. Completing her little family is her sister, Mrs. Mayme Anderson, who lives with them at 2940 S. Raymond avenue. In her leisure she enjoys plays at the legitimate theatre, the opera, reading books, and exploiting the culinary arts.

THINGS I SEE

By Marian Inglewood

The entire world is being provided with a four-star show in the investigation of those 18 motion picture actors, writers, and directors of Hollywood. The Thomas-Rankin un-American Committee are the producers of the show, and it is being held in Washington, D.C. this nation's capitol which is, we have always been taught, the shrine of American liberty. Each one of those actors in this different kind of show was served with subpoena, ordering him to be in Washington last Monday, and to appear before this un-American Committee to answer any and all questions asked him.

The investigation of Hollywood talent takes on the nature of the old Spanish inquisition of the Middle Ages. People were tortured horribly then for daring to believe differently from the creed prescribed by the Roman Catholic Church, in that day the ruling factor in the Government of Spain. The Hollywood actors, writers and producers, and all others hauled up before this modern Court of Inquisition, are also being tried for daring to digress by so much a san inch from the narrow mold into which the thinking of the Rankins of the country has been cast.

The rally in the Shrine Auditorium Wednesday evening, October 15, intended as a God-speed to the 18 artists who were the guests of honor, reflected the seriousness of the danger that threatens all America today. There was no clowning, as one usually expects whenever Hollywood is on the program. There were no dramatic skits poking fun at this un-American Committee. There were no witty remarks, no wisecracks.

"Ours is a grim humor tonight," said Gene Kelly, actor and dancer, who was master of ceremonies for the meeting, striking the keynote that was felt during the entire program. "The Constitution of the United States and its Bill of Rights is being subverted. That's why we are here. Clearer now than ever before is the possibility of America becoming Fascist. That is the threat that has drawn us together. We are determined to keep the motion picture industry free. And to keep all America free."

"The issue is whether or not this un-American Committee has the power to force all America to think as it does," said Albert Maltz, screen writer. "Its purpose is to drive out every social reform, and to slander any work which might further the concept of the brotherhood of man. This danger to America cannot be disregarded."

"This attack is not upon the American screen," said Norman Corwin, radio dramatist. "It is an attack upon American citizens everywhere, an attack of bigotry, racism, persecution. It is all for one, and one for all. If we don't fight now, fear and poverty will rule this land."

Norman Corwin was not among those who were subpoenaed by the un-American Committee. Nevertheless he appeared on the program as an American citizen protesting the un-Americanism of this action. Actress Marsha Hunt, Evelyn Keyes were others.

Burgess Meredith was mad clear through because he had not been honored with a subpoena. "I'd like to know what I did or didn't do that I can't be in this thing, too," he wanted to know.

As his part of the program he offered a resolution condemning the Thomas-Rankin un-American Activities Committee as being truly un-American and unconstitutional, and demanding its abolition.

The resolution was adopted with a shout of "Aye" that may be heard around the world.

And so it was throughout the evening. One could feel the tenseness of a great moment in history unfolding before one's eyes. There is still time to protest. There is still time for American citizens to think, if they never thought before. There is still time to make up our minds to take an active interest in politics, something which we have scorned to do up to the present.

For if we don't soon begin to think, if we don't soon make up our minds to be concerned about our government and its trend toward Fascism—it may soon be too late.

"Clearer than I have ever seen it before, I see the possibilities of American Fascism today," warned Gene Kelly.

We simply must not let that happen to America.

The Poem

By ETHEL M. PENN

Keep the peals of thine ownself,
Fragrante for the sake of self
Lest ye lose thou odds of Contentment.
Sweet, sweet constant
Whom doest Thee no harm,
Come to my place of Love and Charm.
Gift, O, gift, I welcome Thee,
With silent pleasure
Surprised at Thee of sweetest
Sweetness.
Come, come to my heart,
I love Thee
Come come to my heart,
I worship Thee, Thee, Thee.

A Plan For Plunder

American Bankers' Association. He said that a "United States Corporation for European Reconstruction" should be set up to handle the job "in a business-like manner" to boss everything and "encourage American business investments in Europe."

Joe Martin, speaker of the house in congress, recently visiting Los Angeles, told everyone that he wants "private loans" by American banks and corporations to take over the job of much of the Marshall Plan. Thus, after squeezing Britain out of the Ruhr industries, "our" big boys want to grab not only France, Italy and western Germany, but even make Britain itself cut "us" in on Britain's own industries. Hence all the scolding of Britain about its so-called, but false "socialism."

Thus, the Los Angeles Times of Oct. 8, editorially demanded that Britain's phony "labor" government "realize United States irritation over the frittering of the American loan on socialist experimentation"—that is, if they want more loans.

Harold E. Stassen, one of the Republicans' few "liberals" (save the mark!), speaking in Los Angeles on Oct. 1, said: "I would extend aid to Europe on three conditions, as follows: Give no aid to any country that cannot guarantee not to nationalize or communize its economy; dispense aid through an American agency; and require that all raw materials necessary to American industry be made available to us." If you think that over, you'll see that Stassen really wants to make Europe a colony o fthe United States in fact, though not in name. He wants no "nationalized industry" so American capital can get its hooks into the industries of those nations.

This sort of thing shows how evasive and superficial is Truman's denial of any "imperialism," merely because, as he claims—"We want no territory." Under capitalistic-imperialism "grabbing territory" isn't always necessary.

But it remained for one Holmes Alexander, writers for the Los Angeles Times, to reveal on the editorial page of Oct. 16, the lust for imperialist loot in the raw terms that are avoided by the more cunning top spokesmen for Wall Street imperialism. Alexander was talking about "A New Frontier," which he says is beckoning from overseas with "opportunities" for "industrial engineers" and "labor foremen," who are to take American "know-how" to other countries.

Taking courage, perhaps, from that other Alexander who conquered the world, Alexander offers this bait for the "white collar" straw bosses to help their "big brothers" among the bankers and corporations who want to invest abroad. It's a "new frontier," he says, and there's money in it exploiting the humble people of the whole world. Then he adds:

"The ancient Romans had a way of rewarding their generals by giving them a province to plunder. The modern equivalent would be for the United States to loan money to any businessman who desired to have a try in foreign enterprise, to guarantee him freedom from interference by local authorities."

Now isn't that just ducky? The whole world is composed of "provinces to plunder." And yet, what a yowl goes up when the Russians say that American Big Business is "imperialistic" and wants to rule the world! And loot it!

MORANDA SMITH ANSWERS CARTER WESLEY

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This week Harold Preece presents as his columnist his wife, a well-known writer under her maiden name of Celia Kraft. Miss Kraft, who covered the recent CIO convention in Boston, tells of her meeting with one of the South's new Negro women leaders, Miss Moranda Smith of Winston, Salem.)

By CELIA KRAFT
(Guest Columnist for Harold Preece)

I haven't communed in a long time with the readers of my husband's column by doing a guest article for him. But I'm again obliged to borrow his space because, as a Southern white woman, I've been privileged to meet and talk with one of the South's Negro women who are fighting side by side with their husbands for a better world as I'm proud to fight side by side with Harold.

Last week, I met Miss Moranda Smith, delegate from Local 22 of the Food, Tobacco and Agricultural Workers in Winston-Salem at the national convention of the CIO in Boston. Harold and I, who are temporary refugees from Dixie, feel the amazing strength that comes when Southerners of both colors work and fight together since Moranda Smith told me of what is going on in that leading tobacco town of the nation.

For Moranda Smith, 15 years a tobacco worker, taking the floor to speak for the South's people of both colors at that big convention of the nation's workers, is a witness to the truth that makes us two fight and which will, some day, make the South free.

And the truth is this that Negro and white Southerners can be got together to fight the boss whites and, in that fight, build a South of truth and freedom.

"We've got to drive fear out of our lives in the South," so Moranda Smith said to her fellow-delegates listening so intently that you could have heard a pin drop in the big hall. "And so long as the South's basic people, the Negro and white workers, fear each other, so long will all of us be down in the ditch together.

"But in Winston-Salem, we are driving out fear by learning to work together. And all over the South, we have to learn how to work together like the Negro and white workers of Winston-Salem."

RED-BAITING PUBLISHER

That is the truth spoken from the lips of a Negro woman who can go back to Winston-Salem and keep on talking because there are hundreds of white workers as well as hundreds of Negro workers who will close up every tobacco plant in town if anybody tries to stop her. And it is the truth that gives the lie to Carter Wesley, publisher of the Informer papers in Texas, for his red-baiting attacks upon Local 22 and upon my husband—a white Texan who takes his place with Negroes in the South's struggles—for defending Local 22.

Some of you know of the controversy which has waged in the Negro press between my husband and Carter Wesley, and that Wesley dropped this column from his chain of papers when Harold defended Local 22 at the time that the pollcat Rankin-Thomas Un-American activities committee was trying to smash it. John Rankin doesn't want to see Negro and white workers united in Dixie and neither does his lord lieutenant of Leeland avenue in Houston, Carter Wesley.

In the dispute which caused Wesley to be flooded with letters from Negro readers protecting the dropping of the column, Wesley quoted a Winston-Salem Uncle Tom, J. Alston Atkins. That was a clumsy attempt to prove that Harold had made misstatements about what was going on in Winston-Salem.

Well, Moranda Smith, who works in the tobacco plants, ought to know the situation better than a couple of Rankin boot boys like Carter Wesley and J. Alston Atkins.

Carter Wesley, a Negro, threw mud at the Winston-Salem strikers of his own color by insinuating that they were having to fight all by themselves and had been left holding the bag by their white fellow-workers. And that's a lie of the whole cloth, says Moranda Smith, who defends the integrity of those white workers, helping to birth the new South, as she defends the integrity of those who belong to her race.

"It was the most disciplined strike we ever had," she told me. "The workers of both colors obeyed their leaders of both colors. No race issue was brought up by any worker during the many weeks that we were on the picket line. Even when Rankin sent his pigeons down to stir up race prejudice at the end of the strike, we held firm because the white working people of the South are learning that red-baiting and black-baiting are opposite sides of the same bad penny which buys them nothing at the grocery store.

"Tell your husband that he knows what he's talking about but that Carter Wesley and John Rankin had better get their tune straight before they try to sing together. At the end of the strike, about 82 white workers didn't get their jobs back. But the Negroes put up a big fight to see that they went back on the payroll."

"And, today, the white workers are collecting money to help get back the jobs of several hundred Negroes who have not yet been reinstated."

Now, Winston-Salem is one of the four Southern towns which have a Negro city councilman apiece since our two peoples began to learn that it's not a man's skin but his heart which determines whether he's a man or a cockroach. The Norfolk Journal and Guide, which is on Wesley's side of the fence and not ours, reported that Negro minister Kenneth R. Williams was elected to the city council in Winston-Salem with the help of 1000 white voters. When Harold hailed Rev. Williams' election as a victory for the new South, Carter Wesley accused him of falsifying the facts and claimed that the white workers had nothing to do with it.

"We all worked together to elect Rev. Williams as we work together in everything else," declared Moranda Smith. "Political action by the workers of both races was the greatest thing that the union brought us. Why, until FTA came to Winston-Salem, not even our doctors and dentists and teachers, could vote if they were Negroes. Now we all cast ballots and cast them in the interests of the people, whatever their color."

Today, Houston might have had a Negro, Rev. L. H. Simpson, on the city council, if Carter Wesley hadn't knifed his candidacy. Thank God, the people who speak for the new South are not Carter Wesleys but Moranda Smiths.

Moranda Smith has gone back to Winston-Salem and I miss her. But I know that she goes back home carrying the truth as she came to Boston bringing the truth.

A restrictive covenant inserted by the city prohibits use of the property purchased by the Chamberlains by non-Caucasians.

Attorney Frank Chuman of the American Civil Liberties Union is handling the suit for the Chamberlains.

Ter Maat is one of the two real estate men against whom the $60,000 damage suit was filed last Friday. His co-defendants are T. S. Denny, who runs another real estate office at 191 North Hill; and Walter McEachera, attorney, of 534 First Trust Bldg.

The suit, filed by John Porter of the firm of Gallagher Margolis, McTernan & Tyre, labor attorneys, charges that they "wilfully combined and conspired" to prevent the sale of a house at 688 North Raymond st., owned by Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Waggoner, white, to Mrs. Annie Wilder, a client of Felix Brown, realtor.

As evidence, Porter will show photostatic copies of letters sent by Ter Maat to neighboring white property owners urging them to get together to "stop this invasion of Negroes."

$80 to $82 for apartments in the tenement for which the former white tenants had been paying $11 to $13 only a month before the building was turned over for Negro tenancy.

William Carrothers, janitor of the building, corroborated Fire Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan's belief that the fire was of incendiary origin. Carrothers testified he heard a muffled explosion outside his door just before the fire broke out. Corrigan had reported finding a charred can that smelled strongly of kerosene in the stairwell.

The local Negro Chamber of Commerce has offered a reward of $1000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible for the fire.

The Red Cross has under-written funeral expenses for Mrs. Ruth Griggs, 29, and her three childrea who perished in the fire—Lily 12, Joseph 14, and John, 18 months. The family was destitute and had no relatives.

How women and girls may get wanted relief from functional periodic pain

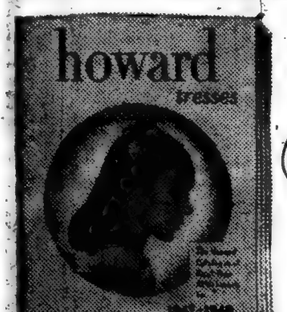
Cardui is a liquid medicine which many women say has brought relief from the cramp-like agony and nervous strain of functional periodic distress. Here's how it may help:

1- Taken like a tonic, it should stimulate appetite, aid digestion,* thus help build resistance for the "time" to come.

2- Started 3 days before "your time", it should help relieve pain due to purely functional periodic causes.



Try Cardui. If it helps, you'll be glad you did.

to the inclusion in the resolution of the specification that the South African government submit a trusteeship agreement for the consideration of the next General Assembly meeting, on the grounds that this seemed like "an ultimatum" and would offend South Africa "public opinion."

"We must minimize and not magnify the difficulties which the prime minister of South Africa faces," the U.S. delegate said.

In voting against the Indian resolution, the Council on African Affairs stated, the United States aligned itself with all the other colony-holding powers, the United Kingdom, France, Belgium, Netherlands; with such "dubious supporters of democracy" as Argentina, Greece and Turkey; and with the British dominions—including South Africa itself.

Although the Indian resolution was upheld by the Committee vote of 2 to 20 (Ethiopia was one of four countries which abstained), it was pointed out that 38 votes would have to be mustered in the plenary session of the Assembly to guarantee the required two-thirds majority.

Declaring that there should be "no further appeasement of the South African government" and that the U.N. Charter's provisions concering colonial peoples should be respected and enforced, the Council on African Affairs called for other American organizations to join in demanding that the U.S. delegation support the Indian resolution on South West Africa as approved by the majority of the Trusteeship Committee.

The United States influence, it was held, "will be decisive in determining whether the outcome of this question represents a mark of merit or of shame for the United Nations."

band, Gaby Nickerson, 67, is being held by the police.

Mrs. Nickerson was found dead in the couple's home at 4357 Compton ave. The body was discovered by Mrs. Nickerson's sister, Mrs. Fanny Jefferson, 4407 Lima st., after the dead woman's husband told her over the telephone, "Come over, Viola is pretty sick." Nickerson was promptly arrested and a murder charge filed against him.

Arresting officers Roy Buchanan and H. C. Collins of the Newton street detective bureau, said Nickerson at first claimed that the killing was an accident, but broke down under questioning and admitted that he jumped on his wife and began choking her after she called him a liar when he accused her of attempting to poison his supper the night before.

The couple had been married 42 years. They have five children. Nickerson was unemployed and was drawing unemployment benefits. Mrs. Nickerson was receiving an old age pension.

Nickerson, according to members of the family, was under treatment for "mental disorders." A son, Belvin, said his parents had previously had no serious disagreements.

Coeds to Aid in Alpha Frat Drive

COED SUPPORT was guaranteed the men of Gamma Xi chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity at the recent rally for the "Forgotten Student Campaign" on Friday night. The girls representing Alpha Kappa Alpha, Delta Sigma Theta, and other social and civic clubs, will be on hand at the "Street Fiesta," taking care of the booths and donation buckets. In top photo, debs of the campus may be seen dropping "green backs" in the bucket. Left to right, they are: Weldina Hefflin, Betty Price, Ann Smith, Pauline Jones, Gloria Crouch, Charlane Derrick, Jean Arnold, Yolande Stovall and Charlotte Derrick. In right hand photo, top: general chairman, Morris Hampton (seated) and William Thompson, co-chairman, are giving the facts of the affair to Leola Beavers, Marilyn Ward, and an unidentified helper. Alpha's 'Street Fiesta' To Be Highlight of Halloween Events

Colorful street lanterns will throw light on the gay "Street Fiesta" that is being sponsored by Gamma Xi chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity on Friday night, Oct 31. All guests are expected to come masquerade, or "as you are," and enjoy the round of fun, that will be complete with street vendors, booths run by very charming coeds, an orchestra, and a galaxy of star musicians and other entertainers.

As a forerunner to this affair taht is being staged as a finale to the fraternity's "Forgotten Student" drive, a very gay dancing party was given last Friday night, at the home of Olston Forrest, member of Gamma Xi chapter. Coeds from Alpha Kappa Alpha, Delta Sigma Theta, Zeta Phi Beta, social and civic clubs were much in evidence, volunteering to do their part on the night of the "Street Fiesta." "Fill the bucket for the forgotten student," will be the serious theme of the evening. The decer of the main affair will be complete with colorful buckets each booth. A small fee of 25 cents is being charged for admission, however, theb ulk of the donations are expected to come by guests giving liberally in the buckets. Adding a bit of compition, the girl bringing in the largest donation on the night of the fiesta will be awarded a prize by the fraternity.

Among those present at the Friday night rally, and who will be much in evidence at the fiesta were: Grace Davis, Regina Mingleton, Haroldine Browning, Leola Beavers, Betty McDonald, Jane Lawson, Vivian Johnson, Eddie Mae Harris, Marilyn Ward, Maria Simmons, Jeanne Arnold, Willie Avery, Tony Venton, Charlett Derreck, Charlene Derreck, Pauline Jones, Ann Smith, Betty Lou Price, Weldina Hefflin, Yolande Stovall and Gloria Crouch.

The proceeds from this "Forgotten Student" drive will go into a student aid fund. From this fund, scholarships will be given to outstanding high school students; college students who have made outstanding records in college, and above all, to allow worthy needy students an opportunity to borrow funds to continue their education.

According to Morris Hampton, general chairman, this affair will prove the highlight fun fest of the Hallowe'en weekend, and will offer a grand diversion for the many students who are interested in doing their bit for the less fortunate.

Final plans are in full sway for the star-studded benefit cabaret affair, "A Nite in Gay Paree," to be given by Les Femmes Au-jour nui. Rehearsing nightly in a dance routine that is certain to prove entertaining are members of the club. The costumes are so elaborate, they alone could put the show over. However, the dancing will be next to professional, as the girls are being schooled by the famous Willie Covan.

A few of the highlights in the two performances will be a specialty number by Mildred Bruce and Sammy Warren. Hattie McDaniel has her own special show; Willie Covan will do one of his famous numbers and the crooning section will be well handled by Marcus Slater and Joe Senagal.

Proceeds from this benefit will go toward the Laura Slayton Youth Foundation. Reservations may be made and ticket information will be given by calling AD 7735.

35TH ANNIVERSARY celebration by Dr. and Mrs. John Somerville, was one of the most outstanding social events of the season. The elaborate affair was attended by the social and civic leaders of the city. Original members of the wedding party were in the receiving line. Elaborite Reception Honoring 35th Ann. of Dr. and Mrs. J. Somerville Attended By Many Socialites

Thirty-five years ago, the elaborate wedding ceremony uniting Veda Watson McDonald and John Somerville, at Wesley Methodist church, was the outstanding social event of the season. This week, we find the 35th wedding anniversary celebration taking its place as a leading affair in the social and civic realm, to which the Drs. John and Veda Somerville are most outstanding leaders.

On Thursday evening, Oct. 16, the South Hardvard blvd. home of the charming couple, was beautifully decorated in seasonal chrysanthemums, and beautiful background music was furnished by noted pianist, Jules Hayward, with intermission selections by Miss Nita Hayward, as a host of friends, most of them representative of old Los Angeles families, gathered to facilitate the Somerville's on 35 years of marriage. In the receiving line with Mrs. Somerville were members of her original wedding party. Mrs. Rufus Evans, nee Willa Rowland of San Francisco; Mrs. Estelle Roberts Saunders; Mrs. Quincy Tabor, nee Ella Williams; also Mrs. Bessie Williams Dones, who was violinist at the wedding; and Mrs. Henry Bacon, nee Gussie Simpson, of Riverside, now of Los Angeles, who was soloist.

Dr. Veda Somerville was very lovely in a gown of pale blue, featuring an exquisite brocaded neck line. In her hair she wore orchids, a gift of the Loren Millers. During the latter part of the reception, the attys. Bernard and Martha Jefferson, newlywed, joined the receiving line. Mrs. Jefferson, chose a gown of black crepe with a delicate pink bodice.

The beautifully gowned hostesses who were much in evidence throughout the evening were: Mmes. Cecil Murrell, Mattie Nelson, George Rowland, Gladys Owens Smith, Edgar Barker, Ivan Harold Browning, Mamie Waugh, Bessie Burke, Fred M. Roberts, Henry McPherson, Alice Harvey, Emma Holt, Paul R. Williams, Owen McCord, Louise Russell and Betty Hill.

Very fitting testimonial speeches were given by Rev. Raymond Booth, Rev. Harold Kingsley and a host of other friends. Dr. Veda Somerville, a native of Los Angeles, is a graduate of USC dental college.

WHAT'S DOING IN THE SOCIAL SET

By JESSIE MAE BROWN

ALMOST A SCORE OF PARTIES are already scheduled for Congressman and Mrs. Clayton Powell Jr., (Hazel Scott) when they visit the city in mid-November. Of course, her concert at Philharmonic Auditorium will be the center of attraction during their stay here, but Angelenos are already vying for dates to honor the distinguished couple. The remarkable congressman and his exotic wife will be house guests of Rev. and Mrs. Clayton Russell, old friends of the family. Mrs. Gwen Russell, prominent in local social circles, has already made plans for an exclusive yachting cruise, for deep sea fishing, a football game and many other unique fetes. You can rest assured that the Powells will be reason enough for added social festivities . . .

Jessie Mae Brown

Deserting Washington, D. C., to spend the early winter season in Sunny Cal, is career lady, Alma Watt, who keeps busy a goodly part of the year holding down a very important job in the Bureau of Printing and Engraving. Already she has taken in the Farmer's Market, Knott's Berry Farm and other highlight spots that visitors usually take in. She has been feted at several gatherings and has even had the rare chance to view some of the stars of Hollywood. She is house guest of Woody and Jean Brown, and will be in L. A. for several weeks to come . . .

HIGH POINTS

Out of all the weekly reports coming to my desk announcing the opening of clubs for the new year, I find the Child Study Guild report to be very interesting, because the group of young matrons is outlining a program, that in the long run will do much for the community. On Sunday they met at tthe home of Mrs. Ernest Wilson. Speaker of the afternoon was Mr. S. A. Hunter of the Golden State Insurance Co. He led the women in a discussion on a Life Insurance program for the Family. According to Mrs. A. R. Traylor, the Child Study Guild will have speakers qualified to give good, sound advice to parents of growing children.

The popular Gordon Dixons (Kate) are just about ready for the arrival of the regal old Doc Stork. Adding a gay note to the vigil, Earline Shaw brewed some very tasty Orange Pekoe, made some of the daintiest hors d'oeuvres and invited 10 of Kate's friends to sip and chat. Joining the affair were Naida Blackwell, Gladys Clark, Carol Boswell, Carmelita White, Coretha Jackson, Corine Ashby, Audrey Jones, Helen Smith and Christine Allen. Lucille Gibbs sent her regrets with a dainty little gift for the expected addition to the Dixon family. In fact, there was a whole shower of gifts for the Dixon arrival before the affair was over. The Dixons have one daughter and are hoping the new addition will be a Jr. By the way, Kate gave up her teaching career. She formerly taught the three R's at Jordan High School . . .

Bet you have never seen a prouder person than Fay Jackson, telling the glad tidings of the arrival of her grandson. That's right, it's two grandchildren for the very youthfully active Fourth Estater. The parents, of course, are Earl and Joan Pierson. Little Earl Edmond Pierson III, was born on Oct. 8, at St. Vincents Hospital. The proud grandfather is Dr. J. M. Robinson . . . Should you just happen to drop by Dr. Catoe Robinson's office this week you will be the recipient of a cigar. Catoe Jr., made his arrival on last Tuesday, tipping the scales at eight pounds and over . . .

In all my wears of covering social events, I have yet to bring you the facts on any finer affair than the 35th wedding anniversary honoring Dr. and Mrs. John Somerville. Ever since the invitations were received by the more than 200 guests the reception has been the topic of discussion by many. The elaborateness of the gathering met all the expectations of those attending. To mention the outstanding guests in attendance would leave room for nothing else, for the best known names in our community's social circle as well as civic were much in evidence. An air of friendliness was predominant as John and Veda Somerville received felicitations. The musical background was very beautiful. Jules Hayward was at the piano for the most part of the evening, however, much to my surprise, Nita Hippard was always on hand to relieve him. Her piano artistry and singing were well received by the guests; most of them didn't know that Nita had the hidden talent. Violet Aldridge Thomas, Jessie Coles Grayson and Mrs. L. Pruitt volunteered solos at different intervals. Guests were asked not to bring gifts, so orchids upon orchids were sent Dr. Veda, from all parts of the U. S. A. Most of them are on a waiting list at downtown florists. Thirty-five years of marital bliss is due cause for such an elaborate celebration . . .

'DENA CHIT-CHAT

By JOHNETTA ARMSTRONG

One of the loveliest stork shuwers of the season was given for Larry Edson. He was the center of attraction, not noticing very much, the oo's and ah's the guests were making over him. Now let me say in passing, if it had been his father——! As late arrivals entered I guess they wondered what was going on, for every one was busy answering questions about babies, from formulas to diapers. It was given at the home of Larry's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Jessie Collins. The hostess, Mrs. Barbara Johnson, had made a beautiful umbrella as the centerpiece, around which the gifts were placed. The gifts were opened, of course, by Larry's mother, Mary Edson. Some of the guests on hand to join in the festivities were Betty Sheppard, who was wearing one of the new full-hooded coats. She is on the infanticipating list. Barbara Durham, over from Los Angeles, where she is now residing, certainly looked well and was sporting some very clever shoes. Bebe King, who always looks fine, was there, as was Pat Fox, over from Los Angeles; she has also returned to school. Barbara Dillars, Frances Moody, Dorcas Robinson, Cleo Lytle, Charlette Cummins, Betty Benson, Bobby Ann Davie, who is on the ladies-in-waiting list, as is Barbara Banks, Larry's aunt. Mrs. Edson, Larry's paternal grandmother, Mable Duncan, wearing an outstanding striped suit, and Dorothy Edwards were also there.

Have you seen the Scott's new convertible Buick. Mad, isn't it! See David cruising around town like a king. I hear that Sy and Felix Williams were to move into their new home over the weekend. I hope they did. We'll all be down to ball.

I wonder why one of the clubs doesn't give a semi? The town is so dead. The Earls had a little get-to-gether the other night and it was a break in the dull routine of things. The Phalanx tried to get the football games at Washington started the other Sunday, but it fizzled out just like everything else. . . . Emma and Leroy Williamson had a party in honor of their daughter's christening. Leroy's sister Evelyn was down from the North and it was certainly good to see her after such a long time. Hannah and Jessie Roberts were also present with their baby son. He is simply darling.

Katherine Glass was the hostess of a lovely shower, bridal that is, for one Snookie McAfee, who is about to take that big step in life, marriage. The lucky man is cous. Timothy Harrison. The table arrangement was beautifully carried out in a pink color scheme. Snookie was delighted with the beautiful lingerie she received from her many friends. It seemed like a fall fashion show with all the girls seemingly trying to outdo the other in the latest style. Lucille Harrison wore a stunning dark green satin calf-length dinner dress, while Mary Scott, who is always ahead of the fashions, wore a black dress with two flares which accentuated the hip. A black skull cap trimmed in gold donned her head. Walta Williams was there, certainly glad to see her. Anna Harrison, wearing a grey frock which was just simply darling. Wilma Hickambottom, Bernice Collins, Mable Benfro, speaking French to a fellow named Roger here from France. She was trying to help with his English and he in turn her French. Quite an interesting arrangement. Ruby King, Mozelle Duncan, Louise Mack, Dorcas Robinson, Barbara Dillard, and Justine Bartlett, who they tell me is expecting the stork come this spring were there. Rudy Gordon, Barbara Pitts, Esther Jones, wearing one of the new frocks and many others were there to make it a happy event for Snookie, who will exchange vows with Tim late in November.

Somebody at last gave a dance. The Alpha chapter of the Phalanx gave a dance at the Masconic Saturday. I didn't get there but they tell me that it naturally jumped. Richard Brown and his band played and there was a good crowd on hand.

Oh yes, I saw Audrey Hester at the shower and she was on her way to see her sister Symanthia Williams and Felix. . . . Speaking of new places Emma and LeRoy Williamson have moved into their new apartment. They say to bring your own box or chair when you come to see them.

You've heard that song "The Most Surprised Party Was Me." Well the most surprised person at the Club Echo's club meeting was Emma Biggs. It was a baby shower. She was so surprised she was just speechless. After the opening of the presents, Molly Sears and Florenia Johnson helping because Emma was just too nervous; Pekeno was played. Sarah Reynolds, Minnie Huff, and Hazel Jackson won all the pennies. Gladyse Douglas was the hostess and everyone enjoyed the wonderful refreshments.

Bernice Martin is home from the hospital with her beautiful daughter. I know that Bert is proud. I forget the baby's name but she is a doll. Dewy is so happy that they will be moving into their new home the first of November. Ruth Valentine's, where they are now living, Bert and Dewy, that is, is certainly getting their home fixed up lovely.

Well that's all for this time.

PROF. HERMAN The Astrologer

TO ASSIST YOU IN MAKING WISE DECISIONS

MARRIAGE

A firm foundation for marriage lies in building it upon habit, mutual affection and a certain amount of patient indulgence. It is not easy, this slow building of a successful marriage. Most folks want everything quickly, even happiness. But it takes time to reach the perfect goal in connubial bliss.

Husband and wife must grow together, learn to live together, to compromise, cooperate and respect each other's ideas and way of life. No woman or man can build a happy marriage alone, for it requires perseverance and teamwork of a high order.

The stability of the home is the foundation of any nation. Remember, if a marriage is worth making it is worth preserving.

Dear Prof. Herman: I would like to ask your advice regarding something that has worried me for quite a while. I am in love with a married man and realize it is wrong but don't seem to be able to help myself. Would it be possible to come and talk to you privately, if so, how should I go about making an appointment?

Ans.: Personal interviews may be obtained by writing to Prof. Herman, an appointment will then be given you.

F.T. What will happen to us?

Ans. — A careful analysis of your question indicates that you have lost your job and are wondering how you will manage until you find another. Your Horoscope indicates some good fortune coming your way, which will include your finding employment, so don't give up or lose courage . . . better times are ahead.

* * *

D.W. — My daughter is not the type of child she should be. She is disobedient, and disrespectful to me at all times. What can I do about this?

Ans. — Due to the limited amount of space in the column I would rather answer your question privately. At your earliest convenience, write in for a private reply.

I.N. — Dear Sir: I am a firm believer in astrology and so glad to know that you give advice and help to those of us who are wondering around in a fog, not knowing which way to turn. May God bless you and your work and enable you to continue it.

U.D. — Dear Helper: Would you please advise me regarding my home affairs?

Ans. — Concentrating upon your question I find that your husband has been unfaithful to you and you are wondering if you should obtain a divorce. Under the circumstances I feel that a divorce is not necessary. You are placing too much stress upon a trivial matter that only needs a little patience and time to rectify the error.

G.G. — Will we get married any time soon?

Ans. — Your Lucky Stars and Guiding Planet indicate marriage in the very near future. You will be successful in your future endeavors and find true happiness.

Santa Monica Notes

By LOWELL EVANS

The Santa Monica Municipal Bus Lines has asked for an increase in fares. The Bay City Transit Lines also asks for an increase. The Bay City Transit is an independent line, competing with the Santa Monica Municipal Bus Lines.

City Manager Dorton reports that the cost of operation has soared, whereas revenue has decreased; $189,000 was the income for the first quarter, and second quarter only $163,000. It is to be noted that neither of these companies employ Negro Americans, although qualified Negroes have applied for jobs. In each instance they were given the "run around." The Santa Monica Bus Line is a municipal-owned company and the citizens and taxpayers alike, white and Negro, are entitled to employment on the basis of merit. Taxation without representation is tyranny.

I have stood on the corners in Santa Monica and Venice a number of times as long as 20 minutes waiting for a bus and when a bus finally came, it was full. In answer to charges of poor service, the management's answer is insufficient facilities and personnel.

We are in receipt of a circular letter from the chairman of the No Bus Fares Increase Committee asking my cooperation in the mass meeting to be held in protesting the company's application to the State Public Utilities Commission for increase in fares, double the present fare. I could see the feasibility of the increase in fares if such increase would assure adequate riding facilities, and the elimination of hiring discrimination.

We note that the city manager is in full accord with the companies' application for fare increases, but he doesn't take any interest in the employment of Negroes.

Mr. City Manager, Negroes pay the same fares, Negro property owners pay the same tax rate on their properties. It is a fallacy to think this country can sell the world the idea that we are the exponents of a democracy we do not possess or practice. Discrimination against Negro workers by the bus companies cannot be explained on the hoary plea of hostility of white workers to working side by side with workers in a darker skin. Negro and white transit workers are members of the same union. In Los Angeles they work together in harmony. They can do so here, too.

Calvary Bapt. Church

The y for us vaulters will, of be the day when the m Fence vs. Football fans. ar, in order to see UCLA en for a ride by the Illini tion, some of us paid as as $100. Some paid less, but few paid the $5.50 for the general admission. Perhaps it's all very well for anyone who can afford it, but for the average person paying this for tickets is senseless.

And those ex-GIs, and some who weren't ex-GIs, who waited for days last year at the gates of that Rose Bowl, and still there were no tickets for them — the incident keeps running across my mind. The reports that 1400 tickets were sold has often been protested. Now here comes a similar situation right here in our own city . . . no public sale of UCLA-USC game this season.

Long and patiently some of us have been waiting for the day when someone will go to the Tournament of Roses Association in Pasadena and protest the Rose Saucer situation. Last year, the situation was protested, and wound up with several persons suing the commission for—well, just suing for.

Now in my opinion it's time for the fans to get down to brass tacks about the situation of admittances. All the seasons long we "suckers" pay wealthy prices to see games. Some of these games, frankly, stink. They would not be if it were not for fans' hard-earned dough. On too many occasions, the supporters of these events get stung and stung hard. A whole season they support these teams, and come the day for better games, or at least a game actually worth seeing, everyone is admitted except the loyal fans who have supported the clubs for a whole season.

There are just two words to explain the situation. Greed and selfishness. This system carries neither altruism nor humanism. It is disgusting and full of holes. Incidentally, the general admission customers are being pushed farther and farther back. There is often more reserve section than general admission space. We, at this point, bring in inflation. The set-up is doomed to crash, and the sooner the better. Not much longer can the average person afford to pay as much as $3.50, $2.50 and $1.50 for entertainment. Soon we shall think more about our necessities of life, than of our hunger for entertainment. In other words, we are just going to think more about our hunger. It will be then that we will have surprisingly low rates for tickets to surprisingly important occasions. The management, of course, will reserve the right to wake up and realize that it was the Honorable John Q. Sucker who supported the big affairs all the time.

CHARMING FELICIA O. PAYNE of Charlottesville, Va., has been chosen by her schoolmates at North Carolina A. and M. college to serve as their queen during Homecoming football game with West Virginia State at Greensboro, N. C. this week-end.

Wilberforce U. Publishes Data On Negro Colleges In United States

WILBERFORCE, Ohio — Information on existing Negro colleges in the United States in 1946 is contained in a special issue of the Negro College Quarterly, entitled, "Institutions of Higher Learning among Negroes in the United States of America." The 268-page book priced at $2 was published this week by Wilberforce University as a result of the joint project undertaken in March by both Wilberforce University and the College of Education and Industrial Arts.

Information from ninety-five Negro colleges has been compiled in this issue which contains historical sketches and significant community relationships of these schools. The facts were obtained from questionnaires sent to all the 109 Negro institutions of collegiate rank listed in the 1945-46 edition of the educational directory released by the U.S. Office of Education. A brief account of colleges not responding to the questionnaire is also given.

"The Negro college can and must become more and more a vital force for social progress," according to the introduction by editors Dunlap and Williamson. "Self-survey or analysis and comparative evaluation are two means by which the Negro college can increase its competency for this social responsibility."

Los Angeles Delegate Describes Success of World Youth Festival

Returned this from the World Youth Festival in Prague, Letitia Innes, youth leader reported last night to the executive board of the Los Angeles Youth Council, comprised of 40 affiliated organizations. Miss Innes was part of a delegation of 200 young people who attended the Festival which was sponsored by the World Federation of Democratic Youth, and brought together 80,000 youth from 72 countries during the months of July and August.

The American contribution included a large exhibit of youth activities in America, an evening concert as well as two prize-winning entries, Helen Kwalwasser and Harriet Wingren of Julliard School of Music, in the international musical competitions.

"Our cultural participation won friends for our country, and was therefore a positive contribution to world peace", stated Miss Innes. She told of reconstruction work performed by young people in Europe, including 93 members of the American delegation. "We learned to use a pick and shovel and we learned of the good fellowship that comes from working together", she said.

Returning aboard the S.S. Radnick, the delegation issued a statement which concludes that "the American delegation feels that the festival was a tremendous success . . . we feel that work together with youth of different religious and national background, creeds, and race for the unity of all American youth in the cause of peace."

Programs are arranged to bring to the children and youth of Los Angeles the utmost in wholesome Halloween fun. Fun and entertainment features will be provided for persons of all ages, and all members of the family are invited. Carnivals will generally begin right after dark on Friday, October 31, and the merrymaking will continue, in many cases, as late as midnight. Parties and plays are scheduled to take place as indicated.

"SHUCKS I'M CORNSHUCKS"

THE REALM OF RELIGION

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. IKE EVANS, D.D.

Subject: Religion In Practice. Lesson Text and Outline. James 1:22-27; 2:14-20. Motto Text James 2:14.

Introduction

The epistle of James has styled a treatise on practical Christianity dealing with the principal phases of a consecrated, consistent Christian life. The life of triumph involves triumph over trial with its proof of faith, over deficiency with its lack of wisdom, over inferiority with its low degree, and over temptation with its evil source; for only hearers and doers of the Word have religion pure and undefiled. The life of faith is shown in the relation of faith to wealth and to works: for faith must not be swayed by wealth into respect of persons; and faith cannot show vitally without works any more than body without spirit.

Comments

1. Hearing is in order to doing; the most attentive and the most frequent hearing of the word of God will not avail us, unless we be also doers of it. There must be inward practice by meditation, and outward practice in true obedience. Self-deceit will be found the worst deceit at last. Those also are pronounced blessed, who hear aright, and who use the glass of God's word as they should do.

True religion touches us to do everything as in the presence of God; and to seek his favor, and study to please him in all our actions. Herein consists pure and undefiled religion.

2. Faith which does not save will not really profit us; a bare profession may sometimes seem to be profitable, to gain the good opinion of those who are truly good, and it may procure in some cases worldly good things, but what profit will this be, for any to gain the world and to lose their souls?

Comment on the Motto Text

We are too apt to rest in a bare profession of faith, and to think that this will save us; it is a cheap and easy religion to say, "We believe the articles of the Christian faith; "but it is a great delusion to imagine that this is enough to bring us to heaven. Those who argue thus wrong God, and put a cheat upon their own souls; a mock-faith is as hateful as mock-charity, and both show a heart dead to all real godliness. You may as soon take pleasure in a dead body, void of soul, or sense, or action, as God take pleasure in a dead faith, where there are no works.

ADIEU KIND FRIEND was the mutual feeling expressed by members and officers of St. Paul Baptist church when they bade farewell to Joseph B. Wilson, teacher of the Joshua Bible class. Mr. Wilson will soon leave for Liberia, where he will supervise the construction of a hospital, new industrial school, and modern roads for the Foreign Baptist Mission of the National Baptist Convention, Inc. — Johnny Delgardo photo.

Great Potential Power of Christians Is United Church Noted Author Tells Students

"To realize the great potential power of the church, the 737 million Christians of the world must be united," Dr. E. Stanley Jones, evangelist and author, told the students and faculties of the Atlanta university system on Sunday at the first joint morning worship service sponsored by these institutions.

Listing the advantages to be derived from a united church, the speaker pointed out that such a movement (1) would give a greater sense of solidarity; (2) would give a new moral and spiritual leadership; (3) would do away with overlapping and duplication; (4) would fulfill the genius of faith; (5) would give authority to what is said; (6) would fulfill the prayer of Jesus; and (7) is just good common sense.

Describing himself as an interpreter rather than a projector of the movement, Dr. Jones expressed a conviction that it is possible now for churches to come together on a federal basis.

The speaker is in the midst of a crusade of 30 cities in 30 days in the interest of a united church. He sees the impossibility of a successful unity of nations where churches of the world are unable to unify.
